Walter Wellman Off for Europe.

NOTED JOURNALIST STARTS ON EPOCH-MAKING TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC OCEAN.

HAS CREW OF FIVE MEN IN HIS HUGE DIRIGIBLE—CRITICS SILENCED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Oct. 15.—Sailing into a thick fog that hung low over the Atlantic Ocean, a few minutes after 8 o'clock this morning, Walter Wellman, with a crew of five men, is tonight believed to be on an epoch-making voyage to Europe in the huge cigar-shaped airship America.

Numerous wireless messages were received during the day and the latest indicated that Wellman is tonight sailing through the darkness off the New York coast.

The men making the flight are Walter Wellman, commander; Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer and next in command; F. Murray Simons, navigator; J. D. Irwin, wireless operator; John Aubert and Albert Louis Loud, assistant engineers.

The start of the balloon was dramatic. Roundly criticised by people who did not believe he would ever undertake what was thought to be a foolhardy venture, Wellman startled the whole island by bringing the America out of the hangar and without ceremony, going into the air.

CRITICISMS STRONGER.

For the last thirty days the public had expectantly awaited some move from the crew. Day after day it was announced that a trial flight would be made as soon as conditions were perfect.

Early this week it was announced the airship would make a trial flight, but still she remained in the big shed. The criticism of Wellman became stronger.

It was about 4 a. m. today that the decision to go up was made by Chief Engineer Vaniman. All night he had watched at the weather bureau. Rousing the crew, who slept in the hangar, Vaniman called Wellman on the telephone at the Hotel Chalfonte and notified him that the time to start had arrived. Wellman soon was on the way to the inlet.

With everything ready for the word, "let go", the crew climbed into the car hanging from the balloon.

The final "good-bys" were said to wives, relatives and friends, and the last word to the ground was given.

CROWD AWE-STRICKEN.

On the Board Walk and beach, a crowd estimated at 6000 stood in awe as the airship began to rise and sail out into the fog. Then cheer after cheer followed when the craft began to disappear in the mist. Within five minutes she was out of sight.

Robert Miller, the wireless operator stationed here, kept calling the America, but it was not until 11:15 a. m. that there was response. Then out of the air came this message, the first even sent from an airship at sea:

After this, messages came frequently and all reported good progress.

Among the anxious people who crowded into the little wireless station on the pier were Mrs. Wellman and two daughters and Mrs. Vaniman. Messages were exchanged between Wellman and their relatives.

LAST MESSAGE.

The last message received from Wellman, late today, said the course had been laid for the north passage from Newfoundland and that speed had been cut to fifteen knots an hour to save the gasoline. Enough gasoline is being carried to keep the America's engines going for at least fifty days under low speed pressure.

The airship is equiped with provisions for thirty days, and a twenty-seven foot life boat is carried. If the ship has trouble with her engines, the wireless will be depended upon to summon ships.

Should the whole structure collapse, the crew will take to the life boat, and, being in the track of steamers, expect to be picked up without drifting long. If all is well tonight, it is believed the America through her wireless, is in communication with ships, and these in turn are passing the word along.

MRS. BARNEY SAYS ENEMIES OBJECT TO ART.

Tells Paris Interviewers It Is Incredible That Nude Statue On Lawn of Washington Home Should Offend—Society Gasps When Wind Blows Drapery Off.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PARIS, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Albert Barney in a talk with your correspondent today, would not designate the persons she considered responsible for the agitation against the statue on the lawn of her Washington home, although from a remark made by her and her daughter Natalie, who was present, it was evident she suspected some personal enemies as causing the trouble. She said:

"I can't tell what has happened or who is responsible until I have heard from Washington. I have received no cable on the subject. It is incredible that this statue should give offense to right-thinking people. There is nothing objectionable about it; the detail of the reclining figure is not glaring, it is conceived and executed in a manner not in the least suggestive. The position on my lawn is only temporary, the statue being placed there awaiting permanent disposition in my house. These absurb, vulgar, untrue stories of my daughter having posed for it show malice in their inspiration.

SOCIETY IS STILL EXCITED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It seems that Washington society is not going to recover from the shock it received when a capricious wind unveiled the nude statue, life-size, of Miss Natalie Barney, daughter of Mrs. Alice Clifford Barney, one of the social leaders of the capital, last week.

The sight-seeing automobile proprietors hoped to be able to display the statue to their patrons, but this was checked by the careful covering of the statue by the caretaker of the Barney home. Nevertheless the "rubberneck" wagons now point out in raucous tones the Barney residence and explain the beautiful statue in picturesque language.

All of which shocks Washington society. But in addition to that it has become known that the Barneys are planning to give a private view of the statue to some of their friends in the near future—as soon as the doors of the house have been enlarged to permit its entrance—and as a result men and women of the capital are paying extraordinary attention to the Barneys. The list of cards for the "view" is said to be limited to a very narrow circle of friends, and everybody wants one.

Just because the wind blew the canvas covering off the statue and left it exposed in the front yard of the Barney home on Sheridan Circle, some persons in Washington have been scandalized. The statue is the work of Miss Laura Alice Barney, sister of the model. It was done in Paris and shipped here early last July.

Somebody saw it lying uncovered in the yard and telephoned to the newspapers. Before the caretaker of the house could get the cover nailed down again it had been photographed and sensational stories written about it.

KETCHEL SHOT.

SPRINGFIELD (Mo.) Oct. 19.—Stanley Ketchel, champion middleweight pugilist, was shot and fatally wounded this morning by an employee of R. P. Dickerson, five miles north of Conway, Mo., where Ketchel has been since Tuesday for recreation. The employee used a target rifle.

The shooting took place on the ranch of R. P. Dickerson, a friend of Ketchel, near Conway, forty miles east of here.

Ketchel died at 7:05 tonight in the Springfield hospital, to which he had been rushed from Conway on a special train, chartered by Dickerson. Three physicians were on the train.

FOURTEEN ESCAPE IN AWFUL DYNAMITE PLOT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OLYMPIA (Wash.) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While they were asleep in their bunkhouse at Gate in Thurston county last night, fourteen Japanese workmen were badly shaken up when a charge of dynamite was discharged under the building, the side of the structure being torn out. Indications point to unionites as the perpetrators.

The Japanese were thrown from their beds, all of the crockery was smashed and houses for some distance on all sides were shaken. All that saved the fourteen Orientals from death was that only about half of the charge exploded, the remainder of the dynamite being found intact when an investigation was made today.

Sheriff Gaston stated tonight that he was busy on some clews and arrests are expected at any time. But he has instructed his men not to make any move unless they are sure of their men, owing to the high feeling rife in Gate.

The outrage is believed to have resulted from the Gate City Lumber Company employing Japanese laborers. For some time past union workmen have resented the employment of the Japanee and harsh things have been said against the company officials, and mutterings have been heard against the Japanese. The Japanese are greatly incensed over the outrage and have notified the Japanese consul. It is likely that the government will be asked to take a hand as the Japanese are threatening to demand damages for the affair.

Just who is responsible for the affair Sheriff Gaston says he is unable to say. While he suspects that some of the white workmen had a hand in the he says he will make no move until sure of his ground. Residents of the place are much incensed at the sheriff's inactivity.

That the Japanese were not all blown to atoms is regarded as miraculous. How the dynamite failed to set off the remainder of the charge is puzzling the officers. Sheriff Gaston has not gone to Gate but is leaving the matter in the hands of a deputy there.

MISS HARNED IS FREED FROM E. H. SOTHERN.

Anonymous Letter Which States Actor Plans to Lead Julia Marlowe to Altar When Decree is Granted, Fails to Deter Judge, Who Parts Couple in Twenty Minutes.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

RENO, Oct. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Virginia Harned Sothern was granted an absolute decree of divorce from her actor husband, E. H. Sothern in twenty minutes this afternoon by Judge W. H. A. Pike.

Just before the trial was called in the District Court, Judge Pike received an anonymous communication from Philadelphia which stated that Sothern would immediately upon the signing of the divorce decree by the Nevada court, escort Julia Marlowe to the altar.

Miss Harned, it is stated, was furthering her part of the contract by securing a residence in Nevada and obtaining a divorce. The communication said that the understanding between the two is mutual, that when Sothern sold his home on Sixty-ninth street in New York, Miss Harned signed papers accepting a certain share for her interests in the property.

When seen this afternoon, Miss Harned said that the reason Sothern gave for deserting her was that he wanted to devote the rest of his life to his work. That he wanted to be free and not subject to criticism and that he wanted to do as he pleased. That was the only reason he ever gave for leaving her, she testified.

She asserted that she had not seen nor heard from him since June 30, 1906; that she had not received a penny from him for her support although she testified his salary for a forty week engagement was $100,000. The last she saw of Sothern was four years ago at their home, 37 Sixty-ninth street, New York.

They were married in December, 1896. He never offered to return to resume marital relations and when in New York either lived at the Knickerbocker Hotel or the Players' Club. She testified there were no children and that she sold the New York home since she came to Nevada to live. She asserted that she considered Reno her home that she had no other home and would come back here to live. She stated that Sothern was forty-eight and that neither he nor she had ever been married before.

Judge Pike granted the decree without further ado. The actual time required to set Mrs. Sothern free was twenty minutes.

SENATOR DOLLIVER DEAD.

FORT DODGE (Iowa) Oct. 15.—Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver died at his residence here at 7:30 o'clock tonight, while a physician, Dr. E. M. Van Patten, was examining his heart with a stethoscope. His death followed an acute attack of stomach trouble, which affected his heart. His physicians announced tonight that his death was directly due to dilation of the heart.

HOLD FORMER OFFICIAL.

Prominent Arizona Democrat is Charged With Embezzling Graham County Funds.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

GLOBE, (Ariz.) Oct. 15.—Ben. R. Clark, treasurer of Graham County and prominent in Democratic circles throughout the Territory, was today indicted on four counts of embezzlement at Solomville. The indictments charge misappropriation of nearly $1500 during his term in office.

Clark served as sheriff of Graham County for four years prior to 1900 and in 1905 was elected to the office of County Teasurer. He was chief clerk of the Assembly during the last session of the territorial Legislature and is so generally known throughout Arizona that the indictments have caused considerable excitement. He is at liberty on bail pending trial of charges.

DYNAMITERS WRECK BUILDING.

Inmates Thrown From Beds and Narrowly Escape—Police Certain Explosion Was Planned.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dynamite or powder was used in an attempt to blow up a two-story building at No. 1354 West Taylor Street today endangering the lives of six persons who occupied the second floor as living quarters. The sleepers were thrown from their beds by the force of the explosion and the front of a restaurant, on the ground floor, was wrecked. Every window in the building was shattered and damage was done to glass panes in houses for a block distant.

The police assert that there was no question about a deliberate attempt having been made to destroy the building. Wren the fire department arrived the only fire that could be found was in the center of the restaurant floor, where a pile of newspapers was blazing. On top of the papers was a large box in which the bomb or explosive had been placed. No trace of a fuse could be found, but the box was burned and broken.

NORTH TOWNS ARE CHOSEN.

WILLOWS, Cal. Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Willows will be selected as one of the places where the Department of Agriculture will establish viticultural experiment stations in northern California. Florin, in Sacramento county, will be the other station. Professor Husman of the Department of the Interior has been making a tour of inspection throughout northern California, and while he has not given out his findings as a result of that tour, it is definitely known that Willows and Florin will be the favored places. Experiments in grape culture will be carried on in a large scale at both of the stations.

WHEN FREDERICKS SPEAKS.

EARL CLIMBS TO STAGE; GRAY'S FIST MENACES.

Dramatic Scene in Simpson Auditorium When "Express" Editor Makes a Rush During the District Attorney's Stinging Address, Demanding to Be Heard.

E. T. Earl, proprietor of the Evening Express, precipitated a dramatic clash at the Auditorium last night when, smarting under the District Attorney's charge that he had furnished Nick Oswald with funds to escape the meshes of the law, following exposure of the Harper administration, he rushed toward the stage demanding to be heard. His arms were waving wildly above his head, and his face was white with rage.

"I demand to be heard," he shouted.

On reaching the platform he attempted to scale the rail, but was pulled back by J. W. Burke, a local contractor. He tried to free himself but others rushed toward him and barred the way. He got one foot on the stage. Then a patrolman hurried down the aisle, and grasping the editor by the shoulder, undertook to lead him from the hall. The effort was futile however. As Earl was arguing with those about him, ex-Judge Wheaton A. Gray rushed toward him, and poising his giant frame for pugilistic action, shook his fist at Mr. Earl, and yelled, "I'll beat your damned head off if you attempt to come up on this platform."

Then Capt. Fredericks, the speaker, who had remained unmoved throughout the stirring scene, grasped ex-Judge Gray by the shoulder and led him back to his seat. Then the cat-calls, which had been ringing from the gallery and pit, gradually ceased. Capt. Fredericks resumed his sharp arraignment of the Woolwine-Earl combination at the point where he had been interrupted.

Every feature of Woolwine's wild charges against Capt. Fredericks was dwelt upon, analyzed and as facts brushed away the fiction pictures painted by Woolwine, there was applause of the most vociferous character.

Throughout the captain's reply Mr. Earl had maintained his composure, but when Fredericks produced documentary proofs of Earl's private agent furnishing Nicholas Oswald, the former notorious tenderloin king, with $500 for the purpose of leaving the country, he was unable to contain himself longer. Then came the climax.

"Gentlemen this is free America," Capt. Fredericks concluded: "Let every man be heard. But Mr. Earl has a newspaper to preach to our voters—I am a poor man and have none. Therefore let him use his newspaper, and let me use this stage. Every dog has his day. I will have mine.

The meeting was then adjourned, and Mr. Earl, surrounded by a body of friends, departed, while Capt. Fredericks was congratulated on every hand for his attitude throughout the stirring scene.

Capt. Fredericks' speech will be published in The Times tomorrow.

CENSUS.

RETURNS PADDED.

Gross Fraud Charged by Bureau

THIRTY-THREE THOUSAND, TWO HUNDRED NINETY-SIX TOO MANY IN TACOMA.

SEATTLE, PORTLAND, BOISE AND MINNEAPOLIS ALSO ON THE ACCUSED LIST

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Staggered by the enormous growth shown by the returns of the new census for a number of western cities, Director Durand of the Census Bureau ordered an investigation, the result of which appeared in the announcement tonight that gross frauds had been perpetrated. Mr. Durand gave out also a letter from President Taft, directing that persons implicated in the alleged frauds be prosecuted.

Cities mentioned specifically as being affected by the frauds are Tacoma, Seattle and Aberdeen, Wash.; Portland, Or., Minneapolis, Minn.; Boise, Idaho; and Fort Smith, Ark., but it is said there are many others.

The result of a second enumeration of Tacoma was announced today. The city shows a population of 82,972, an increase of 45,258, or 120 per cent. over 1900. The first figures turned in for Tacoma were 116,268.

EXTRAVAGANT PADDING.

In other words the actual population was padded to the extent of 33,296, which would have meant a further addition of 40 per cent. These additions were made in thirty-four out of the seventy-three enumeration districts in Tacoma. In some of these districts the number reported proved to be several times greater than the actual population.

In ten districts enumerated, the figures of the census showed 28,753 names, whereas the correct number was found to be 11,666.

President Taft, when informed of the padding, wrote to Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor, as follows:

"BEVERLY (Mass.) Oct. 1, 1910.

"I have read Director Durand's letter and agree with him that it ought to be published. The cases of all those who appear to have violated the law should be investigated by the grand jury and if sufficient evidence is found to justify it, they should be indicted and prosecuted at once. Nothing will so conduce to securing a proper census as the prosecution of those who attempt a fraud upon the law.

PROPER PUNISHMENTS.

"I am led to believe that the present census has been much freer from attempted frauds than any previous census, but the instances cited by Mr. Durand are sufficient to require the utmost vigilance to bring those who have violated the law to justice and proper punishment.

"Sincerely Yours,
"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

The letter of Director Durand, also addressed to Secretary Nagel, sets forth that attempted padding of the census was brought obut mainly through the use of slips printed by private individuals and containing the census questions.

These were distributed very generally, on street corners and elsewhere, and were filled out by thousands of people who either had been enumerated or were not permanent residents of the city and not entitled to enumeration there. It is possible that in some cases the anmes were fictitious.

These lists were turned over by the private individuals who collected them, through a special agent of the Census Bureau named Corwin, to thirty-four of the enumerators, and they, under the instructions of Corwin, added the names to the enumeration by assigning them as "boarders" or "lodgers" to various houses in their district.

The director declared that more or less extensive attempts at padding the census have been discovered in the other cities mentioned and that investigations are in progress with reference to a number of other cities.

Director Durand says that the suspicions of Chief Statistician William Hunt and Chief of Division W. H. Jarvis of the population division, with regard to the census of Tacoma, were aroused when on careful examination it was ofund that there was an absurdly large number of families reporting "roomers" and "lodgers."

William A. McKenzie, a bureau expert, was sent by Director Durand to Tacoma and made a thorough investigation. In the ten districts mentioned, a complete re-enumeration was made, while in twenty-four other suspicious districts the head of each house was visited and investigated. Many names had been assigned to vacant lots.

The director ays it is not yet known whether any individuals or group of individuals were responsible for the false enumeration in Tacoma. The claim is made that the names were given to the enumerators with the avowed purpose of seeing whether they had been listed. Instead of using the names for this purpose, the enumerators used them without making any investigation.

In excuse for this course they say they were acting under directions of Stacey M. Corwin, one of the special agents of the Census Bureau at Tacoma. He distributed large bunches of the slips among the enumerators, stating, Mr. Durand alleges, that the names were those of bona-fide residents who should be registered.

GUESTS CROWD NEW HOSTELRY

WEALTH AND BEAUTY THRONG GRANT AT SAN DIEGO.

MANAGEMENT FORGOES FORMAL PROGRAMME.

FOUNTAIN UNVEILING AND THE BALL ARE FEATURES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO (Cal.) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The joy in San Diego tonight will never be equaled until they welcome the first ship that comes through the Panama canal.

The U. S. Grant Hotel, costing over one and a half million dollars, was thrown open today. It has been four years since this great structure first was started. The people of San Diego have waited upon the opening of the Grant as a point to be reached in their progress.

There was little ostentation about the big hotel. No programme has been arranged. The hostelry was opened and it satisfied J. H. Holmes, managing director. At six o'clock, Louise J. Wilde, who has been one of the principal factors in building the hotel, registered on the new book and the hotel was officially declared open.

The morning train from Los Angeles brought a half hundred prominent hotel and railroad men and fully two hundred folk who took advantage of the reduced railroad fare to San Diego.

It had been intended to have a banquet for the guests in honor of the opening but this was found to be impracticable early in the evening as the main dining salon was crowded and there was little diminution in the waiting list.

Three more rooms fronting on the Fourth Street side were pressed into service and still there was an overflow. Finally all idea of a set programme was abandoned and the hotel was turned over to the guests.

It was a merry scene with the business men of San Diego and the hotel proprietors and managers of the State who represented over $2,000,000 of invested capital, mingling with the handsomely gowned ladies.

PRESENTS PUNCH BOWL.

During the afternoon H. C. Fryman, proprietor of the Hayward Hotel and president of the Southern California Hotel Men's Association, presented J. H. Holmes with a beautiful cut glass punch bowl over three feet in height, the gift of the Hotel Men's Association. The presentation was made during a lull in the impromptu fiesta being held in the lobby. Mr. Holmes was so completely taken by surprise that he could not respond but walked about to the different members of the committee and shook hands and solemnly promised to protect the bowl with his life. The event of the evening was the unveiling of the $10,000 fountain in the plaza fronting the hotel. Mrs. J. L. Wilde pulled the cord which released the white curtains which concealed the fountain. The fountain is a work of art and was made possible through the generosity of Louis J. Wilde.

The ballroom of the Grant, which is located on the seventh floor, was a bower of beauty tonight. Great festoons of greens hung from the center and each window was walled up with a great mass of roses.

ELITE ARE PRESENT.

The elite of San Diego and a great portion of the social leaders of Los Angeles and Pasadena were present. This was the beginning of a polite revel which lasted until near 2 o'clock this morning. The lobby of the Grant was a forum for the prominent hotel men of the State. Probably not since the convention of the H. M. M. B. A. in Los Angeles last summer have there been so many hotel managers in one place at the same time. There were hotel managers from San Francisco, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Pasadena and other places.

Prominent among these were Mr. and Mrs. H. Fryman of the Hayward Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Whitmore of the Alexandria Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Raymond of the Raymond Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Linnard of the Maryland Hotel, C. A. Cooke of the Fairmount Hotel, and representing the Palace Hotel Company, accompanied by his daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Milo M. Potter of the Potter in Santa Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cunings representing the Hotel St. Francis of San Francisco, and C. A. Knapp, manager of the Hotel Van Nuys in Los Angeles.

In addition to the galaxy of hotel men were T. A. Graham, General Passenger Agent of the Southern Pacific, and J. J. Byrne, General Passenger Agent of the Santa Fe Company who arrived on the afternoon train.

Rear Admiral U. Sebree and wife were prominent figures in the ballroom. Headed by D. M. Linnard, the Pasadena colony was represented by eighty. They arrived on the afternoon train which was one hour late. They occupied two special cars which were attached to the regular Santa Fe train.

Howard J. Schage is Married to Bellingham (Wash.) Girl at Tacoma.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Deputy Auditor Austin, who is called "Cupid," was called on to help the little god last night. Mr. Austin was preparing to spend the evening out when his telephone rang.

"Say," came the nervous tone, "can't we get a marriage license?"

"Sure," replied Austin, "I specialize on that, we have some very nice ones for $5 with a dear gold seal on them, they look swell in a black frame."

The nervous young man was then directed to the court house where he met Mr. Austin. In answer to the formal questions required by the state he said his name was Howard J. Schage, and he lived in Los Angeles. The bride was Miss Clarice McDonald, they met here last night by agreement, the parents of the bride in Bellingham being notified of her wedding by a telegram. They were married by the Rev. E. R. Pritchard.

THE SUNDAY TIMES TODAY.

What Has Been Accomplished in Two Weeks After an Unexampled Disaster.

Two weeks ago, on the morning of Saturday, Oct. 1, the great Times building at First and Broadway was blown up and burned down by the enemies of industrial freedom, and twenty-one of the loyal workers of The Times were massacred.

On the very morning of the tragedy The Times printed a four-page sheet and every day since has issued a paper from its auxiliary plant.

The mechanical departments have been re-enforced steadily and conditions are rapidly approaching the normal. The Times is now able to take care of all advertisements handed in, liners or display, of any size or form as of old. It is doing business of all kinds in the usual way and all favors will receive prompt and accurate attention.

The recuperation of The Times is indicated by the size of this day's issue, in seven parts and magazine, 112 pages, made up as follows:

Part I—Telegraph Sheet, News from the State, the Coast and all quarters of the globe. Classified advertisements, 16 pages.

Part II—Editorial Sheet, News, views and business. Full of local news and current comment, 16 pages.

Part III—The Cream Sheet, Life's Finer Side. Music and the Drama, Art and Artists, 16 pages.

Part V—The Pink Sheet. Sporting and automobile section, 8 pages.

And so here comes The Times, two weeks after the destruction of its plant, with over 100 pages, having nearly all the customary features, a full news service and an unrivaled advertising patronage. The world has furnished no parallel to this achievement.

FLYERS READY.

CASH PRIZES ARE RAISED TO SATISFY FOREIGN AERONAUTS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Albert Bond Lambert, president of the Aero Club of St. Louis, announced today that Adolphus Busch has subscribed $500 as a cash prize for the winner of the international balloon race which starts from St. Louis Monday. The German contestants declined to fly unless prizes were offered.

To Busch's subscription the Aero Club added $250. A committee has been apointed to solicit money to be awarded as cash prizes to the balloonists.

The Aero Clug of America, under whose auspices the contest is being held, has not subscribed any money for cash prizes. The representatives of the German, Swiss and French aero clubs are complaining because no money prizes are offered. Hugo Von Abercorn led the demand for cash awards.

Emil Messner of the Swiss Aero Club said that $15,000 were offered in prizes when the contest was held in his country last fall. Capt. Messner said that the James Gordon Bennett cup is not a suitable prize for the winner of the contest.

"The cup itself is a beastly work of art," he said. "It looks like a German sausage."

Capt. Honeywell, the St. Louis aeronaut, led the campaign to secure enough cash prizes to satisfy the foreigners.

DESERTS HIS GOVERNMENT.

RUSSIAN SECRET POLICE CHIEF TAKES MANY DOCUMENTS.

Menchikoff Says He Will Make Public Names of 350 Agents Provocateurs Belonging to All Classes of Society—Declares 3000 Spies Employed in Twenty Years.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] M. Menchikoff, one of the chiefs of the Central Bureau of Secret Police, has deserted the government and taken with him piles of secret documents. He threatens to make public the whole system of the secret service and already he has disclosed the names of many dangerous agents provocateurs. It was he who denounced the bogus Baron Harding and Mme. Joutchenko as spies.

Menchikoff also says that he is preparing a list of 350 agents provocateurs belonging to all classes of society, including scientists, professors, priests, literary men and generals, distributed among all political parties. He affirms that there are 100 spies among the Social Democrats, seventy-six in Poland, forty-nine in the Caucasus, and twenty-five among the revolutionists, and that these are now at work.

In the last twenty years, says Menchikoff, 3000 spies have been employed by the government, millions of rubles extorted in taxes have been spent in corrupting the public conscience, thousands of innocent lives have been sacrificed and the careers of the most promising young men and women have been ruined. The ordinary government employee is a spy. Many of the persons involved in Menchikoff's charges pass as Socialists and revolutionists in order to instigate conspiracies, especially among students, and then denounce them to the police for hanging or exile.

BELIEVED TO BE DESERTER.

Sargent, Who Enlisted in Navy at Chicago, Answers Description of Missing Artilleryman.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VANCOUVER (Wash.) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Winthrop Sargent, who, enlisting in the navy at Chicago, yesterday announced himself the brother of Mrs. Ogden Goelet and posed as a rich man, answers the description of a deserter from this post according to the post records here.

Sargent was sergeant in Battery B, Second Field Artillery. He enlisted September 11, 1909, giving his residence at No. 214 Fairmount avenue, Brookline, Mass. While attached to the post here he often boasted of his high connections and gave evidence of good breeding and high education in his talk and manners. He was possessed of a brilliant intellect.

While stationed here Sargent handled news of the post for Portland and Seattle newspapers and on several occasions sent out stories which displeased the officers of the post because of their revelations of inside affairs.

Sargent went heavily into debt during the latter months of his service here and finally deserted and ran away on March 25 last.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John H. Page, formerly secretary of the Territory, has been named by District Judge E. M. Doe, receiver of the Octave Mining Company, one of the largest gold mining companies of the Southwest. Its property lies in southern Yavapai county, five miles east of Congress Junction. The mine is extensively developed several thousand feet in depth and has produced up to $200,000 a year. The ore bodies are large but have been less rich in later years. To meet this condition, immense sums have been spent in the past few years in constructing a new forty-stamp mill and in the electric equipment of the property. The electricity was to have been furnished by a subordinate corporation, the Central Arizona Electric Company, which built expensive works at Wickenburg, on the railroad but has never operated them. About a year ago the Octave company issued $500,000 worth of bonds which were to be sold for the more thorough development of the mine. Theretofore a million or so has been contributed by the stockholders, many of whom were connected with the Standard Oil.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Josephine Bartlett Perry.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Josephine Bartlett Perry, wife of Harold Perry of New York, known to the public as "Josephine Bartlett," died at the Baptist Hospital, Thursday night, of injuries received in an automobile accident in New York a year ago last spring. Mrs. Perry began a career on the stage in 1883 in Chicago, with the Chicago Ideal Opera Company. She has sung in many character parts in Chicago, New York and Boston, and continued on the stage until the time of her accident. Mrs. Perry came to Chicago six weeks ago to visit her sister, Mrs. H. M. Quackenbos, and until two weeks ago it was thought she was recovering, but at that time she began to suffer from pains in her head, and twelve days ago she lapsed into unconsciousness from which she did not recover.

Mrs. Ella Maybel Palmer.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Ella Maybel Palmer, sister-in-law of Mrs. Potter Palmer, was found dead of heart disease in her residence, No. 344 East Forty-first street, today. Mrs. Palmer was the widow of William Palmer, a brother of Potter Palmer. She was seventy-four years old. A year ago Mrs. Palmer found her husband dead in the residence in which she passed away so suddenly. Mrs. Palmer retired in her usual health. When she was called there was no response. Her son found her sitting in her favorite rocking chair. Mrs. Palmer had never mingled in society in Chicago. She had always led a retired life. It is said that she received an allowance of $250 a month from the Potter Palmer estate. Mrs. Palmer is survived by a son, William, who is married and whose family makes its home in the Palmer residence on East Forty-first street.

MANY SEND CARDS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Today winds up the post-card campaign to interest eastern Congressmen in California's claims to the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915. Directors of the San Francisco Exposition Company announced that 2,000,000 cards, distributed through all parts of the State, had been used. School children, women's clubs and fraternal organizations assisted in the movement. Many of the cards were addressed to prominent Federal officials, and it was stated that President Taft, Speaker Cannon and leaders in both houses of Congress would be deluged with pictorial mail during the next few days. San Francisco sent out over 650,000 cards and Los Angeles about 225,000.

PUNISHES NAVAL CADETS.

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) Oct. 15.—Superintendent Bowyer of the Naval Academy announced today the punishment imposed upon Midshipman J. W. Anderson, Howard Bode, Jenifer Garnett and William H. O. O'Brien for hazing. All of the youths who were members of the senior class, are given 90 demerits and Anderson and Garnett, who were officers of the brigade, are given twenty-five extra marks and reduced in rank for neglect of duty.

John Donovan, who has charge of the naturalization bureau of the Federal Court for the New York district, has taken official cognizance of the change in government in Portugal. Manuel T. Spenola, a native Portuguese, applied for first naturalization papers, Donovan, in administering the oath, required him to renounce allegiance to the Republic of Portugal.

THANKS UNCLE SAM.

SHOUTS FOR NOBLE PILE.

GREAT THRONG AT FEDERAL BUILDING CELEBRATION.

HALF CENTURY'S ADVANCE IS VIVIDLY PORTRAYED.

POSTOFFICE ON SAME SPOT FIFTY YEARS AGO.

"My country, 'tis of thee!"

Five thousand voices hurled it at the stars. Temple Block pulsed with it. For blocks the night throbbed with it. Bared heads lifted, pillars of red fire gleaming, Old Glory waving—"Land where my fathers died, land of the pilgrims' pride"—Lord, how Los Angeles sang it last night at the pivotal point of Temple Block where for a circle of a thousand yards a happy multitude with boundless enthusiasm entered with joy into the celebration marking the conclusion of the splendid new Federal building.

WHERE VITAL SPIRIT MOVES.

Beneath the radiance of its upper story lights moved the great throng, mighty in numbers and deeply glad, all eyes resting upon the splendid monument wherein already there moved the vital and resistless spirit of an indispensable public service.

Upon the very spot fifty years ago had stood a frame building 16x20 feet, which was then the postoffice of Los Angeles where mail was received by steamer once in three weeks and by cattle caravan once in three months. The service then consisted of one man, whereas today 910 employees answer the ever-increasing needs of greater Los Angeles.

Two bands made music for the occasion and music and speeches were alike punctuated with dazzling pyrotechnics which seemed to explode from a will of their own. At times the very stars seemed converted into a shower of fireworks and a murmur ran through that the moon had exploded like a rocket.

KNOWS NO BOUNDS.

From the moment the vast assemblage had collected, until the last speech, which was made by Will D. Gould, the enthusiasm of the big audience knew no bounds. It reached the high tide after the call to order and address by Milton Carlson, when the band played "America" and the multitude joined in the patriotic anthem.

That superb climax of feeling was sustained by the vocal solo of Mrs. M. G. Gonzales, who sang "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and was joined in the chorus by the vast audience.

It was so arranged that the speakers of the evening represented every section of the city. Mayor Alexander was introduced by Garner Curran, chairman of the evening, as the personification of Uncle Sam. The Mayor's happy resemblance to this greatest man on earth who is not a man at all never did him better service than at this dedication.

He said that the one trouble is that Los Angeles in the past has grown so fast that the postoffice has to be moved about like a tamale wagon in search of quarters big enough to meet the demands of business. The requirements of this office five years ago and its present demands are so greatly at variance that it seems impossible to predict what the local postoffice needs will be five years hence.

The Mayor said that he hopes to see another large administration building at Temple Block so that the county, the city and the Federal Government office buildings will be centralized at that point. The big assembly gave a mighty cheer. The Mayor also expressed a wish to live that he may see the county and city consolidated into one government and that this government shall be equal to the wonder of the climate here.

Rev. Dana Bartlett in the invocation had made a similar point in giving thanks that the great building had been constructed without shame, with walls strong and beautiful, and he prayed that as its granite and steel so may be the quality of American citizenship.

Joseph Scott, as president of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke as a representative of the whole people. He echoed the hope of the Mayor to see a handsome City Hall close to the Federal building and thought it a fine thing that the splendid new building they dedicated last night should be as a great sheet iron anchor for the city's governmental heart.

WHERE THINGS MOVE.

Postmaster Harrison gave some interesting facts with regard to the actual operating force of the postoffice, explaining the manner in which the 910 employees with their monthly payroll of $70,000 are divided. There was much applause when he announced that the money order department does an annual business of nearly $15,000,000.

O. J. Muchmore, superintendent of construction of United States public buildings, gave facts concerning the actual construction of the edifice. The plans were prepared at the office of the supervising architect of the Treasury Department in Washington under direction of James Knox Taylor. The general contract was awarded to Dougan Bringhan & Co. of Seattle, July 9, 1906. Dirt was broken on the foundation August 12, 1906. The building contains six stories and will accommodate the offices of the postoffice, the customhouse, United States secret service, United States Marshal, the Land Office, the Reclamation Service, the Geological Survey and the various branches of the Federal Courts.

One of the happiest speeches of the evening was by Capt. Louis Hansen of San Pedro, who was introduced as "the fighting Dane." Other pleasing speeches were by R. F. Del Valle, J. G. Mott and Joseph Mesmer, the latter being president of the Federal Building Site Committee which has worked on this proposition consistently since 1894 and which raised $214,000 with which to purchase and donate the present site to the government. Both Mr. Mesmer and Mr. Del Valle gave refreshing and invaluable bits of the early history of Los Angeles when its entire civic life centered about the old plaza.

"In his happy remarks wherein he accepted the chairmanship of the evening Garner Curran said, among other things:

"Surely we should all unite and use our great energy, our brains, our wealth, our artistic abilities in making Los Angeles the most beautiful and the most sanitary city in the world.

"To do this each citizen must keep his own property clean, public and private corporations must plan for the future, and all the old mossbacks should immediately divide their property among their most progressive heirs.

"This great Federal building, the dedication of which we celebrate tonight, is but a unit in the plan for a civic center in this vicinity. We are all glad and grateful to receive this magnificent gift from Uncle Sam, but must consider this as only the beginning, and must not cease in our efforts to contruct a city beautiful, until our highest ideas are realized."

WOULD WED MISS GIBSON.

Girl Prisoner Admits that Prominent Local Realty Man Seeks Her Hand in Marriage.

A man prominent but now nameless seeks the hand of Miss Julia Ward Gibson, student and magazine writer, who is under arrest for attempting to shoot Millionaire Al. D. Meyers of Goldfield and Long Beach. He met the young woman at her former home in Pittsburgh.

Every day since Miss Gibson has been confined at the County Jail boxes of flowers, choice fruits, and delicacies have been received by her and always the card of the same man, well-known in the commercial life of Los Angeles and Southern California has been attached. The packages arrived with such regularity that they aroused considerable speculation among the attaches of the jailer's office. Then the facts concerning a proposal got out. When queried yesterday, Miss Gibson naively voiced an admission.

According to Miss Gibson, the petulent one who is neither chilled by prison walls or the notoriety to be gained in the subsequent court proceedings, is a real estate operator, a member of a prominent Los Angeles firm. When pressed for his name the young lady refused emphatically, stating that while she did not encourage, or grant his suit for her hand, she would hold sacred his sentiment and his identity.

"I refuse absolutely to give to the public the name of the gentleman who asked my hand in marriage," said she. "He proved himself to be a man by his honesty of purpose in the face of the notoriety that such a union at this time would encourage. I told him frankly that there was only one reason why I did not grant his suit—that I loved another. That other is Mr. Meyers. It was my love for him that placed me where I am today. And I suppose that I will keep on loving him in the face of whatever dire circumstances the morrow brings.

"I suppose it is because woman is so constituted."

SPITS OUT GOLD.

San Francisco Detective Causes Thief to Disgorge Ill-Gotten Gains.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Capt. Tom Ryan, detective, has turned magician. He looked Ramon Avara, aged 17, squarely in the eye last night and Avara spat two $20 gold pieces and $10 on the carpet of Ryan's office.

Benino Mendoza had been working hard for ten months and saved $50, which he sewed in his trousers. On Thursday night Mendoza was walking home when he found Avara standing in a doorway, shivering with cold. Mendoza invited him to spend the night in his room. Yesterday morning Avara wasn't around when Mendoza awoke, neither was the $50.

Mendoza hurried out into the street and found Avara. He took the boy to Capt. Ryan.

"What have you got in your mouth?" said the officer as Avara came into the room.

Avara looked as though he was suffering with lockjaw. He began to choke and then he spat $50 in gold onto the carpet. He was locked up.

PROHIBITIONISTS SILENCED.

PENDLETON (Ore.) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With rotten eggs, decayed tomatoes and cries of "Let-er buck," Pendleton cowboys greeted Dr. William Parsons, a Portland minister, who attempted to address the crowd which poured from the theater after hearing Clarence Darrow speak in opposition to the prohibition movement. Parsons mounted a box and began a speech. That was as far as the cowboys permitted him to get, as surrounded by his prohibition friends he vainly begged for a hearing for thirty minutes. The disorder continued, the streets being in an uproar. Rev. W. H. Foulkes of Portland succeeded Parsons, but fared even worse. The cowboys told him to get down and he finally did so.

BOASTS MANY HUSBANDS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Appearing in court with a petition for alimony, Mrs. Annie Lowenberg-Kohler-Wallace-Beck confessed to Judge Ogden, in Oakland yesterday, that she had long thrived on such matrimony. She was committed to the County Jail pending the filing of a charge of bigamy by District Attorney Donahue.

According to the woman's admission, say the police, she boasts of possessing three husbands simultaneously. Other testimony tended to show that marriage was her profession, but she had no use for divorce courts until she saw possibilities in alimony. She is the daughter of Mrs. Amelia Lowenberg, who at one time conducted a matrimonial and affinity bureau in San Francisco.

NEW LINE TO CHINA.

VIENNA, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Austrian-Lloyd Company is organizing a direct fortnightly fast steamship service to China by way of Bombay, Penang and Shanghai, doing the voyage in thirty-one days instead of in fifty-one as at present. Austria's export trade to China has trebled in the last few years and it is expected that the new service will extend it greatly, especially as Austria's political relations with China are friendlier than are those of most of the other big nations which obtained their trade there through force of arms or financial influence.

BANQUET FOR AGENTS.

J. N. Russell, Jr., general agent of the home office of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co., gave his second banquet last evening to the agents and office force to renew their enthusiasm in the "cup contest." The banquet was given at the Hotel Hayward.

Among the speakers were, George I. Cochran, president of the company; Danford M. Baker, vice-president; Frank Pratt, John F. Forester, agency instructor; W. E. Webb and E. W. Maxson.

Poker Players in Toils.

Risto Guric, John Prin, Roda Roiz, Chris Milosvich and Loza Mich were arraigned before Police Judge Frederickson yesterday morning on a charge of gambling and their trials were set for Friday. Patrolman Amman, who arrested the men Friday, said he found them playing poker in a room in Sonoratown.

"Open" is an especially fitting word under the circumstances. The office [illegible] resumed business was entirely [illegible] except for the granite-arched doorway which offered some shelter from the rain. At the foot of the old stairway on First street, with tables for counters and cigar boxes for cash drawers, The Times was once again doing business at the old stand.

Former patrons appreciated finding an office in the old location and several hundred advertisements were taken in there yesterday. The circulation and advertising departments were for the time being consolidated. The main office of old became the branch office of the present.

Many passersby stopped to express the hope that this was the first sign of an immediate resurrection of the Times Building. Others made use of the information bureau facilities which have been afforded them in the past by The Times.

The reopening of the old Times office even in so small a measure called attention to the rehabilitation of the paper. It will take longer to replace the building, but readers of The Times will observe that it has already regained its old position of the chief advertisement medium of the Southwest and is rapidly restoring the features which have made it the greatest newspaper on earth. It will soon be in a position to handle every display or classified. For some days a great amount was perforce rejected. The Times has made every effort to serve the interest of its patrons while struggling with big problems of its own. The old office at First and Broadway will be open hereafter for the benefit of those who find it inconvenient to visit the temporary main office at No. 531 South Spring street.

PASADENA.

WILL DON HER BEAUTY ROBE.

CROWN CITY TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE THURSDAY.

Grand Fall Opening Will Be Decorative Affair—Playground Committee of Board of Trade Recommends Purchase of Several Sites for Public Purposes—Brief News Items.

PASADENA, Oct. 16.—The Promotion and Welfare Committee of the Merchants' Association last night decided that the merchants will give their grand fall opening next Thursday.

Other affairs have been tried, in years past, to get the people of the town and surrounding country to visit the Pasadena stores, but nothing so ambitious as this has been attempted.

All the stores are to be beautifully decorated, and everything about the business houses is to be spic and span. Many of the larger establishments will have orchestras and each caller will be served tea and wafers. An attempt will be made to turn the entire town into one great big bazaar with the exception that nothing will be sold at double price and no raffles will be pulled off.

RECOMMENDS PURCHASE.

The Playground Committee of the Board of Trade, consisting of C. D. Daggett, J. B. Coulston, J. C. Brainard, J. Edward Kent and George F. Keneghan, appointed last March to investigate the feasibility of asking the city to buy public playgrounds, parks and build a convention hall, reported to the Board of Directors yesterday morning. After a short meeting of the latter, the report was accepted and a resolution adopted calling for a meeting of the membership for the purpose of appealing to the City Council to call a special election to vote bonds to purchase the projects recommended by the committee.

The committee's report carries four recommendations. The first is that the city purchase Carmelita Gardens at a cost of $63,275 plus interest at six per cent. for about two years. The second proposition is that the people be asked, at an election, if it is desired to purchase a strip of land on Kensington drive adjoining the playgrounds, at private sale. No figures are given as to the probable cost.

The third recommendation asks for a bond election for $125,000 to build a casino or convention hall on Carmelita Gardens for the use of the citizens.

WILL BUY CITY JUICE.

At a special meeting of the directors of the Board of Trade yesterday morning the resolutions of the Municipal Light League, adopted two weeks ago, demanding that the Board discontinue patronizing the Southern California Edison Company and use city juice instead, was read. A resolution was adopted directing the secretary to have a city meter installed November 1.

PASADENA BRIVITIES.

The Times Relief Committee reports a total cash collection to date, of $1336.75 which will be given to the families of the victims of the disaster.

Company I, Seventh Regiment California National Guard, returned from Camp Atascadero yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Frank G. Barnes died at the Pasadena Hospital early yesterday morning from an acute attack of Bright's disease. He was born in London, England, in 1866 and spent the greater portion of his life in evangelical work in Western Canada and Dakota. For a time he was president of the Epworth Seminary at Epworth, Iowa. Later he was president of the Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, Ill. The funeral will be held at the parlors of Reynolds-Van Nuys, Monday afternoon.

The California Congress of Mothers will meet at the First Congregational Church, Wednesday.

CLAREMONT WANTS THE BEST.

Will Purchase Auto Fire Truck, With Chemical Engine and Equipment Complete.

CLAREMONT, Oct. 15.—A public meeting was held in the City Hall last night to consider the advisability of purchasing an auto fire truck with chemical engine and equipment complete instead of purchasing a touring car built over into a truck as had been originally arranged for.

It was the consensus of opinion of the citizens as well as of the Trustees that the best truck available was none too good for an up-to-date community like Claremont, a city of beautiful homes, and a vote of confidence in the Trustees was passed, assuring them that the people would back them in any decision they came to.

A meeting of the Republican voters of this precinct has been called for next Thursday night at the City Hall, to organize for the campaign.

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
BANKRUPT PIANO AND PLAYER-PIANO RECEIVER'S SALE.
THOMPSON PIANO MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S STOCK.

Of course you have heard about this bankrupt sale of the Angelus Music Co., how the Sheriff of Los Angeles closed the doors of the big piano store, and how the manufacturers of these standard high-grade instruments ordered us to sell these pianos for what they would bring.

We must simply dispose of the remaining bankrupt stock by the first of the month at prices next to nothing; we must dispose of everything in the shop, and at the prices we are offering them at we are confident that every one of the remaining choice pianos, baby grands, uprights and player pianos will be taken quickly; about 22 of the very choicest most costly high-grade Deckers, Weber and Hazeltons are still here, and they go for less than half price; even $10.00 a month buys them. These are special exhibition pianos, the like of which will never be shown again; at least, they could not be obtained under ordinary circumstances for less than $750.00, $800.00 and some for even $850.00.

sell for from $117.00, $127.00, $156.00, according to work, style and design; most of them are reduced more than half the wholesale value; pay $5.00 or even $6.00 a month; none of these instruments will be sold to dealers or their representatives, unless such dealers take every instrument of the particular make that we have in stock; we want to make a clean sweep in the very shortest time possible. Every minute counts now, but we propose to favor our retail customers to the fullest extent.

A FEW SPECIALS IN USED PIANOS.

Think of a $550 Knabe piano at the bankrupt price of $215! RUSHING NEW LINE.

Spreckels Manager Says Work On San Diego-Arizona Road is Going Ahead Rapidly.

"When will you complete the new San Diego-Arizona road?"

"Tell me when Roosevelt will let up on the money market and I'll answer you that question," said William Clayton, vice-president and managing director of the Spreckles Corporation of San Diego, at the Alexandria yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Clayton, J. D. Spreckles and [illegible] the San Diego Union, were in conference in this city, and it was after this that the former was approached.

"We are rushing work as fast as possible on the new line. There are thirty-five miles of track laid out of San Diego and our survey has reached [illegible] McMullen, managing editor [illegible] near the Mexican border line, well on the way to Yuma. We are straining every possible point to push the work, and it is only a matter of ready money that can stop it."

Further than that Clayton declared he could say nothing. Immediately after the conference, the nature of which would not be devulged, Spreckels left for San Francisco while his friends returned last night to San Diego.

A Glendale car ran off the track as it emerged from the Pacific Electric depot at Sixth and Main streets yesterday morning, and traffic west of the building was tied up about forty-five minutes.

"Banbury Cross," Picturesque Addition to Famous Brewer's Beauteous Pasadena Gardens---A Child's Idea Carried Out by Landscape Gardener.

BY FRANK GERHART.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PASADENA, Oct. 15.—Busch's Sunken Gardens, the pride of Pasadena, of Southern California, and of the world, for that matter, are more beautiful and more attractive, today, than ever before. And why shouldn't they be? During the past nine months nearly $300,000 worth of land and buildings has been added to the palatial estate. In addition to this over $200,000 has been spent in labor and material, making improvements here and there, adding to the beautiful lawns and flower beds, building a great "sea wall," which boxes in the Arroyo Seco in its winding course through the lower end of Arroyo Gardens, and in erecting the only real touch of ancient folk lore to be found in all Southern California, the exact reproduction of the old mill at Banbury Cross, England, the first real grist mill known to English people.

Near the new main entrance to the gardens and parks, which is on Madeline drive, near new Grand avenue, this quaint facsimile is now nearing completion and by the time the Busch family arrives in Pasadena for the winter sojourn, about December 1, the old mill at Banbury Cross will be in full operation and the tourist and sightseer will be carried back to the days of Queen Elizabeth and Edward IV, when the sweet, old, nursery rhyme, which has been prattled by every English speaking child for the past six hundred years, was penned:

"Ride a cock-horse to Banbury Cross,
To see what Tommy can buy,
A penny white loaf, and a penny white cake
And a two-penny apple pie."

Globe trotters have trotted the lands of the world over and have shipped the seas of every clime. They have stood on the portals of the great cathedrals, admired the handiwork of the world's great sculptors and painters; they have visited the grand castles of great rulers; have followed the trails of Moses and climbed the hills of Jehrico; but, if they wish to see the first bit of romantic history they ever knew, the one they learned on their mother's knee, Busch's Sunken Gardens, Pasadena, offers them their first opportunity.

Adolphus Busch, multi-millionaire, master mind, man of affairs, is spoken of in every tongue, yet he is but little known. As a brewer, he is king. As a financier he has no superior. His chief fame is that of president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company, and while he owns that great plant, bag and baggage, it represents but a small portion of his wealth. He has a will of steel, a hair-trigger mind, but the heart of a child—big, open and tender.

When he bought "Ivy Wall" and the barren ground, now the beauty spot of all the world, he instructed his California agent, Ernest H. Lockwood, to get him the best landscape gardener that could be found. Lockwood brought to him R. G. Fraser. After examining Fraser's recommendations Mr. Busch said, "Now, Fraser, I want you to make for me the most heavenly place on the face of the earth. Use your best judgment and all the skill you have. Hire all the men you need, go to all the expense you wish and send the bills to Lockwood. But understand, I must have the most beautiful gardens, the most artistic grounds, and the most attractive park to be found anywhere in the world. I don't want any imitations of other parks or grounds. This place must be original, must be unique, and must be par excellence."

That the orders have been strictly obeyed is the testimony of every person who has had the privilege of visiting the famous gardens; and that Mr. Busch is pleased is vouchsafed by the fact that the grounds have been more than doubled and, while he has already spent over $1,000,000 for labor and material, his orders for lavish expenditures are more positive today than ever before.

BANBURY CROSS.

But to return to Banbury Cross, as that part of the gardens is now known: Adolphus Busch, man of business, captain of industry, lover of nature, loves his family and especially his large circle of grandchildren. They are the apple of his eye and draw largely on his time and attention. Nothing is undertaken, no plans are made, without due consideration for the grandchildren. Their happy laughter and the prattle of their nursery rhymes are his especial delight.

"Ride a cock-horse to Banbury Cross" said one of the grandchildren last spring while playing around his grandfather's chair. "Where is Banbury Cross? I would like to see it," said the child.

"That settles it," said Mr. Busch. "We will have a reproduction of Banbury Cross built right here on the grounds. There is nothing like it to be found anywhere and we will have it. Send for Fraser."

The superintendent was sent for and the idea formulated into a command. Fraser set to work. He is a Scotchman by birth. He knew of Banbury Croce and had been through the place, which is a small city in Oxfordshire, England, twenty-two miles from Oxford, in the center of the richest agricultural part of England and known the world over for its ale, cheese and cakes.

But Fraser wanted someone who knew more about Banbury Cross. He sent for Harry Borman, who was born in Banbury and spent his boyhood days playing around the relic of the old mill which did a thriving business away back in the fourteenth century.

"Borman," said Fraser, "We must have an exact reproduction of the old mill at Banbury Cross—an exact reproduction in size, style, architecture, water falls, water wheel, stone burrs for grinding, and all. It must be so realistic, so genuine, and so natural that when the people see it with the big stream of water roaring and splashing over the big wheel and hear the sing of the burrs, as they grind the wheat, they will all commence to hum the old nursery rhyme, known to them in their childhood days, dear to the hearts of all Englishmen, the old song which Banbury sung through the streets of London 700 years ago when selling his hot rolls which he made from the flour ground in his mill from the wheat grown on his land near by, and still sung by the lunch wagon pedlers in London:

"'Hot cross buns, hot cross buns,
One a penny, two a penny,
Hot cross buns.
If your daughters don't like 'em
Give 'em to your sons.
One a penny, two a penny,

The southeastern portion of the upper gardens at the end of the beautifully-terraced sunken gardens, on the ground acquired from Dr. Baer last winter, was picked out for the mill site. At the bottom of the little hill there is a small clump of live oak trees just right to shade the rippling brook and the mill. The hill was sloped off to fit the bank at Banbury Cross where the original mill stood. To make the water falls beautiful and realistic nearly the entire side of the hill has been dressed with rugged boulders, all around and over which is growing ferns and water moss. Winding about through the rocks, small paths have been made with a labrynthian effect. But the mountain stream itself is a thing of beauty. It bubbles forth from the ground at the top of the hill, a great stream carying 450 gallons per minute. It bursts forth into a narrow canyon rolls out into a miniature pond, leaps through a small gulch into a larger pond and over a precipice into a still larger pond. From this pond the mill race carries the water over a great log onto the great water wheel copied after those of long ago—eight feet in diameter and three feet wide with twenty-five buckets into which the clear spring water leaps and roars and splashes throwing a mist like a miniature Niagara Falls. "The water that has passed" falls into a great irregular pond from which it rushes down through a long crooked, rocky canyon which is filled with various colored bottles and water falls made of colored glass giving the water all the colors of the rainbow. At last the stream reaches the fish and lilly pond stream reaches the fish and lilly pond gold fish are kept. In the center of the pond there is a miniature mountain from the top of which bubbles a small spring and runs down the four sides in small trickling streamlets.

But while the water falls are of rare scenic beauty the dear old mill has a quaint elegance all its own. It is twenty feet long and ten feet wide; one story high on the up-hill side and three stories on the down-hill side. It is built of boulders, securely cemented with the wooden framework projecting out. In the basement or mill floor are the great stone burrs hitched onto the water wheel shaft. They are the real article and will do real work because the feed for the great flocks of chickens, ducks and geese on the Busch estate will be ground in the old mill. The top floor will be fitted up in real old English style and will be used by Mr. Busch as his "den" where he will sit and entertain his friends.

BEAUTIFUL TERRACES.

The top of the hill to the east and south of the mill is beautifully parked with grass lawns, flower beds, and innumerable walks. From this hill the entire Busch estate can be overlooked, the Sunken Gardens in the immediate foreground; to the north the beautiful "Blossoms" flower gardens; to the west the gardens on top of the old hill; to the south the small orange orchards and on in the distance the Arroyo Gardens which lie beyond Grand avenue.

But "Banbury Cross" does not represent all the immense improvements which have been made this year. The old stable has been taken away from the rear of the homestead and in its place beautiful terraces have been built to conform with the balance of the Sunken Gardens. From Mr. Busch's private office he can now look out over his beautiful palatial estate. The old entrance from Orange Grove avenue has been closed and made into a park and the entrance to the grounds will be on Madeline Drive and Grand avenue.

Down in Arroyo Gardens or that part of the Busch parks on the west side of Grand avenue, clear on down, down to the Arroyo Seco $15,000 have been spent in the last few months building what Mr. Busch calls his "sea wall." Great rubble concrete walls twelve feet high, eight feet wide at the bottom and one foot wide at the top have been constructed the entire length of his property. The walls are thirty feet apart, giving ample room for the entire flow of the Arroyo Seco during flood times. All the way along the "sea wall" a private road way has been made, with pretty parkings on either side. The great chicken, duck, geese, pigeon, peacock and rabbit pens have been built along-side the roadway. Two arched bridges have been placed across the roaring arroyo.

Nor is that all the expense for this year, because several thousand dollars have been spent on "The Blossoms," which, next to the Sunken Gardens, has long been one of thes how places of Pasadena. "The Blossoms" was bought by Mr. Busch last winter and will be occupied by August Busch and his family. The flower gardens on this property have been changed. Walks and drives altered and connected up with the Sunken Gardens until it is now all one park.

Another valuable improvement is the building of Grand avenue and Arroyo drive which through the Busch estate are one and the same. Through the action of the City Council, Grand avenue, a close rival of Orange Grove avenue, is to be extended south from California street, seventy feet wide, with beautiful parkings to the Arroyo drive, joining the latter just west of the Sunken Gardens. Thence it winds around with Arroyo Drive to Madeline Drive whence it strikes straight south on into South Pasadena. At Madeline Drive, Arroyo Drive branches off and follows the Arroyo Seco bank on to the ostrich farm at the new South Pasadena bridge. To the north of Busch's Park Arroyo Drive will follow the winding course of the Arroyo Seco on to the Linda Vista bridge.

During the winter Grand avenue will be graded and asphalted for its entire length. Arroyo Drive will be treated in the same manner and when completed will without doubt be the most beautiful and scenic drive to be found anywhere. And while every foot of it will be grandeur sublime, and every turn will open a new vision of resplendent beauty; in every direction the eye will feast on nature in its most gorgeous splendor, yet when the turn, either from the north or the south, brings the traveler out in full view of the Busch gardens lying on either side like a velvety mass of filmy fairyland he will behold the most entrancing scene on the most scenic drive in the most beautiful city in all the world.

But after the sightseer has meandered through the beauty paths of Arroyo Gardens, has sipped from the numerous fountains, the especial pride of Mrs. Busch; has stood in wonderment gazing at the variegated waterfalls; has seen the geyser pond, filled with ducks and geese; has seen the quaint bit of Arizona, or the cactus patch on the side of the hill; has wandered about through the stupendous rolling terraces of the Sunken Gardens; has trudged and trudged over all the pathways and drives of the great estate and has completed his entire twenty-seven and a half miles walk, he will stop and ponder at "Banbury Cross." The wild, rugged scenery of Arroyo Gardens will have enchanted him; the Sunken Gardens will have entranced him into a soothing dream of paradise; and when he has forgotten all the hustle and bustle of the busy, busy world, the clang of the street car, the screeches of the steam whistle and the roar and surgings of busy marts, the old staid mill of Banbury Cross, the laughing, rippling, babbling brook, the sharp splash, splash of the old water wheel and the roll of the grinding burrs will bring him back to life with a sudden jerk and he will wonder if Fraser has really done what Adolphus Busch told him to do—"make it the most heavenly place on the face of the earth."

UP LIKE A ROCKET.

FILMS THRIVE HERE ON QUINTUPLE LINES.

Moving Picture Enterprises Develop Rapidly Along Educational, News, Advertising, Private and Theatrical Ways. Headed for Los Angeles.

AMONG the tourists who are "beating it" for California, flying from cold weather, are four or five moving picture companies with their actors, scenery and costumes. It will be a big winter in that regard.

The Selig people and the Bison Company already are permanently located here, at Edendale. The American Biograph Company, which sent a company out last year from New York, will send another one this winter and may possibly establish a permanent studio here.

The Vitagraph Company is sending a company to San Diego. The Lupin Company of Philadelphia will take pictures this winter in a studio near Hollywood.

It is predicted by theatrical men that Los Angeles will be the moving-picture center of America, next year.

The theatrical problem of today, and the one that is worrying all theatrical men, is the future of the moving picture. It is evident that this problem will be worked out to a large degree in the hills around Los Angeles.

The experience of the men engaged in manufacturing films in and about Los Angeles is that the moving picture business has split into five different commercial streams; that it will develop henceforth in different directions. These are:

The educational film.
The news film.
The advertising film.
The private film.
The theater or show film.

The first three mentioned are just beginning to develop.

In the opinion of both educators and picture men, a biograph will be a part of the equipment of every schoolhouse in the very near future and geography lessons will be learned from a motion picture screen.

In the East bugology classes in the universities are already watching the little bacilli romping about at their murderous play by means of moving pictures.

The pictures are used in an educational way by both the Army and Navy. The press dispatches only last week told of using films of running horsemen and moving skirmishers are targets for militia riflemen. The pictures are thrown at one end of the rifle gallery and the marksmen shoot as the images gallop across the screen. A red light shows the place where the bullet hits.

Very little of this work has been done locally.

RUN OF DUCKSTERS AND RUNS OF LUCK.

Club Men of Los Angeles Work Up Great Enthusiasm and Invest a Lot of Money for a Few Days of Fall Outing. Shooting Yesterday.

BY A CLUBMAN.

When it began to rain Friday afternoon I observed there was about an equal division of the club members who hurried out to buy umbrellas and those who headed for the various sporting goods establishments. Having led an amphibious life for sometime under an umbrella in Chicago I decided to go in for the altogether on this occasion, and accepted an invitation for a Saturday morning's duck shooting at the Christopher Club, which is one of the score or more in the vicinity of the famous Bolsa Chica. Duck shooting is a Southern California industry not to be sneezed at, though much of the fall sneezing you hear about town undoubtedly originates in those duck marshes. This is an industry representing an investment of a great deal of capital. As to the output—it is very difficult to estimate.

When my host and I boarded the Newport car I began to realize for the first time what a precarious existence the wild duck is born into. There was Count Von Schmidt and a party the Bolsa Chica. The Count looked as if he might be going to an afternoon tea, but the rest of the party was extremely warlike in appearance. When our old friend Hedderly boarded the car anyone could tell that it was a real sporting expedition. He carried a gatling gun on one shoulder, some sort of a submarine destroyer on the other, two pockets stuffed with sporting magazines, and a line of conversation that smelled of smokeless powder. There were delegations for the Westminister, the Sunset, and Blue Wing, the Canvas Back and all the oth clubs.

DO THE WIVES KNOW?

When I accepted the invitation my host gave me a list of the essentials for a day's shooting—a khaki shirt, a pair of rubber boots costing $20, shells to the number of 200 representing another $4, and a few minoraccessories. I was greatly handicapped from the outset by having a borrowed gun that coesteckoK costshut $30. I wonder what some of the delighted wives at home, who manage their households economically, would say if they knew just how much those duck dinners cost which they innocently figure as a saving on the butcher's bill.

We had everything that was necessary, except raincoats and umbrellas—and a three-mile drive in a soaking shower after leaving the car made that slight omission a very impressive one. One of the great attractions of duck shooting as I look back over it is the chickens they serve for dinner at the club-house. The game-keeper's wife was expecting the rain to bring down as many hunters as it did ducks and she had four large fowls "smothered" for our dinner. The term does not refer to the manner of their demise but to a process of cooking that has it on the "a la Maryland." It happened there were but two of us to eat those birds and if I missed an undue number of good shots yesterday morning I must attribute it to embarrassment at having to face anything of the fowl species again so soon.

A little girl named Comfort brought in the four chickens, the celery, the apple sauce, the home-made bread, the sliced tomatoes, the mashed potatoes, the fruits, the nuts and the incidentals. There is almost enough comfort in that club-house to react in discomfort.

"Shall we continue eating?" my host inquired, when there was a pause between courses.

"It won't make any difference to me," replied Comfort, demurely.

MERELY TO EAT.

I overheard Jacob Baum, of The Times, giving an order by telephone one Friday afternoon for such quantities of steaks, chops, ham, eggs, fruit and vegetables that I surmised for the time he was outfitting a filibustering expedition to join some South American revolution. I learned that it was merely the Saturday shoot of eight members of the Olympic Club. It is not to be taken for granted that all these gun club members live on canvas-back and mallard during the season, but at least it does appear that they live fairly well while making the attempt.

By the Christopher Club register it appears that A. R. Hueth, a prominent member of the Sierra Madre Club, has been taking the big share of game from those preserves. He has been down nearly every shooting day so far this season and "the limit" appears opposite his name on each occasion. He has a mild blue eye and a soft voice but he evidently also carries the big stick. Perhaps I should explain for the benefit of the uninitiated who may venture so far afield as to read this account that the term "shooting day" refers to Wednesdays, Saturdays and legal holidays during the season. It is agreed by all the members of the clubs that they will shoot only on these days thus giving the ducks some quiet days in which to recover confidence.

For myself I never realized until Friday evening what opprobrium attaches to the "road shooter." A road shooter is worse than an insurgent and in that he occupies the public highway between two parties and shoots both ways is something like him. We went across the road to call on the Saturday squad at the Blue Wing Club after dinner. They were trying to chaff Dr. Schiffman, of "Ha, ha, didn't hurt a bit" fame, but he was not vitally touched until someone remarked that he was "educated as a road shooter." That shaft seemed to sink home.

There were so many doctors present that I inquired if it required an M. D. degree to gain admission to the Blue Wing. George P. Adams, being a lawyer and without consideration for anyone's feelings except to escape the libel law, replied that "only quack doctors were admitted to duck clubs." Dr. Thomas and Dr. Lewis, both of whom were present, are big men and few lawyers even would have had the physical courage to display so much audacity. But Mr. Adams is the champion shot of the club and is inclined to rely a great deal upon his prowess.

It was Dr. Thomas who suggested what anathema the "road-shooter" calls down upon himself when he slips out with bag and gun and brings home birds upon which he has paid no membership dues. "A drayman came to the house the other day," he said, "and after he had taken away my baggage, made the remark, 'Seems to me I've met you before. You're a member of the Blue Wing, ain't you?'"

"Oh, that's where we met," I answered in some surprise. "You can't be that road-shooter who was getting birds across the fence? That fellow isn't safe down there. I've threatened to shoot him if I catch him anywhere in that part of the country."

Dr. Thomas was endeavoring to make everyone envious of his goose-hunting record. He shot one hundred wild geese in the San Joaquin Valley in three days last year. His guide dug the pit so small that Dr. Thomas disturbed the contour of the country in getting out of it and the geese have not returned there any more. If fish stories ever pall on you join a gun club. There's only one limit and that relates to the number of birds you can shoot in a day.

Duck-hunting is a many-sided experience. To wake up in the night and hear the rushing swish of wings just a little outside your window, the splash in the water, the crackling and scolding in the pond, and to lie there and wait for the rising signal with half-waking dreams of a shower of sprig and teal and mallard falling around you has a thrill that only the duck-hunter knows. You turn out at the darkest, chilliest hour of the night and splash out to the blinds. I followed the game-keeper along a slippery dike and once or twice I ducked my head, an intuitive movement surviving earlier experiences with Junebugs and cisco flies in the East. Do not raise the cry of nature-faker nor wisely shake your head and murmur "hyperbole" when I depose and state that to the best of my knowledge and belief the air was full of ducks at forty minutes before sunrise on the morning of October 15, 1910.

WHEN THE GONG SOUNDS.

At thirty minutes before sunrise the bell at the Westminster club rings. I was in my tank at that time. For some five minutes I had held myself in readiness, watch in hand, gun loaded, fresh shells ready to reload, both barrels cocked, finger on trigger. It was something like being on the firing line and waiting for the first command to fire with the enemy all about. The poor birds couldn't fire back but you're badly conscious that the fellows at the club can and will if you don't make your fire count.

Just before the bell rang I must have suffered a lapse of intelligence. With the first clang of the gong a full-fledged Fourth of July celebration broke loose. There was a rattle and crash in every direction for at least two miles and all around was the rush of startled wings. I couldn't bring myself to waste that first shot on any one particular duck. I let both barrels go in the direction where the ducks had been. Much to my surprise a couple of them flopped down into the water nearby. I think they were the mud hens I picked up later. The light was rather dim at that time.

Duck shooting from that time on was a succession of surprises and disappointments, with all these surging emotions confined to a galvanized iron tank about three feet in diameter. It is remarkable how you can minutely inspect everyone of five hundred mud hens in the hope of spying a duck and then have a sprig or canvasback cut through the air so close that you duck your head and miss your aim, coming from nowhere and continuing in the same direction so far as your bag is concerned.

A real duck hunter isn't quite satisfied until he has the limit. I was quite satisfied that my right shoulder had reached the limit some time before I was in danger of violating the game laws. If you're not used to shooting from a tank try it with a pillow over your collar-bone first. You may know how to hold a gun so that it will not recoil, but there are lots of chances for a slip when you are trying to shoot over your left shoulder from the interior of a cylinder at a bird flying about sixty miles an hour.

I met K. C. Klokke of the Westminster club coming home. His bag was not full. "Those ducks all seemed to have a card with the addresses of the party they were going to see in their pockets, this morning," he complained. "I never saw them in such a hurry."

C. W. Gates, E. J. Gates and Walter Leeds also shot at the Westminster yesterday. Gates had a bag of twenty birds, not counting the five mud hens which would have made the limit. He is ordering a new gun, "Number 20." There is just as much chance for argument on a duck hunt, between a "twelve" and a "twenty" gun as there is in a championship prize fight. Any real sport is largely an opportunity for argument, I have observed.

It was the consensus of opinion, without going into detail, that yesterday was not a good shooting day. It should have been following the storm, but the ducks were too active. It is also a prevailing belief that the shooting will be good this week. The storms may bring a fresh supply of birds down the Coast between now and Wednesday and they should not be as wary. In the meantime let every loyal citizen lend aid to this exhilarating sport. Ask your Congressman to vote that the "road-shooter" shall be outlawed.

TO LEAVE HOSPITAL TODAY.

Mrs. A. Churchill Harvey-Elder, widow of the martyred assistant city editor of The Times, will leave the Clara Barton Hospital today and go to the home of Lewis R. Works, No. 661 Westlake avenue, where she will remain several weeks. When her young husband was assassinated by the enemies of industrial freedom who dynamited The Times Building, Mrs. Harvey-Elder was prostrated, and she has been in the hospital since the funeral. Her condition is now much improved.

Removal Sale Pianos

Steinway
Standard of the World

Wherever Pianos are known—and that is throughout the world today—the Steinway is the standard by which all other instruments are measured. It stands at the top, in a class alone.

The evolution of the Steinway Piano is the result of the work of four generations of the Steinway family—the knowledge gained by the fathers being handed down to the sons—and each individual adding something that made the Steinway Piano, their life work, more perfect. In view of its history it is difficult to consider the Steinway commercially. Yet, through the perfection of their system, the Steinways have brought their wonderful instrument to a point where it can be secured at moderate cost. We are exclusive agents for the Artistic Steinway Piano in Southern California and Arizona, and new Steinway Pianos can be purchased nowhere else. Our regular prices for Steinways range from $575 to $1650, regular Eastern prices, with merely the cost of freight and handling added. At all times we show a wide assortment of instruments in all styles.

Welte-Mignon The Greatest Wonder in Players

What the Steinway is to other Pianos, the Welte-Mignon is to other Players. It is the highest type of electrically operated Player. There are no pedals, as in other Player Pianos—just turn the switch and the music comes. The Welte is the only instrument reproducing to perfection the performances of great artists—Hoffman, Paderewski, Lhevinne and other world famous pianists. Its exceedingly sensitive appliances enable the Welte to reproduce the very tone, touch, phrasing and volume of the masters who play for it. Combine the Welte with the Steinway Piano, and you have an instrument of incomparable quality. The Steinway Welte-Mignon is regularly priced at $1800 to $2250.

LAND DECISION TURNED ABOUT.

TAKES ACT OF CONGRESS TO ACCOMPLISH IT.

Case Was an Outgrowth of Extensive Investigations of Frauds in Imperial Valley and is of Much Interest to Settlers in That Region—Good Faith Counts.

Register Buren and Receiver Robinson of the Land Office yesterday received information to the effect that one of their decisions in a contest has been reversed, but that it was necessary to have Congress pass a special act in order to do so.

The new statute puts a different light on contests which are instituted on grounds of fraud, and the reversal has the effect of establishing a precedent in this line.

The case which has just been reversed was an outgrowth of extensive investigations of frauds in the Imperial Valley and is of much interest to the settlers in that fertile region. Under the recent ruling persons who have purchased land upon which others have made the entry feel more certain that they will be able to get their patents from the government without difficulty.

The suit in controversy was a contest instituted by May H. Lanterman against the widow and children of William A. Polkinghorn, concerning 240 acres.

The claim was assigned to Polkinghorn February 21, 1906, by John E. Turner, who had filed on it. He died on August 22 of the same year, leaving a widow and three sons.

The widow submitted the final proof to the land office on December 10, 1906, showing that the property had been improved, that there was sufficient water on the land to use in irrigating it and that thirty-five acres were under cultivation.

She submitted a special affidavit on July 15, 1906, explaining why she had been dilatory in making final proof, asserting that her husband had left a large estate which consisted mostly of realty and was scattered out in many places, and that she was unfamiliar with his holdings at the time of his death.

Mrs. Lanterman filed the suit September 17, of the same year, asserting that there was fraud on the part of Turner. She declared that he had made entry on the part of another person who paid him $10 and had made proof of the improvements annually for another, receiving $5 each time he did so.

These facts were established in the course of the contest, with the further admission of Turner that he had made a blank assignment prior to entering on the land.

The Register and Receiver rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiff on February 5, of this year. Under the laws existing at that time the fact that Polkinghorn had been ignorant of the fraud and had acted in the utmost good faith made no difference.

When the case was reviewed, it was found that the two local officers had rendered the proper decision according to the law at that time. But a new statute was enacted June 25, of this year, covering the point in controversy. It reads:

"That any person, other than a corporation, who has in good faith heretofore acquired by assignment a desert land entry, which entry is regular upon its face, in the belief that he was obtaining a valid title thereto, which assignment was accepted when filed in the local land office of the United States and recognized at the general Land Office as a proper transfer of such entry, shall be entitled to complete the entry so acquired, notwithstanding any contest that has been or may be filed against such entry, based upon a charge of fraud of which the assignee had no knowledge."

The enactment is of great benefit to the settlers of Imperial Valley, as many of them have taken assignments of claims where the entry was read and part of the necessary work was done in the name of another.

As a result of the reversal of the case, the suit has been dismissed. Many contemplated suits will probably never be filed on account of the outcome of this contest.

UNIONITE METHODS.

DEATH THREAT COMES TO EXPLOSION JUROR.

John E. Brink, proprietor of the Saddle Rock Cafe, No. 236 South Spring street, and a member of the jury chosen by Coroner Hartwell to investigate and report the cause of The Times building explosion, which sent more than a score of faithful men to their graves, received a letter yesterday at his home in Ocean Park threatening immediate death if he fails to sign anything but a "no-decision verdict." The anarchistic writer printed some of the words and wrote others, but the disguise is so poor that attaches of the Sheriff's office believe they have an excellent clew to his identity.

That the writer of the letter was thoroughly schooled in the work planned was evidenced by his peculiar preference to sneak up the front steps of the Brink residence on the ocean front, and place the missive under the door, rather than trust it to the United States mails. The letter was scrawled on ordinary papyrus of a cheap character.

MANY UGLY MESSAGES.

That the labor-union pickets are responsible for the letter sent to Brink is the belief of the attaches of the Sheriff's office and the police. Since the destruction of The Times building by enemies of industrial freedom and this newspaper, scores of letters of that character have been received by members of the explosion investigating committee, police judges, and public-spirited men who have voiced their sentiments against unionite outrages and methods of vengeance. Every letter received has contained the stereotyped phrase, "We will kill you." To maim and kill is apparently the premier idea of the unionites. Here is a copy of the letter received by Mr. Brink:

"John Brink—I see you are on the jury to try boys against The Times. Now if you dare to give a decision no matter what the evidence is, I will get you. Now do not mistake this, as I mean bis, and will kill you. Now do as you see fit. I do not want you to act as I know you will give a decision as the evidence—Now look out. A warning.

"We do not want to kill Americans."

WOULD KILL A FOREMAN.

Another letter threatening death and hades was received by Bob Atkins, a foreman of structural iron workers employed in the Alexandria Hotel Annex construction. The writer presages the death of Atkins for choosing to work for the Llewellyn company, and also of the other men who are engaged with him.

A feature which indicates that the writer is a member of a band of desperate unionites who use the United States mails to further their plots, is that this missive, and that sent to Police Judge Chambers recently, were posted at Station C. This station is newly located on South Los Angeles street, scarcely a block from the Union Labor Temple. The letters were posted at the same time of night—9:30 o'clock.

The letter to Atkins is as follows:

"Hotel Buckley 742 South Hill street Los Angeles California. "Mr. Bob Atkins snake—Dam yore sole to hell—you and the other snakes, wots working with you. That you all have not got yores before this is no sine that you wont before you leave Los Angeles. We no where you are, and dam you we will get you soon-Look Out.

New Tuberculosis Remedy Based on Medicine

To say that a specific exists for the cure of Consumption is perhaps too strong a statement but in Eckman's Alterative we have a medicine that has been the means of saving many a life to years of usefulness, and in permanently curing a large number of Consumptives.

Certainly a person afflicted with a wasting disease should be well fed with wholesome, nourishing food, but frequently raw eggs in quantities cause a digestive breakdown, and then no food nourishes. As for milk, a very good food for many, but a producer of biliousness for some.

Any diet that keeps a Consumptive well nourished is the right one, but what is going to cure the patient?—Eckman's Alterative has cured and is curing many a case of Consumption. Let those speak who know. Here is a specimen:—90 Savannah St., Rochester, N.Y.

Gentlemen: "On June 3, 1907, I was operated upon for Tubercular peritonitis, at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N. Y. After the operation, my physician gave me up as hopeless. I was then urged by a priest to take Eckman's Alterative, which I did. My weight at the time was 72 lbs. I began to improve and steadily gained in health and strength. I now weigh 125 lbs., and am absolutely cured. Believing I owe it to myself and others, I make this statement."

(Signed Affidavit) EDNA FINZER.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever; Throat and Lung Affections. For sale by The Owl Drug Co. and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

The pastor, Rev. Paul G. Walton defied the brother members of his church. His stay in the presence of the inquisition was confined to a few moments.

GYMNASIUM ACTIVITY.

New Schedules for Business Men at the Y.M.C.A. and Installation of Turkish Bath.

Organized gymnasium class-work will begin at the Young Men's Christian Association, tomorrow, for the winter season. The demand has become so great among business men for the use of the gymnasiums, that new classes will be formed, for the accommodation of business men who cannot attend the regular classes.

An important innovation has been introduced in the opening of the gymnasiums and baths at 7 o'clock in the morning, for the accommodation of business men who wish to take exercise and a bath before going to work for the day. Two more handball courts have also been constructed, to make it more convenient to take exercise in this way, without long waits for other games to finish.

With November 1, a thoroughly-equipped Turkish bath will be opened, in response to a constant demand from members, who desire the convenience under the best surroundings.

The physical department is manned by four physical directors, W. A. Reynolds, Roy W. Horning, Harry G. Vorhees and W. A. Stilwell. The class schedule of this department is as complicated as a railway time table, and you'll have to ask to be shown.

COVINA CHURCH DENOUNCES INCENDIARY UTTERANCES.

BECAUSE he made the emphatic declaration during a choir rehearsal that he would have been glad to hear Gen. Otis, head of the Los Angeles Times, had been blown up at the time the newspaper's building was destroyed and many of its faithful men murdered by dynamiters, Samuel Walton, a member of the Presbyterian Church at Covina, was called before a meeting of the board of trustees and directors of that organization Wednesday evening and questioned concerning his anarchistic statements. The pastor, Rev. Paul G. Walton defied the brother members of his church. His stay in the presence of the inquisition was confined to a few moments.

"I want to tell you that I said it, and that I would say it again," was Walton's statement, according to Rev. Mr. Stevens, who presided. Walton went further and denounced them for attempting to interfere with his rights of free speech." He ended by saying that he would never darken the doors of the Presbyterian Church again, and with this parting piece of bombast left the building.

At a meeting held night before last the church officials again discussed the matter. Rev. Mr. Stevens said afterward that the officials had taken no action as yet to remove Walton's name from the membership roll, but that they undoubtedly will do so.

"We felt at first that the utterances of Mr. Walton concerned the Presbyterian Church alone," said Rev. Mr. Stevens yesterday, "and for that reason refused to allow it to become a public matter. But, in our meeting last evening, we decided that such ugly speech was a matter that had a wider scope than the local organization; that it concerned the welfare of the commonwealth at large, and the church will therefore publicly denounce Mr. Walton and take every occasion to deplore such incendiary speech. We believe that it was just such utterance that caused the fiends who perpetrated the deed to feel encouraged to perform it. Public speeches of the nature of Mr. Walton's are directly responsible for the dynamiting of The Times building."

Walton's statement before the meeting was placed on record. Rev. Mr. Stevens admitted yesterday that his former parishioner has always been a disturber, and that his capacity for making trouble was well known.

WANT MASHERS SWEPT OUT.

COMPLAINT ABOUT PARKS ON WAY TO POLICE.

Governing Body in Charge of the City's Protective Force Will Be Asked to Afford Protection for Women from Low Types Which Force Unwelcome Attentions.

A petition setting forth the laxity of the police authorities in providing sufficient protection for women and children who spend the daylight hours in the city parks, particularly Westlake, from the criminal attentions of male degenerates, and others of the sex with a proclivity for "mashing" is being prepared by residents in the Westlake district for presentation to the Police Commission at its next session.

The names of many citizens prominent in the social, professional and civic life of Los Angeles, it is understood, have been affixed to the petition and many more have promised to sign. Guests of the many hostelries in the vicinity fo Westlake Park have also appended their names to the list, and an effort is being made to have patrons of other parks about the city present similar petitions.

According to the indignant citizens no woman or girl is safe unaccompanied in any of the parks. Mothers with babes in their arms are not even immune, the toughs taking advantage of the absence of the police or their husbands to force their attentions upon them. Young girls passing the afternoons at Westlake for a frolic are unable to leave the park borders without one or more of these men accosting them. For that reason none dare visit the more picturesque sections of the park without male escort.

Scores of complaints have been received at police headquarters concerning the evil, but to date Capt. Lehnhausen, of the Central Division, has been unable to assign patrolmen for the work. With the large number of emergency officers appointed recently by the Police Commission it is hoped by the petitioners, that one, at least, will be assigned to Westlake Park. Formerly the park employees possessed police power, but this was revoked some time ago by the Police Commission.

The parks of Los Angeles were created largely for the benefit of women and children, and are known the world over for their beauty and picturesqueness. The shaded paths of Westlake Park, with their canopies of palms, are exquisite wonders of artistic taste. Guests of nearby hotels who are attracted to that section of the city principally by the proximity of the park, cannot fully enjoy it. Frequent complaints against the low type of men who infest the parks, but of late, owing to limited patrol force at hand, has been unable to cope with the matter. He stated that he will set plain-clothes men to work immediately, and every offender caught will be sure of a seance with the rock-pile.

DINED AT "THE BIVOUAC."

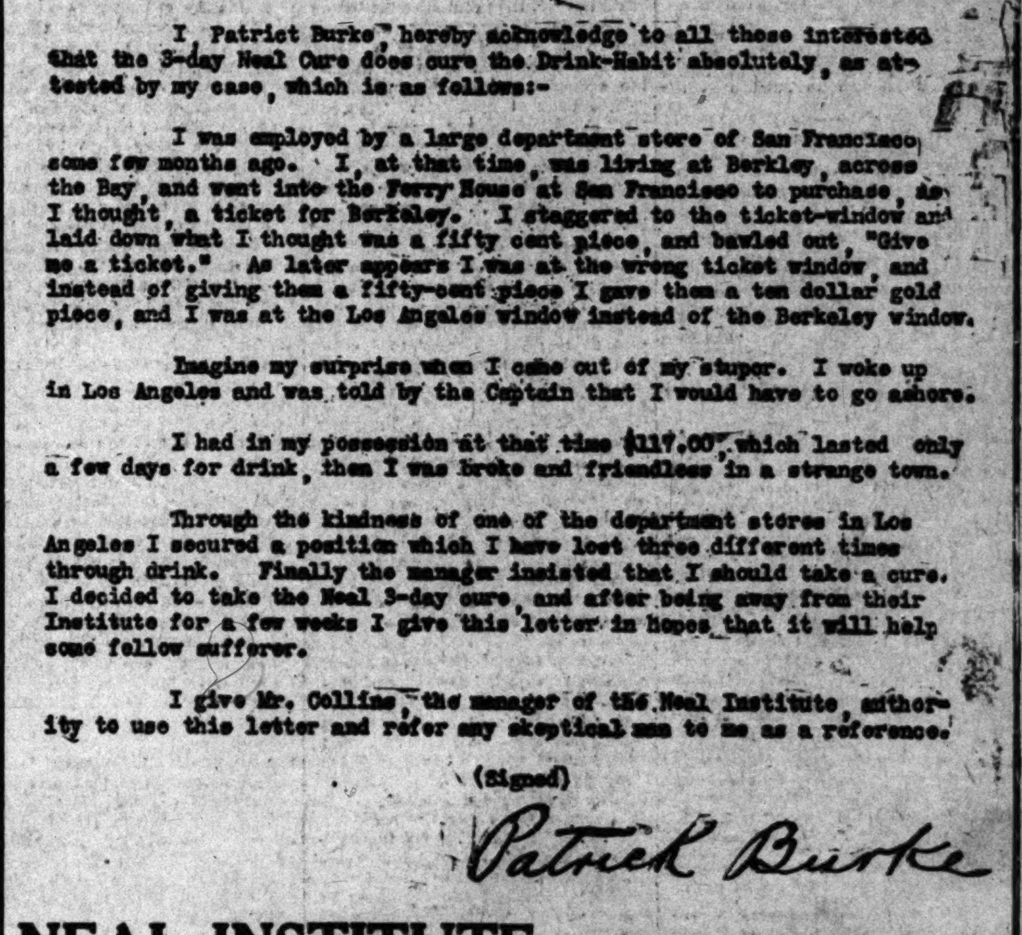
NEAL THREE DAY LIQUOR CURE

WAS HE WORTH IT?

Here Is a Letter From a Man Connected With One of Our Big Los Angeles Department Stores. We Purposely Omit the Name of the MANAGER of This Store. Call, Write or Phone and We Will Gladly Refer You to Him for Personal Investigation.



TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:-

I, Patrict Burke, hereby acknowledge to all those interested that the 3-day Neal Cure does cure the Drink-Habit absolutely, as attested by my case, which is as follows:-

I was employed by a large department store of San Francisco some few months ago. I, at that time, was living at Berkley, across the Bay, and went into the Ferry House at San Francisco to purchase, as I thought, a ticket for Berkeley. I staggered to the ticket-window and laid down what I thought was a fifty cent piece, and bawled out, "Give me a ticket." As later appears I was at the wrong ticket window, and instead of giving them a fifty-cent piece I gave them a ten dollar gold piece, and I was at the Los Angeles window instead of the Berkeley window.

Imagine my surprise when I came out of my stupor. I woke up in Los Angeles and was told by the Captain that I would have to go ashore.

I had in my possession at that time $117.00, which lasted only a few days for drink, then I was broke and friendless in a strange town.

Through the kindness of one of the department stores in Los Angeles I secured a position which I have lost three different times through drink. Finally the manager insisted that I should take a cure. I decided to take the Neal 3-day cure, and after being away from their Institute for a few weeks I give this letter in hopes that it will help some fellow sufferer.

I give Mr. Collins, the manager of the Neal Institute, authority to use this letter and refer any skeptical man to me as a reference.

(Signed)

Patrick Burke

Many of our contemporaries are trying to locate David B. Hill, who delivered an address on some subject at Elmira, N. Y., the other day. That is easy. Dave spoke on the return of "Old Hickory" Jackson from the battle of New Orleans, at the overflow meeting held on the Bowling Green, near the Battery, in New York.

THE SPRING HAS COME.

Spring in the month of October! This sounds rather an extravagant statement to a dweller in the Northern Hemisphere. Spring no doubt is blossoming over the pampas plains of the Argentine, among the kauri forests of New Zealand, on the veldt of the Transvaal. But for the Eastern States, now begin the melancholy days—the saddest days of all the year—the falling of the yellow leaf, the first crispness of the frost, the long sleep of vegetation. Yes, from Maine to Puget Sound, from the great lakes to the borders of Florida nature is preparing for her annual slumber, soon to be tucked up under a snowy white counterpane; but from Oregon to Mexico, from the Sierras to the Pacific, with the first patter of the raindrops, California has wakened from her tawny couch, has taken her morning bath, and is preparing to don her green mantle. For here we have no defined seasons, but every day is seasonable and every month a month of seed time and of harvest.

While the tender wheat and barley are yet painting our hillsides with the emerald hues of old Ireland, the orchardist is reaping a golden harvest among thousands of acres of orange trees. Only the orange and green never fight in California as in historical Donneybrook. On these western shores nature is all for peace, all beneficent; she mingles her best things for all men and all races in a riot of profusion, the only riot of which she is ever guilty. When the grain farmer is threshing his wheat and barley, the alfalfa grower is watching the succulent plants of his field springing up for a second reaping, so swiftly you can almost hear the sap hissing through the tender stalk. When the deciduous orchards have ripened their peaches and plums and the walnut groves are yielding their tons of tempting nuts, the same alfalfa fields are still springing fresh and green for their sixth and seventh cuttings. Nature in California is one ceaseless round of growth and harvest, a composite of spring and autumn, a wheel of good things ever a-spin with the perpetual motion of prosperity.

STERN BUT RIGHT.

The reply of the iron founders to Mayor Alexander's letter on the subject of a conference with the Metal Trades Union "with reference to a settlement of the industrial strike that has been going on in the city for some time" has been styled stern. So it was, so it had to be. And it was right. The founders stated, in terms which admit of no mistake, that they have not now, and never have had, business relations of any kind with the Metal Trades Union. What is more, they do not desire to have any, and therefore they informed the Mayor that they "do not care to consider a meeting for the purpose of settling a matter which has already been settled."

As far as the iron founders are concerned, there is no strike of metal workers. Some of their men quit, some are under arrest for violating the law regarding picketing, but the majority of their employees stood loyally by them. It must be extremely gratifying to the merchants, manufacturers and other business men of this city to know how loyal are most of the men who work for them. The Times long has been fortunate in gathering around it men devoted to its interests, and it appears that other Los Angeles institutions are as well favored in this respect. No city in the land has a more loyal army of non-union workers than Los Angeles, and if the local example was followed elsewhere, much benefit would accrue to the United States as a whole.

DEMAND AND SUPPLY.

The price of everything in the world is governed by the inexorable law of demand and supply, and all efforts of man to evade the law must fail. Caruso receives $3000 a night for singing in grand opera because there is but one Caruso. If there were fifty tenor singers with voices of equal power, sweetness, and cultivation, Caruso could not sell the product of his larynx and epiglottis for nearly so much money. The local price of a shave, which was formerly 25 cents, without the accompaniments of "tonic, sir?" "shave back of neck, sir?" "hair cut, sir?" and other costly extras, has fallen to 15 cents, because safety razors are in the hands of many who formerly patronized the shops with the striped poles, and because there are more barbers than there are barberees. The law of supply and demand has reached with its relentless grip down to the members of the boot-blacking profession. The abundance of colored podographic illuminators has cut the cost of a shine from 10 cents to 5 cents. The successor in business of the Italian count, who, after fifteen years of effort in his boot-blacking shop on Commercial street in San Francisco, retired with a fortune to a villa on Lake Maggiore, is compelled to sleep in his own shop, and eat where they give "three of any of our 12-cent dishes for 25 cents." Wages of mechanics engaged in the building trades and in the making of building materials went soaring in San Francisco after the earthquake fire, because there was a city to be rebuilt. But the effort to retain those high wages, now that the city is rebuilt, has resulted in closed factories and foundries. The enforcement of the closed-shop doctrine has indeed closed many shops, and the man hunts the job in vain, because the job has been driven away by the inexorable workings of the law of supply and demand.

The same law applies to capital as to labor. The Standard Oil Company, with its billions of money, has retired discomfited from the effort to keep the price of fuel oil up to 50 cents per barrel at the wells, because faster than it could construct new pipe lines the prospectors have tapped new oil deposits. Supply exceeds demand, and fuel oil can therefore be purchased for one-half the old rates.

The American Sugar Refineries Company, by absorbing all the sugar refineries in the country in 1865, placed refined sugar at 20 cents per pound. In 1869 it had fallen to 15 cents, in 1874 to 10 cents, in 1879 to 8 cents, and in 1885 to 6 cents per pound.

The reduction of the duty on sugar made by the McKinley tariff in 1896, the addition of non-dutiable sugar caused by the annexation of Hawaii in 1900 and the acquisition of Porto Rico and the Philippines in 1898, compelled a further reduction in the price of refined sugar to 3½ cents per pound, and at that rate the American Sugar Refineries Company can live and pay dividends. There is no chance for outside refineries. The supply of refined sugar furnished by the monopoly equals the demand for consumption of sugar by the people. It will be noted that sugar and coal oil have not participated in the advance in prices made in other necessaries of life. All the vast capital, the experience and the ingenuity of the Sugar Refineries Company, and the Standard Oil Company, cannot advance the prices of the commodities which they manufacture and sell, simply because the supply of those commodities is up to if not in excess of the demand for them. If another oil refineries company and another sugar refineries company were to be organized, it is not probable that the directors and officers of the old companies would dynamite and murder the officers and employees of the new companies, or deface their corpses; nor is it likely that they would picket, and boycott, and insult those who purchased sugar from the new companies. They might meet the situation by reducing the price of trust-made sugar until they had driven competition from the field. They have, however, adopted the wiser course of preventing competition by adopting a scale of prices that would make it unprofitable.

How can labor hope by invoking violence to defeat the operation of the inexorable law of supply and demand? If there are more metal workers than there is demand for the products of their work, it is inevitable that either the quantity of worked metal produced must be decreased, or the number of purchasers of the worked metal increased. It is only by increasing the quantity purchased that employment can be furnished for more producers, and the violence which closes a non-union foundry drives purchasers of its product out of the market, and if persisted in will, as it has done in San Francisco, utterly extirpate the local demand for local-made goods, and cause importation of metal goods from other cities where ill-advised laborers do not attempt to defy the statute law, assault the multiplication table, and butt their brains out against the law of supply and demand.

If there is no demand for the cloth of the factory, can the manufacturer go out upon the street and club people into purchasing it? If there is no demand for the services of the bottlers of ales can the banded brotherhoods of beer and brawling bludgeon people into a thirst that makes their throats call out for union beer, and causes their stomachs to loathe any stimulant not brewed and bottled by members of a labor union?

Oh, honest men of brawn, why will you allow the Gallaghers and the Tveitmoes and the Fieders to advise you to your own undoing, to counsel you to a course that lures the wolf of hunger to your doors, and sends your furniture and trinkets to the pawnshop? Your hope for the future lies not in restriction, but in expansion of industrial freedom. It lies not in diminished, but in increased production. It lies in more flaming furnaces, more foundries where dusk-browed labor bends over the red forge, more humming factories where toilers make the music of life, more skyscrapers towering aloft, more cottages nestling under the trees.

The Times is not your enemy; it is your friend when it urges you to discard your disorder-advising walking delegates, when it advises you to obey the laws, and to know that however you may escape the punishment for violation of statute law you cannot evade, or defy, or overthrow the universal and irrepealable law of demand and supply.

LAND FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS

Let us take a little trip. We will start at Eastport, Maine, where the tides of the Bay of Fundy rush up the sands with voice of thunder and crest of foam. We will spread the map of North America on the table and make an easy chair journey over it, with no railroad or steamer fare to pay, and no black-hand bandit Pullman porter to divest us of our dollars.

We will journey along the southern border of the Dominion of Canada until we reach the headwaters of the Mississippi River, thence down the Father of Waters to the Gulf of Mexico, around the capes of Florida and up the Atlantic Coast to our starting point. We have journeyed many thousands of miles; we have encircled a domain containing twenty-six American States, wherein there are 584,019,100 acres of land, of which 583,197,673 acres are held in private ownership, and only 1,821,427 acres is public land, open to entry.

Now we will take another trip. We will begin at the northeastern corner of Texas on the Gulf of Mexico and skirt the northern and western boundary of Texas to the line dividing New Mexico from Old Mexico; thence along the southern lines of New Mexico, Arizona and California until we reach the Pacific Ocean; thence up the Pacific Coast to Puget Sound; along the southern line of the Dominion of Canada to the headwaters of the Mississippi, and down that river to our starting point. We have left out Texas, where Uncle Sam never owned any land, and we have omitted Alaska. We have encircled a domain containing twenty-one American States and Territories, in which there are 1,181,372,700 acres of land, 762,752,737 acres of which are held in private ownership, and 418,619,936 acres of which are owned by Uncle Sam, and are subject to entry by citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intention to become such.

The government of the United States owns, exclusive of Alaska, thirty-six per cent. of all the land lying west of the Mississippi River, and less than four-tenths of one per cent. of the lands lying east of that river.

And now from the pine-clad forests of Maine to the banks of the Mississippi, from twenty-two States in which there is not left an acre of public land, there ascends to heaven the howl of Pinchot saying "Conserve the balance of the public lands for future generations. Withdraw them from entry. Sell no more of them and suffer no more to be homesteaded. One would think, to hear the clamor about conservation, that if the public lands are not withdrawn for the use of future generations, the present generation will burn them up, or eat them up, so that our poor little great-grandchildren will have no lands at all.

How would anybody go to work to "waste" 160 acres of agricultural land? It is wasted only when it is unappropriated, unused and unoccupied. It is wasted when no taxes are paid upon it, no grain grown upon it and no habitations for men erected upon it. When you conserve it by withdrawing it from human occupation, you conserve its unfruitfulness, its desolation and its silence. Every year of conservation, during which it might have borne a crop and did not bear one, is a year of waste.

The wheat and fruit and vegetables which might have been raised and were not raised upon a million acres of it last year, would not furnish a breakfast for a canary bird.

With all respect to those ordinarily intelligent persons who have followed the intellectual antics of Pinchot, the proposition to withdraw agricultural lands, in order to "conserve" them for future generations, seems to us what our trans-Atlantic cousins call in their slangy way "beastly rot." If Uncle Sam were to give up every one of the 418,619,963 acres which he owns west of the Mississippi River to homestead settlers during the lifetime of men now living, wouldn't the future generations have the use of the land just the same (and all you can do with land is to use it) and have it in better condition for their use than it is now?

PANAMA CANAL PROBLEMS.

President Taft again is to go to Panama. We are told that problems confront the canal builders which make his presence necessary. In an undertaking so stupendous, it is obvious that from time to time difficulties must arise which call for firm treatment and deep consideration. It is fortunate for the country that at such a period it has in its President a man perfectly capable of dealing with the subject.

In California we are particularly interested in the reiterated opinion of the President, backed up by that of Col. Goethals, chief engineer, that the canal will be completed and open before the date originally set, January 11, 1915. That is the year when the great California fair to celebrate the opening will be held at San Francisco, and all the great Southland is united in boosting for the enterprise.

The fact that the President is to revisit the scene of the great work next month makes unusually timely the article on the canal printed in The Times a few days back when facts people want to know and facts they ought to know were set out in well-digested form. It is worth while recalling that this tremendous work, an engineering feat practically without parallel, has so far cost $248,000,000. But it is worth it, and in due time, when the canal is in operation, the country will get the money back. The Suez Canal has paid well; the Panama Canal should do better for, in the coming years, the Pacific will undoubtedly be the great trade ocean, more important in this respect than ever the Atlantic was.

The canal will be the realization of the dreams of centuries. It will flow where is the girdle of the continent. For centuries men have talked about changing the fashion of the girdle from earth to the silver of the sea, and at last it is being accomplished. Soon this great continent of America will have around her waist the arms of both the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Al Spalding, who may represent California in the United States Senate as the successor to Hon. Frank P. Flint, and who celebrated his sixtieth birthday last week, was born in Byron, Ill., in 1850. John D. Works is willing to swear that Spalding did run like sixty.

WOULD WOMAN'S VOTE SUPPRESS ANARCHY?

In the appalling horror of The Times Building dynamiting Miss Olive Percival, of the Home Insurance Company, sees a vivid argument in favor of woman's suffrage.

"Such outrages make us tremble for America," said Miss Percival yesterday. "Indeed, they make us wonder if there is such a thing as Americanism left among us. Certainly we had thought that the purest patriotism of the land and the greatest security of American institutions lay in the courage, the intelligence, and the lofty ideals of Western citizenship. I had always prided myself in the thought that California was America exemplified and idealized. When such a horror can be perpetrated in the best city of the best State of our government, it fills me with misgivings for the United States. If ever we needed the full representation of the whole people in government affairs, that need is terribly emphasized by this distressing occurrence.

"As for equal suffrage, I have never in my life heard one sane argument against it. I think the only argument that men who are opposed to the measure have ever advanced in justification of their unfair and un-American position, is that they do not want women to lose their delicacy and charm by rough contact with matters political. This is not sentiment, but sentimentality. It is cheap theatricalism. There is no sense or intelligence about it. Women must live in the world as truly as men and in many instances they are as well equipped for the actualities of life as men. I am very sure that when I was a school girl I stood as well in my class as my own brother, and I am sure that my blood boiled as hotly as his, when in the study of Colonial history we saw what it was to be taxed without fair representation. When I think of the question of equal suffrage today, I am overcome by the same great sense of injustice which I felt when, as a little girl, I first read the history of the early colonies of the United States.

"We hear a great deal about the gentle, refined and clinging type of woman of a century or two ago. We are always hearing about the charm, the sweetness and the incomparable feminine delicacy of our grandmothers and our great-grandmothers. What nonsense! Why, 200 years ago our granddames of England were loud in their demands for a voice in governmental affairs. Yes, and the work which they began then promises fruit in England today and to the shame of our Americanism it begins to look as if under a monarchical form of government English women will have greater freedom than the women of the United States.

"If there is to be anything democratic or republican about the government of America, that independence must be based upon the liberty of all of its citizens. The fitness of women for the ballot has nothing to do with the principle involved. We are native born citizens of the United States, and as the mothers of its male citizens, it is to be hoped that we possess an intelligence equal to at least a portion of the male emigrants who are coming here from foreign shores. Whether we are prepared for the ballot or not, has little to do with the matter. If this really is to be a government 'for the people, of the people and by the people,' then we, who form at least fifty per cent of the populace certainly have a right to the ballot. When half of the people of any country can be disenfranchised, that country has no freedom. We pretend to be progressive and we boast our splendid republicanism, but our republic is more despotic than any monarchy unless all who are taxed have a voice in the control of public affairs.

"As for those cultured and delightful women who have organized an anti-suffrage society, I can only say that it seems to me that their attitude is only one of sentiment, based upon the threadbare argument of unfair men, that woman will lose her feminine grace by entering the realm of politics.

"Women do not want to become politicians, but they do want to become citizens. Nothing has ever happened in all of time and nothing ever can happen to make women less attractive to men or to make them less gracious as wives and less lovely as mothers.

"Conditions are always changing. Not a century passes which does not almost revolutionize all conditions of life, and yet mankind forever adjusts itself to these conditions in a way which quite preserves to us all that our basic principles and all of those ideals which lead to a better realization of what is wholesome and good. There is no reason to believe because there would enter with suffrage an appeal to a greater responsibility and a higher intelligence in women, that this appeal would rob them of any of that loveliness and interest which makes them the home-builders of the world.

"I am afraid that the anti-suffrage movement really suggests indifference and almost a lack of information. It seems to me that just as there are many lazy men in the world who do not want to study economic problems and do their part in making better economic conditions, so there may be those women who cheerfully accept the line of least resistance and the line requiring the least possible study and responsibility. Such women naturally are glad to lay the whole responsibility of government upon the shoulders of men, but women whose place in life forces them to think for themselves and to work for themselves desire to take their own part in making the best possible conditions of living under any government to which they are subjects. This question is more than American; it is world-wide; but here in America, where we think we have and claim that we want freedom, we should be the first to take this vital forward step."

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher.

Father came home sore and surly from his labors in the mart; came home from the hurly-burly with some wormwood in his heart; for the luck had been against him in the war of bonds and stocks, and the other brokers fenced him up and pelted him with rocks. So his heart was sad and bitter, mangled by misfortune's pokes; like a wild and savage critter he kept ranting at his folks. And his wife was scared and worried by the smoking things he said, and the children, frightened, hurried pale and trembling, off to bed. And poor father roared and ranted, and he kicked at this and that, and he pawed the air and panted and he threw things at the cat. He was awful in his dudgeon, and his wife sat weeping there, when she should have got a bludgeon, or have slugged him with a chair. Oh the wrathful man who raises in his home, at close of day, fifty kinds of brimstone blazes is a chicken-hearted jay; and his wife is weak and dollish if she bends before the storm; she should get a club and polish off his wild, rambunctious form.

WALT MASON.

Be they Evers so crippled there's no club like the Chicago Cubs for the honors in the world's championship series beginning next Monday. Every loyal Southern Californian will expect Frank Chance, the Glendora boy, to do his duty.

STREAKS OF WIT.

Conclusive Proof.

"Do be quiet. Don't you know that there's a visitor in the next room," said Frances to her little brother.

"How do you know? You haven't been in."

"But," said Frances, "I heard mamma saying 'My dear!' to papa."—[Kansas City Journal.

Lacking in Accomplishments.

"He's a mutt!"

"Why, how is that? He's nice looking and apparently very bright."

"Bright, nothing! That pretty Miss Stacksofit asked him to teach her to swim, and he told her he couldn't because he didn't know how!"—[Chicago Inter Ocean.

All Were New Comers.

The two summer boarders were fighting flies and mosquitoes on the front porch of the old farmhouse.

"Were you here last summer?" asked the latest arrival.

"Say," retorted the other, "do you think I'd be here now if I had been here last summer?"—[Chicago News.

Pity the Poor Hat.

"I haven't seen you for five years," chirped the first lady, "but you don't look a day older, my dear."

"You are too kind," simpered the other dame.

"I mean it. You don't look a bit older, and neither does your hat."—[Chicago Record-Herald.

Lacked Information.

"Jones is an ass. He told me your wife was an old, ugly cat, and that you only married her for money."

"Hum! What did you answer?"

"I told him he was a liar."

"Thank you, old man. But—er—you've never seen my wife, have you?"—[Cleveland Leader.

The Benefit of Riches.

"Him! Nothing stirring. He's a millionaire."

"All the better."

"Nonsense; a millionaire is the only man in the world who can afford to come downtown with nothing but lunch money and carfare in his clothes."—[Minneapolis Journal.

I admire little Manuel for not accepting his part in the comic opera. At least he didn't pretend. I try to tell myself that he had humor enough to see his king-job as it was and that his gift of the crown jewels to a dancer was subtle satire on his part. It is delicious if he gave away the crown jewels out of bitter sarcasm as a tribute to the legs of Gaby Deslys.

The Tuileries and The Empire

From the palace of the Tuileries, the imperial home of Napoleon, emanated the inspiration and influence which produced that style of decoration known as "Empire"—a style which, being of French origin, could not fail to reflect in marked degree the French characteristics—grace and brilliancy.

The "Empire" Pattern in Towle Sterling Silver is derived from the best decorative material of the period. The finish is a soft French Gray. Massive construction is not required by a design with the elements combined in The Empire, hence it affords a wide scope of selection to those desirous of beautiful pieces in Sterling at reasonable cost.

PUBLIC SERVICE: CITY HALL AND COURTS.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Welfare Committee of the City Council yesterday inspected a site for garbage-dumping station, just outside the city limits, on the Covina electric line. A visitor at the Mayor's office advocated that city land be used near Inglewood.

Failure of unionite pickets to keep their promises tells against the chances of those now awaiting trial being liberated pending settlement of their cases.

"Jimmy" McClelland, once a famous rider, brought suit yesterday to recover $12,000 from the estate of "Lucky" Baldwin, alleged to be due on a land purchase made of Baldwin before the latter's death.

Mrs. Hattie Elledge, formerly Mrs. T. H. Harris, was before Judge Bordwell yesterday on a complaint charging her with having disobeyed the court's order requiring her to permit her former husband, T. H. Harris, to see their child at all convenient times.

DREAMER SEES END OF WOES.

TRANSFORM SAND DUNES INTO PRODUCTIVE SOIL.

City Owns Large Tract Near Inglewood, Which Mayor's Visitor Recommends be Used for the Purpose—Site on Covina Line Inspected Yesterday.

Mystery surrounds the garbage dump. The Public Welfare Committee went out yesterday morning and inspected a site, located in a low spot near the Covina electric line, just outside the city limits at Indiana street. The scouts of the dissenters were apprently on their trail, for a delegation of them appeared at the office of the Mayor within an hour, to intercede for some other place, any place except their own neighborhood. The members of the Welfare Committee refused to talk about the matter in any way whatever, not even admitting where they had been, and their conclusions will probably not be made public until they report to the City Council on Tuesday.

One of the Mayor's visitors was filled with a new vision. He thinks he has found the solution of all the difficulties and a surcease for all the woes of the garbage smellers. When the outfall sewer was built, a few years ago, the city was compelled to buy between 500 and 1600 acres of sand-dunes, several miles from Inglewood, as the best solution of securing a right-of-way. The plan suggested by Mr. Reese is for the contractor to haul the garbage to this land, dump it into deep furroughs and cover it up. This process to be carried on until the whole trct is covered, and then repeat the operation.

"At the end of ten years," said Mr. Reese, "the city would have a tract of valuable land, capable of producing good crops, and worth probably a half-million dollars."

SAYS "LUCKY" WAS TRICKY.

FORMER JOCKEY BRINGS A SUIT ON LAND.

Alleges that the Late Noted Horseman Imposed on Him as to the Value of Acreage Which the Plaintiff Purchased in the Wash Near the Hotel at Arcadia.

Suits against the "Lucky" Baldwin estate keep on multiplying. Another action was filed yesterday in the Superior Court, the plaintiff being "Jimmy" McClelland, in his time one of the most famous riders in the country. He asks judgment for $12,000, on account of alleged misrepresentations on the part of the late noted horseman.

"Jimmy" McClelland, stated in the language of the petition as J. W. McClelland, was for years the first choice in the August Belmont stables in the East and England, but several years before the death of Baldwin came to Arcadia to take amounts for the master of the Baldwin acres. He was paid an enormous salary, and several years before Baldwin died in March, 1909, McClelland purchased of him a piece of land located in the wash near the hotel at Arcadia, on a contract, the price being the amount sued for.

It is alleged that Baldwin represented the land to be fine for the culture of oranges, and other citrus fruits, and McClelland, having grown too heavy to do much riding, concluded to settle down and become a raiser of these standard productions of Southern California. McClelland says he spent thousands of dollars on the land trying to make it productive, all to no purpose, and he sets out that the land is totally worthless for the raising of oranges or anything else, and he wants his money back. He alleges that Baldwin imposed on him; that he did not know anything of the nature of the land and trusted implicitly in what he says Baldwin told him in that regard.

The claim for the money was presented to H. A. Unruh, executor of the Baldwin estate, and rejected by that officer, who is made defendant in the present action.

PARTED FOR DESERTION.

Irving Sayford, a newspaper reporter known in this city, was defendant in a divorce action in Judge Hutton's department yesterday. Elva E. Sayford bringing an action against him on the ground of desertion. She was granted a decree.

The Sayfords were married at Santa Barbara, April 4, 1904, and on Christmas, 1908, Sayford left the plaintiff while the defendant was engaged with the News Association of New York, going direct to Canada. There was no evidence that any one had seen or heard of Sayford since he quit the side of his wife so unceremoniously. The plaintiff testified that she did not know why he left her.

Some light is thrown upon the unfortunate situation by the following letter, sent by Sayford to William G. Bathon, of the Washington Post, dated [illegible] Philadelphia, three days after his disappearance from the National Capital:

"Dear Bathon:—I mail this on my way to the train bound for Canada. I shall never come back. I face the dark. Do what you can for the one whose life I have ruined and show this to Harry.

[Signed] "IRVING."

CONTEMPT ALLEGED.

NEWS WRITER IS CUT OFF.

The troubles concerning the little daughter of the divorced couple, Hattie and T. H. Harris, engaged the attention of Judge Bordwell, yesterday. The hearing was not concluded.

About three years ago, the couple were divorced and by the order of the court the child, aged 8, was placed in the custody of the mother, with the proviso that the father should see it at all convenient times. It was alleged in the complaint heard yesterday, that the woman had refused to abide by the order of the court and she was called in to show cause why she should not be punished for contempt.

A score of witnesses were in the court room to hear the testimony. It developed that some time ago Mrs. Harris remarried, and is now known as Mrs. Hattie Elledge, that the foster father has become very much attached to the child, and there is a disposition to not allow the father to see the little girl. It was also shown that Mrs. Elledge paid no attention to a letter from her attorneys asking that she carry out the order of the court.

The child was placed on the stand, but she was too much frustrated by the surroundings to give any intelligent account of the doings at the Elledge home, and Judge Bordwell took the witness into his chambers where the child spoke freely.

ACTION TO FORECLOSE. The Security Savings Bank brought an action in the Superior Court yesterday, against the San Fernando Valley Water Company on a note for $2550, given July 14, 1909, and due in three years, securing a mortgage on the northeast quarter of section 7, Rancho ex-Mission de Fernando.

SUIT ON NOTE. J. Frank Ware is defendant in an action brought by the Union Savings Bank, to collect $3500 alleged to be due on a note given the plaintiff March 9, 1908, and payable in three years. The instrument is secured by a mortgage on about 250 acres located near Altadena. The prayer of the complaint is for the sale of the premises involved.

ACTION FOR ACCOUNTING. Carl L. Capell instituted a suit yesterday against the Capell Sales Company, for an accounting and damages amounting to $5000, alleged to be due on account of the failure of the defendant corporation to properly push the sale of a gas iron invented by Capell.

STRUCK BY AUTO. J. P. Couse sued J. A. Jackson, in the Superior Court, yesterday, to secure a judgment for $409.50, on account of a team of the plaintiff being struck and injured by an auto driven by the defendant, while the plaintiff was traveling westward on Hollywood boulevard, between Wilcox avenue and Chester court, July 5, last.

IN BEHALF OF SON. Agnes Robinson, guardian ad litem of W. H. Robinson, instituted a suit against the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, in the Superior Court, yesterday, to recover $10,000 damages. On July 15 last, the plaintiff was standing on the fender of a street car on Seventh street, going west, when he was struck it is alleged by an auto operated and owned by the defendant corporation, with the result that the leg of young Robinson was broken.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

CAN'T DEPEND ON PROMISES.

OTHERWISE ACCUSED PICKETS MIGHT BE LIBERATED.

"To the Highest Court" Is the Slogan the Labor-Union Bosses Are Continually Repeating About the Police Courts in Reference to Habeas Corpus Proceedings.

"To the highest court" is the slogan the labor-union bosses are continually repeating about the police courts in reference to the habeas corpus proceedings which are to be instituted in behalf of J. J. Williams, in the Superior Court Monday.

Several unionites attend the daily sessions of police court, evidently to keep tab on the proceedings, and to give support by their presence to all unionites brought before the courts.

There was a discussion yesterday morning about the advisability of liberating the pickets now in jail awaiting trial, on their promise to remain out of unionite disturbances, but it was declared, and with considerable reason, that the promise of a unionite, no matter how solemnly given, is rejected at the first opportunity the giver has to participate in the disturbances.

"Well, if they will not deal honorably with the court and keep the promises made, they will have to stay inside until their trials are called, if it takes a year," said one of the police judges yesterday morning.

"It would make this court a laughing stock if their promises were accepted when in so many recent cases, the labor-union men apparently did not remember them five minutes after they had been released."

WRITTEN UPSIDE DOWN.

LOTTERY EVIDENCE PUZZLING.

Pong Quong, Fong Ying and Woo Sing, three Chinese found guilty Friday morning of conducting a lottery, were fined $25 each by Police Judge Williams yesterday morning.

Four other Chinese, Wong Sing, Quong Hing Sing, Ching Sing and Quong Hong, will be tried on a similar charge this week.

The Chinese sentenced yesterday filed notice of appeal. They declare they will carry the case through to a finish. Although a large number of papers with Chinese figures were produced as evidence against them, and ledgers and other paraphernalia for keeping accounts were shown the court, the Chinese declared that the supposed lottery is really a legitimate business, and the supposed lottery tickets are pieces of mercantile paper.

The matter was very hard to sift Friday, because a large number of the Chinese characters had been written in the ledgers upside down.

HOPE FOR EARLY TRIALS.

FORTY PICKETS TO APPEAR.

Forty pickets will appear in Police Judge Rose's court tomorrow morning for their trials to be set. The calendar is comparatively clear for several weeks ahead and it is hoped that several of the cases will be disposed of soon.

With fair-minded juries, it is declared, the trials will progress speedily and that with the jury officer working as he does now in plain clothes, it will not be long before some pickets know what it means to tamper with the laws made to insure industrial freedom.

UNIVERSITY COURT.

SOUTHWEST POLICE DISTRICT.

The records and files of Police Judge Williams's branch of the Police Court were removed yesterday from the former court room on Hill street near First to the new court room in the University Police Station, No. 825 West Jefferson street.

Judge Williams will formally open the new court Mondy morning when a few misdemeanor cases will be called.

Judge Rose returned yesterday and will take up the work in his branch tomorrow morning.

All San Pedro police court cases and cases which originate in Los Angeles south of Pico street, will be taken into the University Police Station court beginning next week.

TEN DAYS FOR BARNEY.

COURT PUNCTURES PRETENSE

The suggestion that "ten days is enough," made by Barney Kinard in Police Judge Frederickson's court Thursday when he pleaded guilty to sleeping in a woodshed, bore fruit yesterday morning when Judge Frederickson sent him to jail for that period.

Barney claimed that he was a brakeman, but admitted that his experience in the business had been gained through riding brake beams.

The officer who arrested him made it clear to the court that Barney had many times before attracted the attention of the department by his inclination to shun exertion and accept such morsels as were thrust upon him by sympathetic housewives.

ATTRACTIVE PAMPHLET.

That tell the public something about the agricultural resources of Colorado and New Mexico is the raison d'etre of an attractive publication, "The Fertile Lands of Colorado and Northern New Mexico," just issued by the passenger department of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad. The agricultural advancement in that section of the United States is so marked from year to year that it has been necessary to publish eleven editions of this pamphlet in order to keep pace.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

David Gary Peters, esteemed in Colorado as a successful Christian minister, has been engaged by the Broadway Christian Church for a series of evangelistic meetings which will open tomorrow.

WORLD BEATER.

GREAT ORCHARD TO BE PLANTED.

PROBABLY WILL BE LARGEST IN ENTIRE REALM.

Capitalist, Who Saw Possibilities of Frazier, Combines With Retired Banker to Transform Virgin Soil Into Huge Fruit Producers. Forgery Charge Against Rancher.

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 15.—J. A. McAuley, a retired banker of Los Angeles, and W. A. Irwin, a local capitalist, have undertaken the development of what will undoubtedly be when completed the largest single orange orchard in this State and probably in the world. It is planned to put out Washington navels upon 1800 acres of land in the Frazier Valley, and lemons upon a large tract, the exact size of which is to be determined.

Orders have been entered for the delivery of 80,000 trees, and the rest of the stock will be obtained as rapidly as possible from the southern nurseries.

Irwin is locally known as the "discoverer of Frazier." When he came here from the East two years ago looking for a large tract of orange land, he was told that the Frazier country, while it contained excellent land, was so situated that irrigation water could not be found in wells of an economical depth.

He was skeptical, although the statement as to the water supply had been accepted as a fact ever since this section was settled. Irwin set several well rigs to work, and not only located water, but succeeded in platting a very accurate hydrographic map as well.

It is asserted that, in parts of the valley which the partners control, there are certain sheltered spots particularly well adapted to the culture of lemons, and these small tracts will be covered with lemon trees.

In addition to his half interest in the big orchard, Mr. McAuley has purchased for a personal holding a tract of 160 acres, which he intends to plant out to all varieties of citrus fruits. With ambitious plans for the beautification of the tract, he intends eventually to make it the show orchard of the Porterville section.

LOOKING FOR FORGER.

J. A. McAlister, a ranch hand, formerly in the employ of Joe Garver, owner of a large ranch south of this city, is being sought by the police on a charge of having passed two checks for $50 each, forged with the name of his employer and drawn upon the First National Bank of this city.

McAlister passed one of the checks at the Ball saloon in Visalia. Upon the check being intercepted at the bank here a warrant was issued for his arrest. Thereupon McAlister appeared at the county seat with the assertion that he had committed the forgery while under the influence of liquor, and pleaded for a chance to "make good." This was granted. McAlister's return trip, it is alleged, was for the purpose of passing a second check.

He was apprehended by the constable in Delano yesterday and while being taken to the village lockup, in some manner not satisfactorily explained, managed to escape from the constable and is still at large.

HEARING ON LONG DEMURRER.

Argument on a demurrer to an information against S. E. Skinner and R. C. Noleman will be resumed in the United States District Court tomorrow. The defendants are charged with having procured George W. Turner to swear falsely concerning a relinquishment of a land claim in Imperial valley. Noleman is a local attorney. The attorneys for the defense have set forth twenty-four alleged reasons why the information is faulty. Judge Wellborn listened to a part of the argument several weeks ago, but was compelled by the length of it to postpone it on account of the press of other business.

Mr. Brauer's Trip East

was not a pleasure trip in any sense of the word. It was a business trip, purely and simply made with the object of keeping close to the East's tailoring ideas and ideals. It was part of the down-to-next-season policy of these stores.

While in New York, Mr. Brauer uncovered some fabrics that most tailors will not show until spring:

THE NEW CHANTECLER SHADES

He wanted them for these stores and he wanted them quickly. So he bought all that he could find. Now you can see them in our windows, the most beautiful colorings yet produced in the history of merchant-tailoring; golden bronzes, red bronzes, purplish bronzes, with subdued patterns running through them.

that embrace cheviots, worsteds and serges of distinctive character and unquestionable quality.

AND THE GRADE OF TAILORING THAT GOES INTO OUR CLOTHES IS ALREADY FAMILIAR TO PARTICULAR MEN.

PRACTICAL SYMPATHY.

BENEFIT WILL BREAK RECORD.

SURPASSING TESTIMONIAL FOR INDUSTRIAL MARTYRS.

KINDLY MANAGERS CONTRIBUTE UNBUYABLE SHOW.

FEW CHOICE SEATS AT BOX OFFICE TOMORROW.

Every man and woman who is at all interested in plays and players understands that the great theatrical event of this week—and many weeks, in fact—will be the tremendous testimonial performance on the afternoon of Thursday, at the Auditorium, for the families of the men who died at their posts when anarchy hurled its terrible red fist against the stone castle of The Times.

The Times itself, which was built and has prospered upon the eternal principles of freedom and equal justice, needs no benefit of any kind, nor would it accept one, for it is more alive and more resourceful today than ever.

But in the homes of the soldiers who died in the industrial battle, the windows are darkened, and the cheery step of the returning bread-winner will be heard nevermore at the door. Though these widows and orphans receive tributes of practical gratitude from those under whose standard their loved ones happily toiled, these tributes cannot last forever, nor can any verbal or written expression of sympathy supply the family needs.

Therefore The Times—as does every other paper in the city today—solicit the most liberal patronage for this benefit performance. The uttermost monetary outlay to these bereaved families can but partially atone their loss in actual support alone.

It will be the most remarkable commingling of theatrical interests which the town has ever seen. Though this year, owing to the growth and prosperity of this great city, strife is keener than ever, all have consented to work together, in any way that will best serve, for this tender common good.

Shuberts and Syndicate, clashing vaudeville houses, rival stocks—all will be deployed together upon the kindly stage of humanity.

The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and the Chamber of Commerce have jointly conducted, during the past week, a herculean campaign for this sale, the unique moves of which have been previously described at length in these columns.

As a result, the ticket sale has already gone on to the gratifying extent of nearly $6000, though the box office has not yet been opened.

The public must not presume, however, that all the good seats have been taken. Far from it. The superb results of the advance sale, on the contrary, have been brought about by the splendid prices which the first individuals paid for their locations and boxes, in many instances entirely redonating them. Tomorrow morning 800 good seats will be available at the Auditorium box office.

Several San Francisco men were among the early purchasers, and several of these purchases were at once turned back into the general fund.

Henry W. Savage, another world-famous manager, did the same.

Dick Ferris paid $100 for a gallery seat which was turned right back, and John Cort contributed another hundred in the same way. Oliver Morosco, L. E. Behymer—both of these men were among the purchasers.

SUPERB ATTRACTIONS.

The attractions supplied represent the best of high-priced entertainment in this country.

No manager could afford to present such an entertainment, even at the Metropolitan Operahouse figure of $5 a seat. No private individual save Morgan or Rockefeller could afford to employ such a galaxy to amuse him.

And the best of it is that the whole of this stupendous, Barnumian, three-ring diameter hippodrome is a volunteer affair. The firemen had not ceased playing water upon the embers beneath which lay the martyred dead before the Los Angeles Theatrical Managers' Association, one of the most progressive and representative amusement organizations in the United States, had called a special meeting and had laid the preliminary plans for this great tribute to industrial faithfulness in extremis.

The members of this association are William T. Wyatt, Oliver Morosco, Clarence Drown, L. E. Behymer, Ferris Hartman, J. C. Donellan and J. A. Johnson, and the houses represented are the Hamburger Majestic, the Auditorium, the Burbank, the Orpheum, the Mason Operahouse, Pantages, the Los Angeles and the Grand Operahouse.

"The Prince of Pilsen," in its big all-star revival at the Hamburger Majestic, is making especial efforts to outdo all previous Savage records for charity, and Savage's charitable history—as attested by his telegraphic cash contribution—is by no means brief.

Manager Henri Gressit promises a short scene from the play, Ivor Anderson, in one of his famous songs, Jess Dandy, in his renowned specialty, "In Cincinnati," prima-donna Frances Cameron in a group of bewitching numbers, Walter Catlett in a specialty prepared for this occasion, and a brilliant number by the beautiful pony ballet.

The Burbank company will give an act from the Eldridge-Heustis play, "The Eternal Three."

Helen Bertram, prima donna soprano will be heard in several solos.

The Woman's Orchestra, under the direction of Harley Hamilton, will furnish instrumental music.

The Orpheum will contribute comedians Waterbury Brothers and Tenny, and from the same bill Rameses, the Egyptian magician.

The Pantages management is going to send Piquo, the acrobatic clown, and McMahon's Southern Review, a "girl act."

From the Los Angeles will appear McCormick and Irving in "Flirtology," and the Four Free Sisters.

From the Auditorium, there will be presented the second act of "Morning, Noon and Night," the current bill.

PATRONESSES.

Members of Friday Morning Club have volunteered their services to sell candy and flowers, and receive at the benefit performance.

They will also buy a number of tickets, and will secure a number of pretty young girls to aid in selling the candy. Mrs. C. A. Randall, 905 Alvarado street, Home 51097, is in charge.

The list of club women includes: Madam C. M. Severance, Mrs. Oliver P. Clark, Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson, Mrs. David C. McCan, Mrs. George Bugbee, Mrs. Julius Coffman, Mrs. Frank Garrett, Mrs. Helen Henderson Steckel, Mrs. O. Shepard Barman, Mrs. Hugh W. Harrison, Mrs. Hamilton Story, Mrs. Stoddard Jess and Mrs. Judson Davis.

Patronesses are: Mrs. W. H. Perry, Mrs. C. Modini Wood, Mrs S. C. Randall, Mrs. Dr. W. Edgar, Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, Mrs. C. E. Rundle, Mrs. Mary Banning, Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst, Mrs. Joseph Banning and Mrs. Frank D. Long.

COAST'S GREATEST NEED.

Retired Army Officer Declares California Should Be Protected by a Battleship Flotilla.

Gen. John McClellan, U.S.A. (retired) his wife, son and two daughters, are guests at the Westminster. Gen. McClellan, since his retirement from the army, has been making his home at Honolulu and, at present, is on a pleasure tour of the Coast.

"The greatest need of the Pacific Coast is not more forts and more land armament," said Gen. McClellan, "Keep the enemy from making a landing with a battleship flotilla that can at any time be rendevouzed at a particular point on the Coast. Have enough battleships on the Coast to make them really a formidable factor in its protection. At present, there are certainly far from enough ships on this side of the United States which is in as great danger, at least, as the Atlantic Coast, if not more so."

The General declared that there is no great danger of an immediate war with oriental powers.

"That it is possible is always true, that it is probable, is scarcely to be thought of at present. The Japanese and Chinese have too many troubles of an internal character, too much taxation and other factors to make immediate war feasible, should the cause exist."

Speaking of the new fortifications of Hawaii, and the wonderful development of Pearl Harbor, Gen. McClellan praised the attitude of the government.

"They are fortifying the real key to the Pacific Coast and, when this is made impregnable, the Pacific Coast becomes, in a measure, the same thing. There has been the last few months an increase in the number of soldiers, both infantry and cavalry, finding headquarters on the Island. The work of dredging the new channel and the construction of a dry dock sufficiently large to take care of any battleship the United States has afloat, is rapidly progressing and it will be but a short time before Hawaii presents the Gibraltar of the United States."

CITY PLANNING.

Bartlett, No. 618 New High street. BISHOP WATERHOUSE ARRIVES.

Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, who will preside over the Southern California conference of the M. E. Church, South, when it meets here on October 27, arrived yesterday and is the guest of Dr. R. P. Howell, pastor of Trinity Church. During the twelve days that will intervene, the bishop will familiarize himself with this territory, the growth of which has been a surprise to both church and State, and he wishes to satisfy himself as to the demands of the field.

THE LANCER.

and they all come home and have another high-ball together.

Another Blow to Romance!

While I was writing a Lancer column that was destined to be burned in the fire I was attracted by the wail let forth by an old minstrel who complained in a column interview with the dramatic editor of The Times about the decline of minstrelsy and the old songs of the South.

I wonder what he would say to this: somebody has invented a machine that picks cotton and displaces the negro.

When the grand days of minstrelsy are revived, our anguished friend will find that the old songs of the cotton field no longer apply: he will have to write new ones about the eccentric wheel slipping on the forward clutch.

It is no mystery to me, by the way, that his loved minstrel days with "such stars as Billie West and Primrose" should have slumped into oblivion. He may have loved them, as he says; but nobody else did. The dear old minstrel days were certainly tough on the audience.

Honor to Old Calabasas!

"Befo' de fire," Mrs. J. J. Connell, a tenderfoot lady wrote a letter to the Examiner in which she gave to the world a brilliant inspiration.

It fascinated me, and as to its fate I am more worried than I care to admit. I do hope that, in the midst of all this excitement, Mrs. Connell's inspiration has not been snuffed out or lost.

The lady advocated the holding an annual celebration in memory of Calabasas. She naively confessed that, being a little shy on the early history of California, she wasn't quite sure just who Calabasas was. She said she fancied him to be an early Spanish settler or an Indian chief and perhaps a mythical creature who had come to the mainland from Catalina Island.

She said she had an idea that Calabasas was made captive by a robber band who once inhabited the Malibu; that he was rescued by an Indian maiden and made one of the band and married to a squaw, coming to live in the City of the Angels.

Ah, how beautiful, how beautiful!

With real grief, however, I shall have to slip it to the lady that Calabasas was not named after an early Spanish settler or an Indian chief or even a mythical creature from Catalina. "Calabasas" means pumpkins.

A Clerical Squirt.

On my honor, with one of my best friends lying seared and burned and broken in his grave, I do not feel as bitter against the union dynamiters as I do toward this 2x4, small-bore squirt who abuses his pulpit by spitting out contemptible, mean, "resolutions" against The Times. It seems to me that he might have let pass this opportunity to gather in a little cheap public notice.

The old Times means more to the men who work on it than the outside public can ever know.

"I don't know what kind of dope they feed the men on the Times," a rival editor once told me, "but you can't pry one of them off with an exposion of dynamite." He was more literally true than he knew.

Newspaper men in other cities often laugh at us. "Of all the hot air," one of them tells me, "that I ever heard, the variety they shoot at one another in the news rooms of The Times is the warmest. You all seem to spend your time telling each other how wonderfully clever and fascinating the other fellow is."

Some of the most charming evenings I have ever known were at the little banquets we have given to celebrate some fellow's promotion or his marriage.

And to think that into this atmosphere of good fellowship and sympathy and hearty friendship should have come a dynamiter to settle our labor troubles!

Alas, the White Collar!

From now on, Mrs. Alexandria and me, we meets as strangers.

They have made a rule over at the hotel that no one wearing a soft-collar shirt shall desecrate the elevator. A has the elevator!

White collars were an invention of the devil. I spend most of my time with my eyes bulging out of my head like a choked chicken. I can't see any reason why a man should be obliged to keep his neck in the stocks when he hasn't done anything to be punished for.

My own opinion is that what Mrs. Charles F. Lummis found written in her husband's diary in Greek were only his remarks on the subject of white collars, before he stopped wearing them and adopted his costume of corduroy and soft shirts. If I wrote my opinion of white collars in a diary, the book would burn by spontaneous combustion.

I hope when we have taught the Chinese princes enough about modern war to come over and wipe us off the map, that the Chinese will return the compliment by teaching us how to dress.

Our dress resembles a hard-shell crab. The Chinese clothes are both beautiful and practical. They have loose, easy sleeves, giving your muscles the play they were intended to have. The old Chink wears coat upon coat, which he peels off or puts on to meet the weather. When we take off our heavy overcoats, the effect is of being skinned.

Upon the production of my new play, "The Microbe," recently accepted by John Blackwood for production in a prominent hospital, I intend to retire, when I shall dress exclusively in Chinese clothes.

My coat is to be cerise Chinese silk; the trousers of dove-colored watered silk. The water will be carried in a ball at the belt.

Fame! Ouch!

Mrs. Daisy Turney Krause is the third disappointed authoress who in two years has been caught in Los Angeles masquerading in a bogus fame.

A woman is a queer creature. She imagines that she plunges into all this authoring and fame-grabbing because she has outgrown the old ways, and wants to be out in the world and the storm, etc.

As a matter of fact, she is after fame exactly for the reason that she can't outgrow the old-fashioned, entirely feminine thirst for attention.

The attention that used to come to her in the drawing-room and at the ball from gallants, she now has to go after, and she pursues it hard. Men have soured on society, at least in America. The most desolate sight I know of is an obedient, suffering American husband paddling meekly along in the wake of his determined wife at a "doings."

There is no fun in any kind of society. There is no fun in any kind of [illegible]. The only fun in this world

Another Blow to Romance!

While I was writing a Lancer column that was destined to be burned in the fire I was attracted by the wail let forth by an old minstrel who complained in a column interview with the dramatic editor of The Times about the decline of minstrelsy and the old songs of the South.

I wonder what he would say to this: somebody has invented a machine that picks cotton and displaces the negro.

When the grand days of minstrelsy are revived, our anguished friend will find that the old songs of the cotton field no longer apply: he will have to write new ones about the eccentric wheel slipping on the forward clutch.

It is no mystery to me, by the way, that his loved minstrel days with "such stars as Billie West and Primrose" should have slumped into oblivion. He may have loved them, as he says; but nobody else did. The dear old minstrel days were certainly tough on the audiences.

There are mighty few women who believe this, however. To most of them, the work itself means nothing. It's only a hard route to being a heroine. Some of them, like Mrs. Krause, even leave out the work and try to be heroines anyhow.

"There she goes; that is she," are the sweetest words in the vocabulary of woman. Men don't care for fame; not a bit. They only work along and do their humble best, just for the glory of the work's sake—not for money and not for fame.

MIKADO'S SHIPS COMING.

Training Squadron to Be in Port a Week Next Month—Local Japanese Making Programme.

Rear-Admiral Yatsushiro, commander-in-chief of the Imperial Japanese Training Squadron, which is now on a cruise of the Pacific Coast ports, is scheduled to arrive here November 25, and remain in port one week. The squadron consists of two protected cruisers, the Asamakan and the Kasagikan. The officers and cadets total a complement of nearly 2000 men.

The local Japanese are proud of their naval forces and are making great preparations for their entertainment while here. The Los Angeles Japanese Association has called a meeting for tomorrow evening, when final announcement of the programme will be made public.

The cordial relations existing between Japan and America mean hospitable entertainment on the part of the people of Los Angeles. It is recalled that the most hearty welcome and the most lavish entertainment accorded our own battleship fleet on its round-the-world tour was that by the people of Japan.

FILMS THRIVE.

Catalina Island has been the subject of several fine films. The work of exploring the ruins of the Times building for the victims of the dynamiting has just been "snapped." Lately they took the tennis match between May Sutton and Hazel Hotchkiss and the pictures taken last winter of the aeroplane flying at Dominguez went all over the world. The picture companies took several prize fight films in this city and two or three big parades, like that of the Elks festival.

The advertising end of the motion picture busines has just taken a big jump among the companies of this city.

This summer the Southern Pacific and other railroads gave one of the local companies a big commission to take pictures of the scenery around Tahoe and various other places.

Another commission has been given by an automobile company for a series of pictures to show every phase of the manufacture of a motor car from the rubber tires to the searchlights.

In the course of the recent visit of Barnum and Bailey to this city, a big contract was made whereby a squad of picture men traveled with the circus several days. They began with the arrival of the circus train in town and showed the driving of the tent pegs, the erection of the canvas; the street parade; the feeding and care of the animals; the performance; and finally, taking down the canvas and "breaking up" the show.

MUCH USED PRIVATELY.

Within the past few months, the motion picture has taken a new "flyer." The privately owned picture film has come into being.

Tally, of Tally's Broadway Theater, who is the head of the local film clearing house, is authority for the statement that several private families in Los Angeles now own their picture machines, just as they do their phonograph; and come in regularly to rent films.

The possibilities of this seem to be great. There's a way to keep the old man home now. When he begins to edge off toward the club, mother will just mention that he needn't hurry back as she and the children will entertain themselves with the new film of the pony ballet from "Aint It Fierce on Broadway."

The expense of "every man with his own picture machine" is not very fierce. The apparatus for showing the pictures, costs about $225 and can be purchased as readily as chalk or cheese. Several firms in Los Angeles have them on sale. They are not difficult to operate.

Films can be rented readily and are not excessively expensive, especially the older ones.

This is best done by contract with a picture film firm. The bare films only cost about 3 cents a foot, but the process of taking them involves the use of an expensive camera and the services of an expert.

But what a charming souvenir and reminder of one's childhood!

ITS RISE METEORIC.

Of course the main use to which the moving picture has been put, so far, is as a cheap theatrical attraction.

It is one of the most absorbing phases of the modern theater. Its rise has been more than meteoric. It has been a theatrical panic. And nowhere more so than in Los Angeles. From a little back room of a pioneer phonograph parlor on Spring street, where the first tottering, uncertain, shaking pictures of the skirt dance of Anna Belle and the prize fight between Jim Corbett and Courtney was shown the moving picture has developed as a palyhouse magnet. There are now some forty-five picture theaters in Los Angeles. Some of them are little less than gorgeous. One of the handsomest theaters in this city is a moving picture house.

Artistically, the pictures have developed somewhat.

Artistically, the moving picture men do not know where they are going but they're on their way.

The picture drama is still in a raw, crude state.

When they first began taking pictures, they were nearly all of dancers, military parades and the like. The first attempts of plays were those technically known as "chase films." They were without plot. The villian committed some offense and a comic hue-and-cry with women and children and dogs and men and things, strung out along the road after him. The drama mainly consisted in falling over things.

The picture play then developed to the short crude melodrama. In France, they were not crude. The little playlets put forth by the Pathe Brothers were charming and of the most subtle art. It must be confessed that those put out by the American companies were something fierce.

Americans are not naturally pantominists. French are. French actors turned easily to the moving picture drama. Our actors had a hard time. Some of them never could learn. Some of the best actors were impossible for this work. Among the best people in the stock companies that all picture firms now maintain are those who came into the work as amateur "supes."

Hobart Bosworth, who is now producer for the Selig Picture Company in this city, is probably doing more for the development of the moving picture play than any other one man in America. Bosworth, but for his ill health, would be one of the foremost actors of this country. He brings a real brain to the making of the picture drama.

So far his work must have been unsatisfactory to himself. Most of the plays which he has been compelled to produce have been blithering rot about cowboys heroes.

The picture show has advanced not much further, thus far, than the blood and thunder melodrama which it has driven out of business.

PUNK STILL GOES.

The eastern companies have been turning out, for the most part, the most excruciatingly rotten plays about the fair young country thing who fell in love with a wicked man from the city and came home to the old folks with a pale haggard face and a little child in her arms.

The companies out here tried to equal that degree of punkness with dramas woven about Idaho Sue, the pride of the range, with some daring cowboys who get on and off the wrong side of their horses.

So far, the productions have been very much superior to the dramas. The stage management has, in some instances, been superb and the acting nearly as good. They have gone to great pains to stage insufficient and idiotic melodramas. Last summer, for example, Mr. Bosworth took a company in wagons to the Yosemite Valley and swam the terrific rapids of the Merced River in order to give the proper color for an irritating playlet.

The picture companies have used the most wonderful and artistic pictures of the California missions as the background for stories so silly that they positively make your spine shrivel.

The picture producers have not yet had the courage or the wisdom to go to trained literary men for their plays. The local companies depend mainly on the fertile imagination of the stage managers—old stock actors. And you know the kind of a play an old stock would be likely to turn out; particularly if he had to invent one every week, as is the case.

They are beginning to see, however. One of the last catalogues of music picture films issued to the trade advertises, among other things, "Justinian and Theodora," by Elbert Hubbard; a specially written play by Rex Beach; several by Opie Reed.

A most encouraging tendency of the picture play business is that of "picturizing" well-known plays and books.

A wonderful film of Ramona was made last spring by one of the companies having studios in Los Angeles. The Selig company also gave "Dora Thorne," and "Sam'l of Posen," with M. B. Curtiss himself in the star role.

In the East they have pictured many current plays, the most sensational success being the "Girl of the Golden West."

Another cheering feature is that well-known actors of established reputation are being employed—not to a great extent in this city, however.

It is hardly a secret among theater people that Joseph Kilgour was especially engaged at a whopping salary to take the part of George Washington in a recent big series of colonial pictures. He bears a remarkable resemblance to the illustrious George.

In France, a gorgeous production of the story of the Book of Esther has been put on two moving picture films. The following famous artists took the leading parts: Mlle. Gravier of the Theater de la Renaissance, as Esther; M. Leonce Perret of the Odeon as Ahasuerus; M. Legrand of the Odeon as Mordecai.

And in so many of the best of the French pictures we see adorable little Pilar Moran.

The fact is the moving picture show of today consists only of the tools to carve out an artistic future. Some day the moving picture, David Belasco, will appear and for his scenic spectacles he will not rely on a half-inch rubber hose in the hands of a supe to make waterfalls; he will have Niagara. And for his "back drop," if he likes and the story suits, he can have the Grand Canyon.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE.

Mexican Petroleum Common Is the Feature the Closing Day of a Busy Week.

[illegible] easily the feature of the trading on the Los Angeles Exchange yesterday. Nearly 800 shares changed hands, and the stock gained nearly two dollars a share. This big advance was probably due to the contract recently made with the Waters-Pierce Company involving over $2,000,000. Yet the stock of the Union, which only a few days ago increased its dividend rate 10 cents a share a month, declined slightly.

California Midway also made a gain, and United Oil advanced to some extent. Consolidated Midway held its own. As usual the oil shares monopolized the market to the exclusion of all other issues. The Exchange did a big half day's business.

To Our Clients and The Investing Public

An Advance in Oil Stocks is Inevitable

The market for oil stocks during the past few months has been anything but reasonable and satisfactory. The decline has affected the dividend payers as well as the non-producers. There has been no rhyme nor reason in the irregularity of the decline. The price of stocks of companies having their oil sold at high figures for many years to come has declined sympathetically and they may now be bought at prices that not only assure the investor large returns on the investment but safety of principal as well.

The cause for unwise selling of these good securities at low prices has been largely insufficient storage and transportation facilities and marketing arrangements.

The recent developments for the future marketing of practically the entire production of the State are of a most substantial nature and so far as we are able to judge assures the producer a good profit and steady returns in cash. The effect of this marketing arrangement will soon be felt in the security market. Companies who have been obliged to stop production will start up again and those who have suspended dividends temporarily will be able to resume them so that investors will find the present practically the lowest price at which good oil securities may be acquired. All of them from this market level should make material advances and pay large dividends on the purchase price.

The marketing arrangements referred to have been discussed by the press and place the industry on a more substantial basis than ever before, contemplating as it does, increased sales at higher figures over a long period of years.

In addition to this arrangement the financial situation from one end of the country to the other is clearing very fast. Money in the East has been piling up for the past 9 or 10 months and it is believed that in from 30 to 60 days this money will be seeking investment.

Our advice therefore is to take these new and favorable developments into consideration together with the low price of good oil stocks and buy them now. Delay in buying will, in the greater number of cases, result in paying higher prices later on.

Selected purchases made now will in our judgment be made at bottom prices and make large profits as an advance in oil stocks, for the above reasons, is inevitable.

We solicit your orders and will be pleased to furnish information upon request.

WHEAT CLOSES ON ADVANCE.

CONTINENTAL PRICES SAVE DAY FOR BULLS.

Quotations Firm Despite Liverpool Advices—Antwerp and Paris Both Going Up—Corn Reaches New Low Record—Oats Rally, Finishing at Slight Rise.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Although Liverpool was slightly lower for wheat than twenty-four hours previous, continental quotations were decidedly firm, and were supposed to reflect less favorable conditions than Argentine crop reports. Antwerp advanced 1 7-8, and on flour Paris was up 2 1-2. The close was firm at nearly the best of the session. December ranged from 94 7-8 to 96 1-2@96 5-8, with the final sales 1-2 up, at 96 3-8@96 1-2. New low records were again made in corn, December fluctuating between 46 7-8@47 1-2, closing 1-8 net lower, but firm, at 47 1-8. Cash corn ruled weak. No. 2 yellow, [illegible] 1-4. Oats rallied a little with wheat at the last. December sold from 30 1-2 to 31 1-8, and finished a shade off at 30 3-4@30 7-8. Provisions showed firmness. Final quotations were changed to 5@7 1-2 higher for pork; 2 1-2 down to 2 1-2 up for lard, and ribs were up 2 1-2@15.

PROFITS RULE IN STOCK MARKET.

MONEY MARKET STATUS INVITES WEEK-END REALIZATION.

Misgivings in Regard to Money Market Induce Reduction of Speculative Lines, But Prices Are Bid Up to a Strong Close—Trust Companies Active.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The rapidity with which prices of stocks have been carried upward this week invited heavy week-end profit-taking today. Misgivings of the ability of the money market to stand the strain of active stock speculation also induced the reduction of speculative lines. Prices were bid up again at the end of the day to a strong closing. The demands on New York bank reserves from the interior continued and the exigencies of foreign money markets indicate that they will respond unwilling to demands for gold from New York. The London market was eased today by the redemption of $10,000,000 of treasury bills. This transaction marks about the end of the adjustment of the British government's extraordinary borrowings last year to meet the budget suspension and brings government deposits in the Bank of England back to about normal with no prospect of further relief for the money market by large maturities of treasury bills. Moreover, the English bank had to part with $275,000 in gold for shipment to Egypt today.

The amount of competition which will develop from the continent on Monday for the weekly gold supply may decide whether the Bank of England's official discount rate shall be advanced to 5 per cent. next week. The firm sentiment was caused by the fresh disagreement over the cotton bill of lading controversy through the objections of cotton dealers in the South. The bank statement disclosed that the trust companies, rather than the clearing house banks, are financing the stock speculation. There was a decrease in loans of the banks shown by the actual condition of $10,236,600 in conjunction with an expansion in the average loans of other institutions of $12,382,000. The limitation of the actual cash loss to three quarters of a million dollars in face of a decrease of four to six millions on the known movements of money was unexplained by any compensating movement in the cash item of the institutions which reported a loss. Bonds were firm; total sales, par value, $2,856,000. United States bonds, unchanged in the bid price on call, the last week.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET.

[Special service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 111 West Third street.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Weather remains fair with temperatures above the seasonable average. The tropical storm last night was centered near Havana and will move northward during the day with center over eastern gulf of Mexico. Rains are indicated for the east gulf region and the South Atlantic States, elsewhere fair weather will prevail. Sentiment while overwhelmingly bullish with many traders talking 20 cents is becoming a little more two-sided and some strong interests were openly selling the market yesterday. There can be no question as to the heavily overbought condition of the market as a result of the unreasonable advance which has taken place with practically no reaction within the last three weeks. Liverpool for the first time is beginning to show signs of weakness and our markets should open 7 to 10 down.

KEEP HOSPITAL OPEN.

Plan is Adopted for Institution in Ventura Whereby It Will Run a Year at Least.

VENTURA, Oct. 15.—Definite arrangements were concluded at a meeting held here Friday night by which the Bard Hospital will be kept open and running for a year at least, by which time it is hoped the institution will have been made self-supporting.

Former Senator Bard decided a few weeks ago to close the institution because of the fact it was running behind. Then people of this city began agitating to have the hospital kept open. Investigation was made which developed that the hospital had been losing at the rate of $110 per month the past three years. Former Senator Bard was interviewed and offered, if the people would take it over and run it, to donate toward wiping out the deficit at the rate of $100 a month for a year.

At the meeting Friday evening it was resolved to incorporate under the name of the Bard Hospital Association. The first directors chosen were E. P Foste, Jaun Camarillo, Miss Maude McGonigle, Don G. Bowker, R. B. Haydock, Mrs. Lloyd Selby and Mrs. J. E. Reynolds; committee on by-laws, M. J. Rogers, R. B. Canfield and Don Bowker. It was decided to limit the membership of the association to 100 and the fee for membership was fixed at $5, with $100 as the fee for life membership. The following committee was named to solicit members: T. J. Donovan, N. Peirano and Fred Hogue.

Invest In a Paying Security Where Earnings and Value Are Rapidly Increasing

Such a security is offered by the American Machine & Tool Company. A safe, conservative investment for the investor who knows that a paying industrial will make more money for him than anything else can. This stock is rising rapidly and will not stop until it is considerably above par, for the earnings are increasing every month.

The man, fortunate and wise enough, to buy such a security when it is producing, and increasing in value, yet before the price becomes prohibitive reaps a competence.

Large contracts, recently taken, together with valuable new lines added to our established ones, make it advisable to increase the working capital, and all money received from the sale of this limited block of stock, now offered, goes into the treasury.

It is but a few minutes ride to the factory. Take Main Street car to Twenty-third Street and it is but one hundred feet away. Call and look the proposition over right at the plant.

EVEN BREAK.

BLANKS FOR BOTH TEAMS.

VERNONS AND SENATORS WIN BY IDENTICAL SCORE.

FIRST GAME IS FEATURED BY CARLISLE'S HOMER.

SECOND CONTEST ENDS AFTER FIVE INNINGS.

Vernon, 3; Sacramento, 0. First game.

Sacramento, 3; Vernon, 0. Second game, five innings.

With a rainstorm threatening them almost every minute of the afternoon the Vernon and Sacramento players managed to get through fourteen innings of baseball yesterday, each team winning a game. In the first act the Vernons were the stars while in the second they took the heavy Roman soldier parts.

Owing to the rain of Friday night the ground was in poor shape for playing, for part of right field was a lake and there was a mushy little lake near the home plate. The afternoon looked so bad that not one-half of the regulars would take a chance on a storm and the players rushed the games through in rapid-fire time, the first of nine innings being played in one hour and fifteen minutes.

The fans saw fine heaving in both games and consequently but few hard swats or fancy fielding stunts. It was Baum and Carson in the eye-opener and it was Carson all the way after Carlisle broke Baum's heart with a home-run swat over the right-field fence at the opening of the third inning.

After this powerful slam, Burrell grounded to Burns who juggled the ball and then Ross sacrificed, putting Burrell on second. Baum tried to force Burrell, but made a wild throw and Burrell ran to third and scored a moment later on Roy Brashear's single to left. Carlisle doubled to center in the fifth, went to third on Burrell's sacrifice and scored when Danzig allowed Roy Brashear's grounder to get away from him. Perry was the only Senator to reach third and he landed there on his single and two outs.

SECOND SHUT-OUT.

The first game completed thirty-two innings that the Vernons had not been scored on, but in the second contest the Senators soon put a crimp in any hope that Hap Hogan might have had to emulate Portland. Brackenridge and Whalen were the heavers and the visitors began on Brackenridge in the first inning when Van Buren hit a long double to the score board. Briggs bounced the ball to Brackenridge who tried to catch Van at third but failed. Boardman was an easy infield out and Van scored on it.

In the second inning, Heister was passed and was forced at second by Burns. This little bird stole second and scored when Whalen hit a Texas leaguer over first base. Van Buren was safe at first in the third inning when Burrell threw his grounder low to Kit Brashear. Van was forced at second by Briggs and scored when Danzig doubled to left. Whalen was in fine shape and allowed but two hits in the five innings.

RECRUITS PROMISING.

BERRY IS OPTIMISTIC.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Several Pacific Coast baseball fans here for the world's series bring good reports from that section regarding recruits who will join the White Sox next spring. Bodie, the sensational home run batter of the San Francisco team, and Baker, the Spokane pitcher, have made a favorable impression on the fans and are expected to aid the White Sox in their ambition to take the flag next season.

Manager W. H. Berry of the Los Angeles team in the Pacific Coast League, is one of the visitors from the Coast. Some great baseball players are being developed on the Coast, according to him.

Receiving Hospital Now Undergoing Improvements Made Possible by Removal of Police Court.

The Receiving Hospital will reopen in about ten days with equipment and conveniences which will rival any similar institution in the country.

Considerable additional room was secured for the hospital by removing Police Judge Williams's court room to the University Police Station. This will allow space for separate wards for insane and acloholic patients. At present there are only two wards, one for women and one for men, and all classes of patients and people are crowded into them.

Dr. Zerfing, chief surgeon, will have a private office in the hospital so that no time need be lost in summoning him for major operations. A chemical, labortory, two rooms for X-ray and microscopic work, and a kitchen are other new features to be added.

WANT THEIR DADDY.

Children Write Pathetic Note to Police Appealing for Information of Missing Parent.

The police have received a pathetic appeal from two children in Marshall, Tex., asking that their father, James McNamara, be found, if possible, and asked to return to them.

The appeal, written on a postal card, says that McNamara left home six years ago, and has not been heard from since. Their mother is now dead and the children are without a home.

The children are a girl, aged 14 years, who wrote the note, and a boy aged 16 years. They want the father either to return and take care of them or send for them.

REALISTIC.

HISTORIC SCENE OF OLD WEST.

INDIAN BATTLE A FEATURE OF COL. CODY'S SHOW.

Dispatching of Tall Bull by the Picturesque Scout an Exciting Incident—Far East Exhibition Included in the Farewell Visit of Buffalo Bill.

In the coming of Col. Cody and the announcement that this will be his last visit, more than passing note is justified. Buffalo Bill represents in propria persona the romance and reality of life of the troublous times in the last decades of pioneer days, when civilization was extending her borders westward, overlapping and extinguishing the frontier. It is not surprising then that millions have taken deep interest in the story of the exciting time in which he was incidentally prominent and recognized the valuable work he has accomplished in giving a comprehensive and lifelike representation of an epoch in the history of this country, the memories of which are fading into the memories of the past. Millions will be reminded of the inevitable flight of time when they read that this tour will be the old scout's farewell.

In recognition of the importance of the occasion Col. Cody has combined with Maj. Lillie to present on the same lines as the Wild West, people and scenes from the Far East. The programme promised is extensive.

Fidelity to historic fact has ever been the subsidntiated claim of Col. Cody and Maj. Lillie in the productions incident to their exhibition. For their present tour they have selected the Battle of Summit Springs as the chief scenic feature. This battle was one of the deciding conflicts in reclaiming the West from Indian control. It was on July 11, 1869, that Gen. Carr, in command of a detachment of United States Cavalry, and guided by Buffalo Bill as his chief of scouts, came suddenly upon the camp of Tall Bull, chief of the "dog soldiers," and engaged them in one of the fiercest struggles in the annals of Indian warfare. The conflict was sharp and relentless, but when Buffalo Bill killed Tall Bull the tide quickly turned and the Indians suffered utter defeat. In this reproduction of the Battle of Summit Springs, Buffalo Bill will enact his original role, and the death of Tall Bull will be shown with vivid realism.

Previous to the actual battle the cusoms and camp life of the Indian will be shown in the erection of a typical Indian village, and the details of Indian recreation, sports and pastimes will be detailed with fidelity to life on the plains when the redskin was monarch of that vast domain. Other typical western scenes will be made a part of the Wild West exhibition. There will be A Holiday at "T-E" Ranch, in which the plainsman's pleasures will be revived, and The Attack on an Emigrant Train, depicting the dangers attendant upon life of the pioneer.

The Congress of Rough Riders will also constitute an important part of the Wild West entertainment, horsemen from all parts of the globe having been assembled for the purpose of giving exhibitions of their proficiency as masters of equestrian expertness and reckkless daring, supplemented by the first appearance in one arena of Rhoda Royal's and Ray Thompson's trained thoroughbreds and range horses. The entertainment entire will constitute a thrilling display of unusually interesting and novel exhibitions, a fitting climax to the career of Buffalo Bill on his farewell visit tomorrow and Tuesday.

Colonists, Tourists and Home-Seekers---Monrovia Wants You

The "Monrovia Board of Trade" offers a word of guidance to those seeking homes in Southern California.

From the very days of the Mission Fathers the foothill territory has been recognized as the choice and ideal part of Southern California.

Here, occupying a superb natural mesa, high above fogs and damp, shielded by the mountains, lies the popular residence suburb of Monrovia.

It is just beyoud the city's smoke and dust and connected with the business district of Los Angeles by the finest electric roadbed in the World. While the slow city cars, their speed held down by city ordinances, crawl and twist from the outskirts to the business district, Monrovia cars shoot over a private right-of-way carrying passengers in big comfortable coaches.

It is the speed and luxury of the ride that appeals to many business men who find that their health and spirits are improved by getting away from a strictly city environment and enjoying the peculiar exhilaration of a foothill home.

To provide suitable transportation for the increasing number of business men who are moving to Monrovia the Pacific-Electric operates Flyers night and morning and is four-tracking a large stretch of its roadbed so that the time between Los Angeles and Monrovia will be still further reduced.

Monrovia—a mere hamlet just a few years ago—is now the chief residential suburb east of Los Angeles and present indications point to the most remarkable season in its history.

Monrovia has 30 miles of paved streets, the finest schools in the state (standard of scholarship included), owns its own water system (largely sparkling mountain water), gas, electricity, telephones, excellent stores.

Until you have lived in Monrovia you do not know what life in Southern California really means.

Don't mistake the solid growth of Monrovia for a "boom." It is not a "boom," it is growth, solid, substantial, permanent growth. You should visit Monrovia. The evidences of prosperity will appeal to you far more than printed facts. You will like Monrovia. You will realise the charm of its picturesque location, so typical of Southern California and what you had in your mind's eye when you moved to the Coast.

Monrovia has a big generous welcome awaiting you. The best time to decide is now—come today.

GETTING NEXT.

OIL SITUATION IS EXPOUNDED.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY PIERCE HOLDS HEARINGS.

VIEWS OF CALIFORNIA OIL MEN ARE PRESENTED.

HE WILL PERSONALLY VISIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS.

In Symphony Hall on Hill street yesterday morning from 10 till 12 o'clock Frank Pierce, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior, gave a public hearing to the oil operators of California. The performance was repeated in the afternoon at Blanchard Hall from 2 till 4 o'clock. At each hearing about [illegible] oil men were in attendance, and they gave freely of their views to Mr. Pierce.

The most important feature of the hearings, as relating to future legislation affecting the California oil industry, was the statement by Secretary Pierce that he considered the present administration committed to a policy of holding mineral and oil lands because of the tone of President Taft's speech made at Minneapolis during the conservation convention. However, Mr. Pierce's visit to California has nothing to do with the conditions now surrounding unpatented government lands.

The hearing was called to order by Calvert Wilson, president of the Chamber of Mines and Oil, and Secretary Pierce then stated that he wanted every oil man who wished to have his say. He cautioned them, however, to speak to the point and not devote their time to extraneous matters. This request was followed out by some of the speakers, but others had to be called down and when the erring ones wandered from the text the secretary was not slow to interfere.

In order to guide the speakers, Mr. Pierce announced that in the past few months much correspondence has been received by the Interior Department from California oil men relative to the laws governing oil lands. Some of these complaints, he said, were to the effect that the decision made by himself in the now famous Yard case was being too strictly construed by the department in regard to the patenting of oil lands. This question, he said, would be argued by eminent legal talent on Monday at the same place. He stated that the matter was a close legal question.

The second point in the correspondence from California, the Secretary said, was as to whether a more liberal construction of the present laws is needed, or new laws. He gathered that what was wanted most was remedial legislation affecting the locations made on oil lands prior to the withdrawal orders. It was to get at the core of the matter that the department decided to have him visit California in person and talk to the oil men concerning their wants.

Charles P. Fox, president of the California Oil Men's Association, declared that the Yard case decision, which holds that when eight men locate 160 acres of oil land and transfer it to one individual when no discovery of oil has been made, the transaction is invalid, is working untold hardships to the oil men so operating in good faith. In answer to a question of Mr. Pierce as to whether he wanted oil land locations made legal before a discovery of oil, Fox said "yes," and the sentiment was applauded by many of the men present. However, some objected and T. W. Wampler, an old-time operator, was called to the stage.

He said the oil man, the same as the placer miner, acquires a possessory right before he discovers oil. He believed the locator should be limited to twenty acres and should have only a limited time in which to discover oil.

Next in quick succession, under the gentle guidance of Mr. Pierce, the following oil operators were heard: U. S. G. Todd, operating in Maricopa; J. A. Waltman, J. D. Leiderman, of San Francisco; E. M. Sheridan of Taft; G. S. Johnson, secretary of the Board of Governors of the California Oil Men's Association, who held out for 160 acres as an oil claim instead of twenty; Calvert Wilson, president of the Chamber of Mines and Oil, who favored from eighty to 160 acres in a claim and wanted the rights of good faith operators on government land protected, and R. W. Dallas, secretary of the Coalinga branch of the Independent Oil Producers' Agency. These men were all heard at the forenoon hearing, and Mr. Dallas presented figures to show that there are over 11,000 acres of oil land in the Coalinga field that is unpatented on which there has been expended in good faith $2,500,000.

At the afternoon session in Blanchard Hall, the principal talks were made by Thomas A. O'Donnell, Judge E. L. Tolin and S. C. Graham. The views of both O'Donnell and Graham are well known to the oil operators of California. Others heard were: R. J. Walker of Devil's Den; J. J. Bristol, a prospector; C. W. West of Los Angeles; William B. Savage, a mining lawyer, and one or two others.

It was announced that the hearing, when the legal questions will be argued will be open to the public. Later in the week the assistant secretary will pay a visit to the oil fields of the San Joaquin Valley. He will be accompanied through the fields by Charles P. Fox and G. S. Johnson, officers of the Oil Men's Association, and a guest at Bakersfield of the Board of Trade. At Coalinga, the Chamber of Commerce will act as host. Mr. Pierce wants no banquets and no speeches on the trip.

The California oil men are taking great interest in the visit of Mr. Pierce, believing that he will aid the Interior Department in clarifying the situation as it relates to unpatented oil lands. E. L. Doheny and many other prominent oil men who did not speak were present at the hearings.

CUPID'S MANY MISSIVES.

From All Over Country, Postmaster Gets Letters For Girl Who Wants a Husband.

Postmaster Harrison is playing the role of Cupid very successfully, if the number of answers which he has received to the plea of the Bridgeport, Ct., girl who wrote to him for a husband can be taken as a criterion.

Nearly every mail brings to the postoffice a love missive for the maiden who sighs for California and does not mind binding the bargain for a home here by taking a husband.

What each has to say to the young woman is not known, as the lovers have invariably sent sealed letters to be forwarded to her.

Here is a sample of the letters which accompany the sealed envelopes from all over the country:

"I have seen in the Times about a girl writing for a husband, and I think I am the man for her, as I am a cotton raiser and I need a helpmate. I can give a good record of myself in Los Angeles county or anywhere in California, and if you will send my name and address to this girl I will make you a present of $5 in gold for your trouble in doing so. I will send a stamp and envelope. I will send you the five the first letter I get from the girl."

The Postmaster has been compelled to call on his private secretary to assist him in his efforts at match making. His only requirement is that all lovers who apply shall furnish their own stamps.

OPPOSES VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Miss Bronson of Government Labor Bureau Likes Them in Their Own Sphere.

Miss Minnie Bronson, special agent of the United States Bureau of Labor, addressed the City Club yesterday on the topic: "Why We Oppose Votes for Women." She said she has a strong conviction that it is not to the best interests of the State for women to vote, and that she thought it would be calling woman from the sphere in which she belongs to one which she is not fitted and in which she does not belong. The speaker also expressed the belief that the influence of woman is greatest where she is unhampered by political ties. She said that some women seemed to think that all difficulties would be settled once they get the ballot, but that there are a great many problems in which she is interested, along the lines of her work in the Labor Bureau, that the ballot has not settled.

AGRICULTURAL PARK MEETING.

In order to give a full hearing to all sides, the Federal Improvement Association, of the southwest part of the city, has called a mass meeting to discuss the proposed condemnation of land south of Agricultural Park. The meeting will be held on Monday evening at the Nazarene Church, Forty-third street and Grand avenue. Members of the association favor the condemnation of the land, their contention being that the assessment will not amount to over $2 or $2.50 per lot, though if twice that amount they say they consider it a mere trifle.

SYMPATHETIC.

CHURCH SENDS TENDER WORDS

SORROWS FOR THE MARTYRS OF "THE TIMES" OUTRAGE.

METHODISTS URGE CITY STOP ANARCHISTS MEETING.

PIONEERS AND ELKS EXPRESS THEIR SENTIMENTS.

Among resolutions commenting on the outrage at the The Times' building on the 1st. inst., recently received, three deserve special mention. These come from the Los Angeles County Pioneer Society, the Methodist Church and the famous lodge No. 99, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks. The Pioneers, in their resolution signed by Randall H. Hewett, president, and J. Frank Burns, secretary, not only extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved families and friends of those who perished in the awful catastrophe but to those who were injured and to "all connected with The Times establishment who suffered financial loss in a calamity which has few counterpart in the country." Two other portions of the resolution are worth publishing in full, as herewith.

"Whereas, it is the general belief, on evidence already secured, that the awful crime was committed with deliberate malice, regardless of the sacrifice of innocent human life, to gratify malignant hate; and that it was a criminal and shameful assault on the entire community and the State; therefore be it resolved,

"That we deeply deplore the frightful calamity and denounce the perpetrators of the dastardly deed as unfit to live or exist in a law-abiding community, and urge that every possible means be invoked to bring the guilty parties to severe and deserved punishment."

ELKS SEND CHECK.

The Elks resolved "that we unqualifiedly condemn the act or acts on the part of any person whatsoever in causing said explosion, and we further tender our sympathy and condolence, together with an allowance of $100 of the funds of this lodge, to the bereaved families."

METHODIST SYMPATHY.

All the Methodist ministers of Los Angeles were absent in Fresno at the session of their annual conference when the terrific explosion occurred which wrought such disaster to life and property. In their first meeting after their return, held last Monday in the First Methodist Church, a committee was appointed to prepare suitable resolutions. The committee consisted of Dr. Charles Edward Locke, Dr. Will A Knighten and Dr. Matt S. Hughes. The resolutions are as follows:

"The members of the Methodist Ministers' meeting of Los Angeles hereby express their tenderest sympathy for those who have been so cruelly bereft by this tragic calamity. We earnestly deplore the sad loss of life, and would enroll the names of the industrious workmen, who were ruthlessly sacrificed, in the list of martyrs to duty and honest toil.

"In unmeasured terms we denounce the wicked perpetrators of this diabolical crime, and hope the authorities may be able to bring these miscreants to speedy justice. We urge upon our city authorities to take every precaution to prevent the teaching and dissemination of incendiary, anarchistic theories in Los Angeles.

"These arch enemies of authority and government should not be permitted to hold meetings or to indulge in inflammatory utterances in our city. We believe that the teachers of anarchy are responsible for this frightful tragedy.

"We extend our sympathy to the owners of the Los Angeles Times on the immense losses they have sustained; and also congratulate them on the enterprise and alertnes which have enabled them to publish their paper without the omission of a single daily issue.

"In the presence of this heinous deed by fiends incarnate, we call attention to the insidious and unbiblical doctrines promulgated by some unsafe teachers among us that sin is a myth, and that man is incapable of sin; and we call upon preachers of the gospel and all parents and all teachers of the young to more earnestly emphasize the 'Thou Shalt Nots' of trembling Sinai, and the plain Bible doctrine that the 'Wages of Sin is Death.'"

FULL OF FIGHT.

BANK TROUBLE STILL CLOUDY.

ANDERSON JUSTIFIES COURSE IN CLOSING DOORS.

States There Had Been an Impairment of the Capital Stock, But Believes Institution is Solvent—Old Officers Declare They Will Stay on the Job Until Dispossessed.

The doors of the All Night and Day Bank remained closed yesterday and curious persons read a notice to the effect that the institution is in the hands of the State Superintendent of Banks. This action was taken by Alden Anderson at 10 o'clock Friday night, as already told in the Times, for the protection of the depositors. He believes that the institution is solvent and that the depositors will get their money in full.

It is understood that the bank will not be opened for business until the litigation resulting in two sets of officers has been cleared up. Anderson also justifies his course by saying that there had been an impairment of the capital stock of the Night and Day Bank, which the old officers had failed to make good.

During yesterday morning hundreds of persons, men and women, who have money on deposit in the bank, paused at the institution and looked at the darkened windows. It is hoped that the legal complications may be disentangled within a few days so that the bank can reopen.

In view of the fact that through an order of the Superior Court the receiver for the stock of the Night and Day Bank that was given as collateral for a loan, was allowed to vote it at the stockholders' meeting, and a new set of officers was elected, Newton J. Skinner, who has been president of the bank, has issued a lengthy statement in which he reviews the legal phases of the controversy, and in which he justifies the old officers in their stand.

Skinner claims that the matter is still before the Supreme Court on appeal, and that there has been 2000 shares of the bank's stock issued. He therefore contends that the 1241 shares voted at what he terms the "rump" stockholders' meeting when new officers were elected, did not constitute a two-thirds majority of the stock, which would be 1334 shares, and that the action was illegal.

He says that the old officers will stay on the job until they are legally dispossessed. He further states that in September and October the Day and Night Bank was the oly one in Los Angeles to increase its deposits, and this in the face of litigation.

ARMY ENGINEERS VISIT ROOSEVELT PROJECT.

WATER USERS SUPPORT NEW ARIZONA SCHEME.

SOCIALIST EDITOR SUES IN SPITE OF THEORIES.

Correspondence of The Times.] PHOENIX (Ariz.) Oct. 15.—The in[illegible] board of army engineers spent [illegible] days in Phoenix and vicinity, in[illegible] the Roosevelt dam and its ap[illegible], the Roosevelt road, the [illegible] Reef diversion dam and the [illegible] canals and the lands appurte[illegible]. The members were taken from [illegible] to Roosevelt and back to Phoenix in automobiles and were the guests of the Board of Trade at luncheon and [illegible] drive around the farming country [illegible] the principal canals, which the Reclamation Service is enlarging and [illegible]. Several pumping plants [illegible] visited, as well as the existing [illegible] power plants. Gov. Sloan [illegible] at the luncheon, where the [illegible] asked many questions affect[illegible] the settlement of the valley and [illegible] character of the water appropria[illegible].

[illegible] F. H. Newell of the Reclamation Service, stated that the Salt [illegible] project was the pioneer of all [illegible] projects and had served as a [illegible] for all the others, with respect [illegible] organization. The plan of the Salt [illegible] Valley Water Users' Association, [illegible] up years ago by Judge J. H. [illegible] and B. A. Fowler, had there[illegible] been recommended to all com[illegible] which had sought to secure [illegible] advantages of the reclamation act. [illegible] referred to the great work [illegible] had been done for this valley by [illegible] L. C. Hill, and by Arthur [illegible], to whom should be given [illegible] for establishing the Roosevelt [illegible] mill, through which $800,-[illegible] had been saved the project. Col. [illegible], chairman of the committee, spoke briefly, as did President [illegible] of the Board of Trade, while [illegible] Kibbey referred to the history of [illegible] valley water system and the ob[illegible] which have had to be sur[illegible]. The party left Monday [illegible] for El Paso, thence proceeding [illegible] to look over the Rio [illegible] and Pecos Valley irrigation [illegible].

FAVOR NEW PROJECT.

[illegible] action has been taken by [illegible] of the Florence-Casa Grande [illegible] Users' Association toward sup[illegible] of the Florence Irrigation and [illegible] Company, which owns the Florence canal with its attached reservoir [illegible] the plain near Picacho. The com[illegible] is now trying to secure permis[illegible] to erect a water storage dam [illegible] the box canyon of the Gila River, [illegible] San Carlos. The application is [illegible] fought by the Southern Pacific Railroad, which has surveyed a [illegible] line through the canyon and the project likewise is not [illegible] by the Reclamation Service, [illegible] has abandoned a filing for a dam [illegible] same locality.

[illegible] people of Florence, seeing pros[illegible] ahead when an abundance of [illegible] shall have been obtained, are [illegible]. At a meeting of landowners [illegible] held at Florence, an agreement [illegible] signed to pay the canal company [illegible] an acre, in fifteen an[illegible] payments, beginning January 1, [illegible] with the expectation that a diver[illegible] dam and adequate canal system [illegible] ready a year from now. The [illegible] are to be held in escrow [illegible] the canal company shall have [illegible] capability for carrying out its [illegible]. Not more than 100,000 acres [illegible] accepted, as the limit of safe [illegible] on the river's flow. P. E. [illegible], an Agricultural Department en[illegible], was present at the meeting. [illegible] have a share in the work, if [illegible] Department will clear the [illegible] to the canyon.

DROUGHT IN MESA.

[illegible] difference of opinion between the [illegible] of Mesa and the financial [illegible] of the Reclamation Service has [illegible] a drought in the town of Mesa. [illegible] and trees were getting into [illegible] plight, the water has been turned [illegible] for a season, while the misun[illegible] concerning assessments is [illegible].

[illegible] it has been appreciated that [illegible] of Arizona is a tangible [illegible] of the country, of especial value [illegible] it has never been known [illegible] number of dollars per acre at [illegible] the sunshine could be valued. [illegible] has just been taken up by [illegible] H. Kimball of the meter[illegible] service at Washington. A [illegible] of two will be established in [illegible] for estimation of solar heat [illegible].

[illegible] payment must be made at [illegible] land office before Nov[illegible] 1, for all lots purchased at the [illegible] auction at Parker last May. [illegible] half the purchase price was [illegible] in most cases.

[illegible] are being made for the [illegible] of about 7000 acres of sugar [illegible] for the Glendale factory. The [illegible] season this year was cut short [illegible] ravages of beet blight, which [illegible] ever attacks the same com[illegible] in succeeding years. In order [illegible] a full acreage, the price of [illegible] been raised 25 cents a ton, to [illegible].

[illegible] weeks of waiting, members of [illegible] Melon Growers' Association [illegible] received their checks for the [illegible] crop, the last of which was [illegible] Chicago in July. The season [illegible] fairly successful one and a large [illegible] will be planted the coming [illegible] to be marketed in different [illegible].

[illegible] people of Mesa expect to secure [illegible] especial benefit through [illegible]. Already they have started [illegible] for the establishment in [illegible] of the State Agricultural [illegible]. The Morrill Agricultural Col[illegible] and agricultural experiment [illegible] now both go to the Uni[illegible] of Tucson.

ASSIGNS PASTORS.

[illegible] annual mission conference of the [illegible] Episcopal Church, held at [illegible], has made the following as[illegible] of pastors: Phoenix, R. S. [illegible]; Tucson, L. W. Wheatley; Pres[illegible], C. W. Deming; Bisbee, E. G. [illegible]; Globe, J. M. Barnhart; Doug[illegible] E. Wright; Flagstaff, C. P. [illegible]; Jerome, O. M. EDITOR FORSAKES THEORIES.

An odd sort of suit, which indicates that even Socialists sometimes have ideas of personal enrichment, has just been filed in the local District Court. The complainant is Gaylord Wilshire, publisher of a magazine. Wilshire sues over a matter of $200,000, in the shape of notes, which appear to have been exchanged between himself and two corporations, the Aremu Rubber and Gold Company and the Aremu Mining Company. The matter was brought to Arizona for adjudication because both corporations had been organized under the peculiarly elastic incorporation laws of Arizona.

Governor Sloan has denied a requisition from Santa Clara, Cal., for Burwell E. Brown, wanted on a charge of desertion and of failure to provide for his family. It was found that the defendant had been a resident of Arizona for six months prior to the date of the alleged crime.

Cerilio Cantau, a Yaqui Indian, has brought to the county authorities a remarkable tale of woe, together with six children, ranging from 11 to 3 years of age. The children had been left with him, while their mother, a Mexican woman, wife of Tom Hall, an American, departed in Cantau's buggy, in company with one Enrique Flores. The little ride they had promised to take continued for days and the couple last were seen beyond Roosevelt, heading for Globe. The father of the children is a miner, employed near Kelvin, but he, also, had abandoned the family. The Associated Charities has taken the children.

Harvey Wilson has been arrested in Phoenix for the remarkable crime of stealing purses from girls he invited to a dance.

F. G. Twitchell of Los Angeles, has started the final survey for the Phoenix-Glendale railroad, from the end of the Indian school line, with the expectation of having cars in operation as far as Orangewood by the end of the year. From Orangewood the road will be extended westward, past the sugar factory.

An addition costing $30,000 is to be built at once to St. Joseph's Hospital in Phoenix.

Adolph W. Lautz, formerly chief clerk in the Territorial Auditor's office, has been appointed by Judge Kent to be receiver of the Florence Bank.

There has been sent to the Los Angeles office of the Phoenix Board of Trade a fine set of moving picture films, for use in the lecture rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. The films carry views of the Roosevelt dam construction, of an ostrich farm with several thousand birds gathered, of date culture, beet raising and alfalfa farming.

Special round trip rates have been granted by the railroads between Los Angeles and Phoenix during the time of the Territorial Fair. The tickets will cost $20.40 and will be sold November 5 and 6, good until November 14.

TERMS OF ORDINANCE READ.

South Pasadena Trustees Pass Second Reading of Pacific Electric Railway Law.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 15.—The City Trustees last evening passed the second reading of an ordinance granting the Pacific Electric Railway a franchise to construct, maintain and operate cars on two additional tracks between Fremont and Garfield avenues, on Huntington drive, also granting the privilege of carrying freight after 10 o'clock p.m.

The Pacific Electric, in consideration of the granting of this franchise agrees to these conditions:

To pave and maintain street crossings the full width of the street; to construct and maintain proper culverts and drains; to construct cement landing-places, well lighted at night, at Maple, Ramona and Pine streets and La France, Bushnell and Electric avenues; to grant a 5-cent fare over the strip and to issue universal transfers within the city limits; to operate cars at intervals of not less than five minutes and trains of not more than three cars; to guarantee all passengers seats and to grant half-fare to school children; to institute the local flyer, a fast train from Oneonta Park to Los Angeles; to keep open and maintain a street crossing at Fletcher avenue; to pay into the city treasury 3 per cent. of the gross receipts of operating cars upon the strip and not to operate a steam engine or locomotive. The city reserves the right to build sewers or to lay gas or water pipes.

South Pasadena Democrats opened the campaign at a meeting held in Horlilly Hall last evening. The principal speaker was Lorin A. Handley, candidate for Congress. He was formerly professor of philosophy at Occidental College and head of the League of Justice in Los Angeles.

Considerable discussion was had at the last meeting of the Trustees on the matter of the storm drain assessment. The protests of E. H. Crippen, owning fourteen acres in the assessed district against the assessment of $800, the Huntington Land and Improvement Company and the Pacific Electric Land Company, were denied. Trustees maintained they were not responsible for this assessment, it being the act of the former board.

TO CALL BOND ELECTION.

Municipal Improvements Planned at Upland If Bonds Carry—Subscribing for Shoe Factory.

UPLAND, Oct. 15.—At the Chamber of Commerce meeting, Thursday, a resolution was passed recommending to the Board of Trustees that steps be taken for a bond issue to provide a City Hall, library, jail and fire house, and a site for a city park. In regard to a shoe factory, it was decided that the Finance and Manufactures Committee act in unison in obtaining subscriptions for stock.

At Thursday's meeting several thousand dollars were subscribed, and a considerable amount is said to have been obtained since that time.

Phil Stanton, Senator Thompson, Assemblyman Cogswell and Winfield Hogaboom, comprising a party of "boosters" for the proposed bond issue for the big fair at San Francisco, in 1915, were in Upland recently and report prospects bright for the success of this feature of the ballot for the November election.

A committee of local "boosters," headed by Chairman F. B. Chaffee, is doing splendid work in the distribution of 3000 exposition post cards.

W. B. Cavers has purchased of E. M. Dillman, ten acres of lemons, on West Eleventh street, for $25,000. The property is improved by a handsome country home, recently built.

The Woman's Literary Club of Upland, held its initial meeting of the new year, early this week. The ladies plan a continuance of the study of California, as begun last year. They will also take an active part in civic betterment.

RECOVERS AUTO.

E. S. Bradish, the Upland man, who was a victim of a thief at San Bernardino, losing a new Overland touring car, a watch and clothing, has recovered the auto and his watch. The machine was found eight miles south of Pasadena. The watch was recovered in a Los Angeles pawn shop.

ELECTION DATE.

Pomona Citizens Keyed Up to Desired Changes in New Freeholders' Charter—Club Notes.

POMONA, Oct. 15.—The City Trustees have set the date for the election for the fifteen freeholders, who will attend to the framing of the new city charter, for November 3. There will be two voting places, one east of Evans store on East Second street, one in Co-operative Hall. Much interest is manifested in the proposed new charter, the recent mass meeting at which the committee of investigation reported, stimulating interest. The law provides that a freeholder to the eligible of election, must have voted in the city of his residence for five years and also be a property owner at the present time.

RECEPTION TO MEMBERS.

An informal reception to the fifty new members just received into the Ebell Club of this city, was given yesterday afternoon at the new clubhouse on North Garey avenue. It was in the nature of a "house warming." The rooms were attractively decorated. Music was furnished by Mrs. Spence, Miss Kent and Miss Southwick. Readings were given by Mrs. Anne Crawford. Light refreshments were served by the ladies.

SOCIETY DINNER

The honorary members of the C. E. Society of Pilgrim Congregational Church gave a dinner to the members of the society at the church last evening. The decorations were elaborate. Miss Bess Adams was in the chair. Mrs. Jenny Tucker-Baker spoke on "Ye Olden Time;" Miss Maurine Elliott on the "Future of the Society;" Miss Ruby King on "Reform Work Among Boys;" Roy St. Clair on "Junior Work," and Arthur Gatter, president of Los Angeles county union "The General Work of the Society."

The City Trustees have awarded the contract to supply the city with not less than 6000 and not more than 20,000 barrels of crude oil, for use on the roads here to the Associated Oil Company. The price is $1 a barrel, the contract to extend for two years.

SITE IS SELECTED.

Million Dollar Beet Sugar Factory to Be Erected at Huntington Beach by Colorado Company.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 15.—At a public meeting held here last night President M. W. Wiley of the Holly Sugar Company of Colorado announced that the site has been selected for the building of a $1,000,000 beet sugar factory in this city. It will be located about a quarter of a mile northeast of the city limits, the Pacific Electric Railway having already agreed to build a line along its franchise on Thirteenth street, past the High School to the site. Among those present at the meeting were the city officials, the officers of the sugar company and the leading citizens of Huntington Beach.

A municipal sewer system to cost $30,000 is to be built, the sugar company paying half. Bonds for $15,000 will be voted at an election to be held as soon as the legal requirements are complied with. There is no doubt whatever of their being carried, as the sentiment here is practically unanimous in their favor.

President Wiley assured the people that his company will expend annually in this city and its immediate section $900,000, that the entire business of the company will be done here and all its employees will live here. The present banking facilities of the city will be enlarged.

PERRIS.

PERRIS, Oct. 15.—The trial of Ferdinand Clemens took place yesterday morning in Justice Vermason's court. Clemens was charged with illegal liquor selling. Dist.-Atty. Lyman Evans of Riverside, prosecuted, while Attorney W. H. Ellis represented the defendant. The case was dismissed.

It is reported that Marshal Brothers have purchased the town pumping plant from Hook Brothers. Perris has long felt the need of a better water system, and it is hoped that desired results will be obtained under the new management.

Charles Cowles has been appointed to gather the statistics and crop reports in the Fourth Supervisorial District south of Moreno.

The Women's Club held the first meeting of the season Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. W. Marshall. Two interesting papers were read, "A Better Perris," by Miss Margaret Irvin and "Beautifying Home Grounds," by Mrs. G. C. Conklin.

Four new pupils have recently entered the high school, bringing the total attendance up to 46. Several more are expected to enter the coming week.

TROPICO.

TROPICO, Oct. 14.—At a meeting held at Logan's hall last evening, an Anti-annexation League was organized with a membership of ninety-six voters of this vicinity. Frank H. Davis was chosen president; E. W. Richardson, first vice-president; Wesley H. Bullis, second vice-president; Clyde R. Carmack, third vice-president; Pete Gabaig, treasurer; S. R. Street, secretary. These represent some of the prominent business men and largest land and property owners of Tropico.

Rev. W. C. Botkin of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, who has returned from Fresno, where he attended the annual Methodist Conference, will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. Dan Campbell of Ard-Eevin, worthy matron of Glen Eyrie Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and Miss Cora Hickman of Palm Villa, past matron and past District Deputy Grand Matron, will leave for San Diego the first of the week where they will attend Grand Chapter which will be held at the U. S. Grant hotel. Mrs. Campbell and Miss Hickman will be absent a week.

Rupture Now Cured Without Operation

No loss of time from work or business. A safe, simple, inexpensive way which has saved thousands from a life of needless suffering

No longer any need for anyone to drag through life in the clutches of rupture. For now anyone—man, woman or child—can easily and quickly be freed from this affliction.

In times past, a surgical operation was the only known cure—and that has always been dangerous—results in permanent weakness or in death about as often as in recovery.

But now no one need remain ruptured because of dread of an operation. For an operation is no longer necessary. Science has at last come to your rescue with a safe, simple, inexpensive home cure.

This, Reader, is the wonder-working Cluthe Truss—a truss so remarkably beneficial that relief is immediate and cure begins at once.

You see this truss does something which no other truss or appliance in the world does—

It automatically gives a soothing, strengthening, healing massage treatment—a stimulating, life-restoring massage which cures by strengthening the weakened abdominal muscles or ruptured parts—(thus overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture)—just as exercise restores strength to a weak arm.

The Cluthe Truss has cured thousands—among them people over 50, 60 and 70 years old—who have been ruptured from 20 to 50 years—cured them even after everything else, including operation, has done no good whatever.

The support it gives is automatically regulated. This is how your rupture is held constantly in place until the cure is complete.

We gurantee that this truss will prevent all danger of protrusion—no matter how bad your condition. Wear the truss on trial—if your rupture ever comes out, the truss won't cost you a cent.

This truss can't shift or slip—it is held in position by suction. It is as comfortable as your clothing—and the only truss without a belt, leg straps or springs.

We have published free cloth-bound book of advice—the most helpful book ever written on rupture.

It sums up all we have learned about rupture in forty years of experience.

It shows (in pictures) rupture in all its stages—shows how rupture gradually grows worse if not held constantly in place.

It shows why belt-and-leg-strap and spring trusses usually fail to hold—and how, even if they do hold, it is folly to expect them to cure.

It explains how, unless the ruptured parts are strengthened (which can be done only by massage) real relief or cure is impossible.

It explains the dangers of operations.

It puts you on your guard against worthless trusses and treatments—against endangering your health—against throwing money away.

And it tells all about the Cluthe Truss—how little it costs—how we send it on guaranteed trial—how it won't cost you a single cent if it doesn't do you a world of good. And it tells how, by our simple system, we can fit you by mail, right in your own home, as perfectly as if you came to New York.

Book sent in plain, sealed envelope. Write for it today—don't put it off. When you read this book you will know how you can get immediate relief and quick cure without risking any more money.

Please use the coupon, or simply say in a letter or postal, "Send me the book," and address us mentioning our Box number as below.

BUY LOMITA FARM ACRES

U. S. Senator Burton of Ohio, who recently visited San Pedro was greatly impressed with the importance of the Harbor and predicted great commercial expansion for Los Angeles and vicinity. Others have said the same thing. This means a big advance in values for all land near San Pedro.

VISITING BANKERS SURPRISED AT OUR RESOURCES.

RESULT SURE TO HELP BRING LOANS THIS WAY.

ALMOST SHOCKED AT COUNTRY'S STABILITY.

Before the 2650 bankers who attensed the big convention at Los Angeles week before last had returned to their homes in every part of the United States the good results accruing to Los Angeles from the meeting of the great interests began to be realized. Perhaps the first definite fruits of the convention came in the form of an order from one of the big bond houses of New York for a thousand copies of the story of the growth of Los Angeles, as presented in pamphlet form by the Security Savings Bank.

This folder contained a brief history of the city's increase in territory and valuations from 1889 to 1910. It also outlined in a clear, factful way the history and condition of the Los Angeles Aqueduct and the Los Angeles harbor at San Pedro. It was for the statement about the latter great enterprises that the bonding house desired the circulars. This is only a straw, but it serves to illustrate the tremendous advertising values which Los Angeles will receive from having entertained the officials of the great banking houses of America.

"We entertained the bankers for the pleasure it gave them and us," said W. D. Longyear, cashier and secretary of the Security Savings Bank, "but it would be impossible for every man who has a dollar of interest in Southern California not to get practical benefits from the gathering here of so many important people. I do not think this value could possibly be estimated, nor do I think that its far reaching influence will be exhausted for many years. The big investors of the United States were powerfully represented by the more than 2600 men of high finance who were here, and, to have such men recognize the security of Los Angeles and Southern California as a field for investment, is matter of value beyond exaggeration.

"I think it may have been that some of the great captains of industry in the East had previously thought of Los Angeles as a sort of boom town of a new west. Some of them I am very sure thought that our greatest capital was the enterprise of a terrific energy inspired by faith in the dream of a great future. They thought we were a sort of air and paper city, willing to rush into things blindly out of mere hopefulness. When they came here they were almost shocked in the surprise they received from the stability of the country and its development. They found a city based on verities which the soundest investor in the world could not gainsay. They found that Los Angeles has never asked for a dollar from the east for which it could not offer many dollars in reliable assets. They found that our security is as good as gold.

"Not one but many of the most conservative men from the larger banking institutions represented at the convention said to me and to other Los Angeles banking men that the investments of both a public and private nature in Los Angeles are of a character which would entirely satisfy the most conservative investor in the East. They said that they were glad that they saw Los Angeles and Southern California that they may know the value of the claims of this section when bonds from this city are on the market, or when the interests of this section required capital for their development.

"Not a few of the visitors were frankly amazed at the possibilities, both of the Los Angeles harbor and the Aqueduct. One of them said, 'These great projects are of a magnitude which cannot be appreciated from mere reading. No description by word can do them justice. When a man has been on the ground and has observed the conditions for himself, he can understand what they hold of fortune for this section. Their development means a general prosperity for investors in all direcctions.

"Another banker who belongs to one of the very largest houses of New York, was as delighted as he was surprised with the size and beauty of the banking houses of Los Angeles. That we have as fine as any in the land was his frank appreciation. He felt that the houses here are superior to almost anything in Chicago or New York. That was saying great deal, for at least one of the banks which he had in mind represents interests valued at not less than $300,000,000.

"Not a few of those who were here had seen Los Angeles much less favorably a good many years ago. They had attended a similar convention at San Francisco in 1903. From San Francisco they had come to Los Angeles for a short stay. The growth of this city since that time was a source of surprise to them, for eastern cities seldom make the giant strides which Los Angeles has made in that period. The very fact that those men who must handle the great bulk of all the wealth of the United States were heere, to see what we have to offer and that they were more than satisfied with Los Angeles as a business proposition, is a cause for great congratulation and one which will make 1910 a great year in the history of this city.

"As I stated before, it was the delight of Los Angeles to entertain its guests quite regardless of pecuninary results. We invited them because we guests quite rgardless of pecuniary ure to do anything possible for their comfort. Nevertheless, we are frankly glad that so many men of importance came, and we are glad that they were pleased with us as they found us, and that they returned to their several home cities convinced that Los Angeles as an investment proposition is one of the best in the world. It was my pleasure to be with the party which went to inspect the harbor of San Pedro in Capt. Banning's private yacht and on that important trip I heard expressions of satisfaction which will mean a tide of influence and of money for this section."

NOVEL PLAY IS ON TODAY.

MOROSCO WILL PRESENT NEW DRAMA OF HIGH INTEREST.

"The Eternal Three," Work of Frederick Eldridge and Reed Heustis, Sounds Startlingly Lifelike Note of Domestic Discord and Ever-Present Man-Woman Problem.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON

It has been my pleasure to read "The Eternal Three," a new drama by Frederick Eldridge and Reed Heustis, newspaper men of this city, which will receive its initial presentation at the Burbank theater this afternoon.

As to the faults which this play will manifest in the glare of the footlights, no man can accurately foretell, but in the reading it is a drama of remarkable power and verity. I believe that it will succeed.

In broad general outline the theme of "The Eternal Three," deals with the transcendent love of an unsophisticated girl which takes on all the fervor and abandon of an obsession.

The heroine is a girl with ideals, and even in the face of disillusionment she clings to her ideals as only a woman can who has experienced for the first time the full tide of romance and sentiment.

Her awakening, which, of course, is the high spot in the play, is brought about under intensely dramatic circumstances by a failure of honor on the part of her Demi-God. She withstands from him every variety of deceit, but in the end her disillusionment is effected by a lapse on the part of the man which assails the purity of her own love and is therefore unforgivable.

The whole intent of the play is to preach the unselfishment of love. Love is a vastly abused word, and it is made to do service for passion, infatuation, and a variety of other emotions between the sexes; but the authors of "The Eternal Three" have endeavored to show that true love negatives self, and the heroine is furnished with just this depth of sentiment.

The title, of course, is a variation of the old phrase of "The Eternal Triangle," "Two maids and a man," or, under other circumstances, "Two Men and a Maid." In this case the second maid is a woman so self-centered and selfish that she throws out in startling contrast perpetual sacrifices of the heroine.

It is the unshakable devotion of the heroine that furnishes the philosophy of the play. In all ages poets and philosophers have Deified unselfishness that goes with true love, and if we accept their standard there is very little true love in the world. Women and men alike fight for their interests even in the face of their affections, and even while these affections are strong and persistent, it was to paint a character more nearly realizing the song of the poets that Agnes Deplane, the heroine, was created.

No obstacle, material or sentimental, is permitted by her to interfere with the expression of her affection. She gives away all that a woman holds dear; and gives and gives until she is brought to realize the futility. Here is the climax of the play.

The gentle, trustful, submissive woman becomes tigerlike, realizing that she has laid waste her life unworthily.

Mr. Morosco expects great things of this play, and has strengthened and augmented the Burbank Stock Company with the idea of a finished production.

Miss Rambeau probably has one of the most appealing roles that she has ever played.

Welcome Home.

Hundreds of people will welcome home today that perennial beam of kindly histrionic sunshine, Ferris Hartman, who, notwithstanding devious summer wanderings, always wings his way southward in the fall, sure of a fraternal reception and continued public favor for a season of many months.

By virtue of his long service Mr. Hartman is one of the best known musical comedians in the United States, and is easily in the first position west of the Mississippi river.

The best thing about Hartman is his stability. Audiences which patronize his unvaryingly clean entertainments do not see a production of exotic brilliance one week and a dull semi-fiasco the next, but are certain of a regular, even, well-managed and neatly staged series of shows.

Mr. Hartman had last year the prettiest chorus which has ever been seen in this city. He has practically the same chorus this year.

Jovial "Uncle Joe" Fogarty, clever young Walter De Leon, piquant Muggins Davies, and our great little Myrtle Dingwall, whom I might denominate "the prima-donna soubrette," are still with Hartman.

Jack Raynes, one of the best orchestral captains ever seen here in musical comedy, still wields the baton.

Mr. Hartman and Manager Kavanaugh will put on at the Grand Operahouse a series of musical pieces new to stock.

Their opening bill, "Mary's Lamb," is new and will be followed by "King Dodo," also new to the stock fields. Other new pieces are "The Girl Behind the Counter," "The Beauty Spot," "Fantana," and "The Spring Chicken."

Big Week.

We are entering upon one of the "livest" theatrical weeks of the year. Seldom has there been such a combination of "especial interest" in the various openings.

We have the commencement of Ferris Hartman's winter season, the premiere of the Heustis-Eldridge drama, and the all-star revival of "The Prince of Pilsen."

Entirely apart from these events, and of equal local moment, is the debut of the new leading actress of the Belasco Theater, Miss Eleanor Gordon.

Gustave Hinrichs.

Gustave Hinrichs, director of the Savage orchestra with "The Prince of Pilsen" company, is as illustrious a personality as any luminary in the "all-star" cast, which, by the way, is so named from the simple care which has been taken in aggregating a line of capable artists for all the roles, rather than from the lustre of the names.

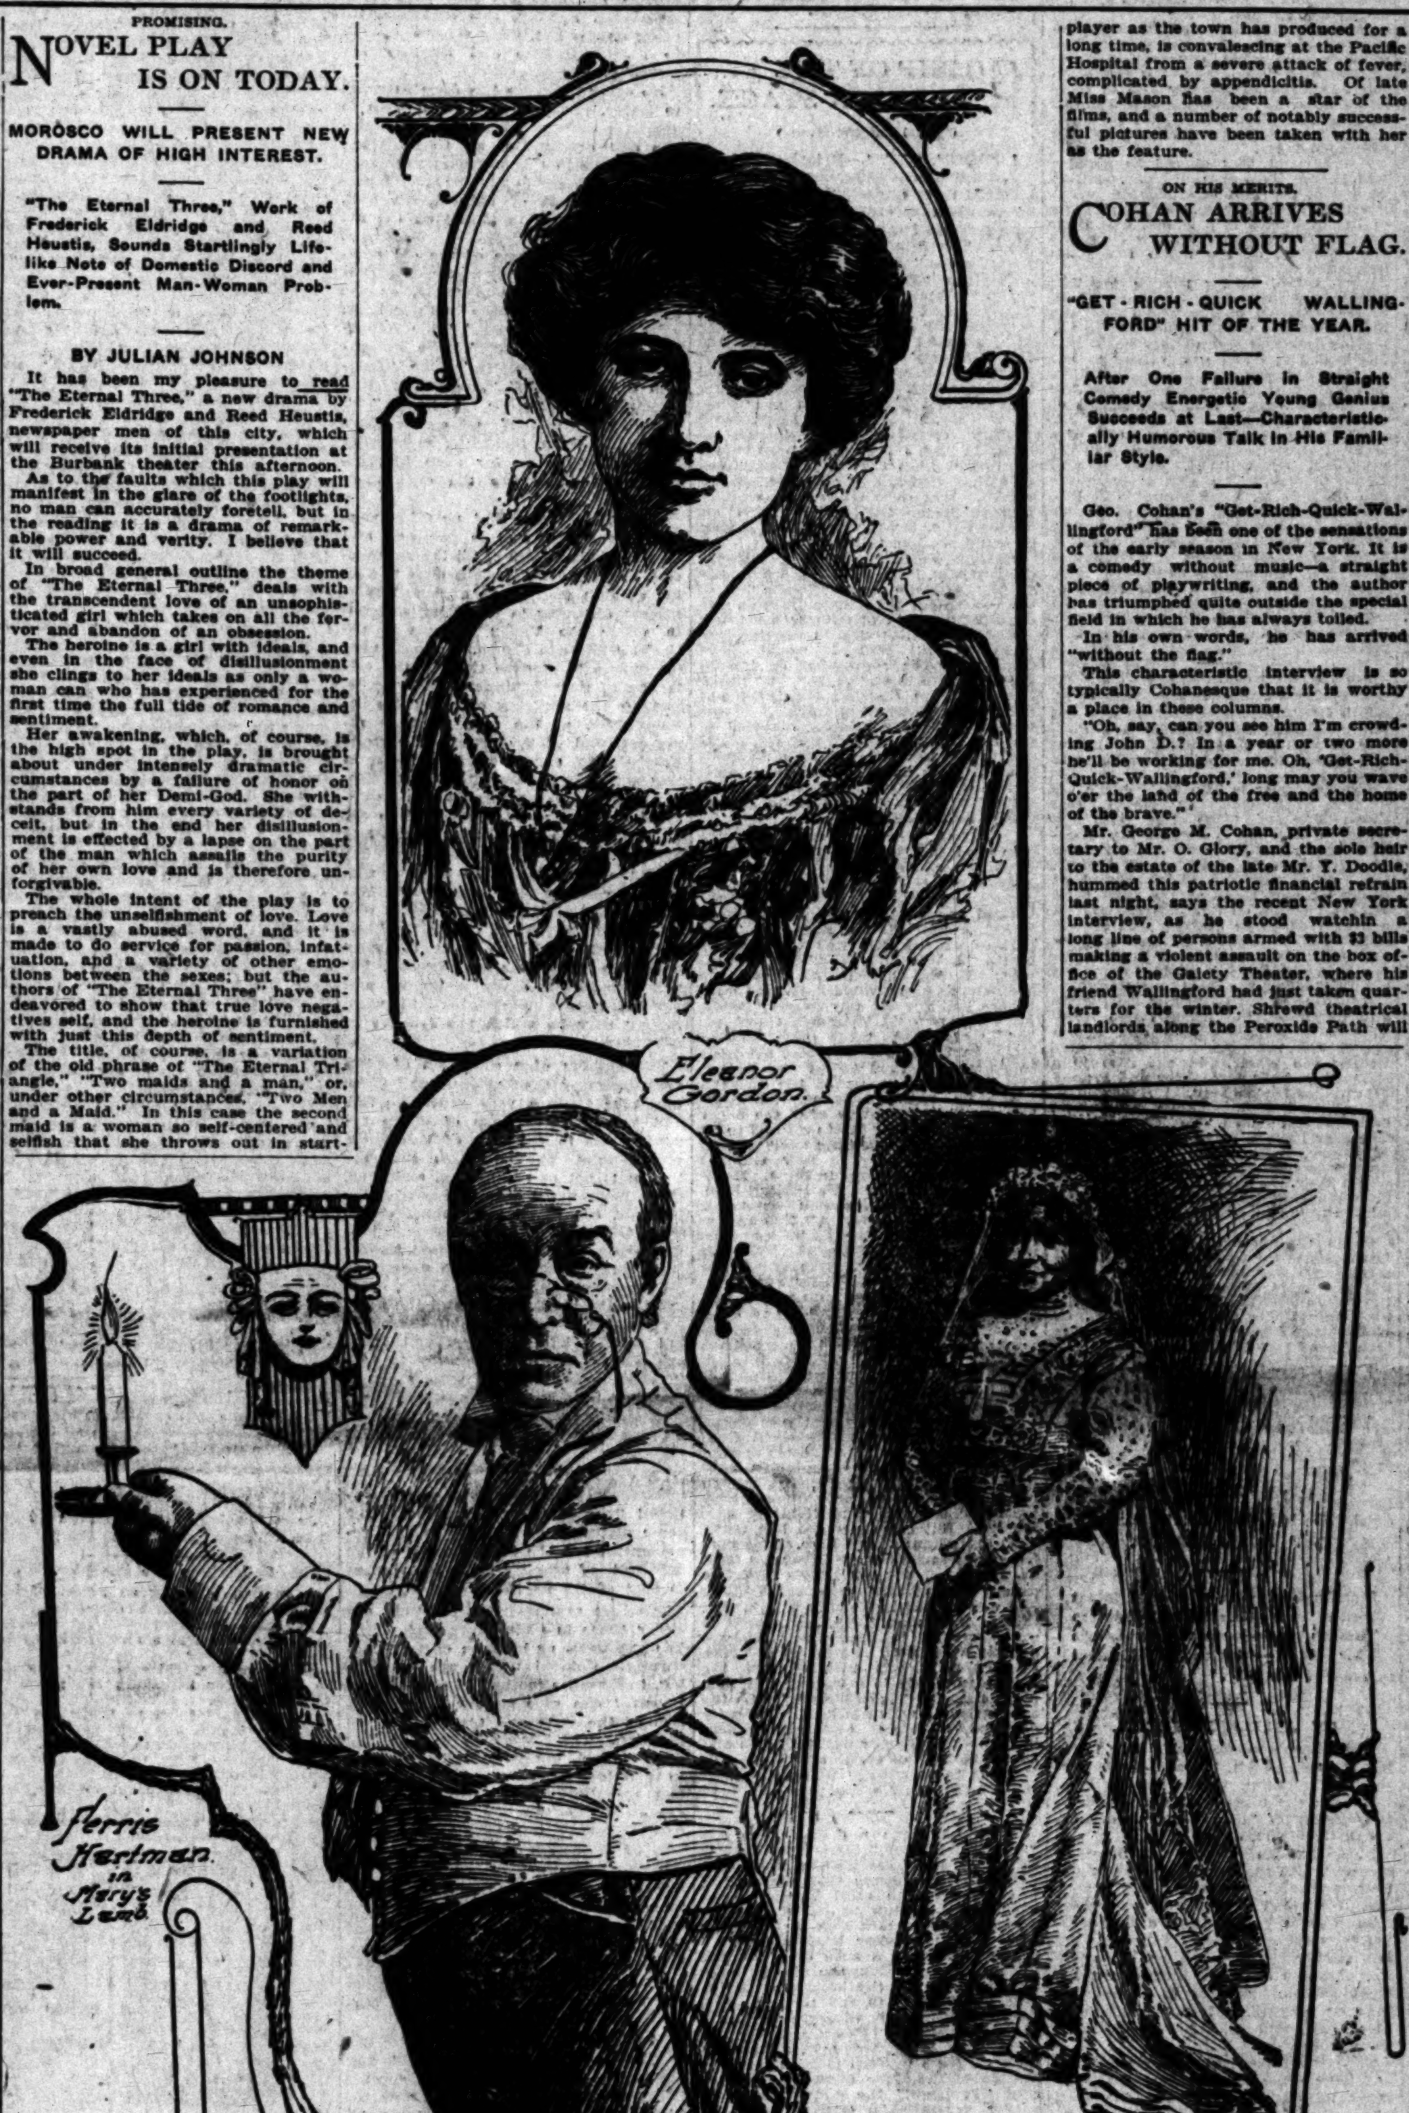
As a matter of fact, the stars are three: Jess Dandy, nationally famous in the part of the Cincinnati brewer; Frances Cameron, one of the finest of all Sonias in "The Merry Widow," and Hinrichs, at the desk.

Hinrichs has been director of innumerable oratorio societies and symphony organizations of prominence, the director of his own grand opera company, director of grand opera at the old Tivoli, in 'Frisco; for three seasons director at the Metropolitan Operahouse, and for seven years director of musical instruction at Columbia University.

Hinrichs also first put on general tour through the country "Cavalleria Rusticana," "L'Amico Fritz," "Pagliacci" and "Manon Lescaut," and artists under his sway have been Minnie Hauck, Emma Nevada, Calve, Aino Ackte, Sembrich, Materna, Lehmann, Edith Walker, Theodore Wachtel, Carl Formes, Edouard de Reszke, Plancon, Fischer, Campanari and others.

Edna Mason.

Edna Mason, who is as talented a player as the town has produced for a long time, is convalescing at the Pacific Hospital from a severe attack of fever, complicated by appendicitis. Of late Miss Mason has been a star of the films, and a number of notably successful pictures have been taken with her as the feature.



In the Center of the Stage.

Ferris Hartman, genial comedian, who will return today to begin his regular winter season in Los Angeles; Marjorie Rambeau, who is to create the principal part in Frederick Eldridge's drama, "The Eternal Three," to be given its first performance at the Burbank this afternoon, and Eleanor Gordon, new leading actress of the Belasco theater company.

ON HIS MERITS.

COHAN ARRIVES WITHOUT FLAG.

"GET-RICH-QUICK WALLINGFORD" HIT OF THE YEAR.

After One Failure in Straight Comedy Energetic Young Genius Succeeds at Last—Characteristically Humorous Talk in His Familiar Style.

Geo. Cohan's "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford" has been one of the sensations of the early season in New York. It is a comedy without music—a straight piece of playwriting, and the author has triumphed quite outside the special field in which he has always toiled.

In his own words, he has arrived "without the flag."

This characteristic interview is so typically Cohanesque that it is worthy a place in these columns.

"Oh, say, can you see him I'm crowding John D.? In a year or two more he'll be working for me. Oh, 'Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford,' long may you wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Mr. George M. Cohan, private secretary to Mr. O. Glory, and the sole heir to the estate of the late Mr. Y. Doodle, hummed this patriotic financial refrain last night, says the recent New York interview, as he stood watchin a long line of persons armed with $3 bills making a violent assault on the box office of the Gaiety Theater, where his friend Wallingford had just taken quarters for the winter. Shrewd theatrical landlords along the Peroxide Path will be greatly surprised if Wallingford doesn't renew his lease of the premises at the end of the season.

"That's a sentimental little ditty," was suggested.

"Anything about coin has the true ring to it," he replied. "Say, isn't it nice of all these people to come to my shop for their laughs?"

"Why don't you establish a ground rule?"

"Wouldn't do at all here. Under a ground rule a hit in the crowd entitles you to but two bags. And we expect to clean up with this hit. Baseball stuff! Here, here, stop your shoving back there and let that man get his money out of his pocket. Yes, sir. This is Mr. Wallingford's address. I'm sure he's in. He'll be at home every night this year. Step up to the window and that gentleman will give you letter of introduction to him. Don't mention it."

"You seem to take an interest in your customers."

"That's the only way to keep their trade. And then, again, I hate to discourage a $2 bill that's looking for work. Oh, every little thing is all right."

"MEN AND WOMEN LIKE TO LAUGH."

"I'm surprised at how quickly the public mingled with it, but I never had any doubt that it would be well received. You know it is a dramatization of George Randolph Chester's 'Wallingford' stories. The minute I read them I saw their stage possibilities.

"I admit that the principles of the breezy promoter are a bit warped, but an audience isn't concerned about such things. Men and women like to laugh, and when you can make them laugh without blushing you've done your part of the work."

"The critics are saying some nice things about you now."

"That's because they ran out of the other kind," laughed the actor. "But I guess I fooled them this trip. They used to say that the American flag was all that stood between me and the bread line. Now I think I have demonstrated that I can write straight comedy without dipping my pen in the red, white and blue stuff. Some of them were a bit disappointed when I failed to wave the flag."

"Isn't this your second attempt at writing comedy without music?"

"You fellows never forget, do you? 'Popularity' was the first. It was tried and found guilty. Just as the moving van backed in to take it away I decided to convert it into a musical comedy. I sprayed it with fifteen or twenty musical numbers, and in a few rockets, changed the title to 'The Man Who Owns Broadway,' and now the piece is more than paying its board. Once again Old Glory saved me from a knockout."

"It's a grand old flag."

"So I observed some time back."

"And now you have decided to give it a rest?"

"Not much. It's the Cohan mascot and while Mrs. Cohan's little boy George has a fountain pen it will always have steady employment. Why, I'd be worse than a traitor if I were to desert it now. So far as I'm concerned, it's the Stars and Stripes forever."

"Is musical comedy on the wane?"

"A certain kind is. I mean the kind that carries a plot. A few years ago it looked as if the public wanted a little story with its musical entertainment, but the success of some of the current shows indicates that they want just as little plot as possible. It's pieces like 'The Summer Widowers' and 'The Follies of 1910' that they flock to.

"When a man starts out to see a musical comedy he doesn't want to be bothered keeping track of a plot. He wants to feel that he can drop in any hour and still be on time. That's the secret of it."

"What about the story that you write most of your words and music on your cuffs?"

"I did at one time, but the laundry bills were piling up faster than the royalties and I had to quit."

"Do you ever intend to retire?"

"Not while the flag holds out."

"You may step down, Mr. Cohan."

"If the Court pleases I would respectfully request that I be permitted to make a statement."

"Help yourself."

"It's just this," said the comedian, with great deliberation. "My mother thanks you, my father thinks you, my sister thanks you, and her brother thanks you."

THE WEEK.

HARTMAN, HIS HOME-COMING.

BLACKWOOD WILL INTRODUCE NEW LEADING ACTRESS.

Sumptuous Revival of "The Prince of Pilsen" Promised for Hamburger's Majestic Theater—Bright Musical Review at Auditorium—"The Eternal Three"—Vaudeville Bills.

One of the most interesting events of today's theatricals is the opening this afternoon of Ferris Hartman, Los Angeles' semi-official funmaker, and his company, in Richard Carle's musical comedy, "Mary's Lamb."

As Leander LaLmb this play shows Mr. Hartman in a role that allows wide scope for his style of humor. It is the story of a hen-pecked husband who "once was a man, but is now only an echo," and who, after three acts of almost continuous fun finally succeeds in becoming master of his own houre. Throughout the play the comedy situations pounce one upon the other while it is nicely sprinkled with rippling music and fifteen catchy whistleable songs that will display the Hartman "Blue Ribbon" beauty chorus to excellent advantage.

Prominent in Mr. Hartman's support will be found such favorites as Josie Hart in the role of Sylvia Montrose; Myrtle Dingwall whose brilliant soprano voice proved a sensation during the recent Hartman engagement in San Francisco and who will have the part of Lamb's niece, Phyllis Atwood; Walter De Leon as Allen Townsend the artist; demure little "Muggins" Davies as Mercedes; Joseph Fogarty as Bill Blackwell from Idaho, and Marta Golden as Mrs. Mary Miranda Lamb.

The Grand Opera House has been entirely redecorated both inside and out and now presents a brand new appearance. The new seats are upholstered in a beautiful shade of heavy maroon velvet and there are new carpets and beautiful draperies throughout.

Eleanor Gordon, the new leading woman of the Belasco Theatre Company, will make her first appearance with Lewis S. Stone and the others of the organization Monday night. The play selected for Miss Gordon's initial appearance is J. Hartley Manners' "Zira."

The play has to do with Hester Trent, a nurse with the British Army during the Boer War. She is a social outcast, but is a young girl with honest and sincere impressions. She seeks to redeem herself and hopes against hope to regain her footing and is just on the point of succeeding when a young woman appears at the camp on her way to England to visit the family of her father, who has been killed. This girl has been born in South Africa and is not known at the home she seeks. The girl is apparently killed by a bursting shell and Hester sees the opportunity that she so greatly covets, takes the girl's papers and passports and uses the means necessary to substitute herself for the injured girl. Hester goes to England, where her deception succeeds admirably. She is established in her new life and is known as Zira. She gains the domestic affection and is loved by the son of the house. The rightful claimant to all this comfort and happiness turns up suddenly, having recovered from her wound. Of course, at the end of the play everything turns out very much after the fashion that the average theatre goer would have it, with Zira in the arms of her lover, while the other woman succeeds to her lawful rights. The meeting of the two women in the third act is one of the most powerful dramatic situations that has ever been devised and as it is to be played by Miss Gordon and Miss Farrington it is expected to prove one of the strongest pieces of emotional acting that the Belasco stage has ever known.

The entire Belasco company will be concerned in the performance and the premier Monday night promises to be one of the most important events in the history of the Belasco Theatre. Persons who have been privileged to watch rehearsals of Zira are enthusiastic over Miss Gordon's acting. She is at once a beautiful young woman with an immense amount of vitality and unquestioned talents as an emotional actress as well as a portrayor of comedy.

In the production of Zira, Lewis S. Stone will have the important role of Capt. Arnold Sylvester, the same part that he played when "Zira" was given at the Belasco Theatre three years ago with Lillian Albertson in the role that will be played Monday night by Eleanor Gordon, on which occasion the play was presented for two weeks to a series of crowded houses.

Local theater-goers will be delighted to welcome the popular musical comedy, "The Prince of Pilsen," which comes with an all-star cast to Hamburger's Majestic Theater for eight nights, beginning this evening. This charming musical entertainment provided in joint authorship by Gustav Luders and Frank Pixley, is in the eighth season of presentation, and its grasp on the favor and affection of amusement lovers is made evident by the fact that its return engagements, no matter whether second, third, or seventh, increased interest and enthusiasm, and result in constantly growing receipts. "The Prince of Pilsen" has proved its worth and standing not only in this country but also in England, where a five months' engagement was played in London, and tours of the provinces are yet being made. The company that will present this big musical success here is the only one playing the piece in this country, and its members have been chosen by Manager Savage with the single idea of providing the best and most complete performance yet given of this favorite play. Jess Dandy, a comedian of distinctly individual methods, will be seen as Hans Wagner, the German brewer, and it is the concensus of critical opinion that his impersonation is a masterpiece of comedy work. Frances Cameron, dashing and piquant, is the coquettish widow of the cast; Miss Cameron played this role in London and scored an emphatic hit there—one so sincere and convincing that Manager Savage engaged her especially for this American tour. Edward Mora, handsome and imposing in figure and an excellent singer, has the role of the real Prince; and Ivor Anderson is clever as a young naval lieutenant. Walter L. Catlett has the part of Lord Shrimpton, and Robert O'Connor will be seen as the lively Francois; Miss Olive North as the bewitching Edith, Wallace Beery as Sergt. Brie, dainty Vera Stanley, little Lillian Lawson, a terpsichorean marvel, and others make up an attractive array of principals. The chorus contingent provides a bevy of beauties in femininity, and an exceptionally sturdy and manly-looking lot of young men whose voices give a distinct charm to the "Stein Song" and "Pictures in the Smoke." The scenic and costume equipment is the best style known to the Henry W. Savage workroom.

The attraction this week at the Auditorium, opening Monday evening, will be "Morning, Noon and Night." This is its first appearance at popular prices and the same cast still remain with the show as of the past two seasons. Miss Hilda Carle is the leading lady. Miss Ethel Hall plays the soubrette part, and is a young and vivacious bit of femininity, who dances untiringly throughout the entertainment.

The comedy is looked out for by Sid Braham, Charles Boyd, Fred DeForrest, Charles Falk and Matt Taylor. An act that has created quite a bit of comment is called "The Rehearsal" and is a novelty. The audience is shown a rehearsal as it really takes place, the work of the actor when there is no audience around to encourage him, and none of the lights or settings to make it look as though it was something other than the hard work that the stage manager insists that he should do. The different little troubles, jollyings and petty jealousies are faithfully shown. Throughout there is a vein of comedy.

"The military Maids," an extra attraction, said to be one of the latest girl acts in the business. Special advance stress is laid on the scenic effects.

Of all the new plays which have been given their first productions in Los Angeles this year, there is none which has aroused keener anticipation than "The Eternal Three," which will receive its premiere this afternoon at the Burbank theater. Manager Morosco has declared his absolute faith in its success, and the members of the Burbank company have rehearsed it with great enthusiasm.

The theme of the piece is entirely new and modern, but it possesses one distinct feature distinctly different from most of the stronger plays of recent years. There can be no possibility of anyone being offended by its propaganda, for it does not attempt to prove anything at all, and no person of the most fastidious taste or orthodox beliefs could find anything objectionable about it. It is a clean, strong, wholesome drama of common people in uncommon situations.

Howard Scott will make his first appearance with the Burbank company in the play, and Miss Louise Royce has been specially engaged for an important role. David M. Hartford, David Landau, Peter Lang, H. S. Duffield, Ethel von Waldron, Florence Oberle and Cleo Madison all will be seen in excellent characterizations. The entire production is promised to be one of the most complete in every respect ever staged at the Burbank.

The near approach of Christmas, and the spirit engendered by it, is excuse enough in itself, did any other lack, for the presentation at this time at the Orpheum of a Christmas play.

"Dinkelspiel's Christmas" was written by humorist George V. Hobart, for a Lambs club gambol, an affair among Thespians in New York beside which there is nothing to stand in excellence. Its success in this critical assembly led to its instant appropriation for the Orpheum circuit. It tells the quaint story of an old German couple who await at Christmastime the return of son Louey, who is, in their minds, destined to wed Lena. Louey comes, but with him is his chorus girl wife, and meanwhile, Lena has looked with fond heart upon the French chef of a 40c table d'hote. The hearts of fader and mutter are almost broken, till they see the bouncing youngster, their Louey grandson, when all is reconciled, and Christmas is duly celebrated in full and fine fashion. The quaint humor of the German family is always closely akin to pathos, and both alternate in swift and decisive style throughout.

Waterbury Bros. & Tenny are perhaps the best known musical trio in vaudeville. Recently they have been important features of the big eastern minstrel shows, but their appearance here will afford them an opportunity of getting off the latest in the line of black face fun.

Harry Linton and Anita Laurence are among the most delightful of vaudeville entertainers. They have speed, daintiness and cleverness. Their present offering is called "The Piano Store" a little story with songs. Mr. Linton is a clever vocalist and Miss Laurence a winsome subrette.

Lane & O'Donnell are a pair of nimble tumblers who do a stunt they call "Louping the Loup."

Another week of "High Life in Jail" is none too much, for this satire has made a big hit. Others remaining are Rameses, the Four Rianos, and Covington & Wilbur, in their protean play "The Parsonage."

James McCormack and Eleanor Irving; Mlle. Olive and the Free Setters Four are the three features of the new bill of six acts which opens at Sullivan and Considine's Los Angeles theatre with the usual matinee tomorrow. This new bill has a most attractive and inviting appearance.

James McCormack and Eleanor Irving are a team of clever singers and dancers who offer a new laugh-producer called "Flirtology." It is a singing and dancing novelty full of snap and ginger. Mr. McCormack is a clever singing comedian, while Miss Irving is a bright comedienne and the possessor of a good voice.

Another act that should be popular will be the Free Setters Four, said to be one of the best quartettes now appearing in vaudeville. Each member of the quartette is a soloist and their offering is declared far away from the beaten track of the usual vaudeville quartette.

Mlle. Olive, dainty French juggling artiste, returns after an absence of several seasons, during which time she has toured the world, appearing in the leading theaters and variety halls. She has added many new novelties to her offering and presents a series of difficult feats with dexterity and grace, her gowns are alleged rare productions of the modiste's art.

"The Singing Lesson" is the title of a musical divertissement which will be presented by Will H. Maxwell and Daisy Dudley. This skit is from the pen of Will M. Cressy and is full of amusing situations. A duo of dainty artists are the Misses Bockman and Gross, who will offer a series of character song and dances, and Bell and Richards, "melodious novelists," have an offering covering a wide range of instrumental proficiency.

Exclusive of these six new acts will be two new films of amusing motion pictures.

For the week commencing with Monday matinee Pantages new theatre on South Broadway, will offer an enticing bill possessing both variety and novelty as well as featuring a number of acts known in vaudeville from coast to coast.

The headliner is Tim McMahon's big "Southern Review" in which Bert Swor, late of "The Red Mill" is featured. This act is another big blackface affair, and promises to be no less of a hit than the Six Musical Spillers, the colored sextette which scored so decidedly last week at the cosy little vaudeville villa on South Broadway. It can be said to be nothing less than a mixture of minstrelsy, musical comedy, and monologue and amid picturesque southern settings has made a name for itself all along the Pantages circuit.

Another big act is that of McQuarrie and Company, in "Alias Trixie Kix." This is a college sketch and has a rather rah rahesque atmosphere pervading the whole. In the cast is a clever female impersonator and around him hinges the comedy.

Mints and Palmer have a musical flirtation act called "The Other Half." The pair have a classy new repertoire of songs, with their attractiveness greatly enhanced by the manner in which they are sung. Both of the team have pleasing voices, and a few dance steps thrown in add to the general effect.

Piquo, the acrobatic clown, comes to Los Angeles for the first time. He has some great feats of strength and skill, but gets most of his applause through the medium of his absurd antics while pe rferming his tricks. Swinney and Holmes have a novel and entertaining bit of blackface business.

The Pantagescope completes the bill.

PLEASING.

AREND COULD "COME BACK."

AND HE HAS, WITH HIS PLAYERS AT THE BELASCO.

Pleasing Triumph of Man Against Whom Fate Seemed to Conspire This Summer—Impressario Levy's New Bill — Incidental Musical News of the City.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

The season's music hasn't been fairly inaugurated as yet, but one of the particularly pleasing things, to my idea, has been the immediate and substantial success of "Billy" Arend's orchestra at the Belasco theatre.

Arend had an extremely unfortunate summer. He took the dictorate of the Catalina band, one might say, under fire. He began to lead with a hundred eyes watching him, and a hundred hands anxious to applaud—not his fine moments—his mistakes. Then he was stricken down by illness, and his band practically went to pieces. It kept on playing, but it was a miserable band, and the Arend knockers shouted in glee.

Notwithstanding, at the resignation of Victor Schertzinger manager Blackwood immediately sent for the man whom foes accounted a dismal failure, and gave him orders to bring in his own orchestra.

The orchestra came, played cautiously for the first week, and at the presentation of "Fifty Miles From Boston" swept triumphantly into its own. Arend and his men play as one man might play—with enthusiasm, temperament and technique judiciously welded into a delightful art product.

Classics, popularities and the latest innovations are splendidly given as interludes to the Belasco theatre programme.

A theatre orchestra which has few equals in the country is "Billy" Arend's answer to those who declare he had fallen down for good.

At the regular cafe hours, less two men, he uses this orchestra at the Van Nuys, and has afforded the hotel patrons a great deal of aesthetic pleasure in the past month or two.

That the Levy Cafe Chantant is constantly improving and pleasing the patrons more and more from week to week, is best demonstrated by the increasing patronage and hearty welcome that is accorded the singers every evening. For the coming week, the bill changing on Monday afternoon at the tea hour, Mme. Lillie Lillian, Fern Melrose, Helen Ware, and Bruce Bailey will present a new series of songs, while the newcomers will be a duo of dancers from the American Roof Garden, New York City, Mlle. Beatrice and Herr Seilig.

Mme. Lillian has some new German songs and with her charming personality and well trained voice her continued success seems assured. The Kammermeyer Orchestra have now arranged its winter series of programmes and will offer some novelties taken from the late comic opera successes.

Miss Marguerite Cooper, who gave a concert with Miss Margaret Obera Miller at the Venice Institute of Musical Art Thursday evening, is a very talented young woman who promises to achieve considerable distinction as a dramatic soprano. The full resonance of her voice is surprising in such a young woman, as she does not appear to be even out of her 'teens, and the authoritative manner in which she sang the "Cavatina" from the first act of "Il Trovatore" was exceedingly satisfying. Among her other numbers the brilliant "Swiss Song" (Eckert) and "Solveig's Song," (Grieg) showed surprising maturity, both vocally and from an interpretative viewpoint.

Louis Woodson Curtis was the accompanist of the evening.

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

(Special Correspondence.)

LONDON, OCT. 1.—It looks as if the autumnal crop of failures had this week received three improtant additions, one of an absolute order, and two which may perhaps hang in the balance for a little. The first is Hall Caine's "The Bishop's Son" at the Garrick and the others are "Young Fernald," Evelyn Millard's latest production at the new Theatre; and "D'Arcy of the Guards" presented by George Alexander at the St. James on Tuesday night. Of the trio "D'Arcy" and "Young Fernald" are the work of American writers and their prospects in London consequently may interest playgoers on your side. Louis Evan Shipman's eighteenth century comedy is well-known in America and I need say no more regarding it than that it just contrived to scrape through at the first performance. Doubtless George Alexander's personal popularity will carry it for some eight or ten weeks. But even that I should not like to bet upon.

"Young Fernald" bears the signatures of Mrs. E. G. Sutherland and Miss B. M. Dix, who wrote "The Breed of the Treshams" for Martin Harvey, and deals with a sort of twentieth century Benedict and Beatrice. I can imagine what E. S. Willard would have achieved as the woman-hating, dry-as-dust book-worm and recluse in "Young Fernald;" but Norman McKinnel was made in a different mould. Nor was Evelyn Millard particularly suited to the role of the mannish and independent young heroine. Of "The Bishop's Son" there is realy nothing to be said. It is a dull, tedious and preachy melodrama which few will care to sit out except as a penance.

In my last letter I mentioned that W. A. Brady had started negotiations for Mayo's successful farce "Baby Mine." These had reached a tolerably advanced point, but at the last moment Brady himself broke them off. The theatre offered him was the Comedy where "A Woman's Way" is now running. It was hoped that Thompson Buchanan's piece would hold good until Pinero had got his new comedy ready, but up to now "A Woman's Way" has hardly realized these expectations. True, business is improving, although to no very marked extent and Arthur Chudleigh, the lessee of the theatre, which he runs in association with Charles Frohman, was only too eager to find a tenant for it. He refused to let it, however, for more than twelve weeks and insisted that the new occupant should begin operations in three. Moreover, he exacted that his leading lady, Alexandra Carlisle, should be taken over with the theatre. All this apparently did not suit Brady's book and he has now cried off. Nevertheless, I expect that a West End home will be found for "Baby Mine" before long.

I hear that George Tyler has completed arrangements for the presentation of C. M. S. McLellan and Ivan Caryll's musical play "Marriage a la Cart" in New York about the end of November. He has engaged Emmy Wehlen for the leading female character and Harry Connor as the principal comedian. Wehlen has received from him a contract which would make even American playgoers open their eyes were I to mention the conditions. In her own line she is really quite a brilliant vocalist and a particularly chic actress. But somehow she has never been quite appreciated here. This perhaps is as much George Edward's fault as her own, for at Daly's she has merely been given a secondary position. She will appear in New York as a star of the first magnitude, and there is every reason to hope that she will quickly make good on your side. Tyler, by the way, has just secured the American rights in a German military play named "Kassernlufte," on the adaptation of which McLellan is busily engaged at present. I believe the piece has done remarkably well in Berlin and as the story is of general application it is likely to do equally well away from the country of its origin.

There has been a drop in the advance booking for "Henry VIII" at His Majesty's and Tree who, a week ago, had every confidence that the revival would serve him until Easter seems rather inclined now to put the date at Christmas. His idea was to follow on with "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which is always a sure card for the festive season when the young folks are at home for the holidays and intent upon going to the theater. But further reflection has suggested that it is not good policy to give his public too much even of Shakespeare, and, today he is all for a modern play. Should he remain of the same mind he will present "Typhoon," the adaptation of a rather remarkable German play in which all the characters are Japanese. But as I have had occasion to hint more than once Tree is an inveterate opportunist and his plans are invariably likely to take new form at any moment. He also has in hand a fairy spectacular play, "The Forest of Wild Thyme," by a young but exceedingly clever poet, Alfred Noyes, for which the "colored" composer, Coleridge Taylor, has written music. This was to have been the Christmas novelty at His Majesty's, but owing to the success of "Henry VIII," Tree contemplates leasing another theater at which to produce it. The action takes place chiefly in fairyland and there are one or two scenes which have quite a religious flavor.

G. A. Redford, the licenser of plays, has once more been distinguishing himself by refusing to pass a piece written by Laurence Housman which Gertrude Kingston had intended to produce at her Little Theater. The alleged reason for the censoring of the piece is that among the original characters George the Fourth and Queen Caroline figure prominently. It is, indeed, with the episode of the queen's divorce by the monarch whom Thackeray castigated as "the first gentleman in England" that the action of the drama deals. Personally, I do not consider that the introduction upon the stage of historical personages so nearly allied to our own time is altogether justified. The dramatist may not have set forth with the intention of ridiculing them but if they are ridiculous in themselves, or if their resuscitation is likely to awaken painful memories, it seems kinder and more politic to let them rest quietly in their graves.

I mention this subject because it has a bearing upon the new play that Lewis Waller has lately acquired from William Devereux. When discussing the piece with me Waller expressed some apprehension as to what the censor's attitude towards it was likely to be. It appears that in that also an English monarch plays an imporant part, that monarch being George II, who "with his most gracious and religious favorite," Lady Yarmouth, proves a potent factor in rescuing the hero from the pitfall into which he has been led by the villain's machinations. The censor's attitude towards Housman's latest effort suggests that Waller has solid grounds for anticipating trouble in his own case.

ART AND ARTISTS.

By Antony Anderson.

Art Teachings of the Madonna.

This good old world of ours owes to the Roman Catholic church a debt of deep gratitude for the help she has always given to art and artists, to architects, painters and sculptors, inusing as she has, their very best work to build, decorate and beautify her places of worship.

No other influence has done so much to foster, preserve, and hand down to posterity the best work of the best artists and artisans of all time. What concerns us in this particular instance is that influence in nurturing and perfecting the art of painting—in fact, it might be said in glorifying the art of painting.

The favorite theme of the old masters, so encouraged by her, was naturally the Madonna and Child, or the depicting of some scene in their lives, such as "The Nativity," "The Adoration of the Shepherds," "The Presentation into the Temple," "The Adoration of the Magi," "The Flight into Egypt," "The Repose in Egypt," or "The Holy Family." Of course there are many other incidents, and many legends, drawn on for such illustrations, but these are the ones most often used.

Now, predicating that no other subject has had the same prestige, and that the best known of all the old masters, and of many modern ones too, as far as that goes, have exercised their utmost endeavor in executing pictures in which the Virgin Mary and the Christ Child are shown, it seems very reasonable to assume that by the collecting of reproductions of such works, and by the studying of the paintings themselves, of the subjects they represent, and of the artists who made them—being sure that the information gotten is as accurate as possible—is about as easy a way as can be devised to learn of painting, and to get an insight into the history of art and artists.

At the same time, the student who collects pictures pertaining to the Madonna and Child, and who studies well their subjects, will not only familiarize himself with the most beautiful story the world has ever known, but will happen on many a quaint and curious legend pertaining to what rightly may be called the folklore of Christianity.

The making of a collection of pictures depicting the Madonna and Child might be made a very expensive fad, and yet in these days of cheap reproductions in the way of half-tones, photographs, photogravures and the like, it is not necessarily so, and then, these modern methods of reproduction by light are much more exact copies than the most expensive engravings, wood-cuts or lithographs could be—for these prints reproduce with exactitude all the peculiarities of the artist, often even to the brush-marks and the flaws and cracks in the paintings—the original artist's idiosyncracies, and these are what one wants especially to note in studying pictures, with view to learning how to tell by whom they were done; these are often masked in copying by any of the old methods of reproduction.

Engravings do not show the brushmarks of the artist, but the conventional lines of the graving tool. The same picture may be ever so well represented, yet the individuality of the painter is of necesity made subservient to that of the engraver.

The best reproductions to study are either those in plain black and white, in sepia tints, or in some other monochrome. Colored prints are misleading, because no method of printing yet invented can give an exact reproduction of the tints and tones of an old painting. The blues may be blue, and the reds red, but it is an impossibility to reproduce exactly the correct shades and blendings. The colored pictures are often pleasing and pretty, but of necessity they fail to give an exact idea of the colors on the original canvas.

It is hoped that these few randon hints may be of some assistance to the student who desires to carry forward his study of art through this medium. He may rest assured that no more interesting line of study can be taken up, and worked up, than that of the Madonna and Child.

At least one man in Los Angeles has followed this plan for the past few years, and with such marked success and artistic profit that he is now regarded as an expert on pictures by the old masters. This connoisseur and collector is James D. S. Chalmers, whose collection of Madonnas numbers no less than two thousand half-tones, photographs, photogravures, woodcuts and etchings, some in color, but the most of them in black and white. Wherever and whenever Mr. Chalmers sees a half-tone or photograph of the Madonna and Child he makes it his own—and in this simple way has grown his beautiful and complete collection. What he has done any one may do with love and patience.

The eleventh annual exhibition of paintings and etchings by the instructors of the College of Fine Arts, Garvanza, opened on Thursday of last week, to continue for a month. The galleries are open to the public every afternoon.

Twenty-five of these interesting pictures are from the brush of William Lees Judson, president of the school. All are in oils, and most of them are landscapes and marines. Of late Mr. Judson has had some respite from the tasks of teaching, and this added relief and leisure has had a marked effect on his work as a painter. These later canvases show a decided gain on the artist's part in breadth of handling and simplicity of feeling. In color, too, there is a marked advance.

The artist has been sketching in Topanga Canon, in Catalina and at Laguna Beach, and these pictures are the result of his happy labors. "Catalina Gold" is one of the larger canvases—the tarnished gold being scattered over beautiful, rounded hills. Another large canvas is "Arroyo Seco," shimmering with light and color. In his handling of light, indeed, Mr. Judson has achieved a decided success, as in "Eucalypts," "Evening Glow," "Morning Sunshine," "Pebbly Beach."

"Evening Glow" is a strong study of the sea, simple and direct, with a fine sky. Vivid and alluring in color, simple in treatment, is "Lover's Cove," that graceful curve of the bay at Avalon. "Topanga Tarweed," Topanga Canon," "San Pedro Breakwater," are all done with simplicity and knowledge. "A Fringe of the Magic Isle," showing the blues and purples of the water and shore of Catalina, fairly sing with buoyant harmony.

Helma Heynsen-Jahn, recently made instructor of life classes, shows two of her characteristic portraits—the well known one of her mother, and a pastel of a charming child's head. These have been seen before in other exhibitions, as the artist had placed her other available canvases elsewhere when the exhibition was announced. However, they are strong and fine enough to repay frequent study, for Mrs. Heynsen-Jahn is a delineator of character.

Some of the water colors of Arley S. Tottenham, all done in opaque color, are good to look at, they are so assured and satisfying. "The Hills" is a veritable mosaic of many subtle shades of reddish-browns and greens. charming, too, is "Eucalypts," with its grays and greens and its sun-flecked roadway. "San Pedro Fish Cabins" has strength, with just a suggestion of that blackness in the shadows which is painfully pronounced in "A Mountain Cabin."

Whether one agrees or disagrees with Nell Danely Brooker in her methods of painting and etching in color, he must at all events admit she has the courage of her convictions, and that her color is rich and delectable, and her composition almost always excellent from the decorative standpoint—which, undoubtedly is a very important standpoint, for if painting isn't a decoration, what is it?

There are some subtle effects, however, which this artist, if she pursues her art with a reckless disgard of the cost of paint, will never master. I take it that she doesn't want to master them, but prefers to achieve, in her own way, what she considers of greater importance than delicate and evanescent effects. She has strength, audacity, a feeling for color and a great talent for decoration. All these qualities show in her paintings and etchings.

Yet it must be admitted that Mrs. Brooker's colored etching "Edendale," is dainty as well as poetic. The vigor of her work in the other pictures, the full diapason of color in such canvases as "San Pedro," "The Harbor," "Catalina", disarms and allures—and almost convinces. She can do delicately pretty things if she wants to—of that we feel assured. But she has decided that she doesn't want to. Her decision is to be respected, if not always approved—and some day, let us hope, she will strike the beautiful happy medium that her undoubted talent can command.

ART NOTES.

The Palette Club of the School of Art and Design, Westlake, during the coming year will use as subjects the compositions suggested to them by Frederick Melville DuMond in his lectures, the first of which was delivered on Thursday afternoon. This is the 23rd year of the Palette Club's existence. Edward Murphy has been made president for this year.

Anna McConnell Beckley, head of the reference department of the Los Angeles Public Library, will deliver a lecture on "Spanish Painters" at the Highland Park Ebell Club.

Eugene Torrey is sketching at Camp Atascadero, making studies of military life which he will exhibit on his return to Los Angeles.

Hanson Puthuff was married last week, and is now on his honeymoon. His wife is a decorative artist from the East.

Julia Bracken Wendt has returned from Chicago.

Some Notable Festivities Incident to Society During the Past Week

EVENTS IN SOCIETY.

COULD anything be more delightful than a debutante entertaining for a debutante. This week there are to be three such merry affairs. Miss Elizabeth Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Modini-Wood, of No. 20 St. James Park, who made her formal bow to the world of fashion last season at a smart reception, and her sister, Miss Florence, who will be introduced at a similar affair this year, will entertain Friday with a dinner of eighteen covers for Miss Amy Marie Norton. Miss Norton has just returned from a two years' sojourn with her mother, Mrs. John H. Norton, in Europe, and next month will make her debut at a large tea party given by Mrs. Norton at the family home at No. 834 West Twenty-eighth street.

Miss Jane Rollins, who will also have her first formal season this year, will preside at a dinnr party Thursday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Bowman Rollins, of No. 700 West Twenty-eighth street, for Miss Norton.

Miss Mildred Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Burnett, of Beacon street, who was graduated from the Mt. Vernon Seminary in Washington, will also compliment Miss Norton. Miss Emma Conroy will also be a special guest on this occasion. Miss Conroy, having recently returned from an absence of four months. Mrs. Burnett will give a coming-out party for Miss Burnett this winter.

Miss Sallie McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McFarland, of West Twenty-third street, is another charming addition to the winter debutantes. Miss McFarland will be introduced at a dancing party, to be given late this winter by her parents.

Mrs. Van Nuys Hostess.

Mrs. I. N. Van Nuys, of West Sixth street, will preside at a theater party tomorrow evening at the Majestic, when she will compliment Miss Amy Marie Norton. Lieut.-Gen. and Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, Maj. and Mrs. John H. Norton and Mr. and Mrs. Van Nuys will chaperon the company, which will include about a dozen of the younger set. Following the performance supper will be served at the Alexandria where the table will be gay with delicate flowers.

Children's Party.

Edward Jr., the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Doheny, of Chester Place, will be host at a Halloween party to be given November 4.

Garden Fete Postponed.

On account of the rain the large garden party which was to have been given by ladies of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsh in Westchester Place, Friday afternoon and evening, has been postponed until Thursday of this week. Preparations of the most elaborate kind have been perfected and those fortunate enough to attend will witness sights never to be forgotten.

From the Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Hite Wickizer and daughter, Gentry, and Miss Bessie Trickle, who have been spending the summer at Venice, have returned to the city and taken apartments at the Stratford Hotel on West Sixth street.

Dinner Party.

Mrs. Harry Jarman, of West Sixth street, was hostess at her home Friday evening at a dinner party. Yellow and white was the color scheme used in the decorations. Yellow tapers in crystal candlesticks with yellow shades added an artistic touch to the table which had as a centerpiece a cut glass bowl filled with chrysanthemums. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. William Riter, of Salt Lake City, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Crissman.

Mrs. W .R. Jacobs, of San Francisco, who has been visiting friends in this city.

First Complete Showing of Furs

The Blackstone store is famous throughout the Southwest for its Furs. We show only the genuine. And, after all, isn't it the wiser plan to pay perhaps a little more at the beginning and KNOW you are getting the real thing, than to pay a dollar or so less and have your furs turn out only imitations? We guarantee every piece as represented.

Our stock of Furs this season is even larger than ever before; greater in variety, and certainly handsomer in style.

Among the season's most popular skins are:

We would advise an early inspection of these furs, while the assortments are complete.

If you wish to make selection now for future delivery we will lay aside any you may choose subject to your order. Second Floor.

Men's Suits

That Are Their Own Best Advertisement

"What tailor made your suit?" said a party to a young man who was at that time wearing one of our $15 suits. "No tailor," replied the young man. "I bought this suit at the Broadway Department Store." "Why, I didn't know they had such fine suits there," was the reply.

This man had not taken the trouble to investigate Broadway Clothing. We claim to excel in the selling of Men's Clothing

At $10 At $12.50
At $15 At $20
At $25

We fear no competition because we have put our merchandise beyond competition by securing the best possible lines at the prices we ask.

There are a great many men who are prejudiced when it comes to the clothing proposition, inasmuch as they do not give the department store credit for being able to secure as good merchandise as the specialty store.

They lose sight of the fact that with our great purchasing power in most cases we are able to outdo the specialty store. If you appreciate putting dollars into your pocket investigate Broadway clothing.

Men's Pants Sample Lot . . . $1.15

Sizes 28 to 34 waist measure and all lengths. Grays and browns mostly. Worth from $1.50 to $2. Neatly finished, well made.

Bullock's Bargain Basement

And Now Comes the Great Annual Friend-Winning Week

—When Bullock's Bargain Basement takes the center of the shopping stage in a part filled with life and intense interest to thousands of shoppers—

—A little over two years ago the basement was opened as a different kind of bargain store—where good merchandise, the kind we could guarantee, would be sold at less than worth prices—Dominant ruled the determination not to have a cheap store, but to build an underprice business that would satisfy its customers.

—In August, 1910, figuring the same number of days as the basement was open in August, 1909—over three times the business was done downstairs as in the opening month—two years before.

—Just a year ago we determined to set aside a week in October as a great Exploitation, Friend-Winning Time, when efforts would be redoubled to give Bullock's Bargain Basement (its merchandise and policy) extraordinary publicity, and to make it more widely known.

—Buyers were sent through the markets of the world to secure the sensational, with such result that the week of 1909, of which the coming week is an anniversary, through sheer force of values became the strongest selling week in the history of the Bargain Basement.

—Right then we started to work for a year ahead.

—Now, Monday, October's Annual Bargain Basement Week—

An Aggregation of Values—that Surpasses in Bargain Strength any we have ever published—

—Think of Wash Suits at 98c; Window Shades at 22c; 45-in. Oilcloth, 15c; Sample Curtains, 25c; Women's Neckwear, 5c; Boys' Short Pants 25c; Women's Shoes $1

—and scores of values equally strong.
—In all the history of this Business we have never printed so many powerful reasons why buyers should throng all entrances at 8:30 a. m.—and sweep all before them on their way downstairs.
—See the Windows—Read these Values—Remember Bullock's Bargain Basement—the Rendezvous for Thousands—bright and early Monday morning.

CONSTANT STRIKES.

YEAR WASTED ON TWO JOBS.

CHICAGO UNIONS WRANGLE ON JURISDICTIONAL ROWS.

Northwestern Railroad Station and New City Hall Have Been Seriously Delayed Because the Unionites Constantly Quarrel Among Themselves, Keeping Themselves Idle.

Almost a year, counting a working year as 300 days, has been wasted by the Chicago building trades unions in jurisdictional and sympathetic strikes in the construction of the new Northwestern railroad station and the new city hall. In that time nearly $400,000 was lost in wages.

The combined loss of time on both buildings is 270 days. To this will be added probably several weeks more by reason of the present jurisdictional trouble at the Northwestern depot. The strikers who quit last Monday were joined yesterday by a force of ornamental iron workers, making ten trades and a total of 400 men now on strike.

There is no question of wages at stake. All this expensive delay is caused in the latest instance by a row between the members of the roofers' union and the building laborers. The roofers, who are new on the job, claim jurisdiction over all waterproofing work on the roof and the track floor.

Knisley Bros., subcontractors on the roofing work, admit they are "between the devil and the deep blue sea." If they favor the roofers the building laborers, bricklayers, stone masons, and cement workers will strike. This would involve about 800 men.

Officials of the Northwestern railroad company, it is said, are getting tired of the interminable delays.

From the "log" of the building it was gleaned that eight strikes have occurred on the depot structure since construction began, Nov. 1, 1908. Of these only two involved the question of higher wages.

The succession of troubles began with a jurisdictional fight in January, 1909. This was engineered by "Skinny" Madden, then "czar" of the building trades, who ordered the men out because a subcontractor on caissons employed nonunion men on the eight track bridge across the drainage canal. It was estimated at that time that some one was trying to hold up the railroad company for $50,000.

In September, 1909, a number of trades struck at the depot because the Otis Elevator company refused to withdraw machinists from elevator work and reinstate striking elevator constructors. The strike failed.

A force of plasterers struck in April, 1910, on account of a quarrel with the marble setters over the setting of "scagliola," imitation marble. The marble men won, after a strike of three weeks. Steamfitters struck in June over a quarrel with the boilermakers, and in July a second sympathetic strike occurred over the fight of the Building Trades council against the Otis Elevator Company.

The record of the new city hall is nearly as bad. The "log" of the municipal building shows four strikes, only one of which was exclusively for higher wages.

Northwestern station:
Jurisdictional and sympathetic strikes	7
Wage strikes	1
Time lost, months	6
Total average of number of men involved	300
Wage loss due to strikes	$190,000
City Hall:
Jurisdictional and sympathetic strikes	3
Wage strikes	1
Time lost, months	3
Total average number of men involved	600
Wage loss due to strikes	$200,000

The first strike on the city hall was called in December, 1909, as the result of a jurisdictional fight between the boilermakers, structural ironworkers, and machinery movers. The strike ended in a compromise.

A jurisdictional fight between the marble setters and the bricklayers caused the second strike, when the marble setters won. In March, 1910, the lathers struck for higher wages and won.

Structural iron workers caused the fourth strike. In addition to a demand for higher wages they remanded jurisdiction over all reinforced concrete work, which was done by the laborers. They won the wage demand and lost the jurisdictional claim.

Officials of the Noel Construction Company, general contractors, said most of the jurisdictional troubles could have been straightened out in conference without the necessity of resorting to strikes.—[Chicago Tribune.

RAILROAD WORLD.

The interstate commerce Commission is about to issue an order designating the number, location and application of safety appliances on railroad cars, to comply with the intent of Congress to provide facilities that will adequately protect life and property. When this has been done it will be incumbent upon the railroads of the country to expend approximately $55,000,000 for the required safety equipments.

The annual report of the Illinois Central Railroad Co. for the year ended June 30, 1910, shows the largest business in the history of the company, notwithstanding the serious coal strike in the bituminous regions of Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky. The gross earnings were [illegible]2,490,861, an increase of $5,234,543, or [illegible] per cent over the previous year. Expenses amounted to $47,117,241, an increase of $5,714,298, or 13.8 per cent. The ratio of expenses to earnings was 75.47 per cent, as compared with 72.48 per cent in the previous year. This increase was general affecting nearly all accounts. Net earnings were $12,-[illegible], a decrease of $476,308, or 5.07 per cent.

The Erie Railroad has just introduced a convenience that will be highly appreciated by travelers. The company has placed an order for several hundred thousand paper hat bags for use on all trains. Hitherto, a Pullman passenger could put her hat and coat or other articles in a paper bag and protect them from dust and dirt but the coach passenger had no such privilege. Now, however, each coach porter on Erie trains will have a supply of bags and each passenger man, woman or child, can have as many as are needed to protect coat, hat or package.

[illegible] Sugar Manufacture

[illegible] is not alone in the establishment of the beet sugar industry. The Fu Hwa (Enrich China) Sugar Manufacturing Company is completing a beet-sugar factory at Harbin, Manchuria. The capital is $632,985, gold. The daily capacity will be [illegible] pounds of refined sugar, half in cubes, but only 100,500 pounds will be produced at the outset. About 4250 acres of land belonging to the company were planted to beets, and it is expected to start the factory this month, under the management of a Polish expert. The machinery is all from Germany. A Polish sugar company, with $515,000 capital, began operating a plant this year at Ashiho, about twenty-six miles from Harbin, the capacity being about [illegible] pounds per day, but it is producing only about half its capacity.

Facts, Features and Fancies for Women

BY OLIVE GRAY.

DAILY BEAUTY HINT: A simpiple home remedy for keeping the scalp in good condition and also promoting the growth of the hair is salt and water. Partially fill a bottle with soft water, then add as much salt as will dissolve. With the tips of the fingers rub the solution into the scalp each night or morning.

"Oh dear!" sighed Elizabeth, "I wish I had never set about being beautiful! By the time I have done all the beauty acts, I'm wide awake and it seems as though it were so near morning that it would scarcely pay to go to sleep any how. You see," she continued, "I put pomade on my eyebrows, salve on my eyes, cream on my face, another kind of cream in my nose to cure my cold, tonic on my hair, a kind of cream on my hands, another kind on my feet—and of course I bathe before I do any of these things and also brush my teeth. Then I exercise my arms to prevent hollows in the chest, and do stooping exercises to reduce the hips, and stepping exercises to improve the ankles, and chin exercises to fill out the neck and"—but a long yawn swallowed up the remainder.

"Well, why don't you stop all this?" I asked.

"I did once. The first day after I decided to be natural, some one asked me if I had been out late the previous night, the second day someone asked if I had been sick, the third day some one asked if I were ill, and the fourth I heard Evelyn remark pityingly to Annabelle that "it was too bad Elizabeth was falling off so in appearance. Then I willingly returned to the beauty drudgery and have staid at it ever since; only sometimes I wish I could just tumble into bed with a dirty face, like any gutter boy. But I sha'n't."

All for a Dollar.

One of the big Spring street grocery stores has a fashion of selling every now and then, an especial collection of goods for $1. One day it is a number of the borax products; another it is a range of canned goods; again it is dried fruits; another time it is a sort of "Christmas basket" of all kinds of provisions. I think this is interesting, particularly as you really secure more than the usual amount for the dollar.

* * *

A Comparison.

The dollar's worth reminds me of what a friend said recently about going to a tailor for her gowns. "I prefer going to a tailor for my work," she said, "as then I know the worst from the first. The price he gives is final. It is enough of course, but there is no aftermath." I said I did not understand quite what she meant. "Well, when you go to an ordinary dressmaker, she names a price for making the gown and you buy your goods. Then come the 'findings,' and if there was ever a misnomer, it is that. There is no 'finding' about those things! You pay for about seven hundred and ninety-eight separate articles and by the time you count up the cost of your gown the first item of 'making' looks so insignificent that you feel as though it were a mere nothing. And after all, if the thing does not suit, you are responsible, since you bought the goods and engineered the creation, so you have to take it. I like to make the tailor responsible for the whole job; and then if I don't like it I can refuse to take it and that ends the matter."

A Breakfast Set.

At one of the Oriental stores where they make a specialty of bamboo furniture, I saw a set for a breakfast room which seemed to me very pretty and appropriate for the purpose. It was composed of a fair-sized round or rather oblong table and four chairs and the price was so low as to set one to planning at once about fitting up a little breakfast room—in the porch if no other place were available. This, with one of the bamboo side tables and a cabinet or two would quite furnish such a room and how inviting it would be. Somehow one wishes light, cheery, summery looking furniture in a breakfast room at all seasons. There were also pictures in this establishment which would give the proper finish to such a room—they were done by Japanese artists and set in the gray frames peculiarly their own. The scenes were without exception cheery and suggestive of the glory of out-of-doors—a welcome from nature to greet you on arising.

* * *

A New Shoe.

Have you noticed the new cut of shoe called the "Princess?" It is just what its name implies—an adaptation of the princess idea which is used in dresses. It is a sweep of material all in one piece from top to toe, just like the gown. It gives a very pretty effect. I am inclined to think, too that like its prototype it will require a perfect form to be used to advantage.

* * *

To "Jell" Jelly.

The good housekeeper was, as usual putting up fruit, when I visited her the other day. I noticed that she seemed to be using apples with almost all the berries from which she was making jelly. I commented and she replied: "Yes, I always use a few sour apples with all kinds of fruits which are not absolutely certain to jell properly. Even strawberries, which are exceedingly difficult to 'set,' come out all right if you combine apples with them. Apples do not interfere with other flavors either, and to some fruits they seem to add piquancy."

* * *

Our Bungalows.

Any one who reads eastern magazines must be struck with the fact that the California bungalow has made a place for itself in the wide, wide world. Bungalows are charming in California, but I would not want to try to build one warm enough to live in, in some eastern climates. The patio which is so useful and appropriate here, would be out of place in the colder and less inviting localities. I saw a cottage, however, in the Middle West which was built around a great tree, the space beneath the spreading branches being covered wth a platform taus creating an open porch. The owner of this home was regarded as rather eccentric, however, and the arrangement of his house served, as his neighbors thought, as a climax to this eccentricity. It is only in our own California that Nature is a genuine household pet.

* * *

To Eat.

The much abused potato depends more upon the manner of cooking than does any vegetable. Even a different manner of cutting it, creates a change in the taste, probably because the surfaces exposed thus, take up a greater or a less amount of moisture or fat. A lady who is noted for the excellent quality of her mashed potatoes has told me her secret. She says she always heats the milk that she uses in mashing the potatoes and adds it slowly, as she beats. She believes that heating the milk very hot has much to do with the "fluffy" quality of her mashed potatoes.

* * *

For Christmas.

If you want to give your friend something for Christmas which will make her bless you all the year, make her a button bag with a flap around the inside to which are attached safety pins, each holding a different size of button. Then on the "floor" of the bag, have a needle cushion through which are run threaded needles all ready for use. Of course the threaded readiness will not last through the year, but they may so educate their owner while they do last that she will never again be without them. Even for a man such a gift would not be without charm, if he be a bachelor.

* * *

Black and White.

A Broadway window filled with French dancing frocks in white marquisette, each differently embroidered with black, made a very pretty showing.

One would scarcely think that white and black could give so gay and airy an appearance as did these little dresses. Somehow they made their sister garments of the brighter colors look ordinary by comparison.

* * *

Fashion's Cry.

Do you know about the woman who has made the hobble band of her walking skirt to unbotton at one side, so that when she would board a car she just bends down and loosens the obstruction? She says this exercise takes the place of gymnastic for her. But some could not bend to reach the band, so her invention is not universally useful.

Long coats in seal and caracul are smart, and handsome and smart imitations of these furs in cloth will be made up in the same lines.

In dresses and waists appear the bishop sleeves, sleeves with a little fullness above the elbow, and the regulation shirtwaist type.

The use of three or four broad tucks at the lower part of a narrow skirt breaking up the plain, deep hem effect, is quite prominent.

Pearl buttons lead in favor as trimming and for practical use in the fall styles. They are in white, black, mother-of-pearl and dyed shades.

Glass and enamel buttons show animal figures, polar bears, wolves, dogs, etc., mounted in silver. These are specially designed for fur coats.

The turban has gone out as a coiffure style, and when the coronet braid is used at all it is piled high on the head and is more tightly bound.

Girdles of soft folds of gold tissue or gold-beaded chiffon for light gowns are very lovely, and set off the figure of the wearer to the best advantage.

Double-breasted coats are always popular with girls. Shepherd checks, plaids, tweeds, homespuns, velvet or corduroy make up very effectively.

Some of the new marabout stoles are finished with rosettes, also of the marabout resembling flowers and in either shape at either end of the long tabs.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Ten years ago an ordinance was adopted forbidding burials within the city limits. It was fought through all the courts until the supreme tribunal of the country decided that it is a valid law. Now the combined improvement clubs of the western section of the city have decided that the streets must be cut through the cemeteries and there will be no kick coming from their inmates.

"Kid" Sullivan, reputed "King of the pickpockets," resents his arrest for vagrancy. He alleges that the police are prejudiced against him and he demands that a special elisor be appointed to summon a jury to try him, for if the police call the jurymen it will go hard with him. Incidentally he charges the local administration with ingratitude, inasmuch as his political services in the last campaign are forgotten.

Supervisors Herget, Deasy and Knowles are indignant at being summoned before the grand jury to testify as to the issuance of fight permits to bogus amateur clubs. The officials think that it is a reflection on their integrity, and their fellow-citizens agree with them. To make matters worse the grand jury would not let them explain and the three statesmen will go to their graves as martrys in the cause of the plain people.

Nearly $20,000 has been spent in paying outside architects to do the work which the city's architect ought to perform. The municipal bureau of architecture is filled with political workers who scorn knowledge of structural technique since drawing salaries occupies all their attention. A proposed investigation into the matter has been shelved and many more thousands will be spent for outside aid before any work is done on a dozen public buildings.

A superior judge has refused to enjoin the police from stopping the exhibition of the Jefferies-Johnson fight pictures. The police will have no work to do, as the pictures have been on exhibition for two weeks and a discriminating public has refused to patronize them.

In a cold drizzling rain the Italian colony celebrated "Columbus Day" and there was no added warmth to the paraders when the band played "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" during the worst of the downpour. The scavengers union was out strong while the many fishermen in line looked as though they would prefer getting drenched outside The Heads than on Market street.

A Market street nickelodeon persists in prospering in defiance of a boycott of the labor council instituted because the two proprietors do their own work instead of employing men approved by the council. It is a case of rank insubordination and it is just possible that the two revolutionists may be arrested for vagrancy.

At the luncheon of the Commonwealth Club Mayor Hodghead of Berkeley praised the commission plan of his charter and told of 1000 ordinances being passed unanimously by five commissioners. Our army of local officeholders were horrified at the information and needless to say they look on Berkeley as lost to all sense of official decency.

Dr. Walter Hennessey, who threw vitriol on an actress because he loved her so, walked into the emergency hospital and asked to be sent to jail. His friends think that this is a sign of insanity and will sound well to a sympathetic jury. The average unprejudiced citizen thinks that theworthy doctor ought to be taken at his word and confined until he appreciates the fact that throwing vitriol on a lady is not conducive to improving her beauty or a popular method of applying the healing art.

PLUTO.

Wilbur Wright on Aviators.

Wilbur Wright, at the Asbury Park aviation meeting, said of risky aviators: "These daredevils ought to be hurt a little now and then. It teaches them a lesson. Otherwise they have too much faith in their luck. Their faith becomes as ridiculous as that of Hiram Bucktoss of West Carrollton.

"Hiram Bucktoss, a West Carrollton farmer, used to come in to Dayton every Saturday afternoon to shop, and the boys at the feed store would take many a rise out of him on account of his faith. He'd believe anything—accede to the tallest propositions. On Saturday, to see if he couldn't shatter Hiram's proverbial faith, a Dayton wit said:

" 'Speakin' of buffaloes, Mr. Bucktoss, did I ever tell you that when I was out West I seen a buffalo up a tree eatin' apples?'

" 'Indeed,' said Hiram. He didn't even look a bit startled, but only interested and pleased. 'Indeed!'

" 'That's what I said,' repeated the wit. 'Why, Mr. Bucktoss didn't you never see no buffaloes up trees?'

" 'No,' faltered Hiram. 'No, I can't say I ever did.' Then he brightened up 'But I've often heard,' he added, 'how very fond they are of grapes.' "—[New York Press.

Ready for Shower Bath.

August Belmont, at a dinner in Saratoga, praised the seaside towns of New England.

"But some of them," he added, "are a little too primitive. I remember a story about the primitive town of Rockford. Rockford had a rough bathing establishment with a shower bath. You stood in your bthhouse and pulled a rope, and a deluge of cool water descended from the ceiling.

"Well, a lady visitor stood one day in her bathhouse, ready for the shower. She pulled the rope and braced herself, but no shower followed. She gave the rope another tug, when the gruff voice of the sailor proprietor of the establishment sounded from aloft.

" 'Stand a p'int more to the nor-east, mum,' he said, 'if ye want to get the full force.'

"And the horrified lady, looking up, saw the old sailor frowning impatiently through a hole in the ceiling and tilting a barrel of sea water for the shower."—[Detroit Free Press.

What's a Miracle?

Michael Butler, one of Uncle Sam's trusties, who carries mail to the jackies at the Philadelphia Navy-Yard, and over Gray's ferry road to the Naval home, had this joke the other day for a party of friends. It's a story about the definition of the word miracle.

"Mike said to Pat, 'Can you tell me the definition of the word miracle?'

" 'Sure,' said Pat, with a grin.

" 'Well, will you tell me,' queried Mike.

" 'I'll do that,' replied Pat. 'Now, just turn around.'

"Mike did as he was told, and Pat booted him hard.

"Mike straightened up in anger.

" 'Did you feel that?' asked Pat, with a chuckle.

" 'You bet your life I did,' Mike replied.

"Well, if you hadn't felt it, it would have been a miracle."—[Philadelphia Times.

Preparing in Advance.

Prof. Hugh W. Ransom of Harvard was describing at a dinner in Cambridge his experience as a subway workman—experience undergone in the cause of science.

"One thing that impressed me," he said, "was the happy home life of those hard-working men. It is a far happier home life than that of the idle rich. And yet the way people talk you'd think it was a wretched and squalid home life

"The way people talk, you'd think Jim Jackson's was a typical poor man's home.

"Jim, very pale and shaky, stopped at the butcher's one morning and said:

" 'Who's got a black eye, Jim?' asked the butcher, curiously.

" 'Nobody ain't yet,' Jim answered. 'But I've been on a bust for the last three days, and now I'm on my way home to the old woman.' "—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE FEE HUNTER.

SAM GOMPERS IS QUESTIONED.

MAKES NO REPLY REGARDING RIOTS AND MURDERS.

Visited Battle Creek "to Deliver a Message," After Having Called That Town "Scabville" and a "Running Sore" on the Map of Michigan.

Gompers, the head of the American Federation of Labor, visited Battle Creek, Mich., a few days ago, and the day before his arrival the Enquirer of that city called attention to his visit as follows:

Mr. Gompers, big chief of the striking unions, is on his way to this city to "deliver a message to Battle Creek," he says.

This is one part of a scheme he and his working labor leaders (?) have been working at for several years, to unionize the city and force our workmen to give up monthly fees estimated to be around $2000 a month if they could "push them all in."

This was not to raise wages, for the scale here is the top in the State and in the Postum works, from five to ten per cent higher. Nor was it to better shop conditions, for the State inspector found them worthy of special mention.

There is but one conclusion, Gompers and his men want fees and control of the workmen to wreak vengeance on this city by calling strikes.

Now and then some of their writers break out and tell their purpose, as witness the attacks on one of the State organs of the big labor trust.

Battle Creek was advertised in heavy black type as "The running sore on the map of Michigan." Its people were denounced in the foulest terms, called "scabs" and the town "Scabville." It printed its dirty hatred by stating that the daughters of our citizens were forced to walk the streets and earn by prostitution what the fathers lacked in wages.

Let Battle Creek workingmen remember the unspeakable insults such men utter when disappointed in not "unionizing" a city and squeezing the fees.

Then came the printed announcement that they would "punish Battle Creek" when they got power to call strikes and teach a lesson, that when the big chiefs sent out word to "Join de union, you git in, see."

The Enquirer would "enquire" for the citizens of this city what "The message of Battle Creek" is, which Mr. Sam'l Gompers says he comes to deliver.

So let us ask the questions the average citizen would ask.

Is he the head of the striking unions of America?

He will say he is "opposed to strikes."

How many strikes have occured since he was "head"?

2000 or 200,000 thousand?

Isn't it more nearly the last than the former?

How many American citizens have been assaulted and maimed by his organization?

There were over 5000 in one strike, the Chicago teamsters, a few years ago.

Have 150,000 men been beaten and bruised and some maimed for life, since he has directed affairs?

How many men trying to earn a living for wives and babies have been killed?

There were about thirty murdered in the Chicago teamsters' strike. That was only one.

We have just read of the murder of some twenty men and injuring of some twenty-five more in Los Angeles. These men generally leaving families helpless. He will say it was not done by members of his organization, but we learn that in one year the Unions sent $75,000 to Los Angeles to ruin the Los Angeles Times, and have kept up a constant warfare for years culminating in this outrage.

Is it not true you have used hundreds of thousands of dollars of union funds to defend the known murderers of independent men?

Have one th ousand or ten thousand men been murdered by members of the organization since he has been at the head?

Why have these thousands upon thousands of our fellowmen been maimed or murdered and their wives left widows and their children fatherless and thrown upon the tender mercies of charity?

Was it because these men did not feel disposed to pay fees to and put themselves under the domination of the paid leaders of an organization of which Sam Gompers was and is the head?

Did these murdered and maimed men feel an inborn and God-given right to work when, for whom, and at such price as they themselves decided was best for them?

Hasn't an American a right to work and support a family without first getting permission from Sam Gompers and his paid associates?

You may answer that it is better to maim and kill a few in order to establish your control of all workmen in America and thus make "closed shops" of all factories.

Don't you think the members of your association has maimed and killed about too many?

What do you believe the widows and fatherless children think of you and your warfare?

Couldn't you forget the fees and overlook the independence of at least a few of these men and their monthly fees and let them live?

In the past five years your agents or associates have called strikes on how many jobs?

Is the number ten thousand or one hundred and fifty thousand?

Has the loss in idle time cost workmen five million or fifty million dollars?

Has the loss to this country been fifty or one hundred million dollars in the five years?

Are there not hundreds of thousands of workmen who want to go on earning good livings for their families and all whose lives are threatened if they continue to work when the leaders of your organization order them to quit?

Haven't officers of your organization ordered men to lie idle for weeks until their leaders could force hundreds or thousands of dollars out of employers as a bribe to allow the "strike" to be called off?

Don't they use the workman as cat's paw to pull the chestnuts from two million workers in factories, stores, mills and on farms of which only some five or six per cent, or say one million and a half, or thereabouts, have joined and pay fees to your organization.

Are there not hundreds of thousands of workmen who want to go on earning good livings for their families and whose lives are threatened if they continue to work when the leaders of your organization order them to quit?

Haven't officers of your organization ordered them to lie idle for weeks until those leaders could force hundreds or thousands of dollars out of employers as bribe to allow the "strike" to be called off?

Don't they use the workman as cat's paw to pull the chestnuts from two million workers in factories, stores, shops and on farms of which only five or six per cent, or say one and a half, or thereabouts, are joined and pay fees to your or-

IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

On Thursday the Principal Dr. Wilsen, the Vice-Principals Mr. Daniels and Miss Putnam, and the heads of all departments of the Manual Arts High School, gave a reception to the faculty of that institution. The wives and families of the faculty joined in the festivities of the occasion, which was for the purpose of creating a better acquaintance among those whose work is along the same lines. Many members of this faculty are new arrivals and come from many different educational centers throughout the United States, and so busy are they all that little opportunity offers for acquaintance. An informal programme consisted of a song by Miss Rosamond Rice and instrumental selections by Mr. Goodenough.

Student body officers elected last week are as follows: president, Carleton Henley; vice-president, Vera McDonald; secretary, Harold Scott; treasurer, Mr. Armstrong, of the faculty.

Mr. Rae, head of the mechanical arts department of the Manual Arts High School, has opened an "employment bureau" for the purpose of securing for the boys of his department work for Saturdays and holidays. This should prove a boon to people who need odd jobs done around the house or yards, and especially as the boys have more than ordinary skill and are reliable, as the head of their departments can testify. Mr. Rae's department is very popular and much good work is under way, even though the equipment has not all been installed.

At an assembly call, on Teusday, at Manual Arts High, a programme commerative of Columbus was presented. Miss Faddis recited Joaquin Miller's "Columbus" and Vice Principal R. C. Daniels gave an informal talk which was much appreciated by the students.

Polytechnic High School is still besieged with applicants for entrance to its already crowded ranks.

On Monday last there was an Aud call in honor of the first appearance of Mrs. Parsons, head of the music department, after her return from abroad. She was received with much enthusiasm by the students and after several songs, such as "America" and "Poly High," in which Mrs. Parsons led, Principal Dunn announced that there would be an Aud call each week for singing. The orchestra has assumed fine proportions and is doing excellent work as a welcome home to Mrs. Parsons and Miss Dickson, both of whom are much beloved by the Poly High people.

On Tuesday, at an Aud call, Supt. Francis was present and introduced Bishop Conaty who gave a fine address upon Columbus. "It seemed to me," said Principal Dunn, "that I had never heard the Bishop give a finer talk, and the students listened with wrapt attention. He seemed in his talk to go straight to the hearts of the young people."

At an Aud call for the girls, Supt. Francis spoke upon "My Ideal Girl," eliciting much enthusiasm from his audience. Bernice Ellis sang and Rosa Krug, A. S. B. O. vice-president, presided, as it is the custom for the one occupying that office to preside at all Aud calls for girls.

Preparations are under way for the dedication of the new art building of the polytechnic group, which ceremony will take place on October 25. A committee from the faculty is in charge of the programme.

On Tuesday Miss Graig's B-11 oral class spent two hours at the City Council chambers. This class expects to make frequent visits to the council for the purpose of gaining points on debate, etc.

Some of the class rooms, in making plans for the year, have organised into Shakespeare or Mark Twain Clubs, with a view to using the fifteen minutes allowed to the class room each morning in reading or reciting the works of the writers whose names the clubs have taken. In some instances each student will be given a morning upon which to entertain the class during the fifteen minutes allowed.

The students of Polytechnic are not planning any inter-scholastic games along athletic lines. Although there will during the year be some games between this institution and other schools, such games will be arranged only a few days previous to their occurrance, and will not be for the purpose of advancing a few in championships, at the expense of the general development; fun, rather than anything which may lean toward the professional in athletics being the end in view.

At an assembly call on Friday, Supt. Francis was present at Los Angeles High School and talked upon the subject of The Flag.

The Star and Crescent elections have been postponed until next week. The nominations at the primary election were as follows: president, Sloane Flack and Marco Wolf; vice-president, Muriel Rowell and Alice Ranzon; secretary, Myla Langraf; treasurer, Dryden Phelps.

On Wednesday, October 19, Olga Steeb has been engaged by the student body of Los Angeles High School to give a piano recital, the last appearance of this talented musician before her departure for Europe.

The student body is planning to give an entertainment soon for the purpose of raising funds to repair the tower clock. This clock has been the subject of song and story among the students for some time.

The uniforms for the military company were received last week and there is great rejoicing among the soldiery at L. A. High. This body is very popular this year and many enthusiastic plans are being made for both work and entertainment. A signal corps has been organized upon lines identical with those of the government service. Stations are established upon the high hills within sight of the school and signals by flag are raised according to the regulation military code. It is the plan to soon have a heliograph such as those used in the United States army. This instrument is patterned upon the plan of the mirror flashing which all remember as a favorite amusement of childhood. These flashes are set to a regular code and form the means of communication between established military posts. "It is our idea," said Mr. Oliver, who is in charge of the military training at L. A. High, "not so much to create soldiers as to prepare all citizens for war in case of emergency. It has been the history of war that all those countries whose citizens arise in time of need to defend their nation are best equipped for such defense, as those people are fighting for a principle. If in addition, they understand the methods of war, they have an additional strength. With a trained citizen soldiery there would be little need for a standing army of any size."

It is hoped that Col. Stedman of the Board of Education will address the Los Angeles High School military organizations next week; and later a talk from Mr. Sterrett upon the history of firearms is anticipated.

At Gardena High School a class in photography has been organised by Mr. Rowell, teacher of science and mathematics. The class is taking pictures, developing and printing them and making lantern slides of the best local pictures for a public exhibition later in the term at which each student will explain his own product. As a preliminary and during the progress of the work the chemistry and physics of photography will be carefully studied in the laboratory.

The student body of Gardena elected the following officers: President, Elizabeth Davis; secretary, William Kettler; treasurer, Warren Carey. The students declared in favor of the plan of electing the president from the twelfth year, the secretary from the eleventh year, and treasurer from the tenth year class. Each class has two representatives in council as follows: Carl Sebelius and Florence Matson, eleventh year; Earl Clark and Esther Ball; tenth year, Warren Smith and Lucy Powers; ninth year, Elmer King and Emma Greesmer. The council has formed committees of five on publicity, decoration, entertainment, school government, grounds and buildings, publications, athletics and finance. The chairmen and two members of the council, who elect the remaining two from the student body at large, all hold office until July 1, 9111. The principal, Mr. Lillard, is an advisory member of all committees.

Mr. Curtis, director of music at Gardena, is giving courses in chorus singing, harmony and history of music. He also has boys' and girls' glee clubs and an orchestra. It is the policy of the school to place great emphasis upon its work in music.

MEXICO.

PREDICTS GREAT REVENUE RAISE.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERT SHOWS MEXICAN FARMERS.

Railroad Demonstrator Who Points Out Need of Better Tillage in Mexico, Will Show Farmer How to Use Modern Implements in Scientific Soil Cultivation.

(Special Correspondence of The Times.)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—Within a comparatively brief period, if proper measures are taken, the revenue to be derived from agricultural operations in the republic of Mexico will be three or four times its present size, according to Stanley F. Morse, agricultural expert in the employ of the National Railways of Mexico, and the Mexican Express Company.

Among the chief needs of the country, in the opinion of this authority, are better tillage, more fertilization, more care in selection of seed, up-breeding of livestock and a greater degree of friendly and neighborly cooperation among the farmers of the country.

This expert who is retained by the railway and express companies is of the opinion that beneficient results may be scored by greater attention to field experiments and on future trips which he will make over the territory covered by a six-weeks junket. He will scientifically examine lands subjected to suggested tests and give advice as to further operations.

Modern makes of agricultural implements are in demand in Mexico, and there is an urgent need of instruction in the use. After Mr. Morse the expert, advises implement houses invading the field to instruct Mexican farmers in the use of them.

It is made clear in the report of Mr. Morse that in many cases the Mexican agriculturist is using too much water and too little scientific cultivation. Further, he could increase his profits by paying greater attention to modern methods of fertilization, by buying choice seeds to supplant the degenerate species commonly planted and by breeding better livestock, both for the market and for service on his lands.

Use of down-to-date iron plows is urged as a substiute for the shallow-digging wooden plows in common commission.

The Town Puzzled Him.

Col. Cecil Lyon of Texas is a tall and commanding figure of a man. A glance at him gives the impression that he carries a brace of six-shooters, and is one of the most firery fire-eaters who ever came out of the Southwest. He is also a Republican National Committeeman from his State, and this position entails business which frequently takes him to Washington.

One evening he and a friend were sitting in the lobby of a Washington hotel when he heard a man near by use language to another that sounded as if it called for a fight. Without more ado the colonel crawled rapidly and silently under a neighboring table.

"Why, what's the matter, colonel?" called out his friend.

"I thought they were going to draw," explained Lyon.

Seeing that there was no danger of violence, he slowly came from under the table, and, as he stood up, the man who had been insulted was shaking hands with the one who had just given him the verbal blast.

"Down in my State," said Lyon, "the bullets would have been flying thick and fast by this time, and the innocent bystanders would have been lying flat on the floor. I don't understand this town."—[Popular Magazine.

News of Importance to Every Woman

Our Lastikops Webbing is not merely an improvement—it is really a new kind of a fabric. It produces results always desired but never before possible. It opens a new era in corset-construction. It promises correct style with increased comfort to every woman—stout, slender or medium.

Lastikops Webbing HAS NO RIVAL—you will find that all imitations are simply the old, unreliable elastics. Just for a comparison:

LASTIKOPS WEBBING—	ALL OTHER ELASTICS—
1. Never loses its original elasticity—lasts for months unchanged.	1. Are likely to "give out" and get "stringy" in a week.
2. OUTWEARS ANY CORSET.	2. Will wear out quickly and render the corset useless.
3. Is NOT weakened or damaged by the needle.	3. Are weakened when the needle cuts the unsecured rubber strands.
4. Can be made VERY elastic; or only PARTLY elastic, to provide strong SUPPORT with perfect EASE.	4. Are elastic all through—the elasticity cannot be adjusted.

Lastikops Webbing is the most important fabric-invention of this century. It places Nemo Corsets still more clearly in a class alone, secure from competition. It will bring COMFORT and CORRECT STYLE to millions.

FOR SLENDER WOMEN

is to be created in the major in the ordnance department on October 12 when Maj. Charles C. Jamieson will be placed on the retired list. He was recently examined by a retiring board, and found physically incapacitated for further active duty on account of disability incident to the service.

Rear-Admiral Giles B. Harber, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, has been relieved and placed on waiting orders. Rear-Admiral E. B. Barry, commanding the second division of the Pacific fleet, will succeed Rear-Admiral Harber as commander-in-chief of the fleet.

George T. Beckwith, who deserted from the United States Marine Corps in October last year, recently reported to the Brooklyn navy yard, and was arrested. His reason for deserting is that it was for the purpose of perfecting a non-refillable bottle, as his duties as a marine interfered with his work as an inventor, but that now the invention is patented he asks to be reistated and serve out his time. He says that he and another are copartners in the patented bottle, and that they have refused an offer of $50,000 for it by a firm in Hartford, Ct., where he carried on his work after deserting.

OVER THE SEA.

THE Countess of Normanton is regarded everywhere as a remarkable double of Queen Alexandra. She is a daughter of the late Lord Strafford, who, as Sir Henry Byng, was a valued member of the household of Queen Victoria. She is a tall, stately woman, with a wealth of fair hair recalling her Scandinavian ancestry, for her mother was a Danish lady, Countess Henriette Danneskiold-Samso, a connection of Queen Alexandra, which may account for the resemblance.

The Hon. Chien Hsu, attorney general of Pekin; Judge Shih Ying Hsu, Chi Chang Shen, Wen Chang Lo and Y. T. Wang have traveled overland from China to England via St. Petersburg, Berlin, Vienna, Milan, Paris and Brussels on an imperial mission to ascertain in their own words "how bad people are made good," in other words to study the European systems of administering justice and punishment.

Sir John D. Rees holds the distinction of being the best linguist in the House of Commons, if not in England. For a number of years he was government translator of such out-of-the-way languages as Tamal, Telugu, Persian and Hindustani. He is, besides, an authority on Russian and German, and it is said there is not a European language with which he is not conversant.

Sir Thomas Vesey Strong today was elected Lord Mayor of London without opposition. Sir Thomas is a pronounced temperance advocate and enjoys the distinction of being the first teetotaller chosen as chief magistrate of the metropolis. He was knighted while occupying the office of Sheriff of the City of London. He is a director of the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution and a Commander of the Order of Isabella the Catholic of Spain and of the Order of Our Lady of Villa Vicosa of Portugal.

The infant son of Viscount and Viscountess Kelburn, and a future Earl of Glasgow, has the honor and distinction of being the first godson of the Queen since King George's accession. Their Majesties have always had a strong personal regard for Lord Kelburn, who has traveled with the royal suite on at least two occasions during their world tours. At Her Majesty's wish the baby has been christened Maurice, which it is said she considered the nearest male equivalent for Mary.

EDUCATORS.

STEWART EDWARD WHITE of Grand Rapids Mich., the novelist and expert woodsman, has planned to spend about five months hunting in Africa, his plan being to cover some of the ground visited by Col. Roosevelt in his African journey, but to visit other territory than that reached by the mighty hunter.

John Burroughs was born and spent his early years among the Catskill Mountains, and his latest volume is entitled "In the Catskills." It is made up of eight delightful essays, and is illustrated with twenty-four views from photographs by Clifton Johnson, including pictures of the Burroughs farm in summer and winter, and of Mr. Burroughs himself in his native surroundings.

Prof. Reginald McFarland of Middlebury College, Vt. with Prof. Thomas C. Brown and Phelps N. Sweet of the same institution have recently returned from a trip far into the wilderness of Western Labrador, where no white man is known to have previously journied. They traveled in a canoe along the rivers and lakes and on foot through forests and various mountains. After traveling 375 miles from Lake St. John the party was divided on September 5. Professors Sweet and Brown turned back to make magnetic observations and to study geological formations along the File-Axe and Chief rivers. Professor McFarland, accompanied by a single guide, penetrated 100 miles farther north, visited hitherto unexplored regions to the east and north of Grand Lake Mistassinny.

President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, New York, has received from the Emperor of Germany the Order of the Red Eagle, one of the highest orders in the Emperor's gift.

Josephine Preston Peabody, (in private life, Mrs. Lionel Marks, wife of a Harvard professor) has won the memorial prize at Stratford-on-Avon, over 200 other contestants. The Memorial Prize has come to have, in the realm of poetic drama, the significance for the English-speaking world what the crowning of a French literary achievement by the Forty Immortals has for the French letters—a mark of final critical distinction. The prize was established by Otto Stuart of the board of governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater, to encourage the waning art of English poetic drama, and its attainment carries with it international recognition.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

MR. W. S. FIELDING, the Dominion Minister of Finance who comes very near to being the indispensable man of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Cabinet is suffering from a stroke of facial paralysis and has to wear a patch over one eye. Nevertheless he continues at his office instead of taking the rest his physicians have advised.

Charles E. Van Vleck who was appointed a special policeman at the time work was started on his new home at Montclair, N. J., has resigned his commission. The policemen of Montclair are now smoking fifteen cent Havana cigars, each one having received a box of the same as a gift from the retiring millionaire policeman.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, Mass. received recently from the members of Company D, of the Pittston (Pa.) Temperance Cadets, a clock made out of coal taken from a mine 600 feet under ground and two miles from the shaft. The clock was offered as a token of appreciation of the treatment received at the hands of the Mayor and the citizens of Boston while the cadets were attending the C. T. A. U. convention recently.

Richard Croker who has spent many winters at Palm Beach Fla., is considering making that his permanent residence on account of the disappointments he has met in Ireland in the matter of racing and otherwise. To his friends he declares that no man is safe in racing unless he trains, feeds, exercises, and rides his own horses. Stable managers and jockeys are his pet aversions now.

Daniel Chester French, New York sculptor, has been engaged to carve a $50,000 bronze equestrian statue of Gen. William F. Draper, once Ambassador to Italy, which is to be placed on Congregational Park, Milford, Mass. The park and the proposed statue are the gifts to Milford of Gen. Draper's widow, Mrs. Susan Preston Draper.

William T. Vernon of Kansas, Register of the United States Treasury, has tendered his resignation and will be succeeded by J. C. Napier of Nashville, Tenn. The retiring Register and his successor are colored men. The office of Register of the Treasury under several Republican administrations has been held to be a bit of patronage exclusively for the colored politician. The office pays a salary of $6000 a year.

On account of his advanced age and uncertain health, Gen. Samuel C. Lawrence of Massachusetts has resigned as sovereign grand commander of the supreme council of thirty-third degree Scottish Rite Masons. General Lawrence took this office upon the resignation of Judge Palmer in 1909 for three years, with the understanding that he could resign at the close of any year.

George W. Wickersham, Attorney-General of the United States, has received from President Taft a new title. He was made "head of the Department of Mercy." In giving it to him President Taft expressed the hope that the administration would be able to mix the work of the one department with that of the other.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

Making Artificial Gutta Percha.

Artificial gutta percha, the invention of the Viennese Gentsch, is made from a mixture of tar, resin, rubber and mineral wax. First the resin, wax and tar are thrown into a kneading machine, steam being applied to keep the temperature at the proper point. Twenty minutes later the rubber, chopped into small bits, is added. At the end of three hours the mass is removed from the machine and passed through rollers, coming out in slabs a quarter of an inch thick—the finished material.

The substance thus produced has been found to serve for the insulation of wires and cables. It is made in this country, as well as in Austria, England and Germany. It seems to possess all the important characteristics of natural gutta percha, including the electrical properties of the latter, and it is said to be much cheaper than the real thing. For belting and various other industrial uses, such as the making of golf balls and toilet articles, it has proved satisfactory.

New Uses for Paper.

Paper is entering into some of the important arts of Europe. The most novel use of it is in the manufacture of false teeth by the Germans, who say of the product that it is keeping its color well and is decidedly stronger than the porcelain imitation. When the winemakers of Greece found the lumber too costly with which to make wine casks, the manufacturers substituted paper pulp and have found it most satisfactory. A recent novelty is the work of an Austrian subscriber to a newspaper sheets of which he preserved as material for a sail boat. The boat is twenty feet long and for each paper board entering into it 2500 copies of the paper were used and softened for final molding under hydraulic pressure. Several countries have experimented in making paving of waste paper, but the cost so far is prohibitive.

Rubber from Banana Juice.

Extensive experiments are being made in regard to the extraction of rubber from the juice of the banana plant. The original investigator was Mr. George C. Benson, and the following excerpt on the subject is taken from The Georgetown Daily Chronicle, British Guiana:

"About two years ago, whilst experimenting with some banana juice, so as to find out how best to mordant it, a thick and pliable rubber was found to attach itself to the sides of the enamel dish which held the juice. The rubber was ultimately sent to England and to America, and it was found to be what is known as a synthetic rubber, and when compounded with other rubbers it appeared to have a distinct market value, by increasing both the weight and the value of the rubbers with which it was compounded. This fact is about to be put to the severest test, and numerous samples are to be sent to the best judges both in Europe and America."

Celluloid Watch Crystals.

Celluloid has been put to many uses, but the latest is the manufacture of a watch crystal that is guaranteed not to break. Anyone who has carelessly let his watch fall and has mournfully watcher the small pieces of the broken glass crystal fly in a hundred different directions can realize what a non-breakable, transparent watch crystal means. The Germans are responsible for the new use of celluloid. These crystals cost a little more than glass, but are proving popular because they are so much more durable. Dealers do not use them for the higher grade of watches, but great numbers of the cheaper manufacturers are being fitted with them.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE BEHALF OR FREDERICKS

To the Voters of Los Angeles County:

The candidates of the Republican party for State, County and Township offices were selected by the Republican voters, acting freely and individually, in the Primary election of August 16, 1910, and at the same time delegates were elected to the Republican County Convention.

At this convention, after due deliberation, a platform of principles was adopted by the convention and the County Central Committee was selected, and to this committee was entrusted the conduct of the campaign in Los Angeles County.

The Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee is, therefore, the agent of the Republican voters of Los Angeles County, charged with the duty of conducting a campaign within the County of Los Angeles for the accomplishment of the following objects:

First: The adoption into law of the principles declared by the Republican convention to be the principles of the Republican party of this county;

Second: The election to office of each and every one of the candidates of the Republican party named by the Republican voters at the primary election above referred to.

This simple statement of fundamental principles is made for the purpose of clarifying any confusion that may have existed in the public mind.

The Republican candidate for the office of District Attorney has been subjected to special attack by his Democratic opponent. The charges made are serious, if true, or if not satisfactorily explained. They require special attention, and should and will receive careful consideration and reply by the one most vitally concerned, the District Attorney himself.

This committee has engaged Simpson's Auditorium for Saturday night, October 15. At that place—the same rostrum from which the charges were made by Mr. Woolwine—Capt. Fredericks will publicly reply to each and every charge made by his opponent.

Capt. Fredericks will also reply to Mr. Woolwine from each of the other public halls where charges have been made, in ample time before election to permit every one to determine these matters for himself.

In the interest of fair play, in the interest of the truth itself, we appeal to the Republican voters to hear, with unprejudiced minds, what Capt. Fredericks has to say in his own behalf, and to withhold their judgment until they have heard both sides. A judge or a jury would be recreant to his trust who would decide a case before he had heard all the evidence. You, the voters, are the judges. Your decision, as expressed on November 8, will be final. From it there should be, and can be, no appeal. Do not be hasty; do not pre-judge.

Issued by order of the committee.

Russ Avery, Chairman.
Willis I. Morrison, Secretary.

CHLORIDE.

DISTRICT IS ON THE BOOM.

OPENING OF CONCENTRATING MILL THE CAUSE.

There Are Thousands of Tons of Ore on the Dumps of the Different Properties—Needles Company Is Pushing Development—Gold Road District.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

CHLORIDE, (Ariz.), Oct. 14.—With the opening of the new 250 ton concentrating mill of the Needles Mining & Smelting Company only a week off local operators are busy preparing shipments of ore and the entire Chloride district is more active than it has been in years. There are thousands of tons of ore on the dumps of the different properties, which up to this time have been considered of no commercial value; now because of great reductions in freight and treatment charges these ores can be shipped at a profit.

For example, freight on ore netting up to $12 per ton is only 60 cents to the mill at Needles, while the charge for hauling ore netting between $12 and $25 per ton is but $1.10 per ton. Reduction costs are correspondingly low, so that it is now possible to work at a profit in the immediate Chloride district ores assaying as low as $8.00 per ton. Contracts have been let for hauling 1500 tons from the Midnight mine, 250 tons from the Badger, and others are preparing to ship soon. The Needles company is shipping 500 tons of tailings from the dumps of its own Tennessee mine for a trial run of the mill. There are 20,000 tons of these tailings, which assay $4 in gold and silver and 16 per cent in zinc

The Needles Company, which is a subsidiary company of the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company, is steadily pushing development in the Tennessee, Banner, Silver Legend, Summit and Intersection mines. Good progress is being made in all except the first named, where considerable water has hindered sinking. The new shaft is down 250 feet only, but the mine is already developed to a depth of 600 feet with a body of ore from 6 to 12 feet wide.

At the Champion a station has just been cut on the 400 foot level and sinking resumed, while in the Banner sinking has been stopped at 430 feet and drifting is in progress. There is enough milling ore blocked out in these two mines to insure a steady production for a number of years.

At the C. O. D. mine, under operation by P. H. McLaughlin and John Boyle, Jr., a fine body of shipping ore has been encountered on the 300 level west. Seventeen sacks taken out the last few days are valued at $2000.

Seeley Mudd, mining engineer of Los Angeles, has been making an examination of the Midnight mine, and is at present looking over prospects in the Union Pass District.

Supt. F. H. Stull has let another contract for sinking 200 feet on the Brighter Days prospect. In the neighboring Rainbow mine Supt. H. L. McCarn has installed a new gasoline hoist and resumed sinking.

Gold Road.

The Gold Road and Tom Reed mines shipped gold bullion valued at $67,000 last week. Of this the former shipped $17,000, the clean-up of a ten days run, while the remainder represents the output of the Tom Reed mill in a little less than a month.

A car of machinery has been received for the Hercules mine and erection has been started.

The Town Puzzled Him.

Col Cecil Lyon' of Texas' is a tall and commanding figure of a man. A glance at him givees the impression that he carries a brace of six-shooters' and is one of the most fiery of fire-eaters who ever came out of the Southwest. He is also a Republican national committeeman from his state, annd this position entails business which frequently takes him to Washington.

One evening he and a friend were sitting in tthe lobby of a Washington hotel when he heard a man near by use language to another that sounded as if it called for a fight. Without thoroe addo the Colonel crawled rapidly and silently under a neighboring table.

"Why' what,s thee matter' Colonel?,, called out his friennd.

"I thought they were going to draw',, explaiend Lyon.

Seeing that there was no danger of violence' he slowly came from under the table' annd as he stood up the man who had been insulted was shaking hands with the one who had just given him the verbal blast.

"the bullets would have been flying thick and fst by this time, and the innocent bystanders would have been lying flat on the floor. , I don't unerstand this town." (Popular Magazine)

Ready for Shower Bath.

August Belmont, at a dinner in Saratoga, praised the seaside towns of New England.

"But some of them," he added, "are a little too primitive. I remember a story about the primitive town of Rockford. Rockford had a rough bathing establishment with a shower bath. You stood in your bathhouse and pulled a rope, and a deluge of cool water descended fromm the ceiling.

"Well, a lady visitor stood one day in her bathhouse, ready for hte shower. She pulled the rope and braced herself, but no shower followed. She gave the rope another tug, when the gruff voice of the sailor proprietor of the establishment sounded from aloft

"Stand a p'int more to the nor-east, mum,' he said, "if ye want to get the full force.'

"And the horrified lady, looking up, saw the old silor frowning impatiently through a hole in the ceiling and tilting a barrel of sea water for the

WHO SAID "LOVE, HONOR AND OBEY?"

BY JANIE B. JONES.

Woman's queenship has long been favorite theme with mankind. The poets delight to tell it in their choicest rhymes. The romancer endorses it in his brightest fancies. All that is most beautiful in the universe, all that is most desirable in mankind, man typifies in his ideal woman. The only exceptions he makes are a few things he knows she dosen't care for. Soldiering, for instance. No lady except maybe a fighting suffragette would care to wear an unbecoming metal hat and be called "Mars, the God of War." Most any other woman not only prefers to select her own hat, but would really much rather be called "Ma, Goddess of the Cradle." And Mercury—who cares to be noted for running fast except a college boy? The lady with the pretty little feet doesn't care a cent whether she beats the other fellow or not, so long as her shoes fit her nicely and tightly. All of which shows that man delights to honor woman. It may be that he raises her to such a height that when he feels like it he can bow before her without endangering his self-respect. Even when he made Jupiter ruler of the universe, so claiming the very highest place for himself, he put the crown of wisdom on Minerva's brow, though Jupiter needed it badly enough, goodness knows, to keep him from making a mess of his job.

Yes indeed, when he isn't bothered about anything else, when he has time and opportunity and feels like it, man can say some nice things about the ladies, God bless 'em! He idealizes woman's good looks, he calls her "Queen Rose of the rosebud garden of girls." He says, "When pain and anguish wring the brow, a ministering angel thou." He says, "Oh, to spend my life in one kiss upon her perfect lips." "Yes indeed," he says, "I take off my hat to the ladies." And he does, when he has on his Sunday clothes and his best manners and meets a good looking one out walking. He does indeed bow before her and say some mighty nice things about her.

But before man yokes himself up fast with his angel, his goddess or his queen till death—or divorce—does them part, she is expected to promise to obey him. Until quite rently if she didn't promise she didn't get him, that was all. It is a wonder man doesn't laugh at himself when he hears the vows he makes in courting his lady-love, knowing the promise expected of her before his vows mature for payment. It is enough to raise a suspicion that the only absolute sovereignty she can claim of his devising is ovr that dear old Castle in Spain that fades away so utterly when the six o'clock whistle blows and she must get up and get his breakfast.

A cynical old bachelor said that during the first six months of married life the husband loved his wife so much he felt he could simply eat her up. After that he was always sorry he hadn't done it. Except among savages, the courting man's attitude toward his lady-love is canididly, not to say absurdly, deferential and devoted. Hardly would he dare to hint obedience to her. It would be antagonistic to the spirit which animates him to obey her slightest wish. A normally intelligent young man will plan extravagant gifts for his love that would require all his income to provide, leaving nothing for food and shelter. He plans the doing of housemaid services, to save her lily-white hands, that would take all his time and so prevent him from earning the money for the gifts. It is simply the exaggerated expression of his firm conviction that the wind should not be allowed to blow roughly on so fine a being, that the rarest and costliest things of earth are none too rare and costly for her, this darling girl of his. His compliments are fully as honest as those of the mother whose itty tootsie wootsums sugarplum is the dearest, sweetest, finest, smartest, loveliest itty tootsie woosums in the wide, wide world, so it is! Bless his darling little red head, his sweet little pig's eyes, his precious little fish mouth! Sincere? Earnest? Indeed yes, both mother and lover are sincere, and a mighty poor opinion they would have of anybody who disputed the charms they extol. Hardly would the lover dare think even of obedience from so fine a creature, one who indeed honored him in permitting him to wait on her. Maybe after the week spent at Coronado, the visit back East to see his folks. Maybe after they got back and went to flatkeeping and he told her he liked hot cakes for breakfast and would she fry him some with her dainty little hands, and she said she wouldn't fry cakes for anybody. Maybe then he might venture so far as to think—not say—how nice breakfast would be if only she would obey him about the cakes.

No, man might suggest obedience after marriage, but would hardly presume to do so before. To interpose such a stipulation when he had been trying with all the ability he had, all the talent, all the eloquence, all the presents he could afford and all the pretty ways he could affect, to get her to promise to marry him, would require the gall of a book agent—and few men have that. Besides he was too busy obeying her. Hardly could the bride's vow to love, honor and obey have been of a lover's phrasing. As unlikely was it the bride's.

The idea of obedience in such a case comes strangely to the heart of almost every young, first-time bride. She has never thought much about obedience being due any one from her until she and her husband-to-be began to learn their parts so that there might be no hitch in the wedding ceremony.

The usual path of girlhood is one of indulgent affection. A veritable queen over her little circle of doting parents, admiring friends, and would-be-lovers, she has only to express a wish to have it gratified. Obey this man? Swear it solemnly before God and almost everybody she knows! It is a strange thing to expect of her. Indeed it was his ardent wooing that made her consent to marry him. He wanted to take care of her, give her lovely dresses and jewels and trips wherever she wanted to go. It had first made her like him better than the others—he was ypyw yyycvr ysi cmfw cmfwy cmwyp allowed to do things for her. Obey him? How often had he said that her will was his law.

Hardly could her vow to "love, honor and obey" have been suggested by the bride. Much more likely for her to have hinted that "lest he forget" it promise to continue his nice obedient ways toward her.

The general impression in regard to the conventional marriage service is that it is taken bodily from the Bible, like our Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments. Most people are not particularly interested in its wording until the approach of their own wedding day. The occasion is so momentous to the average bride and groom, the surroundings are so impressive, especially at the conventional church wedding, that the vows have all the weight and circumstances of a divine injunction. It would be a palpable heresy to question their propriety, and the bride promises to "love, honor and obey" in unquestioning faith that God Himself prescribed her vows. Even the spunky soul who insists on leaving out the "obey" boasts of it as a daring innovation on her part, and is glad that the minister who permitted it must take part of the blame for the sacrilege. This despite the fact that iconoclastic criticism has tried to brand the marriage rite as of purely conventional significance. Some of the more emancipated ones claiming that the word obey was grafted in by man for purely selfish reasons.

Yet time proves that it wasn't a mere slip of the pen that included the word "obey" in the marriage vows.

No matter how high a man may exalt his ideal woman, or how low he may abase himself before her, if he loves and cherishes and protects her and is loved and honored by her, he will be deferred to and obeyed by his wife without either of them making a conscious effort to bring it about.

Notwithstanding the gallant fight woman, or some of her, is making for the ultimate supremacy, no matter how largely she may talk about there being no head in her family. No matter how often she may reiterate that the one best fitted to decide has the final voice in her family affairs and other nice little things like that. In the innermost heart of her, she knows that her marriage in its ideal sense is a failure if her husband isn't the head and better fitted than herself to decide matters of large import to his household.

For there is nothing in marriage that disappoints a woman so keenly, that disillusionizes her so thoroughly as to find that her husband is not braver and stronger and wiser and better in a large sort of way than herself—better able to blaze a trail through life's devious ways and to keep a firm footing for himself and his own in it. And all this in spite of the fact that she may have made the minister, the husband himself—while he was yet her husband-to-be—and everybody else connected with the wedding, agree that it was totally unreasonable to expect any civilized woman of this day and time to promise to obey anybody. And no matter how determined her decree against the frying of those cakes for his breakfast—how fixed her intention to start right from the first and assert her independence and keep the upper hand while she had it, an inexorable decree had already nullified all such sayings long before it came her time to utter them. The result was as certain, as foregone as the solution of a mathematical problem.

If she loved him, in a way, but didn't honor him any to speak of, she would probably apologize, maybe even shedding a tear or two by way of emphasis, being ashamed of herself for speaking cross about those cakes he wanted. In the end he would fry the cakes for himself and for her too, if she cared for cakes. But if she both loved and honored him, there would be the best pile of cakes before him next morning that her hands could make—and a rose in her hair to show she was in a good humor when she made 'em. Not that she had to, oh no! No indeed, women in this day and time don't have to obey anybody, thank goodness! No, she just made them as a sort of surprise and to show she could make them, that's all.

SCIENCE NOTES.

Should Prevent Disease.

Dr. William G. MacCollum, professor of pathology of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, prophesies that the physician of the future will be employed to prevent diseases rather than to cure them. All diseases, except those due to accidental causes, such as burns, poisonings, cuts and the like will be entirely eliminated. "In the study of diseases," said Professor MacCollum, "we have made the most progress up to date, but in the cure of diseases we have made little, with a few brilliant exceptions." He pointed out yellow fever as one of the brilliant exceptions, and said that only by some such method as ended yellow fever's ravages would the other diseases be wiped out. "All insanity," he said, "will in time be stamped out, with the exception of insanity resulting from imprudence and intemperance, which will always exist, as they are the price of a man's personal liberty."

Beware of the High Heels.

Dr. von Koranyi of Budapest says that study of a long series of statistics prepared from the experience of others confirms him in the belief that high-heeled shoes play a distinct part in causing displacement of the kidneys, especially in conjunction with the heavy drag of clothes above the constricted waist.

The elevation of the heels causes an increase in the lumbar curve, says Dr. von Koranyi, and this entails displacement of the kidny, even if that organ lies originally well back as a well-behaved kidney should.

A New Disease Found.

Dr. Leonard H. Hirschberg of Baltimore announces the discovery of a new disease which he has given the name of anaphylactia. Anaphylactia or anaphylaxis, according to the doctor, is just the reverse of immunity or resistence to diseases. If you are vaccinated or recover from a fever and never get it again, you are an immune. Yellow fever, typhoid and scarlet fevers are immunizing maladies.

If you are laid low by pneumonia, malaria and tuberculosis you are more susceptible than you were before to those same pathological catchpoles. These, as Dr. Hirshberg proves, instead of being parasites are anaphylactogenic diseases. Once a man recovers from pneumonia he is apt to have it two, three, four or more times.

Anaphylaxis is a condition of the blood and tissue juces of our bodies, due to a weakening of one of its chemical constituents, which he has named anaphylactine. There is also, he stated, a phenomenon of antianaphylaxis, which in one of the stages of immunity. Dr. Hirshberg points out that cancers and tumors may be cured when this principle is understood.

Powerful Incandescent Lamps.

An incandescent lamp giving as much light as an arc-lamp would be preferable to the arc-lamp on account of the superior quality of its light, and its slighter demand for supervision. But hitherto it has been found impossible to give an incandescent lamp a power exceeding about fifty candles, because of the extreme fragility of the filaments required for higher intensities of light. This difficulty has been, at least to a large degree, overcome in the new Fixfar incandescent lamp, manufactured in Paris. High tension of current is avoided by means of a special transformer of the Weissman type, which is placed in the lamp itself, and lowers the tension of an alternating current to forty volts. The filaments are larger than in the ordinary high-tension lamp, and the temperature higher, so that a luminosity of from 100 to 1200 candles may be obtained.—[Youth's Companion.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Miss Delia Chapin Torrey, of Millbury, Mass., well known as President Taft's Aunt Delia, was 85 years old last week. She is in excellent health. No special plans were made for the celebration of her birthday.

Mrs. Harriet M. Martin, of Newcastle, N. H., who is 93 years old, is the oldest "office girl" in the world, it is believed. For many years she has been in charge of a doctor's office in that town.

Miss Helen Miller Gould is building one of the largest of private swimming pools at her country home in Irvington-on-the-Hudson. The pool will measure 35x70 feet. It will be inclosed in a one-story brick and limestone building, covering an area 55x105 feet. The exterior will conform with the architecture of other buildings on the estate. The interior will be fashioned after a Roman bath, in Pompeiian style. There will be fountains, with statuary, resting rooms, and shower baths. The structure will cost about $50,000.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, now in her 92d year was present at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., when Rev. Dr. Marion Leroy Burton was inducted into the presidential office. The honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities—her third doctorate—was conferred upon Mrs. Howe. When she was brought onto the platform in a wheel chair to receive the degree, the entire audience rose to its feet. After the degree had been conferred there was a tremendous burst of applause, and then the audience, numbering about three thousand, sang Mrs. Howe's 'Battle Hymn of the Republic.'

Mrs. Charles Netcher, of Chicago, is acting manager and owner with her children of one of the largest department stores in the world. The store covers 15 acres of floor space, represents an investment of more than $15,000,000 and employs upward of 3000 persons. Six years ago when her husband died the store occupied an old building. Mrs. Netcher has replaced it with a fire-proof structure more than five times as large as the old one. Besides managing her store, Mrs. Netcher is bringing up three sons and a daughter.

Miss Mabel Edith Ransom of Perry, Ok., has enrolled in the new department of home economics at the University of Kansas. To do this she rode her two-years old pony 350 miles, because she could not bear the thought of leaving her pet at home, and was afraid to send him by train lest he might be injured. She averaged over 50 miles a day.

Mrs. Isaac Rice, at the head of the Antinoise Society of New York, has four daughters who are also interested in making the world as quiet a place as possible. Muriel is a writer, having had a book of poems printed in English and translated into foreign languages. Another daughter, Dorothy, is a painter, and Marion is a mathematician, while Marjory, a fourth daughter, has for her hobby kindness to animals.

Why He Eschewed Oysters.

"Economy," said Daniel W. Field, the millionaire shoe manufacturer of Boston, who at the age of 45 has entered Harvard, "economy is essential to wealth, but by economy I don't mean niggardliness.

"Too many men fail to attain wealth because they practice cheese-paring and mean economy that gets everybody down on them.

"They practice, in fact, an economy like that of old William Brewster, of Sag Harbor. William, you know, would never buy oysters because he couldn't eat the shells and all."—[Washington Star.

Health and Beauty Answers.

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Mrs. J. S.: Wrinkles and other marks of approaching old age which now worry you are very common. However, you will not have to worry if you will follow this simple treatment. Apply to your face every night a greaseless cream jelly made by mixing two teaspoonfuls glycerine and one ounce almozoin into one-half pint cold water. Stir and let stand several hours before using. Massage frequently with this cream. It will remove all dirt and excess oil from the skin pores and in time you will not have a rough, wrinkled face, but a fresh, smooth, clean-looking skin of velvety texture. I also find this preparation excellent for removing tan, sunburn, blackheads, freckles and large pores in the skin.

R. P. N.: To whiten and beautify your face, neck and arms, dissolve four ounces of spurmax in a half-pint hot water, adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply this lotion freely and it will tone up your skin wonderfully and quickly. It makes the skin soft and smooth, and will remove that shiny, muddy look which is so annoying to you. You will find this lotion much better to use than face powder, as it does not rub off easily like powder nor does it give one's face that "powdered look." I find this spurmax lotion excellent for removing and preventing freckles, chapping and roughness of the skin.

J. O.: To remove those disfiguring hairs from your face and forearms mix a little delatone with enough water to make a paste, cover the surface of the skin where the unsightly hairs are growing, let it remain two or three minutes, then wipe off and wash the surface with warm water. Although your druggist will charge you a dollar for an ounce of delatone, this safe treatment for superfluous hair is preferred to the electric needle, for delatone is painless, less expensive and can be applied in the privacy of your own home. Should the hairs return, they will be light, thin and straggly. A second or third treatment with delatone will remove them forever.

Josephine: In treating your scalp for dandruff, it is necessary to keep the scalp as clean as possible. Shampoo freely and as often as you need it, but never use soap or a soap jelly, as the alkali will make your hair dull, lifeless and your scalp harsh. Shampoo with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water; then rinse in clear water. You will find this a wonderful shampoo; it will put new life into your hair and cleanse your scalp as no other shampoo will. It lathers freely, dries quickly without streaking and leaves the hair lustrous, fluffy and easy to do up. After the hair is dry apply the same tonic recommended to Mrs. R. P.

Mrs. R. P.: If your hair is getting so thin that you have to wear false hair, you should begin at once a treatment to rid your scalp of dandruff which is the direct cause of all scalp and hair troubles. If you will mix together an ounce of quinzoin, one-half pint of alcohol and one-half pint of cold water you will have a dependable remedy for your hair troubles. Rub this gently into the roots of the hair twice a week, and it will destroy the dandruff, stop your falling hair and in time promote a new growth of hair. This quinine tonic applied regularly will make your hair soft, lustrous and keep it from splitting at the ends.

Minnie H.: As you do not like the idea of wearing glasses since they make you look so much older, why don't you try treating them first with a good eye tonic? If you will get an ounce of crystos, dissolve it in a pint of water, you will have an eye remedy that will prove very refreshing and strengthening. Drop a few drops in each eye two or three times a day, and I am sure it will do your eyes a world of good. It will not smart the eyes. I find it excellent for dull, tired, watery eyes, and a great aid even to those who have to wear glasses.

Victoria: As long as your blood is loaded with impurities, those impurities will be forced through your skin, and the application of external remedies will do no lasting good, for they do not reach the cause. Dissolve one ounce of kardene and one-half cup of sugar in one-half pint of alcohol; then add hot water to make a full quart, and you will have enough inexpensive, old-fashioned remedy to rid your blood of impurities, stimulate your liver and correct your digestion. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and your sallow skin will again take on the beautiful color nature intended you to have. Your circulation and general health will improve and the sores, blotches, redness and other eruptions will cease to trouble you. No better general system tonic can be made than by following this kardene recipe. Try it and get rid of that "run-down" feeling.

Juliet: Yes, anyone afflicted with superfluous flesh is always at a big disadvantage, whether married or single. To get rid of that annoying fat, stop at your druggist's the next time you are down town and get four ounces of parnotis. Dissolve this in 1½ pints hot water and take a tablespoonful three times a day (five minutes before each meal) and your burdensome flesh will soon be cut down. The effect of this harmless remedy is generally noticeable within a week, and you will feel much better.

SIX-ROOM BUNGALOW A GEM—NEAR WEST ADAMS ST.

This bungalow is certainly a revelation in interior arrangement. All three front rooms, the living-room, dining-room and den open together with pillars between, making a striking effect that impresses you the minute you step through the front door; the lighting fixtures were designed and made especially for this house and are distinctively beautiful; the ceilings are beamed; there are built-in bookcases in the den, and other built-in features about the house that will win the appreciation of each member of the household; the kitchen is immaculate in pure white enamel and is fitted with numerous conveniences to lighten the toil of the housekeeper; the bath is also enameled an immaculate white that suggests cleanliness; the bedrooms are beautifully decorated and are sunny, airy rooms. To own this house means to live in real comfort and enjoyment with the knowledge that you made an extremely good buy at $3600, the price asked.

The demand for homes on Gramercy Place, Wilshire district, has taken up practically every desirable residence on this street that can be had for the price asked for this one. The lot is 125—the grounds have all been laid out and planted with lawn, flowers, etc.; the house is absolutely new—never yet been occupied—and contains the very latest in decoration and equipment; the living-room and den combined extend clear across front of house and open direct to front porch; this room is equipped with many built-in features and a splendid open fire place; the dining-room is bright and sunny, lighted by a circle bay window on the south side; the two bedrooms are simply fine—well ventilated and well lighted by the many windows; excellent bath; a kitchen that would please any housewife; large screen porch with laundry trays. For Wilshire property on Gramercy Place this is a veritable bargain for $5000.

NINE-ROOM HOME ON HIGH GROUND—EAST FRONT.

A home of these dimensions and charming situation can not be equalled for any such price as we ask for this—our written description will bear us out to a certain extent, but when you SEE the property you will agree with us absolutely. Imagine a splendid home of nine rooms, each one a large room, and all so arranged and equipped as to secure the maximum of convenience without sacrificing beauty and good taste; the living-room extends full width of the house and has a wide recess for the open fire place and comfortable built-in seats; the dining-room is just back of this room and is all that the most attractive dining-room should be, cheery and well lighted with fine big oval window, the buffet is very large and very artistic; the den is just off the dining-room, a cozy room with built-in bookcases and attractive decorations; there are four bedrooms beside a sleeping porch, all large size rooms with windows and closets enough for anyone; pleasant roomy kitchen; fine cement basement. The yard is laid out like a well-kept park, with lawns and flower bordered walks; the fine homes on every side make the surroundings extremely agreeable and we honestly believe that you could not purchase a more desirable home anywhere for this amount—$7500.

FINE TEN-ROOM HOME ELEVATED LOT.

A broad cement front porch runs clear across the front of this large comfortable home, with wide, hospitable entrance to very attractive reception hall; you pass through an archway into the handsomely finished living-room, well lighted and extremely inviting, with its many windows, pressed brick mantel and built-in bookcases; dining-room is a fine room, with artistic buffet and center light; an especially noteworthy feature of the house is the unusually large and well lighted kitchen; has six windows, woodstone sink with extra wide board; servant's room and bath on this floor; hardwood floors; furnace; three bedrooms upstairs, one fitted with lavatory; large sleeping porch; white enameled bath; storeroom on this floor; front and rear yards improved with lawn, trees and flowers. And in addition to the attractive features already named, the property has an east frontage—a very desirable and valuable feature. Price $8000.

TEN-ROOM RESIDENCE ON ST. ANDREWS—GARAGE

This fine home will impress you with the carefulness with which every little detail of construction has been worked out, and the many little conveniences and touches of elegance that give the house character and beauty; the lot is 60x150; front of house trimmed in Chatsworth Park sandstone; fine cement front porch with steps leading to porte cochere at one end; artistic archway between reception hall and living-room; handsome den paneled in mahogany to within a foot of ceiling and has French glass doors to pergola; broad buffet runs clear across one end of dining-room, casement windows at either end; dining-room fixtures are of hammered brass with glass shades in poinsettia design; the white enameled buffet kitchen is a perfect model with four series of cupboards and drawers; there is back stairway; four exquisite bedrooms decorated in separate color effects of blue, pink, gray and green, and rose and gray; mahogany doors of one solid panel with cut glass knobs; sleeping porch glass enclosed on three sides; bath elegantly fitted, massive standard oval lavatory and wide oval mirror; cement driveway to garage. Price $11,300.

TEN ROOMS—LOT 60x160 WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS.

There isn't a handsomer home in the city that you could buy at the figure asked for this one—in fact, you could not buy a lot and put up a house to equal this for the same amount of money. The house contains 10 exceptionally fine rooms; the entire lower floor is finished in hard woods and the third floor is plastered and tinted, with walls hung in heavy burlap; the living-room is paneled to the window line in mahogany selected for its beauty and fine graining, the fine wide mantel is of Gruby tile and mahogany; the den is a real beauty and opens to a charming patio and flower garden; the breakfast room is dainty and light, all in fresh white enamel and has a built-in buffet; there is an elegant buffet in the dining-room, all art and beveled plate glass set in copper; a handsome stairway ascends from the large reception hall, with fine art glass window at the landing; there are five big bedrooms together with a sleeping porch, and every room has its separate lavatory with hot and cold water connections; the walls are hung with expensive papers in exquisite designs and each room has from 3 to 5 windows; two elegant baths, one exceptionally large and all in tile; there is bath toilet and lavatory complete for servants on the lower floor; the kitchen is a big convenient room fully equipped and there is large fine pass entry. Before you look any further you will find it worth while to look at this splendid home that you can buy all ready to occupy for $15,000.

ALVARADO BOULEVARD ELEGANT HOME—VALUABLE SITE

The very finest class of homes in the city are close neighbors to this one, and the short distance to town is another very attractive feature. The house is solidly built, the first floor of blue brick and the second floor of plaster; this same solidity of construction is carried out in every detail, and the greatest degree of care has been taken throughout the interior finish of the house and in selecting the colors and designs for the decorations; there are ten splendid rooms fitted with every imaginable comfort, beautiful hardwood finish and selected hardwood floors; the downstairs rooms are exquisitely decorated, lighting fixtures in elaborate and artistic designs; the bedrooms upstairs are delightfully sunny and well supplied with windows; there are adequate quarters for servants and every convenience necessary to keep up so fine a home; the rooms are most comfortably arranged; the lot itself is exceptionally large, measuring 70x160 feet, and extends to rear alley. It is an unusual opportunity to buy so ideal a home in so ideal a location, and at a reasonable figure. Price $25,000.

The south and east exposure make this a most desirable house to live in the year round—it will get all the sunshine there is—and that is what is needed in a home in Southern California. The winding cement walk from the corner to the steps at the end of the cement porch gives a pleasing effect; the porch across the front would be enjoyed as an outdoor living-room; a handsome oak door opens into the long living-room, which is most inviting with its brick and stone mantel at one end and comfortable seats either side with windows above; the beamed ceiling lends dignity to the room; the center fixture is a shower of fine light and the side lights are combination gas and electric; mission oak finish; the den opens off with an archway between, and here one could while away many happy hours; one side is lined with bookcases with glass doors and knobs, one side are three casement windows and on the front a very wide window, on a third side is a French glass door leading to side porch; hardwood floors throughout. The diningroom is the "feature" of the house; it is long, one end being all windows with a French glass door opening on side porch, at the other end is a breakfast alcove with just a suggestion of an archway separating it; there are all windows at this end also, so that practically the two ends of the dining-room could be entirely opened to the sunshine and fresh air—[illegible]. The dining-room is paneled in oak to the ceiling which slopes from the center on either side and has cross beams from the center one; from this beam there are three distinct lights, quite a distance apart, so that the dining-room is evenly lighted all over, then with the buffet with its art leaded glass doors this dining-room is complete; under the windows in the breakfast alcove is another buffet with a broad top; combination side fixtures in all rooms; nothing could be more complete than the white enamel buffet kitchen, with [illegible] water heater, many drawers and [illegible] and broad sink; the screen porch [illegible] tub, cement cellar, furnace and [illegible] fenced, everything has been thought of; three beautiful bedrooms, [illegible] in white enamel, walls in [illegible] dainty papers, large closets with [illegible] and hat boxes; many windows, [illegible] best plumbing in bath, long mirror, [illegible] drawers; the front yard is in lawn [illegible] fine palms and ornamental trees; [illegible] is a home in the true sense of the word. IN THE TREND OF PROGRESS.

ON THE VENICE SHORT LINE.

THERE IS NO OTHER SPECIFIC SECTION IN THE whole South-west to-day where the profit to be realized in so short a time will be as great as that derived by the purchasers who now invest their money in property along the VENICE SHORT LINE. Property on the line of the subway that is now being offered for sale can never again be purchased at such ridiculously low prices as are now prevailing, and it can be truthfully stated that in one year from now every piece of property we are now selling will be quoted at exactly twice the present price. It is hard for even the most optimistic person to realize what it will mean to be within 15 minutes of the heart of the city, to be able to enjoy all the pleasures of a country home and at the same time retain and have all the conveniences of the city.

ONLY — $1500 — ONLY.

Large 100x151½ foot lot, east front, cement walks and curbs, high ground, beautiful view, and only 30 minutes out now; will soon be 15 minutes. Easy terms.

$1500.

A beautiful acre, 100x300 feet, an easterly exposure on a wide boulevard, close to car line; cool in summer, and a rare bargain at price asked. Terms easy.

$1800.

A fine acre, well located, 102½x151½ feet, elegant soil, high ground, beautiful view. Just the place for a rambling California bungalow.

FOR SALE—
$1400—WILSHIRE'S HIGHEST POINT.
This 53-foot north front lot is $500 cheaper than the south fronts directly across the street, not because south fronts are high, but because this lot is cheap, and, as north fronts usually cost more than south fronts, you can imagine what a bargain this is. This lot is easily worth $2000 now and is increasing fast in value. This is about the last of the summer hard-time bargains.

FOR SALE—
TURLOCK IRRIGATED LANDS.
20 to 40 acres.
$100 PER ACRE UPWARD.
UPON MOST LIBERAL TERMS.

Excellent climate, rich land, abundance of water, cheap transportation.

"Union Temperance Colonies" contain admittedly the cheapest and most productive soil in the Modesto-Turlock Irrigation Area. It is known and designated upon the U. S. Soil Map as "Fresno Sandy Loam," considered and recommended by the U. S. government soil experts as the most adaptable land in California for alfalfa, sweet potatoes, vegetables, berries, etc.

Only 2½ miles from the Southern Railway at Keyes, 4½ miles from Ceres, where there is a well equipped creamery. Whenever necessary their wagon calls and collects your cream, thus eliminating the expense of hauling.

Your crops are assured by the never failing supply of water, furnished from the greatest and most complete irrigation system in the United States. You own your own water, and it is always at your command. The supply is never affected by dry years as in the case of wells.

All our assertions are more than confirmed in the "Soil Survey of the Modesto-Turlock Area, California," a copy of which can be obtained by writing to us. When you buy in the "Turlock" you are advised to do so by the highest authorities in the country on lands, the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

WHY WE CAN AFFORD TO SELL OUR PROPERTIES UPON MORE LIBERAL TERMS THAN OPERATORS IN LESS FAVORED LOCALITIES.

Deferred payments are assured by the magnitude of the yield of the lands.

By employing intensive farming methods you can make upon a conservative estimate from 1 acre in sweet potatoes, $175.
1 acre in beans, $150.
1 acre in berries, $[illegible].
1 acre in cantaloupes, $100 to $150.
These quotations are conducted from authentic source. Citations from "Sunny Stanislaus," a booklet compiled by L. W. Fulkerth, judge of Superior Court of Stanislaus, for distribution by the Chamber of Commerce of said county.

No land in California will yield the immense interest on the invested capital that these will.

We have several unexcelled properties from 20 to 40 acres planted in alfalfa and Malaga grapes. Alfalfa land from $150 to $160. Lands in Malaga grapes, $175 an acre. The alfalfa and grapes are three years old, respectively.

DON'T DELAY, but write today for free literature.

GOLD AND SILVER FROM EVERGLADES MUCK LAND.

The Florida Everglades Muck Land has proved to be richer than the bonanza fields of the west. Why is this so you ask? It is so because an ordinary man devoting his entire time to farming in this region is able to make $450 to $500 yearly profit from each acre of land. He can do this without investing money in farming equipment. He does not have to kill himself to do it, as he would working in a shop or office. The richness of the land affords three crops a year. Situated below the frost line, the crops are never subject to a heavy freeze. No rocs, sand, stumps, etc. Land clear and ready for plowing. Market facilities unsurpassed. Healthiest climate in the world. This region is the winter resort of thousands of the richest people in the north. Write for beautifully illustrated booklet and learn what the U. S. Government thinks of it.

In the San Fernando Valley, with the cheapest and purest water in the county piped by gravitation to the property, and a perpetual right to that water running with the land, should sound pretty good to the old Californian, and we will say to the newcomer that we will put our reputation back of this property, as a producer, when properly handled. It is worth $400 an acre and will soon be worth $1000. We can deliver it at $250 per acre, ⅓ cash, or possibly a little less cash, to the right parties. OWENS RIVER VALLEY
STOCK RANCH

If you are looking for a large stock proposition in the Owens River Valley, we have the map of the entire country. 1040 acres practically all under cultivation with all the necessary buildings and out-buildings, including creamery, electric plant for lighting and power, 400 acres under fence, 160 acres in alfalfa, 50 acres in corn. Absolute ownership in a stream carrying 1000 miners inches of water, together with first call on another stream, reservoir of 12 acres with a capacity of 20,000,000 gallons. Also lake, seven miles from ranch, where unlimited water can be developed. This ranch is strictly a fattening proposition, but in view of the fact that you can get practically unlimited mountain range for summer feeding, it makes it ideal for stock. The water situation in Owens Valley is very peculiar in the fact that although there is sufficient water to irrigate the entire valley, it is owned by holders of one-tenth of the land. Therefore, one buying a proposition of this kind will be able to develop and sell water in such amounts that he can make the price of his land and retain full control of the ranch with all the water necessary. Owens River Valley is on the verge of a big boom and buying today at wholesale prices is going to assure large profits. This property is worth the serious consideration of one who is able to handle it and can appreciate its possibilities.

OWENS VALLEY
NEW RAILROAD COMPLETED
OCTOBER 15TH.
On October 15th, 1910, the Southern Pacific Railroad will be completed into the Owens Valley, connecting with the present narrow gauge, thereby permitting people to see this beautiful country without the excessive cost of automobile fare.

If you have given any thought to going into a new farming community, you owe it to yourself to call at this office and investigate Owens River Valley.

We predict a land boom in this beautiful country in the next two years that will exceed anything California has ever known or seen.

We predict that Owens River Valley is going to be the kitchen for Los Angeles and supply a vast majority of its table products.

Owens River Valley has soil, climatic and water conditions that make the growing of fruit and vegetables nearly perfect. This is proven by what it is now doing, under very crude methods. If you could see the corn in our office you would agree that Illinois never produced any better. If you could see the potatoes and onions you would agree that Colorado never produced better or in larger quantities. If you know anything about apples, the money-maker for the farmer today, come to our office and see the samples and learn the true condition of the Owens River Valley. We will prove to you that on 20 acres in Owens River Valley are worth 80 acres elsewhere. We will prove to you that on 20 acres your life problem is solved and that you will have money in the bank yearly.

We have been accused of making bold statements about Owens River Valley. We will prove every word. We cannot over-state it.

If you cannot call, cut out and mail the enclosed coupon. We will send you literature as soon as it comes from the press.

FOR SALE—WHEN WE ADVERTISE THAT we have some SPECIAL offerings in Sinaloa, Mexico, of rich agricultural lands, it is not for the purpose of getting you up to the office, and then open up on a lot of tracts, that have been peddled around town for twelve months, and which could not be delivered on a show-down. We have three pieces of property, within a few miles of Culiacan, DIRECT FROM THE OWNERS, which consist of a rich deep alluvial silt soil, with ample available water and with American ranchers on all sides. Any of these properties can be bought at a low figure, and liberal terms. Titles are perfect. We do not mention the price of these lands, for the reason that if you are INTERESTED you will write or call on us anyway. The country in Sinaloa is looking its best now, the rainy season being practically over, and one will not lack for company in making the trip. Would advise early inspection by prospective buyers. $14,000—10 acres; owner will allow $4000 for the crop. 10,312.

$8000—5 acres, crop 1500 to 2000 boxes; improvements, absolutely free water, $4500 down, balance $1000 annually. 10,611.

$35,000—20 acres, splendid income grove, navels and Valencias, trees mostly 15 years old, always kept in first-class condition; good modern improvements; annual net returns for the past five years 10 per cent. on $35,000; crop estimate about 7000 boxes; $14,000 down, balance easy terms. 10,[illegible].

One of the best income groves in Southern California, 21 acres, all navels, part 10, part 11 years old, in best possible condition, about 10,000 boxes on the trees; new, strictly modern improvements, worth at least $7500, team, wagon and all equipment, furniture, etc., included; this grove is a big producer, a splendid investment, a beautiful home, fine grounds, shrubbery, flowers, magnificently located; if you are looking for the best, don't fail to see this grove. 10,[illegible].

No. 10,[illegible]—A good buy, 10 acres, some Valencias, mostly navels, about 3000 boxes on the trees, practically free water, on the new Pacific railroad line; $[illegible] down, balance 5 years, "on or before."

$15,000—10 acres, navels, estimate of crop 4000 boxes. 10,[illegible].

Can give immediate possession to one of the choicest small groves in Southern California, location famous San Dimas district, a section as immune from frost as any in Southern California; grove in best possible condition, heavy crop on the trees; 5½ acres, part navels, part Valencias, finely located near San Dimas, good new strictly modern 6-room bungalow; nice home and a splendid investment.

10,795—$15,000—Part lemons, part oranges, in fine condition; for a short time can deliver at $15,000.

$8000—5 acres, an immense crop, estimate 2500 boxes, always kept in best producing state.

One of the best income producing lemon and orange groves in Southern California has just been placed exclusively in my hands for sale. Owner is compelled to soon return east to look after eastern property interests; location, Upland district; a good lemon locality; this grove has been held by present owner a long time; is now and always has been kept in the best possible condition; immense crop set on trees; 15 acres, all in full bearing, about 15 years old; 9 acres Eureka lemons; 6 acres navel oranges; extra water rights included; if it is income property you are looking for, and you are able to swing this proposition, this is the grove you should see; gross income for the past five years at least $[illegible] annually, income for the past year over $[illegible]; what better do you want? Best of soil, good improvements. $[illegible] buys it; half down; no trade considered; would not now be on the market, but owner must shortly return east; splendid team, harness, wagons, implements, hay, all equipment to run the ranch included.

$10,000—20 acres, 12½ unimproved, fine citrus soil, balance of acreage navel and Valencia oranges; fine crop, San Dimas district; magnificent elevated building site, overlooking the valley. 10,[illegible].

$17,500—This is one of the choice orange groves in the Upland-Ontario District, splendidly located; 10 acres—about 1000 trees, is one of the best producing groves in the country; is capable of producing at least [illegible] boxes; the crop now on the trees will run at least [illegible] boxes, in first-class condition; excellent soil, well worth $17,500, but as the owner is now in the East and his interests compel him to remain there, he has instructed me to sell the grove at once, and has intimated that for a short time I can shade the price—satisfactory terms of payment can be made. Look the property over at once and make me a proposition.

$22,500—This grove is in full bearing, about 4 acres Valencias, balance navels, good crop; owner wants to sell this week, and offers grove at the low price of $22,500 for quick sale; look it over.

Here is an opportunity for some one to acquire a first-class grove on very easy terms. On account of owner having engaged in business undertakings which demand his personal attention, he offers this grove on exceedingly liberal terms; an abundant water supply, excellent soil; immense crop of fruit; nominal improvements; $[illegible] will buy the entire property, $15,000 down, balance can be paid out of the crop each year, in reasonable satisfactory annual payments; if desired owner will divide the acreage and make very liberal terms; this property I consider a bargain, and whoever purchases it will certainly find it a good investment.

$22,500—20 acres, magnificently located, 8-room house, barn, fine shrubbery, flowers, trees in full bearing; part lemons, part oranges; a very heavy crop on the trees, in fine condition. Better look it over.

I want an offer and want it quickly, on one of the finest young orange groves in Southern California; 19 acres, trees only 4 years old; although they look like 6 or 7-year-old trees, in first-class condition; crop estimate 300 boxes, beautifully located near the foothills, where there is practically no danger whatever from injurious frosts; price $20,000; this can be shaded for quick sale; this grove in two or three years should bring $35,000; 15 acres Valencias, 4 acres navels; if you want a good investment, you cannot better this grove.

With one or two exceptions I have the EXCLUSIVE SALE of all the above groves.

FOR EXCHANGE—TRADE—
In the growing city of CORPUS CHRISTI, SOUTHWEST TEXAS, where the UNITED STATES are spending heaps of money in the deepening of the channel, we are offering for trade for Los Angeles income-paying property a corner 75x150 on one of the principal streets. Improvements are one 11-room house, one 5-room house and one large bath-house on the bay front. Property is now bringing in a rental of $75 per month, and is always rented. There is plenty of room on the lot to erect other two houses, which would increase the rental to $150 month. Our price on the property is $15,000; incumbrance only $3000, payable at the rate of $1000 per year. What have you got to offer in trade?

BUSINESS CHANCES—
For Sale.

AN ENERGETIC BUSINESS ASSOCIATE with at least $250 cash is what we want. Ours is an old established, prosperous mercantile concern. We are continually extending the business. Profit comes mainly from the business done by numerous branch establishments. We make this "ad" plain, as much for your benefit as for our own. If you are not the person we want then you do not wish to waste your time talking to us. If you have $250 up to $10,000 ready cash that you can invest now and are active and ambitious, and have at least a little knowledge of business (just enough to make change correctly, is all that is positively required), we want you as an associate, and can put you in one of the new opening branches of our business that you handle practically as your own and in your own way. Similar circumstances are now paying others from $100 to $250 a month. Following our special extra plan we will guarantee your success by personally depositing cash immediately in the bank in your name that will give you your money back and (20 per cent.) profit on your investment. (This is positively free from any call back by us or anyone else, or necessity of you making good in any way.) Our man's time is valuable and you can make yours so by taking a hand in our business immediately and keeping your part on the move. You can open up business right from the jump. It is up to you to see that the help under you do their work properly. We frankly state that we have no time to waste on people who have not the ready cash or who are slow. We show you that the business now doing settles the question that there is demand for more establishments in our line. One who does not know a twenty (20) dollar gold piece when they see it or who is afraid of work may not reach out for them; if you know one and are willing to get right to work stacking them up for yourself come in to see us. We want the association of workers, men and women, who have money. See our Head Clerk, Sales Department, Office 619 CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BLDG., S. Broadway near 2nd st.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
For Sale.

THERE ARE GOOD OPENINGS FOR three or four kinds of business in Perris, Riverside county, Cal. The best of all is a comparatively small modern dry goods and notion store, with a stock large enough to hold the largest portion of the trade that now goes to a town 18 miles away and to Los Angeles. Which I think amounts to from $40,000 to $50,000 a year, possibly more. The income tributary to this village amounts to $1,500,000 a year and is increasing rapidly. There are over 400 depositors in the local bank, as an old dry goods man, retail and wholesale, I am positive that this is a very good opening for a live, up-to-date man, with a capital of from $5000 to $6000 to start with, to be increased to $10,000 within a year. Such a man with above capital can turn his stock rapidly. The one modern storeroom that I am holding for this business is 25x72 feet. This with two or possibly three stores are in two-story brick buildings, some will not be ready for use before Oct. 30. The one store will be held for dry goods and notions only, and is not for rent with capital of less amount than already mentioned above. There are good openings for several other kinds of stores, but no general store and will not rent to conflicting business. Free water and acetylene gas at about cost. T. H. SHARPLESS, Perris, Riverside Co., Cal.

RESIDENCE LOANS.

The man who uses borrowed money wants to obtain it at the LOWEST RATE OF INTEREST and is entitled to prompt and efficient service.

You can borrow money on improved real estate security from The John M. C. Marble Company AT LESS COST than you can get it through a broker. The Company loans its own money and charges NO COMMISSION.

We want desirable loans on residence property in the Southwest in amounts of $2500 to $75000, and will loan at as low a rate as 6½ per cent. per annum for three years when the loan required is only 25 per cent. of value of property. This low rate applies only to such exceptional security.

THERE IS NO DELAY. THE COMPANY'S OWN MONEY is ready as soon as the loan is approved.

You are saved annoyance. No prospective loaners are sent out to be shown through your property. The Company's appraiser inspects the security and the loan is made on his approval.

Coupons representing the interest for each period are attached to the notes. When you pay the interest the Coupons are canceled and given to you as your receipt.

Won't you call at the office and let us know whether you will be in the market for money in the near future?

FOR SALE—THE OIL INDUSTRY HAS more than made good—it is returning millions in dividends—it is our most profitable industry today. Are you in it and making money, or just looking on? Going to be too late one of these days; take advantage of the present oil opportunities. Don't delay, but get particulars of one of the best oil stocks ever offered on this market at a real ground floor price. Property almost surrounded by a production and absolutely proven. All machinery, tools and casing bought and paid for. Actually operating, no better management and no better proposition anywhere. Not one reason why this is not first-class in every detail. Many of the people who have bought stock in this enterprise are practical local business men who are familiar with the present-day oil situation and our several fields and they have doubtless had many oil propositions submitted to them, but on investigation and visiting our property they bought our stock, because they thought it best. This is worthy of your immediate investigation. Drop a postal card to our address as below for all particulars. We can't force you to buy this stock; we submit you the proposition, and it is then up to you. The person who does not succeed in the calendar, he never investigates. The successful person investigates, it costs nothing, and if good, he grasps the opportunity. This is your opportunity, if you have any money, and it is indeed a poor man that can't scare up at least $50 or $100. Don't delay, but write at once for particulars. Address C, box 28, TIMES OFFICE.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

Why We Grow

OVER fifty-four miles of homes!

In going over the 986 building permits issued in September you will find that 487 were for either homes or business buildings.

Now, supposing these buildings were built on fifty-foot lots—and there is no doubt the average would run over sixty feet—that would mean over four and a half miles of homes built in one month, or fifty-four miles a year. How long would it take to build a great city at this rate? Not so very long.

The point we want to make is this: Do you realize you are living in the most progressive city in the world? We believe we realize it, for we've tried to keep pace with it by bringing the new things to you almost the identical moment they appear in New York. And we sell every article in our stores as low or lower than you can buy them in an Eastern city. We've kept pace with the city in every way. We know of no stores in any city that employ a better class of salesmen than we do. We know of no stores on earth that try to do more for their patrons; sell them only the highest grades of merchandise and insure every article so that the purchaser can shop here with every confidence. We have no favorite customers, give no discounts, price every article at the very lowest possible price consistent with legitimate merchandising, and ask you for your patronage frankly because we believe we deserve it.

Besides a half hundred other well-known lines of high-grade merchandise, we feature

WORKING BOYS' CLUB.

Mrs. L. M. Vance, founder and manager of the Working Boys' Club, No. 1058 South Main street, has opened an industrial shop in connection with the club, where the boys can find useful employment, and at the same time help in a small way to maintain the club. In the five years that Mrs. Vance has conducted the club she has had under her influence, over 500 boys, who have no other home to which to go. The number has increased to quite a large family, so that she finds it difficult to get work for them. She solicits contributions of all kinds of castoff articles, which will be repaired in the shop and the refuse sold for junk. In this way she expects to help pay the expenses of the club. ANARCHY.

TUCSON IS THREATENED.

DYNAMITERS AND INCENDIARIES ENDANGER CITY'S LIFE.

RAILROAD SHOPS MAY BE ABANDONED BECAUSE OF FIRES.

UNIONS TACITLY ADMIT ORGANIZED LABOR IS GUILTY.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Oct. 11.—The business men of Tucson are "up against" a situation which in many respects resembles that known in Los Angeles at last it has been appreciated that anarchistic dynamiters and firebugs are at work in this city and that through their work the city has grievously suffered, and may have still further serious losses.

About a year ago the residence of Superintendent McGovern of the Southern Pacific company was blown up with dynamite, soon after the discharge of a number of railroad men for failure of duty. Since then a number of small fires have mysteriously been started at the great railroad shops that furnish the financial life blood of the community, in the shape of a pay roll that reaches $200,000 a month.

On the night of September [illegible] a fire was extinguished by a watchman in the railroad machine shops. Later that night two fires broke out at different points, destroying the shops, save for the car-repairing buildings, and doing about $100,000 damage to the company, inclusive of the cost of repairs on about a dozen locomotives, which are badly needed for hauling the present heavy traffic.

Just a week later, and again at night, fire was discovered in the carpenter shop, which was destroyed, together with a small storehouse near by, fast work saving the larger car-repair shops. The loss is not heavy, only a couple of thousand dollars at the most, but the meaning of the fire was something far more serious. After the blaze had been extinguished, there was found a section of freshly-used and partially burned fuse, with which it was plain an incendiary had accomplished his work.

DELIBERATELY CRIMINAL.

There had been no doubt in the minds of the railroad officials that the previous fires had been lighted with deliberate criminal intent, and now the proof is at hand. Some person or organization has started to destroy the property of the Southern Pacific company in this city, even to the wiping out of the small remnant that was left of the shops after the fire of a week ago.

Superintendent Whalen of the Tucson division of the railroad, and President Epes Randolph of the Arizona Eastern branches of the main line are in no doubt as to the incendiary nature of the fires and in this opinion they are joined by H. V. Platt, district superintendent, who arrived soon after the latest fire, to investigate the circumstances with respect to the burning of the shops destroyed.

According to Col. Randolph "it is almost impossible for the Southern Pacific company to get a conviction in this county for crimes against its property. A public sentiment is needed to provide for such safety. Fire and dynamite methods are becoming all too common in many parts of the United States. This small fire, insignificant in one sense, but very significant in another, may have the effect of delaying momentarily the contemplated restoration of the shops at Tucson. What encouragement has the railroad to build shops if they may be burned down at will?"

With this unpalatable morsel to chew upon, a committee of business men waited upon Mr. Platt, to assure him that the spirit of the community is strongly against the lawlessness so evident and that every possible remedy will be invoked. Mr. Platt, after statement of his previous opinion that Tucson is an unsafe place for the company to operate in, expressed a feeling that the general sentiment of the city is with the company in its desire to protect its property. At the same time he expressed grave doubts as to the advisability of rebuilding at all, as there is danger of dynamite or of the torch.

So, as an earnest of the city's stand for the right, there has just been formed a Good Government League, its one object to see that order is maintained and the law enforced. The reconstruction of the shops has been made a subordinate matter, however important it be in the economics of Tucson.

UNIONS WITHHOLD RE

The directors of the Tucson Chamber of Commerce have enlisted that body in the same cause and have passed resolutions condemning the lawless element and promising aid in stamping out such crimes as those directed against the railroad.

Several hundred union men have been thrown out of work and many of them have accepted transportation to other points where they hope to find employment. As most of these shop hands are married men, many of them with little homes, the situation is one in which they can well appreciate the rights of property. The men remaining may be counted upon as a committee of safety, with grim determination to hunt down if possible the persons who have deprived them and their families of support.

Alex Collie, arrested in the belief that he is one of The Times building dynamiters, is being held in the County Jail on a charge of disorderly conduct and has not been informed of the real reason for his incarceration. The officers declare he tallies exactly with the descriptions of Bryson that have been sent out from Los Angeles. He has stated that he is familiar with the use of dynamite and it is known that he left Los Angeles the morning of the outrage. William Hogan, arrested with him, has been released. Collie is the second suspect arrested in Arizona, the other being the man, now held at Yuma.

At a joint meeting of the unions of Tucson, it was decided not to send to Los Angeles any resolutions of regret over The Times tragedy. Any resolution that carried strong enough sentiments of condemnation had to be rejected, as leaving possible criticism of labor unions on the coast. Despite this lack of official action, the representatives of organized labor present personally expressed deep sorrow over the tragedy and sympathy for the widows and orphans

COALINGA.

MUCH ACTIVITY BEING SHOWN.

COALINGA OPERATORS WILL INCREASE PRODUCTION.

AGREEMENT JUST SIGNED WILL STIMULATE INDUSTRY.

SEPTEMBER REPORT SHOWS GAIN OVER AUGUST.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

COALINGA, Oct. 11.—The belief that the entire future of the oil business hung upon the possibility of a combination of the big marketers with the agency has turned out true, and already the various producing companies have become active in getting ready for pumping the black fluid again. Many companies here had shut down entirely, and even some of the largest were pumping only a few of their wells. The Premier, with about fourteen producers, was only pumping three, and many others were pumping in proportion.

It is probable that the situation in the Coalinga field will be relieved at once, and that all of the oil now in storage in tanks and sumps on the leases will be at once pumped into the Associated Oil Company's storage tanks here in the field. It is doubtful, however, if the Associated lines will be used to take any more oil than is absolutely necessary to relieve the congestion, as the contract calls for delivery through the Producers' Transportation Company's lines, and by running through the Associated lines that company would get the toll instead of the Producers. The oil will be run and delivered to the Associated at San Luis Obispo, and in that way can be delivered to the Associated tank steamers, after the Producers' Transportation Company has been paid for the pipe line transportation.

A large amount of the present production and storage will have to be delivered locally to the Associated, both in the Coalinga and Kern county fields, and now that there is so much oil in sumps and tanks on the various properties it will probably keep all of the pipe lines busy for some time getting it to market and storage. In the Coalinga field the Associated has storage facilities for about three quarters of a million barrels, and as the agency production in this field is only about 11,000 barrels a day, there is hardly a probability of there being congestion here, even after the present oil in storage on the properties has been moved. It will take some time to get the present supply moved from all of the fields, but with four pipe lines instead of one, there is little fear of having to shut down on production again. The big concrete reservoirs of the Producers' near San Luis Obispo will be completed in a short time, and if the present production holds up another line will probably be laid to parallel the present one to the coast.

There will be many matters for the companies concerned to work out, but the operators are all wearing broad smiles in knowing that they can now move their oil.

Gerh. Meijer, mining engineer of the Oil Company, "Orion," of Amsterdam, Holland, is in Coalinga today on a tour of inspection of the California oil fields. Mr. Meijer did not state whether or not he was here to secure land for his company or was after ideas of the California methods of drilling and producing oil. Meijer is a gentleman of no small experience in the oil business as he has spent many years in the fields of Roumania. These fields produce one of the richest grades of petroleum in the world.

When seen this afternoon he stated that the conditions existing in the California fields and those in which he is operating are vastly different. The power used for drilling in the Roumania fields consists of gasoline and electricity entirely. The oil is obtained at a depth of from 1200 to 1400 feet and the wells are started with 24 inch pipe and finished in eight inch.

The drillers are paid what would be equivalent to $1.25 a day in United States coin and out of this they are able to save at least $1.00 as a man can live well in that country on 25 cents a day. The Standard Oil Company has operations in the Roumanian fields on which American drillers are employed. The wages paid the American driller compares well with the wages received in this country and equals $5.00 a day. Owing to the small expense the men are put to in order to live they make a great profit and as Mr. Meijer says, "They live like kings and ride around in automobiles like the presidents of the companies." In many instances the Americans hire Roumanians to do their work for them at $1.25 a day and stand by to oversee the job. Mr. Meijer will remain in the local field for some time before continuing on his tour of inspection.

The monthly statement of R. W. Dallas, of the Independent Oil Producers' Agency, shows that the production for the month of September is 144,[illegible] barrels more than in the month previous, notwithstanding the fact that a number of companies had shut down pumping entirely. The shipments were nearly 200,000 barrels less than in August and over 300,000 less than in July. The September production fell far below the banner month of July, but the big increase over August, in spite of the large number of shut-downs, shows that the production is steadily gaining. The report shows a falling off in everything except storage and production, as compared with the previous month. There were ten fewer wells drilling, twenty-five more producing wells suspended and ten wells less producing.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Silver Tip Oil Company was held this morning at the office of S. A. Guiberson, Jr., and elected the following officers and directors: S. A. Guiberson, Jr., president; H. R. Crosser, vice-president; W. W. Algren, Dr. E. R. Smith and Z. L. Phelps. The Bank of Coalinga was made the depository and Thomas McIntyre was elected secretary. The report of the management showed that the finances of the company were in the best possible shape, and it is probable that the company will be paying monthly dividends within a short time. Negotiations are now under way by which the Silver Tip will sell oil direct to the refineries at 55 cents per barrel. The oil is light and it is understood that this arrangement will be made with the sanction of the Independent Producers' Agency, of which the Silver Tip is a member.

About ten days ago the K. T. & O. brought in well No. 65 on section 31, 19-15, with a production of about 300 barrels per day. Since that time the well has continued flowing and gradually increasing until it has reached a daily production of 1000 barrels. The well was finished at 2200 feet in six-and-five-eighths-inch casing, and is one of the best producers in the west side. At no time has any of the oil been lost as it was under control from the time it first commenced to flow and the entire output is being cared for.

SEPTEMBER REPORT SHOWS GAIN OVER AUGUST.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

COALINGA, Oct. 14.—The belief that the entire future of the oil business hung upon the possibility of a combination of the big marketers with the agency has turned out true, and already the various producing companies have become active in getting ready for pumping the black fluid again. Many companies here had shut down entirely, and even some of the largest were pumping only a few of their wells. The Peerless, with about fourteen producers, was only pumping three, and many others were pumping in proportion.

It is probable that the situation in the Coalinga field will be relieved at once, and that all of the oil now in storage in tanks and sumps on the leases will be at once pumped into the Associated Oil Company's storage tanks here in the field. It is doubtful, however, if the Associated lines will be used to take any more oil than is absolutely necessary to relieve the congestion, as the contract calls for delivery through the Producers' Transportation Company's line, and by running through the Associated lines that company would get the oil instead of the Producers. The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pine is one of the oldest and best known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guiaicol and all the other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

P.-A.-Y.-E. Cars to Be Operated Over Whole System by Summer—West Eleventh Street Next.

Los Angeles Railway Company officials, who are straining every nerve to make over the entire system through the use of pay-as-you-enter cars, announce that on November 1 the West Eleventh street line will be operated with new cars of this type.

This makes the third line in the city to be turned over to the new cars since early summer.

The first was the Central avenue line, the second the West Ninth street, and the opening of the West Eleventh street line will be followed as rapidly as possible with other changes. Before next summer the entire system is expected to be in operation with the new type of cars.

One hundred new cars have been ordered from St. Louis, and their arrival will aid materially in the change of operation, while as fast as one line is worked over additional batches of cars will be put into the shops for rebuilding.

The operation of the new type also means that electric switches will be installed throughout the system so that it will not be necessary for the conductor to leave the rear end of the car to turn the switches.

Through the tests made by the new cars already in operation it has been found that the accidents caused from getting on and off while in motion getting on and off while in motion have

This means that in a short time the reconstruction of the system will be paid for through the saving in the payment of accident claims.

PURITAS DISTILLED WATER FOR HEALTHFUL DRINKING

A Real Luxury That Is So Inexpensive That All Can Enjoy It.

Pure drinkin water is a real luxury. And many people think of it as a luxury they cannot afford.

As a matter of fact, it is most inexpensive. Five gallons of Puritas Distilled Water cost but 40c.

What the regular use of Puritas may save you, it is quite impossible to say, for in impure water lurk the disease germs that cause illness. And illness eats up money very fast, as most of us know.

Natural waters in Southern California are, in most instances, not pure. They have not only the usual vegetable impurities, but they are strongly impregnated with minerals which are entirely dissolved in the water.

No filter, or other mechanical device will free water from minerals thus held in solution. They are taken into the system when the water is consumed, and the body cannot assimilate them. Instead, they are deposited in the arteries—a fertile cause of rheumatic and kidney troubles.

There are no minerals—or impurities of any kind—in Puritas Distilled Water. It is absolutely pure and soft—the healthful drinking water for every member of the family.

We distill it twice; we earate it with pure ozone. We bottle it in clean glass demijohns, so carefully that it reaches you with all its wholesome purity intact.

Delivered within the old city boundary lines, the price of Puritas is but 40c for Five Gallons. At points farther out, the price is a trifle more. Regular Puritas customers purchase Coupon Books, thus securing the pure water at a discount. When you telephone, ask us about these. Home 10053. Sunset, Main 8191.

Puritas can be obtained through dealers in most towns in Southern California. If you are unable to find it, communicate with us.

TRANSMUTING.

FAMOUS OLD SILVER MINES OF MEXICO NOW PRODUCING GOLD.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 12.—While Mexico has won her mining fame by production of silver and is even now furnishing 60 per cent. of all the silver imported by the United States, it is a fact that more and more, as development progresses and depth is gained, Mexican mines that were formerly rated as pre-eminently silver-yielding are transmuting to gold.

An effective impetus to operations in the famous old camp of Pachuca has been provided by connection of the diggings with the main generating plant of the Mexico Light and Power Company at Necaxa, from which 30,000 horse-power can be drawn on demand. In the past Pachuca mines and reduction works have been seriously handicapped for want of power and it is believed that both development and production will be largely increased from this time on.

Among the companies at Pachuca which promise substantial enlargements of earnings is the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining, which has completed important additions to its mill and power facilities.

Americans resident in Pachuca have organized permanently as a colony, having elected officers to serve for the first term of one year. The society will be incorporated and one of its first moves will be the erection of a public bathhouse.

There are at Pachuca many British subjects, who have made their presence felt by endowment of a ward in the city hospital, as a centennial present.

Early next month the new mill and cyanide plant of La Blanca y Anexas Mining Company will go into commission and the event will be suitably celebrated. A five-year contract for 1000 horse-power has been signed with the Mexico Light and Power Company, and the reduction works, equipped with every modern improvement, will be among the finest on the continent. In the mine are thousands of tons of low-grade ore awaiting treatment.

La Union mill is running full blast, after a brief suspension that was occasioned by power shortage. The San Rafael mines are under contract to furnish that mill 100 tons a day for seven years and from other diggings the plant receives ore enough to keep it busy at full capacity, 200 tons daily.

Work of enlargement of the Loreto mill and cyanide plant of the Real del Monte Company will soon be ended, the crushers and stamps having all been delivered and the nine Krupp tube mills being ready for immediate installation. The equipment will include fourteen Pachuca tanks and the total capacity of the mill when completed will be 650 tons a day. The Guerrero mill, owned by the same company, is now treating 400 tons daily and it will be increased in capacity as soon as the work on the Loreto works is finished. Many improvements are also being made in the aerial tramway which delivers ore from the Real del Monte to the Guerrero mill. This is one of the properties of the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company.

ADDING MACHINERY.

Much machinery is being added to the shops of the Santa Gertrudis under the new management of the Camp Bird Company, which increased its share capital from £830,000 to £1,250,000 and created an issue of £500,000 six per cent. debentures to provide capital for the purchase of Santa Gertrudis, taken over at £922,151. Down to present levels this Pachuca bonanza has produced about $10,000,000, gold, and engineers estimate that there is an equal value in ores lying along the seventeenth and eighteenth levels. The pay shoots vary in width from sixteen to thirty-five feet and even while paying for costly new equipment the mine is coming forward regularly with dividends at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum. The new Santa Gertrudis mill will be in service about the last of this year. Fine lodges are being built on the premises for the principal employes.

Rapid headway is being made in the sinking of two new shafts on the estate of the Sonora and Ures Company at Pachuca. No cross-cutting will begin before a depth of 975 feet is reached. The property lies north of La Blanca and the Barron diggings and is believed to have the extension of their lodes. Within thirty days there will be in commission on this ground a seventy-five horse-power hoist.

London capital is interested in the Santa Gertrudis South Company, which owns 175 acres adjoining the Santa Gertrudis. Traversing the estate is La Corteza vein, regarded as a mother lode, which has produced the richest ore ever taken from Pachuca mines. Work is proceeding under the direction of M. H. Burnham, an associate of John Hays Hammond. There is now on a deal for the sale of the property for $2,500,000, gold, the holding company being capitalized at only $200,000.

Development work will soon be started on the Cinco Senores, of Pachuca, which is being sold by local talent to American interests, the second payment of $20,000 having been made in September and the next, of $40,000, being due next February. The property surveys nearly 100 acres and is a short distance north of the Santa Gertrudis.

A great amount of new machinery is being installed at the Purisima Grande mill of Pachuca, which receives most of its ore from the Guadalupe Fresnillo mine, the new equipment including a chilean mill, air compressor, five Wilfley tables, a Dor classifier and three pumps. The capacity of the mill, including a cyanide annex, will be seventy tons a day. Electricity will be the motive power and each unit will be independently supplied.

Complete electric equipment has been placed in the Santa Ana mine at Pachuca, the new machinery including a double-drum hoist of a capacity of 9000 pounds at a hoisting speed of 700 feet per minute. The output of the mine has been greatly increased.

Ore of fair value has been exposed by a 140-foot shaft on the Santa Rita, just west of the town of Pachuca, which is one of the possessions of the newly organized Nevada y Anexas Company. Money has been raised for the energetic exploitation of the estates.

Camps tributary to Pachuca are being supplied with electric power since the completion of the main line from Necaxa to Pachuca. The wires will immediately be extended to Capula for the benefit of La Cruz Mining Company, which is operating a regular producer. La Cruz ships ore by mule trains to the Pachuca agents of the American Smelting and Refining Company.

An electric generating plant will be erected at the camp of El Chico, near Pachuca, by Gabriel Mancera, who will use the waters of the Milagro and Tetitlan Rivers at a point where there is a fall of 725 feet. It is also proposed to utilize the water that furnishes the power in the driving of the Neptune tunnel, more than 6500 feet long, destined to go a length of 6½ miles to a point 1200 feet below the surface of Pachuca mines. The Pachuca Light, Power and Railway Company will extend its line to El Chico district.

Arrangements have been perfected for machinery to hasten the development of the Santa Gertrudis mine in the Acopan district of Hidalgo, where good ore has been uncovered and where powerful pumps will be required to keep the workings open. The main lode, varying in width from three to four feet, gives values of from 800 to 1500 grams of gold per ton.

CODLES OF GOLD.

RICH STRIKE IN THE ALAMO.

PHENOMENAL GOLD VALUES IN NEW DISTRICT.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX, (Ariz.) Oct. 14.—Reports that come from the new Alamo strike, on the desert below Vicksburg, indicate that one of Arizona's greatest mines has been discovered. Though the country round about is known as "freaky" and "pockety" there appears to be a true fissure vein in the Alamo, five feet wide at the bottom of a fifty-foot shaft. Though the walls are good the country rock is a conglomerate, inclining some to the belief that the vien is merely an old placer bed that has been tipped. Be that as it may, the assays are phenomenal. The width of the vein is said to average $1000 to the ton in gold, while an eighteen-inch streak has furnished assays of $15,000. These extreme values were not known on the surface, the ore having increased in richness with depth.

A Goldfield Nev., mining man named Clark has been working the property for about a month, under a bond of $150,000, which he proposes to pay off forthwith.

The first news of the discovery was brought to Vicksburg by miners who had "high-graded" quantities of ore that seemed half gold. While the district is disinclined to get very much excited over anything, remembering the fiasco of the near-by "glory hole," a year ago, the whole plain around the Alamo group has been staked off. The vein is easily traceable on the surface and between the walls the ore is soft and easily mined.

A short distance from Vicksbug, Ed. Shumate, Herman Voge and H. L. Scott of Prescott are preparing for operations on mineral ground embracing 1000 acres of placer locations and four quartz claims. This ground is four miles from the Alamo. Its richness has been known for years, but there has ever been a shortage of water for washing. This is to be avoided by the use of dry washers, of which three types are to be tried at once.

R. J. McAdory of Los Angeles is at the head of a new company that is preparing to renew the glories of the pioneer placer camp of La Paz on the Colorado river below Parker. In that vicinity last week McAdory bought forty acres of ground from O. L. Grimsley, for $8000. A new townsite has been laid out near the old one and has been given the name of Arizona City, a title held many years ago by the present town of Yuma, in distinction from Fort Yuma, which was on the California side of the Colorado.

INSPECTING PROPERTY.

PHELPS-DODGE PLANS.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PRESCOTT, (Ariz.), Oct. 12.—The Copper Basin property of the Phelps-Dodge Company was inspected last week by Dr. James Douglas, general manager of the corporation, which here is represented by the Commercial Mining Company, with A. J. Pickerell as superintendent. The company is understood to have dropped its interests in the neighborhood of Mayer, but retains the Senator property, south of Prescott, and the eighteen claims that make up the Copper Basin property. There a large amount of exploration is being done on a great deposite of low-grade copper ore, with very slight prospects of a reduction plant for a long time to come. A main shaft is down 300 feet and drifting has been commenced.

The well known Jessie mine in Chaparral gulch again is a gold producer, after nearly ten years of relative inactivity. A shipment of very rich ore has just been made to the smelter and others will follow, regularly. The property is owned by the Ohio company, which has unwatered the shaft and cleared out the lower levels. The ore now being shipped comes from the 250 level, in new ground. In its palmy days, the Jessie was remarkable for the quantity of free gold secured on the mill plates, though the ore was pyritic.

For the last twenty feet of the 100-foot shaft of the Venezia mine in Crook Canyon district has been followed a 26-inch streak of ore that samples $70 to the ton in gold. A level is to be run under the chute and the ore will be treated in a 20-stamp mill, lately completed.

EIGHTH AND FRANCISCO.

Buyer of Valuable Corner Will Hold for Permanent Investment and Improvement.

The sale of the northwest corner of Eighth and Francisco streets, 82 feet on the former by 150 feet on the latter thoroughfare, is reported by R. A. Rowan & Co. The site is improved with three two-story flats. C. W. Baker, the buyer, paid the Crow Estate Company $33,000 for the property, which was purchased to fill out an adjoining inside lot of 50 feet frontage on Eighth street already owned by the buyer. The acquisition was made for permanent investment.

Through the same agency C. W. Baker has sold to a local investor 40x140 feet at Nos. 840 to 844 Sunberry street for $14,000. The improvements consist of a two-story flat building.

Other sales reported by R. A. Rowan & Co. follow: J. Dennison Cook to Adolph Sieroty, eight-room house at No. 1819 West Eleventh street, $8550; Susan McLean to W. T. Wheatly, vice-president and general manager Consolidated Lumber Company, 66-acre ranch at El Monte, $20,000, and 12-room house at No. 745 Berendo street, lot 80x150 feet, $2000; Consolidated Lumber Company to Susan McLean, vacant lot at northwest corner of Figueroa and Thirty-fourth, 140x130 feet, $20,000. The last mentioned site will be improved with a handsome apartment house.

BUYS RANCH SITE.

The Don M. Devendorf Company reports the cash sale of a portion of the Englehardt Villa ranch owned by John Englehardt, to W. E. Bush. The consideration named is $18,000. This ranch is located about one mile east of Glendora, surrounded on three sides by mountains, and commanding a view of the Upper San Gabriel Valley. In the near future Mr. Bush will invest several thousand dollars in improvements.

TALKS ON TEETH

His Health Is Better

The most skeptical set of men that come to us for Alveolar Teeth are the lawyers. They put us through a regular cross-examination and leave nothing undone in their efforts to prove that we are not able to carry out our promises.

There is a great source of satisfaction in convincing a skeptical patient that his fears are unfounded.

Among the strongest testimonial letters that we have on file in our offices are some that come from lawyers who have had work done by us.

When we get a letter of testimony from one of them it gives us a great deal of pleasure and makes us all the more eager and determined to overcome the foolish prejudice that sometimes exists with unthinking people against dentists who advertise.

We know of no other way to present our case than through the columns of the press and the fact that we are building up a great business in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Fresno, Oakland and Sacramento is the best evidence that we are on the right track and that advertising pays the professional man as well as the merchant, providing he backs up his advertising by "delivering the goods."

Two years ago an attorney came to our office to find out about the Alveolar Method of teeth restoration. Judge Brady at once put us on the witness stand and when he got through was so well satisfied with our statement of the case that he concluded to have the work done.

We have a letter from him of which the following is a copy.

From a Member of the Bar

Rex Dental Co.,
Severance Bldg.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Sirs:

Some of my friends, yesterday, while talking on the general subject of health, remarked what fine natural teeth I had at my age; it required close examination before they were convinced my teeth were not what nature had provided. The facts are: That about two years ago one of your dentists made and put in Alveolar dentistry for me which is not only natural in appearance, but has proven fully satisfactory in service.

One of the discomforts that came my way and long endured was wretched sore teeth, which necessitated treatment by a number of dentists and tooth specialists, for more than twenty-six years past; the excruciating pain, the anguish, occasioned by reason of so many operations and treatments, were tortuous in experience and now very unpleasant in memory; the Alveolar dentistry work was practically painless in my case, and the results most satisfactory. I am having more comfort and better service with the Alveolar work than I had with my natural teeth, and regret having waited so long, much sore teeth discomfort could have been avoided and teeth of ease and utility might have been enjoyed. I do not claim man is superior to nature, but I do claim man made me better, and more serviceable teeth than those furnished me by nature.

Respectfully yours,
JUDGE J. L. BRADY,
516-17 Stimson Bldg.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

If the Alveolar Method was on trial in court, before Judge Brady, I think the verdict would be for the defendant. Don't you?

If you are at all skeptical about our ability to restore the teeth that you have lost through ignorant dental practice or because of disease won't you do us the favor of investigating the Alveolar Method.

We will examine and diagnose your case free of charge and without their being any obligation on your part to have work done, and then if you are not entirely satisfied we will refer you to patients of ours right in your home town, or if you live in the large cities in California we can give you the names of patients who, no doubt, live close by you and after talking to these people you will be forced to acknowledge that we have done all that we could be asked to do to remove any doubts that might be in your mind regarding this new method which is revolutionizing the science of dentistry.

Free book on request.

Send today for our free book describing the method in detail.

This is a book of 40 pages, freely illustrated, and one of the most valuable ever written on the subject of teeth in general. The reading of it will bring you to us, no matter where you live.

KERN COUNTY.

AIR OF GLOOM IN LOST HILLS.

LATEST WITHDRAWAL ORDER IS CAUSING ALARM.

ASSOCIATED HAS SPENT MUCH MONEY FOR LAND.

GENERAL RESUME OF THE KERN COUNTY FIELDS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 14.—The numerous newly formed oil companies that were rushing rigs and materials to the Lost Hills to begin operations on government land were plunged into disappointment Wednesday by the news from Washington that all the vacant land in the vicinity of the Lakeshore well had been withdrawn from entry. According to private advices the withdrawn area includes all the public land in townships 26-21, 25-21 and 26-20.

About half the land in these townships is government land, and operators were preparing to drill on all of it. In a few cases wells had been begun, and these will be completed, but the great majority of the rigs ordered had not been delivered, were on the way or had not been set to work. The distance from the railroad, difficulty in getting casing, owing in part to the strike of the metal workers in Los Angeles, and in some cases contests between rival claimants delayed the beginning of wells. Several portable rigs were unloaded from the cars at Wasco on the day that the news of the withdrawals came. The order draws a sharp line across development work on government land, but drilling will go on on patented sections, although in these cases there is no necessity for such feverish haste as where a discovery of oil is required in order to hold the land.

Rain Thursday made travel to the fields unpleasant, and all day the Southern bar and lobby were filled with oil men discussing the new phases of the situation.

Other features of interest in connection with the Lost Hills district are the announcement of the opening of a townsite at the southern extremity of the territory now being explored for oil, and the news, given on apparently good authority, that as soon as the present prospects of the new field are a little better substantiated by visible oil the Southern Pacific will run a branch from the McKittrick road into the Lost Hills.

The townsite, which is now being surveyed, will include the whole of section 2, 27-21, now the property of Martin & Dudley, the discoverers of the Lost Hills field. The section lies just south of the county road which runs from Wasco to the Lost Hills and Devils Den fields, and is the first point reached in coming to the former from Bakersfield, Wasco or McKittrick. The name of the new town has not yet been decided upon, and the price at which lots will be started has not been fixed.

The report that the railroad will build into the Lost Hills is of great local interest. If the Lost Hills branch leaves the McKittrick road at the place where the latter swings south after passing Button Willow, it will have to be built a distance of about eighteen miles in a northwesterly direction to reach the new town. To this point and even running through the Lost Hills district to the Devils' Den the grade would be very gentle, and the building of the road would involve no great outlay. At the present time all freight to the Lost Hills goes via the Santa Fe to Wasco and is hauled twenty-six miles across roads that are none too good in the rainy season. The proposed extension of the Southern Pacific's McKittrick line would catch all this business. In addition to this fact, the Southern Pacific owns a great amount of land along the projected route in the Lost Hills.

Some months ago it was reported that the Santa Fe might build a branch into the Devil's Den from its main line just north of the Kern county border. This branch would tap a large grain growing district en route. It is a practical certainty that if the Devil's Den and Lost Hills fulfill their present promise a railroad will be built through them at no distant date.

Now that the government land in the Lost hills has been withdrawn from entry it appears likely that Martin & Dudley and the Associated Oil Company will be the chief factors in the development of the new field. The former have eleven light, portable rigs, either at work, or ready to work on their holdings of both patented land and mineral locations. The Associated is reported to have invested $2,200,000 in patented land in the Lost Hills district, paying all the way from $50 to $300 per acre for some of the tracts. The company is now building a camp and erecting a standard rig on the south half of section 14, 26-20, and is preparing to lay a 2-inch water pipe line from an artesian well in the swamp six miles to the east. Superintendent Bruce says that he hopes to get the oil in 900 or 1000 feet, but he is fitting up the rig to go 3000 feet if necessary to thoroughly test the territory.

Section 14, 26-20 is west of the ridge, while the Lakeshore well is on the eastern slope. If the Associated gets oil at the expected depth it will prove that the strata extends at least some distance to the west of the anticline. Other wells are now drilling with light rigs to the northwest of the Lakeshore on section 18 and 20, 26-21, and Martin & Dudley are drilling two on section 24, 26-21, a mile south and three miles east of the Lakeshore. In one of these latter wells the drill was 300 feet down on Thursday of this week with the 10-inch stovepipe casing settling of its own weight when the well was sand-pumped. The formation in this well is said to be identical with that in the Lakeshore. All these wells are calculated to test pretty thoroughly a strip of territory six miles long by three miles wide.

The Lakeshore well in its tests last Sunday was pumped for two hours at a 350 to 400-barrel rate. Competent oil men say that at the end of the test it showed no sign of weakening. Since Sunday the well has been equipped with a Bulldozer pumping head and a 6-horse power gasoline engine. The well gives out great quantites of gas when agitated by the pump, and when it has been quiet for many hours the gas can be heard a rod from the derrick, seething and whistling down in the casing.

The only other strike of oil in the district so far is a few hundred yards to the east of the Lakeshore where the Devil's Den Consolidated drilled down to the first oil sand and then moved its rig to another location. The Devil's Den Condsolidated was not drilled far enough to make a pumping well, but it sends out a large amount of gas.

The Lakeshore well was brought in months ago, but the strike was religiously guarded while the discoverers hustled about securing options on all the patented land in the district. It was through Martin & Dudley that the Associated secured a large part of its present holdings, and the same men have located other operators. They apparently stand to make the biggest clean-up of any pioneer oil operators in the state.

The Visalia Midway's well No. 2 on section 25, 31-22, in the northwest end of the Midway valley, has come in as a 1200-barrel gusher. The well was drilled through sand with an 8-inch casing and the oil perforated in. A gate has been fixed on the top with an 8-inch T underneath, so that there

The former have eleven light, portable rigs, either at work, or ready to work on their holdings of both patented land and mineral locations. The Associated is reported to have invested $2,500,000 in patented land in the Lost Hills district, paying all the way from $50 to $200 per acre for some of the tracts. The company is now building a camp and erecting a standard rig on the south half of section 14, 26-20, and is preparing to lay a 2-inch water pipe line from an artesian well in the swamp six miles to the east. They apparently stand to make the biggest clean-up of any pioneer oil operators in the state.

The Visalia Midway's well No. 2 on section 25, 31-22, in the northwest end of the Midway valley, has come in as a 1500-barrel gusher. The well was drilled through sand with an 8-inch casing and the oil perforated in. A cap has been fixed on the top with an 8-inch T underneath, so that there is an 8-inch opening straight up and another 8-inch opening at the side. The oil flows steadily from the side opening, and every two-hours it spouts through the top opening half-derrick high.

Fred H. Hall, the manager of the Visalia Midway, says that all gushers are supposed to flow from 20,000 to 50,000 barrels of 30 to 40 gravity oil, but he is trying to keep his estimates nearer the truth so he claims 1000 to 1200 barrels of light oil—perhaps 22 gravity. It has not been tested.

The same company's well No.1 was finished with a 6-inch casing in about the same manner, but the drilling water has not yet been pumped out. So much water was kept in the well in order to hold down the gas pressure that it is supposed to have penetrated some distance back in the oil sands. When the drillers undertake to baie the water out the gas blows the baler empty, and the gas also interferes with the valves of a pump when it is attempted to remove the water by that process. It was first feared that the water from a higher stratum had not been shut off, but a test with dyes put down between the casings indicated that no water was coming from above. Hall is satisfied accordingly that when he gets the water sucked out of No. 1 it will be nearly as good a producer as No. 2.

On account of the absence from the State of L. P. St. Clair and other prominent members of the Independent Oil Producer's Agency, the quarterly director's meeting announced for Wednesday of this week was not held. The postponed date has not been announced.

As yet no orders have come to the local agents of the Independents or the Producer's transportation Company to carry into effect any feature of the contract between the Union-Independents and the Associated. Information as to St. Clair's whereabouts and his mission are also lacking, but it is believed that he is looking after an avenue for the disposal of oil in accordance with the new arrangement. It is understood that the general movement of oil must wait on the completion of new storage reservoirs or the acquisition of new customers. Coalinga producers are promised an outlet through the Producer's Transportation Companies pipe line to the new concrete reservoirs at San Luis in a few days, but the Lakeview oil still occupies the line from Sunset to Junction. It has been decided to cement the Associated reservoirs now empty in the Kern river field before they are filled again so that these afford no relief to the congested sumps at present.

POLITICAL DRIFT.

Congressman Tawney of Minnesota, who was defeated in the primaries for renomination, is making it warm for his successful opponent, and it is not improbable that he may be an independent candidate on election day. He charges that his defeat was accomplished by the aid of 4000 Democrats who had no right to vote in the Republican primaries. Tawney calls upon his successful rival to retract certain charges against his personal honor. Either prove the truth of the charges, or ask for pardon, is Mr. Tawney's ultimatum.

Mayor Dahlman, Democratic nominee for Governor of Nebraska, does not believe it is good policy to try to deceive the people with a false record. He frankly admits that he has been a bad man. He shot his brother-in-law in Texas and fled, supposing he had killed the man. He lived under an assumed name and, as he says, "I got to be pretty tough, I admit it." The only excuse he offers is that he was a boy and the country was wild and lawless. Still, this is rather a startling record for a possible Governor to have attached to him.

There are twenty-four Republican Senators whose terms expire with the present Congress and whose successors will be chosen by Legislatures elected this year. These twenty-four constitute practically the present Republican majority of the Senate, and the Democrats must elect successors to at least thirteen of them to gain a bare advantage in the Senate. The twenty-four States out of which such gain must be made are California, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Maine and Vermont have already chosen their Legislatures. The Senator from the former will be Democratic and from the latter Republican, so that there are twenty-two States left from which they must get twelve Senators if they are to have any majority at all.

Speaker Cannon may now see the end of his power at Washington. Congressman Butler Ames of Massachusetts recently declared in his speech accepting a renomination that Mr. Cannon will not be speaker of the next House.

Leading Indiana Republicans are considering the return of Vice-President Fairbanks to the Senate. The situation in Indiana, as it is understood in Washington, is so complicated that many shrewd political observers see no chance for the election of either Senator Beveridge or John W. Kern, who are the putative candidates of the respective political parties. There is a quiet demand among the old Republican regulars in Indiana that Mr. Fairbanks be taken up as a compromise and returned to the Senate, where for eight years he was a very useful representative of his party and of the State and distinguished himself in the public service. While it is known that Mr. Fairbanks would not enter into any scramble for the office, his friends believe he would not be averse to accepting the State's commission again if it came with practical unanimity from his party, and as the solution of a very bad mess in the politics of the State.

A story comes from Wisconsin that Senator La Follette's friends have refused to invite Roosevelt to speak in the State campaign, though asked to do so. This is considered a confirmation of the rumor that Mr. La Follette is being groomed for the Presidential nomination in 1912, and that he is jealous of the ex-President's popularity.

Charles F. Murphy is now in undisputed control of the Democratic machinery of the State of New York, and has a more complete grasp of everything Democratic from Buffalo to Brooklyn than ever Boss Croker had when he ran things.

Under the Corrupt Practices Act of Oregon the Secretary of State has had the work of his office considerably increased. A special campaign pamphlet has had to be prepared for the November election, the same to contain pictures and the argument for each of the candidates to be voted for. Under the act only executive committees or managing officers of a political party having nominated candidates can file matter for the pamphlet except independent candidates, who can file cuts and matter just as all candidates could in the nominating pamphlets.

Political parties are at liberty to use 24 pages each in the pamphlet, while independent candidates are limited to two pages each. The cost of each page is $50, which is to be applied toward relieving the expense of mailing and printing the pamphlets. The Secretary of State is allowed two days after he receives the final copy to prepare it and deliver it to the State Printer. The State Printer must deliver the pamphlet to the Secretary of State by Sunday, October 23, and they must be mailed out to all registered voters by Saturday, October 29.

Gov. Harmon of Ohio who is making an active canvass of his State for re-election, announces his pleasure at having been "renominated, a free man, owing no obligation and feeling none, to any boss, big or little."

PASADENA.

GREAT DEMAND FOR COTTAGES.

SUPPLY OF CROWN CITY HOUSES IS LIMITED.

OCTOBER PERMITS EXCEED OLD RECORD FOR MONTH.

PROPERTY ALONG THE ARROYO SECO HIGH IN VALUE.

PASADENA, Oct. 15.—The usual lull in realty business between the summer and fall seasons has existed during the past two weeks but dealers report that prospects for the coming winter season were never better. There never was such a demand for rental property as there has been this fall. Nearly everything desirable has been taken and still the demand continues. During the past summer several hundred "for rent" houses have been built but rental agents state a thousand good modern medium priced houses could be rented if they had them.

Building permits during the first nine months of the year go to prove the great number of houses which have been built. For the first nine months the permits totalled $1,650,000 and the first half of October has gone beyond the $170,000 mark, making the total for the year, so far, ahead of the entire business for any year since Pasadena was started, excepting the banner year, 1906, and by the end of this month that record will have been broken.

The permit for the new Y. M. C. A. building which was taken out the first week in this month for $110,000 has already placed this month ahead of any October. It is the largest permit of the year. The large totals have been brought by the very great number of cottages and bungalows.

A few permits taken out during the past few days are J. J. Sommans, two-story brick building, No. 1174 South Fair Oaks avenue, $5000; E. R. Zube, five-room cottage, No. 954 North Michigan avenue, $1900; Henry Kappner, eight-room frame, No. 1840 North Los Robles avenue, $2500; A. E. Thompson, five-room bungalow, No. 965 Worcester avenue, $1900; G. Lawrence Stimson Co., seven-room residence, No. 1192 Avoca street, $3500; Harry M. Block, six-room bungalow, No. 171 South Hudson avenue, $4000; Ed D. Miller, eight-room Swiss Chalet, No. 416 South Madison avenue, $4000.

Grable & Austin have bought two beautiful lots on West California street just west of Grand avenue this week, paying $5000. They will begin at once the erection of two, two-story houses. One of the lots was purchased from Miss Sears and the other from Miss Delia S. Masters.

Property in the southwestern section of the city, west of Orange Grove avenue to the Arroyo Seco, and south of California street, has taken a big jump in valuation due to the settling of the old contest regarding the extension of South Grand avenue and the opening of Arroyo drive into a beautiful scenic driveway.

This contest has been raging for many years. Mayors have come and gone, councilmen have trooped past in gallant phalanx, but the war has continued. Recent arrivals have become enthusiastic over the rustic scenery along the west hills and the valley contiguous to the banks of the Arroyo Seco. Property values have steadily increased until the time arrived when something had to be done. Adolphus Busch desired to make expensive improvements and agreed to give liberally. In addition to this he agreed to pay all the expenses of grading and asphalting the streets through his property. Then other property owners fell in line with the result that the entire right-of-way seventy feet wide for Grand avenue, from California street south to the city limits, has been deeded to the city, the grade stakes have been set, and the work commenced.

At the same time work will be started on improving Arroyo drive, which will be fifty feet wide for its entire length. The city will simply take possession of that street as it was laid out and dedicated to the City of Pasadena thirty years ago. The principal cause for all the trouble has been that certain avaricious people have encroached on the city's property and allege their right to such property by priority of possession. Gradually they have become disillusioned and the city has taken possession of its own property and will make it one of the most beautiful drives in the world.

ACTIVITY IN EVIDENCE.

October Building Record Is Promising. Many Attractive Homes Under Way.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 15.—Although this season of the year is supposed to be comparatively quiet in building circles, much activity is being displayed and the record will compare favorably with that of any month during the past year.

Plans have been drawn for a seven-room bungalow to be erected in Sierra Vista for R. S. Hogelin which will have cement foundations and porches and shingled exterior. F. S. Collier is having plans drawn for a cottage to be erected at Lyndon and Meridian avenues, which will have concrete foundation, rustic exterior, blue brick porch columns and chimneys.

A two-story eight-room residence will be built at the corner of Stratford avenue and Montgomery Road for J. E. Pierce. It will have cobblestone foundations and porch columns and shakes for exterior. Arthur Keetch has let the contract for the erection of a seven-room residence on Monterey Road and Elm street.

The following recent sales have been reported: The P. J. Dolan Company to the Associated Realty Company, lot 75x100 feet, corner of Magnolia and Prospect avenues, consideration $2000. It is the intention of the buyers to improve with a modern bungalow. G. W. Lawyer to J. C. Hamm, lot 56x162 feet on Lyndon street. Mr. Hamm has already started the erection of a nine-room residence.

ACREAGE IS EXCHANGED.

Subdivision Property Traded for Store. Fifty Lots Change Hands.

James E. McDonald reports the exchange for Carl Keller, of Long Beach, to I. D. Krossen, of fifteen acres of subdivision property on South Park avenue, near the city limits in return for a store building at South Park and Forty-eighth and a residence at No. 478 East Forty-ninth street. The acreage is valued at $18,000 and the store at $12,500. The difference was adjusted in cash. W. E. Ransom & Son assisted in the deal.

Another exchange reported by Mr. McDonald is that of a block of fifty lots fronting on Micheltoreno street, between Maltman avenue and Primrose Drive, valued at $30,000, for 160 acres near Conejo, valued at $20,000. The owner of the former property was Lucy M. Gilbert, of the latter, T. B. Key. W. E. Ransom & Son represented Key in the transaction.

DRINK HABIT

Every Case of the Liquor Habit Is Cured by the Gatlin Institute in THREE DAYS Under an Ironclad Contract

THE GATLIN INSTITUTE

cures the Liquor Habit in THREE DAYS' TIME—no hypodermic injections or other disagreeable features—under a positive written legal contract to cure. The cure MUST be effected in THREE DAYS—a cure satisfactory to the patient himself and to his family or friends, or the full fee paid will be refunded at the end of the third day and the treatment cost nothing.

Home Treatment The Gatlin Home Treatment is just as effective as Institute treatment, being the same, dose for dose. There has in TEN YEARS PAST never been one failure by the Home treatment.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:-

Early in February of this year, over six months ago, we investigated the Gatlin Treatment for the liquor habit for the benefit of one of our valued employees. This man had already taken three hypodermic cures with only temporary releif. He was too valuable a man to lose and, although skeptical, we induced him to take the Gatlin. At that time he was drinking about a quart a day and his physical condition was becoming alarming, but after the three days of treatment he returned to work and has not lost a day since. He not only was cured of the drink habit but put in perfect condition mentally, physically and morally.

In the last six months he has accumulated more in money and property and family happiness than any time during the thirty years of drinking.

We heartily recommend the Gatlin Treatment to anyone who may be interested.

Respectfully.

"Is there pain in front of head?"
"Do you hawk and clear the throat?"
"Is your throat dry in the morning?"
"Do you sleep with your mouth open?"

You can be easily cured now—don't let it run into complications.

The Bronchial Tubes

When the catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated it extends down the windpipe into the bronchial tubes, and after awhile attacks the lungs. Quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' Famous Treatment.

"Have you a cough?"
"Do you take cold easily?"
"Have you pain in the side?"
"Do you raise frothy materials?"
"Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?"
"Do you feel you are growing weaker?"

Don't risk neglecting these warnings—stop the disease before it reaches the lungs.

Of the Ears

Catarrh extends from the throat along the eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness. Quickly cured at little cost by Drs. Shores' Famous Treatment.

"Is your hearing failing?"
"Is the wax drying in your ears?"
"Do your ears discharge?"
"Do you hear better some days than others?"
"Is your hearing worse when you have a cold?"

Of the Stomach

Catarrh of the stomach is usually caused by swallowing a poisonous mucous which drops down from the head and throat at night. Quickly cured at little cost by Drs. Shores' Famous Treatment.

"Is there nausea?"
"Do you belch up gas?"
"Are you constipated?"
"Is your tongue coated?"
"Do you bloat up after eating?"
"Is there constant bad taste in the mouth?"

Now is the time to be permanently cured. Drs. Shores are curing hundreds every year.

17 years of continuous success as medical specialists with over 100,000 treated is Drs. Shores' proud record.

WHEN you can get the very best medical service at a very low price, and on such liberal terms that you will never miss the money, don't you think it very foolish to longer put off taking a treatment that will positively and permanently cure you? DOCTORS SHORES & SHORES have for more than seventeen years devoted their entire time to treating chronic diseases of every name and nature, and have cured hundreds of cases that other doctors had pronounced incurable. But they never have tried to get exorbitant fees, for they know how every dollar counts to working people, and have always been satisfied to do the greatest good to the greatest number—for this total of small fees meets our expenses and makes us a profit. If you pay more elsewhere you are paying too much—for there is no better treatment at any price.

Free Examination All This Week

We know that many sick people do not understand the nature of their disease; and sometimes are inclined to take patent medicines without consulting a doctor. While such self-treatment may give temporary relief, if the right remedy is used for the right disease—don't you realize that a wrong self-diagnosis may make you a permanent invalid? It is to explain just such things to you that we offer this week to give a free examination to all who apply—and to tell you truthfully what your trouble is.

All Diseases

Drs. Shores not only cure Catarrh, but they cure Nervous Diseases, Kidney Diseases, Bladder Troubles, Heart Diseases, Diseases of the Stomach and Bowels, Rectal Diseases, Female Complaints, Rickets, Spinal Troubles, Skin Diseases, Asthma, Bronchial and Lung Troubles, Ovarian Diseases, Sciatia, Rheumatism, Hay Fever, Neuralgia, Hysteria, Ear Diseases, Goitre (or Big Neck,) La Grippe, Blood Diseases, etc. Scrofula and all forms of Nervous and Chronic Diseases that are curable.

Here they are constructing the most perfect system ever undertaken. Water is delivered to the highest boundary of each forty in a lateral with a capacity of not less than 250 inches, every gate set in concrete; laterals cross the roads in concrete conduits; a drainage system to care for surplus irrigation water and rainfall; graded roads around each quarter section, accessible to good towns, excellent roads, telephone, electricity, schools and churches.

The best land for alfalfa in California. Unsurpassed for citrus and deciduous fruits; in truth, this land will grow anything. Special advantages for dairying, opportunities for all kinds of agriculture and horticulture and merchandising.

The price is uniformly $125 an acre, $15 an acre cash, the balance in ten annual payments.

FACT AND COMMENT.

This, the third Sunday since the awful consummation of the murderous plot to destroy the outspoken champion of a free city, finds the Los Angeles Times steadily and surely recovering from the most dastardly blow ever struck at an American newspaper. The issues of the days since the dynamite horror have been in bulk and quality of news make-up a credit to a city of 300,000 people—and that outside of any consideration of the multiform difficulties. Nor does the writer believe that any department of the paper of last Sunday or of today will suffer by comparison with the like departments of other Los Angeles journals. It will not be long before the real estate and development sections of The Times will be up to the old standards in point both of volume and newsiness. Just at the moment, it is manifestly impossible to make the departmental classification as satisfactory as could be wished, but it will be but a brief time until everything will be again adjusted. Meanwhile owners and dealers in real estate, together with others who may have news or suggestions for the consideration of this department, will confer a favor upon the editors of the Times if they will get in early "copy." The advantage resulting from such an evidence of thoughtfulness will be divided between the editor of this department and the person providing news, for early news only will be sure of a proper classification in the real estate and building section.

Builders Breathe Easier.

The opinion is almost universal that the tolling of the bells that spoke a horrified community's sympathy for the martyred victims of the midnight assassin will speedily prove to have been also the knell of labor unionism in Los Angeles. The awfulness of the murderous challenge to civilization may frighten capital for a brief moment, but the consciousness that all right-minded people are enlisted in the cause of justice and against the defiers of law and humanity will speedily restore confidence and from then on the fight will be one-sided. The "closed shop" against unionism will be the next step and the final step in Los Angeles' fight for complete industrial freedom. And in no other field into which Los Angeles capital enters will the blessing of such a fulfillment be more welcomed and more beneficial than in the building trades. Los Angeles has been leading all other cities of anything near her population in construction activity for months and even years. There is not an important contractor in the city but will state that Los Angeles' high place in the national building column is due almost solely to her comparative freedom from union domination. Because capital here does not have to bow the knee to the grafting and insolent walking delegate, Los Angeles can point to building records surpassing month by month those of St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Seattle, Portland, Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis and other cities of equal or much greater population. On the other hand any contractor will declare that the various and generally abortive attempts of unionism to get into the saddle here have made the money market uneasy for the past five years and that owing to unionistic meddling building has not even in Los Angeles reached the height of its possibility.

Small Contractors Hampered.

It is not the big contractor in Los Angeles who is harried and hampered by the labor unions. Most of the big building companies here have the laborites where they want them—on the run. They can and do compel the union grafters to keep out of their way and they are powerful enough to defy the meddlers from abroad. The dynamiter has had his try at the big contractors in two recent sensational instances, fortunately each time without result, owing to timely discovery of the plots. In every way have the totemites tried to undermine the loyalty of the employees of these big concerns, to their employers and their attempts at spiteful annoyance have been multiform. Free workmen carrying the corpse of one of their fellows killed by accident in the construction of the Alexandria annex were recently assaulted with deadly earnestness by union pickets engaged in trying to annoy a leading contractor into the acceptance of union domination. Through it all, year in and year out, the big contractors have held their own and there can be no doubt that they are perfectly capable of keeping their independence forever. The builders who are really hampered and injured by labor unionism in this city today are the "little fellows" who employ but few men and whose entire capital is wrapped up in a small concern whose very existence depends upon its constant preparedness to fulfill what contracts come in from day to day. A leading contractor told the writer yesterday that to his positive knowledge many a small contractor is and for years has been at the mercy of union labor. The ability or failure to meet a contract often means life or death to the business of a small contractor, and none is so well aware of this as the union bully who hangs around the shop of such a man.

The Way to Emancipation.

It is the emancipation of the small contractor which is of the most immediate concern to construction circles in this city. Discredited as unionism is in Los Angeles, this much to be desired consummation is probably inevitable anyhow, but in the opinion of most of the leading builders now is the time to act. Put the small contractor in the position where he can feel secure in telling the union meddlers "where to head in" and the building industry in Los Angeles will indeed be "free." Numerous ways to the fulfillment of such a purpose have been suggested, but probably the most practical one is embodied in the suggestion of two big contractors that the small contractors of the city be organized for offense and defense by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. These men believe all that would be necessary to whip the skulking union disturbers into a consciousness that their sun has set would be for the small building concerns simply to agree among themselves not to employ union men at all or at least not to hire them without written assurance that they are ready to respect the principles of the open shop. With the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association back of it such a pact could not fail of the desired results according to the men advocating it. "While unionism's hideous shame is fresh in the memory of its adherents the stigma of its domination should be subtracted from the industrial factors to be reckoned with by any employer big or small in any line of business or manufacturing in this city" said one leading contractor. Free construction work here from the last trace of union meddling and Los Angeles will continue to hold her proud place in the national building tables.

AFFECTIONS ALIENATED.

NEVADAN INVESTS FORTUNE HERE.

CALIENTE CAPITALIST FAVORS SOUTHLAND REALTY.

Has Put Over Quarter Million Into Southern California Property and Will Buy More. Latest Exchange Is for Land near Downey. Good Trades Turned Here.

When George C. Feterman last week acquired forty-two acres of land a mile west of Downey his total realty purchases in the Southland during the past year amounted to a money consideration of $270,000, this sum being represented by a number of "buys" of varying sizes. Mr. Fetterman, who made a fortune in the general store business at Calient, Nev., took his first fling at Southern California real estate in Hollywood, where he bought a small tract for $40,000. When he was enabled to sell the same property a short time afterward for $60,000, he lost all interest in Nevada, and transferred his attention to California.

The deal of last week, in common with many of Mr. Fetterman's recent transactions, was in the nature of an exchange, two business properties in Caliente being involved in the transfer, which in all represented a valuation of $40,000. The deal was made through Robert Marsh & Co., the firm which has negotiated practically all of Mr. Fetterman's purchases in the Southland. The other party to the transfer just consummated was Lydia Stein.

Mr. Fetterman is one of the Southland's optimists and has every confidence in this section. He still retains $65,000 worth of property in his former home town, and this he is attempting to exchange for Los Angeles property.

A year ago he paid $77,500 for a fifty-five-acre orange grove in the heart of the Duarte district. On this property he has expended $13,000 for improvements and here he makes his home. He stated that $100,000 would not tempt him to dispose of the place.

AUTO CLUB LEASES OFFICE.

Organization Will Have Headquarters on South Hill—Rental Agency Is Busy.

W. C. Keim, manager of the business rental department of the Wright & Callender Company reports the following leases of business property: Electric Laundry Company to F. Ifishunitsu, the two-story brick building at No. 337 East First street, for a term of five years at a total rental of $9000; Mrs. J. A. Sepulbeba to S. Sawaya & Son, store room at No. 319 West Third street, $8000; Mrs. I. Truitt to O. A. Boedway, store at No. 219 West Fifth street, two years, $3300; W. Noble to the Nitta Company, store at No. 922 South San Pedro, two years, $1200; Emeline Childs to the California Auto Tire Filler Company, store at No. 1044 South Main street, two years, $1900.

The same agency has negotiated a lease for the Automobile Club of Southern California for the room at No. 754 South Hill street, where that organization will maintain its general offices. The lease is for term of five years and the total rental is $9000. The Wilcox Estate is the lessor.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS.

A brick building, 110 by 180 feet in size, will be erected at once by the Times-Mirror Company on the site immediately adjoining the Chamber of Commerce building on the north. Here will be installed the printing and binding establishments of the company. Plans for the structure are being prepared by John P. Krempel.

The building will be one story in height. It will be used pending the completion of a new permanent building for the Times. During the same time it is probable that the editorial departments of the paper will remain at the Times Branch office, No. 521 South Spring

EL CENTRO TAKES ON CITY AIRS.

IMPERIAL VALLEY GETS FIRST APARTMENT HOUSE.

Structure to Be of Mission Type and of Hollow Tile Construction. Usual Number of New Apartments in Los Angeles. Girard House to Be Remodeled.

The popularity of the apartment house in the Southland is not confined to the cities along and near the coast, for El Centro in the heart of the Imperial valley, is soon to boast one of these structures. C. E. Sprouse, the builder of the building, is having plans drawn by architects Garrett & Bixby of this city for a structure which will compare favorably with the apartmens here and elsewhere. The walls of the structure will be of the advanced type of hollow tile construction, plastered on the exterior. The appointments will be of the most modern character.

In Los Angeles the usual number of new apartment house projects is to be noted. Mrs. Fred Kaiser is having plans wrawn by A. L. Haley for a two-story frame apartment house on Girard street. The building will contain twelve apartments with private baths.

P. W. Ehlers is preparing designs for a two-story apartment house which is to be erected by Dr. Carl F. Ross on Wright street, between Pico and Sixteenth streets. The house will contain thirty-four rooms. The ground floor of the Girard hotel, on Third street, between Main and Los Angeles, will be completely remodeled at once after plans by Eisen & Son.

Plans for a three-story frame apartment house to be erected by W. C. Elderton on Francisco near Tenth have been completed by C. C. Rittenhouse. The building will contain sixty-six rooms.

FACADE IS IMPRESSIVE.

Steel Skeleton of Beautiful Block on South Spring Being Clothed With White Tile.

The visiting delegates to the recent annual convention of the American Bankers' Association in this city saw at the northwest corner of Sixth and Spring streets the massive steel skeleton of what will soon be one of the most magnificent banking buildings in the United States. The construction of the new home of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank has already advanced sufficiently to enable passers-by to appreciate the beauty of the imposing white tile facades on both street frontages.

The structure, plans for which were prepared by Architects Parkinson & Bergstrom, has practically passed the structural steel stage of its erection, and the tile and terra cotta walls are rapidly being reared. The building is to be eleven stories in height. It has a frontage of 60 feet on Spring by 165 feet on Sixth.

The banking quarters of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank Company will occupy the entire first story, which will be handsomely finished in marble. The upper stories will be given over to offices. The appointments throughout will embody the last word in modern office block construction and equipment. The first published cut of the building appeared exclusively in The Times.

Railroading in Spain.

Consul General Ridgely, of Barcelona, Spain, writes that a railroad company may be fined from $50 to $500 for failure to get its trains in on time. He cites the case of a fine imposed upon a road which was behind time during a fair. A provincial governor may impose the fine upon the recommendation of a local inspector. Appeal for remission of fine may be made to the minister of public works, whose decision is final.

DREDGING IS ON INCREASE.

CONCERNS ENGAGED IN WORK GET GOOD RESULTS.

GOLD-COPPER CLAIMS NEAR CAMPO SECO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OROVILLE (Cal.) Oct. 14.—The Natomas Consolidated of California, and the Yuba Goldfields Company, the two largest dredging concerns on the Coast, are meeting with excellent success in their operations in this district. The rains last month have largely overcome the danger of a water shortage and indications are that the present season will be the most prosperous in the history of the companies. The Natomas has been active throughout the year and has developed a large amount of virgin territory during the last few months. The Yuba goldfield is maintaining a production of about $25,000 per month. A new dredge of the Natomas Consolidated, one of the largest in the world, is rapidly nearing completion at Marysville. This will go into commission in the Yuba River district. The Oroville Dredging Company reports show excellent profits, with considerable new territory recently opened. This company is financed solely by English capitalists.

The various companies operating in the Oroville and Yuba River districts, have recently made arrangements for preventing the escape of debris to the Feather and Sacramento rivers by strengthening their restraining dams and enlarging the facilities for the safe storage of the tailings from the goldships. This work has been rushed to completion in order to insure against the flooding of the restraining dams during winter. The Anti-Debris Association has recently complained about several companies in this section of California, and the operators are exercising every precaution to prevent legal action against them.

At Folsom the Natomas Consolidated recently completed arrangements whereby all the water from the dredges is used to irrigate lands, instead of being permitted to flow into the American River. This move has completely satisfied the opponents of dredging in that district, and it is likely that this practice will be instituted by other companies whenever it can be used to advantage. A large amount of Los Angeles capital has been invested in the dredging fields during the past three years with excellent results, and a number of companies from the southern metropolis have recently became interested in other placer fields of the Sacramento Valley districts.

Magnolia Consolidated Mines.

A new hoisting and pumping plant has been installed at the Magalia mines and considerable gravel is being hoisted from the Mammoth channel. With its new equipment it is believed that the company will be able to effectively operate throughout the winter, as the pumps are understood to be sufficiently powerful to handle all the water that may be encountered during the rainy season. Developments at the property are proceeding rapidly, and a good rate of production is maintained. The Mammoth channel has been opened for a considerable distance and shows an auriferous width of twelve feet throughout.

The Magalia holdings are also traversed by the famous Magalia channel, and a large percentage of the future production from this source is anticipated. The property is located in the heart of one of the richest gold-bearing gravel districts ever opened in California, and yielded excellent values in pioneer days, although never worked to great depth. The present owners have expended a large amount of capital in developing the property to its present standing, and in installing a complete plant of modern machinery. Angelenos are principally interested.

Calaveras Copper Notes.

The Calaveras Copper Company is prosecuting work with renewed vigor at its holdings near Copperopolis, and early next year will have its entire plan in commission, and commence production at he rate of 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds of blister copper per year. Work at the Union, Keystone and other shafts is progressing steadily. The new body of ore recently opened is showing up splendidly, and the company is paying particular attention to the development of the lower levels. In the upper levels over 2,000,000 tons of commercial ore is blocked out, according to official estimates. It was originally planned to place the first furnace in commission before the end of the present year, but it was found impossible to complete the extensive improvements to the plant before the opening months of 1911.

The Caloro Mining Company is systematically developing a group of gold-copper claims, near Campo Seco. Most of the ore is commercial, with some running over $200 per ton. Most of it is refractory and necessitates shipment to smelters for profitable treatment. Considerable ore has been blocked out and shipping is about to commence. Developments are by means of shallow shafts and adits. W. H. McClintock is superintendent.

The Penn Chemical Company is actively conducting operations at its Campo Seco mines, and maintaining normal conditions at its Valley Springs smelter. Much of the ore being handled is of excellent grade. Considerable new ground has recently been added to the productive zone. The company uses much copper for the making of sulphuric acid and other chemicals. The recent trouble with the agricultural interests over the fumes from the smelter has been adjusted.

Important Mariposa Deal.

An eastern syndicate has acquired the rich McCall and Tucker placer properties near Merced Falls, and have commenced the installation of machinery for the raising of water to the sluices. The altitude of the placers have hitherto militated against their extensive operation, but under the new management it is believed that this difficulty will be entirely eliminated.

Gold Mountain Placers.

The Gold Mountain Hydraulic Mining Company, operating on Willow Creek, Plumas county, is completing an immense retaining dam, and will inaugurate operations as soon as the water facilities are sufficient.

The Hifalutin Hyphen.

Although the general tendency is to do away with unnecessary marks of punctuation, the hyphen is still uselessly retained in "to-day", "to-night", and "to-morrow," says John E. Rosser in Lippincott's. That the retaining of the hyphen in these words is not only useless but absolutely criminal is easily demonstrated by a bit of simple mathematics.

There are 178,236,592 English-speaking people. The words "to-day," "to-night," and "to-morrow" are together used forty-eight times daily be every person—five of these being written out in longhand. Thus the daily output of hyphens in these words totals 891,182,460. Taking the average of a written hyphen to be one-quarter of an inch, you have a straight line 3,864 miles long. At the usual rate of writing it would take the man seventy-six years to insert the hyphens in these words and his salary would amount to $78,436.

But, avoiding all theory, "to-day," "to-night," and "to-morrow" are daily hyphenated four times each on 234,192 typewriters, and three times daily membering that a pressure of one ounce is required to strike a typewriter key, and two and one-half ounces to depress a linotype, we see that in writing these hyphens a total of 382,974 foot-pounds of energy is expended, or enough to draw a passenger train across the United States.

To avoid appearing picayunish, no mention has been made of the waste of ink and paper, but this would approximate in value the daily bread supply of the State of New York.

The hyphens in "to-day," "to-night," and "to-morrow" should be discontinued today.

Rare Minerals, Metallurgy and Chemistry.

To Correspondents.

This department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public, and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and investigations contained in the paragraphs below:

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender and the general—not the exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen a clearly-written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

Letter and specimen must be in one package, not in separate inclosure.

(2.)—No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examinations of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interest will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made or specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Oil Questions.

Safford, (Arizona) September 8.
(To the Editor of The Times:)

Will you kindly tell me what I am to understand by "Gravity" in oil; I notice it called 17, 24, 35, 88, etc., etc: What gravity is refining oil?

Yours very truly,
T. C.

Answer. You probably desire to know the specific "gravity" of crude petroleum; your figures must refer to degrees, and we understand the terms "refining oil" as refined oil.

The specific gravity of petroleum varies, in the books it is given as 0.7 to 0.85; while other varieties of oil (including those of paraffin or asphalt base) vary from 0.855 to 0.900 and in some samples up to 0.930, specific gravities respectively.

"Dark steam refined West Virginia, natural is 29 degrees (Baume), and Franklin, natural, the same as that of West Virginia.

Baume's hydrometers are (1)—for substances lighter than water, and (2)—for substances heavier than water, made up of two separate instruments.

The comparison of Degrees (Baume), with Specific gravity "American Standard" would be—for 17 deg. Baume, 0.9524 sp. gr. For 24 deg. Baume, the specific gravtiy would be 0.9091, and so forth.

To convert degrees Baume into specific gravity (liquids lighter than water), the specific gravity would equal: 140 divided by 130 plus degrees Baume, at 60 degrees F. (See further, Blount & Bloxam, Engineering Chemistry, Vol. 2, page 130, et seq.)

"Oils used for illumination are of two groups, (1) Refined Products from petroleum, such as naptha, gasoline, kerosene, signal oil, etc.

(2) Certain refined oils of vegetable and animal origin, such as colza oil, rape oil, lard oil, sperm oil, etc.

Kerosene is the refined product from petroleum that distils over (in the refining process) after the lighter oils, napthas, etc., have been separated, and is the principal oil in use for illumination. In standard it varies from standard white to water white (colorless), and its commercial value is dependent upon its ashing and burning point. In the oil trade, the burning or fire-tests are classified as 110 deg. F., 120 deg. F., 150 deg. F., and 300 deg. F. The 150 deg. F., is known as headlight oil, and the 300 deg. F. as mineral sperm and mineral colza."

"Refined Oil: 150 deg., fire-test oil must have a flash-test above 125 deg. F. It must have a fire-test not below 150 deg. F. It must have a cloud-test not above 0 deg. F. It must be "water white" in color. Its gravity must be between 44 deg. and 48 deg., Baume, at 60 deg. F. (or 0.8046 sp. gr., and 0.7865 sp. gr., at 60 deg. F.) Refined oil used by railroads is 300 deg. fire-test; It must have a flash-test above 250 deg. F. A fire test not below 300 deg. F. Cloud-test above 32 deg. F. Standard white in color and gravity (Baume) must be between 38 and 42 degrees at 60 degrees F. (0.8333 and 0.8140, specific gravity, respectively)."

Unit and Carat.

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.
(To the Editor of The Times:)

Will you please give me in your "In the Earth" column an answer to the following questions: (1) What does unit refer to in the purchase and sale of minerals? (2) Does the term "Carat" apply to weight of gems only? (3) Please give the number of grains in one ounce Troy; apothecaries; and avoirdupois tables.

Thanking you gratefully, now.

Yours very truly,
"B."

ANSWER: A unit (in the language of our friend. Dr. Frank L. Hess) is nicely defined as 1 per cent. of a ton in tungsten trioxide (WO3)., ex. gr., an ore carrying 60 per cent. tungsten trioxide would be an ore carrying 60 units, or say: 1000 pounds of ore carrying 60 per cent. tungsten trioxide, would be equivalent to one ton containing 30 per cent. tungsten trioxide, and if the price was $9 per unit it would be worth 30 times $9, or $270.

In weighing diamonds, pearls, and other jewels, "the unit employed is the Carat, which is equal to 4 carat grains, or 3.168 Troy grains."

One way to arrive at the "Fineness" of gold is also by the use of Carat; in this usage carat means one twenty-fourth part. Gold that is 18 carats fine is 18-24ths gold, and 6-24ths alloy.

(3) Grains Troy and apothecaries 480; avoirdupois 437.50 in one oz., respectively.

Old-Time Darwanite.

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.
(To the Editor of The Times:)

I have just received from a friend of mine, who is mining near Zacatecas, Mexico, a sample of ore from his mine, which he formerly took to be native silver, but assay returns give no silver.

He being greatly puzzled requested me to "please send it to The Times and get the facts about the mineral established."

If my letter comes within the purview of the "In the Earth" department, I will thank you in advance for an answer in that most interesting column.

Yours truly,
M. G.

ANSWER: Years ago the mineral you submit was supposed to be native silver; it was named Darwinite. By proper chemical analysis (and not by evolution) the true character of this mineral was established.

There is no silver in it; that is to say: many samples of it, including yours, carry no silver. In some of the mineral, however, silver is present to the percentage of 0.24.

The sample is massive and without cleavage. In fresh fracture of silver-gray color; tarnishes to a yellow-bronze color when exposed to the actions of the atmosphere. Luster and streak metallic. Brittle. "Receives an indentation from the hammer." Of uneven fracture. Hardness 3.5. Specific gravity 8.60. Composition 88.31 per cent. copper with 11.69 arsenic.

As this mineral is of more than usual interest to all prospectors, it is well to give a few more facts about it. No alteration takes place if a piece of the mineral is heated in a closed tube other than a faint trace of arsenious acid subliming on the side of the tube. "In an open tube a distinct white sublimate of arsenious acid is obtained."

B. B., on charcoal in the reducing flame it fuses to a white, silver-like globule, and while cooling throws off fumes of arsenic (garlic-like odor). In the oxidizing flame on charcoal arsenical fumes are given off, and the mineral in the flame "hustles around and around," and finally yields a mass of metallic copper somewhat impure with arsenic present.

When silver is present it can be separated by cupelling the copper button with lead, but in fluxing, the reactions are for copper only.

Crystallized Calcite.

Hemet, Sept. 4.—[To the Editor of Times]: Kindly inform me as to name of samples enclosed which I take to be fluor-spar. From the Cahuilla district; also state approximately market value and oblige

Yours truly,
T. S. B.

ANSWER: The samples very much resemble some varities of fluorite, but they are properly named at the subheading, and probably, you may find, at the locality, samples of sufficient purity for certain uses in optical instruments.

Impure Substance.

Pasadena, Sept. 5.—[To the Editor of The Times]: I am sending you two samples; one a white powder, and the other a black oily-looking material. These samples come from a mound in Arlington station, Riverside, Cal.

There is a spring on one end of the mound and an artesian well on the other end; the water flowing from the well carries a great deal of gas, and has a slight sulphur taste; it is clear as crystal, but on losing the gas a white precipitate falls, which is sample No. 1.

The water raises at night and dampens the mound then sinks away in the day leaving a black tar on the surface, and this black tar is represented by sample No. 2.

It may be that the water brings up a mineral of some kind, which acts on the micaceous soil, and makes it look like tar. I would be glad to send you some of the water (if it is not against your rules) for an analysis, as people are carrying it away and using it for medicinal purposes; others bathe in it but no one knows what it contains.

I have had this black sample analyzed for oil and get a trace only, the analysis also shows this to be decomposed vegetable matter, but as it is out in the sun and no vegetable matter close, it must come fom a distance in the water, but I should think the water would not be so clear if this were the fact.

Before the earthquake of May this year, this vegetable matter never occurred.

I respectfully ask you to tell us through the "In the Earth" department something that will account for all of this phenomena, and hoping that I have not over-stepped the bounds of a patient editor, I remain,

Yours very truly,
C. F. H.

ANSWER: Your description of the mound at Arlington station is most interesting.

Quantitative analysis of water is not within the purview of this department, and even a qualitative analysis is not called for because you are a citizen of good repute, and the "precipitate," with the blackish substance gives the ear-marks of the forkings of the mound since the earthquake.

You are undoubtedly obtaining from the artesian well a precipitate of sulphate of lime, carbonate of lime, trace of magnesia, and sodium chloride (common salt).

As a matter of fact one cannot taste the salt; neither can any one taste salt when a piece as small as a grain of wheat is added to a tumbler of water, nothwithstanding this lack of taste, as it were, chemistry, quickly, gives us the result where taste fails us. Suppose we add a little silver nitrate solution (two or three drops) to the goblet of water containing the small quantity of salt, when lo, and behold, a white cloud will be seen floating in the water—salt present.

There is many a medicinal bath, far less recuperative to the human system than the mound and artesian water of Arlington.

As to the black-brown film of paint-like substance; this is made up of earth organic matter, trace of bitumen, and a reaction for tallow and engine oil, but we have no doubt that the two last named contents are occasioned by, and from, the container in which you forwarded the sample.

You do not state what kind of gas is present in the water, it is probably from carbon and hydrogen obtained by the artesian well in the earth.

Aluminum.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you please give me what you can on aluminum. Does the West produce the metal in quantities and where? If not where are deposits?

Will appreciate any information you can give me. Yours truly, O. J. C.

ANSWER. The metal aluminum does not occur in the free state in nature, it is practically a metal obtained from sulphates of alumina (and not the worthless silicates,) and from the oxides of the metal.

The mineral Bauxite is in demand as a source of alumina; this mineral is treated for sulphates at many chemical works, in Chicago and elsewhere, and from its sulphates; alum; the mineral cryolite, and ores of alum such as alunite, we obtain the metal.

Bauxite occurs plentifuly in the Southern States, in pulverent form it occurs near Alexandria, Va., and is used in the brick industry of near Washington, D. C. Alabama, Georgia and other Southern States have beds of the mineral, chiefly gobbled up by the dear trusts; some little Bauxite occurs in Northern California.

It is of no use to offer iron-alum (balotrichite) to the makers of aluminum at Pitsburgh or elsewhere; there are many deposits of this mineral in Southern California, in our desert country, in parts of Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and so on.

Space will not permit an extended answer to your polite communication. We know of no aluminum factory in the Far West.

From "Uncle Jim."

CHLORIDE (Ariz.) Sept. 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you two samples from Cerbat range of hills, Mohave county, Arizona. I would like to know what mineral they contain and if they have any commercial value. Briefly and sincerely,

"UNCLE JIM."

ANSWER: The "personal" part of your letter is carefully noted; when that quoted word appears in a communication it is a high crime and misdemeanor, indeed, to speak of the matter to any one, and to publish it—never. On this point all writers, and honorable men agree. No men on earth respect personal communications more than the newspaper fraternity, and no set of men are more trusted in this behalf than the fraternity referred to.

Your samples Nos. 1 and 2 are of the same family and are siliceous and calcereous rock, carrying microscopical pyrite (iron disulphide) and chalcopyrite (yellow copper ore of the mining boys,) and trace of arsenic. Sample No. 2 is granular in part, and tungstic acid is not present in either sample.

Tellurium Not Present.

Pasadena, September 8
(To the Editor of The Times:)

We earnestly appreciate the opportunity to mail you a piece of rock, and we suspect that it is tellurium ore, but have no means of knowing.

Locality, southern part of Inyo county, and taken from 35 feet under the surface, with a general stratified formation lying between a heavy quartz and a hanging-wall of same character.

The foot-wall and hanging-wall are about 100 feet apart, and all matter between walls is practically mineral bearing including much porphyry. Kindly analyze, classify, and oblige.

Yours respectfully,
F. A. R.

Answer. The sample is a variety of hematite (iron peroxide) and does not carry a trace of tellurium.

Mineral Compounds.

Los Angeles, September 8.
(To the Editor of The Times:)

If my questions are in order I would be benefited greatly by obtaining through your "In the Earth" columns some information on the great number of mineral compounds, and their number.

I am a beginner in mineralogy and would like to know how you arrive at a conclusion if iron is present in copper carbonate ores, and whether the result would be qualitative or quantitative analysis?

Yours truly,
E. W. W.

Answer. The number of mineral compounds is so great that it would be an endless task to attempt to compute them. Notwithstanding this fact, mineral compounds comprise but three classes, as follows: Natives, Binaries, and Ternaries.

A native is a mass of simple molecules of a single substance—"or conglomerations of simple molecules of different substances mechanically intermixed but not chemically combined. Such are the native metals, the alloys and the amalgams."

Binaries are compound molecules. "Each binary is composed of the atoms of two elemental substances chemically united. Such are the sulphides, chlorides, oxides, etc."

Ternaries are compound molecules, "each composed of the atoms of two elements chemically united indirectly by or through atoms of a third element. Such are the silicates, carbonates, sulphates, etc."

Calcium oxide is an example of a binary compound, made up of oxygen 28 per cent, with calcium 72 per cent.

Mica belongs to the ternary compounds, and so does epidote, hornblende talc, the feldspars, etc.

If we add nitric acid to some copper carbonate ore in a test tube, red-brownish fumes will be given off and a blue solution of copper nitrate present will be formed. Pour some of the solution into another test tube (a few drops is all that is required), nearly fill the tube with water; now add, as reagent, a few drops of aqueous ammonia to the dilute solution—if copper only is present the solution will remain of blue color; iron present, the solution turns brown. Such a test is qualitative.

Calcite Only.

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you some ore from a locality seven miles east of Riverside. The white and gray sample is from a narrow lead, and I found it just as I send it. It looks like the two colors of rock were glued together, and it may be a tungsten ore. The second sample was gathered near the bottom of the hill and below the place where I got the solid sample. Please tell me in your paper what kind of minerals these samples are, and oblige.

Yours truly,
C. T. M.

ANSWER. The milk-white and gray sample is calcite only (lime carbonate,) banded together (ribbon-like,) as it were. The sand sample is chiefly quartz. Tungstic acid absent in both samples.

Calcite and Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The two samples enclosed come from two claims in the southern section of Inyo county, and as there is quite a lot of talk about this kind of rock, some calling it one thing and some calling it another, causes me to send it to The Times. Will you accommodate me by naming the two rocks and describe both of them in the "In the Earth?"

Thanking you in advance, I am yours truly,
M. J. B.

ANSWER. The rock carrying pebbles is an igneous or erupted substance, which, as obtained by you from its "native lair," is "laid down in sheet upon sheet, the edges looking like steps of a stair case. . . . Trap is produced by a slow and dignified outpouring of melted rock. Trap rocks containing pebbles or other spherical cavities, where pebbles might have been, are called amygdaloidal."

Your other sample is basalt, and made up of augite, feldspar and chrysolite in certan proportions, iron is present in the sample. The specimen is of a gray-darkish color, "very crystalline and finely granular in texture, and nearly always it occurs in columns of six sides, standing up vertically or inclined, and often lying horizontally. There are dykes of it in Alabama and elsewhere which stand up four or five feet above the ground, and look like piles of cordwood.

Trap Rock and Basalt.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Correspondents not finding answers, in this department, to their communications, will please write another letter and enclose a second lot of samples; as, owing to the destruction of The Times building many letters were absolutely destroyed.

Already The Times has risen from the blow received and will, in the future, from this time on, be greater than ever.

The monetary loss is as nothing; but the workers who lost their lives while on duty, will ever be honored by all real men everywhere.

CITY NEAR TOP OF NATIONAL BUILDING COLUMN.

GENERAL BUILDING CONDITIONS ARE SATISFACTORY.

In its record of building activity for the month of September this city not only bested its own best previous September figures but took an enviable place in the national buildinb column as well. Only three other American cities, Chicago, Philadelphia and Seattle surpassed Los Angeles in the number of building permits issued in September, while in point of valuation of the construction work represented by these permits only these three cities and New York were ahead of Los Angeles.

The Seattle record was the marvel of Pacific Coast building for the month. Los Angeles is still far in the lead of Seattle on the year's total to date, but the northern city picked up astonishingly the past month. Seattle's figures were 1310 permits and $1,849,395 valuation.

After Los Angeles, Cleveland had the best record and Portland, Detroit, Omaha, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Denver, Rochester and Pittsburg followed in order.

The leading cities of the country made an exceptionally good showing and but for big increases in Brooklyn, Spokane and Washington, there would be a handsome increase over the same month a year ago. According to official reports from fifty-eight cities to Construction News permits were taken out in September for the construction of 16,698 buildings, involving a total estimated cost of $49,066,879 during the month just closed as against 16,057 permits involving $51,950,931 for the same month a year ago, an increase of 641 buildings, and a decrease of $2,884,052, or six per cent. The decreases were at points remote from each other having but little if any bearing on the general situation. There were some phenomenal increases. The figures in detail are as follows:

ROADS ARE CONDEMNED.

Los Angeles and Pasadera Realty Men Discuss Highways with Board of Supervisors.

A committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board, accompanied by representatives of the Pasadena Realty Board of Supervisors to urge upon that board of supervisors to urge upon that body the necessity of putting certain bad stretches of road between this city and Monrovia into better condition. Especial attention was called by the real estate men to the road between the end of North Broadway and Bairdstown, the Baldwin road to Monrovia and part of the Alhambra road.

It was urged that the failure to maintain these roads in the best condition possible is bad business and prejudicial to the interests of the section. Auto men were represented by the committees as declaring that the average condition of the road from Los Angeles to Riverside is better than that from here to Pasadena.

The committee suggested that all bumps and ruts on the bad stretches in question be smoothed over at once and that, following a thorough wetting down the roads be rolled over. After this, it was urged that at least two men and a team should be kept on the roads constantly to make repairs, and a policeman on a motorcycle should be constantly on duty to arrest and make an example of speeders.

The board admitted that bad conditions exist and promised to take the matter under advisement. The realty men who handled the problem express the belief that something will be done by the Supervisors to remedy the road conditions complained of.

The committees will at an early date see the city officials of Pasadena and Alhambra on the same mission.

PROUD POSITION.

LOS ANGELES HIGH IN LIST.

CITY NEAR TOP OF NATIONAL BUILDING COLUMN.

GENERAL BUILDING CONDITIONS ARE SATISFACTORY.

In its record of building activity for the month of September this city not only bested its own best previous September figures but took an enviable place in the national buildinb column as well. Only three other American cities, Chicago, Philadelphia and Seattle surpassed Los Angeles in the number of building permits issued in September, while in point of valuation of the construction work represented by these permits only these three cities and New York were ahead of Los Angeles.

The Seattle record was the marvel of Pacific Coast building for the month. Los Angeles is still far in the lead of Seattle on the year's total to date, but the northern city picked up astonishingly the past month. Seattle's figures were 1210 permits and $1,849,395 valuation.

After Los Angeles, Cleveland had the best record and Portland, Detroit, Omaha, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Denver, Rochester and Pittsburg followed in order.

The leading cities of the country made an exceptionally good showing and but for big increases in Brooklyn, Spokane and Washington, there would be a handsome increase over the same month a year ago. According to official reports from fifty-eight cities to Construction News permits were taken out in September for the construction of 16,698 buildings, involving a total estimated cost of $49,066,879 during the month just closed as against 16,057 permits involving $51,950,931 for the same month a year ago, an increase of 641 buildings and a decrease of $2,884,052, or six per cent. The decreases were at points remote from each other having but little if any bearing on the general situation. There were some phenomenal increases. The figures in detail are as follows:

ROADS ARE CONDEMNED.

Los Angeles and Pasadena Realty Men Discuss Highways with Board of Supervisors.

A committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board, accompanied by representatives of the Pasadena Realty Board of Supervisors to urge upon that board of supervisors to urge upon that body the necessity of putting certain stretches of road between this city and Monrovia into better condition. Especial attention was called by the real estate men to the road between the end of North Broadway and Bairdstown, the Baldwin road to Monrovia and part of the Alhambra road.

It was urged that the failure to maintain these roads in the best condition possible is bad business and prejudicial to the interests of the section. The men were represented by the committees as declaring that the average condition of the road from Los Angeles to Riverside is better than that from here to Pasadena.

The committee suggested that all holes and ruts on the bad stretches in question be smoothed over at once and following a thorough wetting down the roads be rolled over. After this, it was urged that at least two men and a team should be kept on the roads constantly to make repairs, and a policeman on a motorcycle should be constantly on duty to arrest and make an example of speeders.

The board admitted that bad conditions exist and promised to take the matter under advisement. The realty men who handled the problem express the belief that something will be done by the Supervisors to remedy the road conditions complained of.

The committees will at an early date see the city officials of Pasadena and Alhambra on the same mission.

OLD GROVE IS SOLD.

The most noteworthy sale of recent weeks affecting the movement of walnut groves in the Whittier district is that of a portion of the Sinsabaugh 65 acres in East Whittier to S. S. Peters of Whittier, who paid $25,000 for about [illegible] acres of ten-year-old trees. Mr. Peters bought for investment. The sale was made through the agency of [illegible] Wright & Co.

The same firm reports sales during the last ten days as follows: house and lot on South Milton avenue for R. [illegible] to F. A. Jackson of this city; house and lot on Berkeley Way, for D. E. Gooch to E. . Hamm; 17 acres of the Potrero Heights tract, D. H. White to J. F. Dehm, consideration $5200.

The Hiatt-Arnold Company report the sale of a number of lots in Protrero Heights, which is a part of the "Lucky" Baldwin Estate. These follow: 30 acres to V. A. Reynolds, $5000; 19 acres to Dr. W. V. Marshburn, $4750; 22 acres for D. H. Unruh to D. H. White, $6600; nine and one-half acres for D. H. White to V. A. Reynolds, $3150; 15 acres for the Baldwin Estate to J. H. Gwin and B. F. Arnold, $3750; 10 acres to R. Dozier, $2000; 10 acres to L. E. Hauser, $2000; 24 acres to T. S. Weed, $5250; six acres to E. G. Tabor, $1500; and 17 acres to D. H. White, $3400. The Potrero Water Company, an organization of the above mentioned owners, has started a well to develop 200 inches of water.

MANY NEW HOUSES.

ONTARIO, Oct. 15.—The monthly report of the City Clerk shows a continued activity in building. Fifteen building permits were issued in September for residences. These total $31,850. To this amount could be added about $12,000 that is being spent by the First National Bank in interior alterations.

The building of a new theater by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Barnes, proprietors of the Crescent moving picture theater, is planned. The building will cost $10,000.

Louis Hammel of this city has sold a ten-acre ranch of full bearing navel orange trees, at the corner of Sixteenth street and Euclid avenue, to George E. Bender, a recent arrival from Chicago, the consideration being $20,000. The purchaser intends to erect a handsome residence upon the ranch.

Harry Kelly of the Ontario Realty Company reports the sale of a ten-acre tract of land in the Blackburne Addition on the South Side to M. L. Myberg for $1500. Mr. Myberg will erect a residence upon the property. The same agency negotiated the trade of three lots on East A street for Geo. McKibbon to Mrs. Hattie Allen, of Upland, for a brick business block in that city. The deal involves a consideration of $3000.

BUY HOME SITES.

Building Company Acquires Thirty-Eight Lots in Nadeau Orange Tract.

General E. Bouton has sold to the Home Builders Company of this city thirty-eight lots situated in the Nadeau Orange Tract fronting on McKinley avenue and Lander, Thirty-seventh and East Jefferson streets. The consideration is reported to have been a little under $1000 a lot.

It is the intention of the purchasers to improve each site with a house to be handled on the installment plan. Two of these residences have already been started.

FOOLING THE FISH.

French Fishermen Using Manufactured Bait With Which to Catch Sardines.

Experiments have been carried out in the Bay of Biscay, some 100 miles off Belle Isle, by eight fishing boats under the control of a French Government guardship, to ascertain whether artificial roe could in practice replace cod roe as bait in sardine fishing. The artificial roe under trial is made of fish refuse; its color is brown and it is granulated like fish eggs. The price of this roe, 30 francs per 100 kilos (about 2½ cents per pound), is much lower than that of the Norwegian cod roe now almost exclusively used, the cost of which varies from 80 to 120 francs per 100 kilos (7 to 10½ cents per pound).

The only disadvantage of the artificial roe, states the vice-consul, is that it is too heavy and goes too quickly to the bottom, with the result that it keeps the fish out of reach of the nets.

The eight fishing craft engaged in the experiments have made fine catches, varying from 10,000 to 15,000 fish each. A further trial is to be made with lighter roe, and if this is satisfactory the new bait will be distributed on board some boats for a final test.—[Consular Reports.

THE OLDEST PEOPLE.

The Ainus of Japan Beleived to be the Oldest Existent Race in World.

[From the Christian Herald.]—One of the most interesting expositions of the year is the Japanese-British Exposition being held at Shepherd's Bush, near London. Japanese landscape gardeners have turned large tracts into flower gardens dotted with quaint Japanese houses, and there is a magnificent exhibit of the arts, crafts and industries of Japan. A party of Ainus, the people often called the oldest race in the world, who live in the northern part of Japan, are attracting much attention. There are but few of them left, though at one time they doubtless held a great part of Japan. It is thought that they will soon be extinct. It will be noticed that their faces bear little resemblance to those of the Japanese. The Ainus are sometimes compared to the American Indians, both having held full sway over a country for centuries, only to be driven into a small part of their former territory by a stronger and progressive race. The stronger and victorious races have often been unjust, oppressive and murderous in spirit and action, as the white man was against the red man here,. Strange to say, the aborigines of almost all lands, when they are crowded back by the stronger arm, die almost as rapidly from civilization as from the bullet, like wild animals that pine and die when confined within pens.

Barrett Wendell's Pun.

When Professor Wendell of Harvard entered upon his Sabbatical year, he remained in Cambridge some weeks after his leave of absence began and persisted in taking part in the departmental meeting. The head of the department protested.

"Sir," he aid, "you are officially absent. You are non est."

"Oh, very well!" replied Professor Wendell, "a non est man is the noblest work of God."—[Success Magazine.

BIG BUILDING TOTALS DUE TO NORMAL ACTIVITY.

RECORD OF CONSTRUCTION ONE TO STIR ENVY.

NEW STRUCTURES IN ALL PARTS OF THE CITY.

The good records which are being made in the city department of buildings from day to day are largely to be accounted for by permits for residences, which together with those issued for small stores and apartments may be said to practically make up the present building activity. For a year or more there has been a remarkable liveliness in ordinary routine construction, and while big down town projects have been numerous in many months the figures are not as in the case of some other cities "padded" by "freak items. Substract all permits for "skyscrapers" from the valuation aggregates, and Los Angele' record will still eclipse many of those boasted by other cities of this size.

Some of the new buildings for which plans are completed or under way in local draughting rooms are reported as follows: As mentioned in last Sunday's Times, A. J. Copp will build on a site leased by him at No. 443 South Hill street for a term of fifty years. Plans for this structure, which will be two stories in height and of brick construction are being drawn by Hunt & Burns. The lot is 40x159 feet in size.

L. S. Walker is having plans prepared by Norman F. Marsh for a two-story brick building to be erected at Fifty-fourth and Vermont. The structure will occupy a site 40x60 feet in size and will contain two store rooms. George Diehm has had designs drawn for a one-story brick garage at No. 4319 South Central avenue. The residence of A. Garnsert at No. 2011 West Seventh street will be raised one story and made to stand over two store rooms. The Empire Building Company has the contract.

Edelman & Barnett have completed plans for a one-story brick building which is to be erected by Mrs. Kate Agoure on Olive between Seventh and Eighth streets. The plans call for a tructure 81x125 feet in ize and containing five stories. The Dwight-McKinley Company has had plans prepared by C. C. Rittenhouse for a two-story brick store and rooming house at Seventh and San Mateo. There will be six stores on the first floor and thirty-two rooms above.

A. L. Acker will revise plans and specifications for a two-story frame flat building which is to be erected by Mrs E. Starkey at Fiftieth and Moneta. The Talbert-Whitmore Company has had designs drawn by Frank M. Tyler for a one-story warehouse which is to be built at Lacy and Avenue Twenty-six.

C. H. Bareford has begun the contruction of a ten-room residence on Manhattan Place between Fifth and Sixth streets. Plans were drawn by Frank M. Tyler. Arthur B. Benton has drawn designs for a seven-room bungalow which is to be built at No. 1220 West Forty-first street for G. D. Larson. An eleven-room house of reinforced concrete construction will be erected on Norton avenue near Pico by the Monelith Construction Company. Plans have been prepared by August Wackerbarth. The residence will cover a ground area of 43x44 feet. All walls, columns, beams and footings will be of concrete.

TO BUILD ON SEVENTH.

Plans have been drawn by Architects John C. Austin and W. C. Pennell for a five-story and basement apartment house of class B. brick construction, which will be erected on West Seventh street just west of Figueroa. The name of the builder is by request withheld for the present. The building will contain one hundred rooms, exclusive of kitchens, baths, social rooms, parlors and store rooms. Only a portion of the structure 80x90 feet in size will be built at this time, the plan being to add other buildings of the same size later. Plans for the entire project as it will eventually stand are practically completed.

Squirrels Rang the Telephone.

A lady in Englewood, N. J., was called to the telephone one day by the operator, who inquired: "What do you want?"

"Nothing at all," she responded.

"Your bell rang," insisted the operator.

"None of us rang it," replied the lady.

The next day a man appeared from the telephone office.

"I have come to see what makes your telephone bell ring most of the time," he remarked.

But none of the family could enlighten him, and he saw nothing about it which was out of order.

The next day he came again, took the telephone entirely to pieces, examined the full length of the wire. Still, he could find nothing amiss, and still at the central office the little flame kept burning in the niche dedicated to this particular family. This indicated that their bell was ringing.

At last it occurrd to the authorities to examine a little box, of about the size of an ordinary suitcase, which was nailed up against a large tree close by the house.

In this box several telephone wires converged. It was a sort of neighborhood switchboard.

What was the surprise of the telephone men to find this box nearly filled with nuts! They took out three peach-baskets full, each one holding at least two quarts.

193 Representative So. Cal. Realty Men Handling West Riverside Estate Orange Groves

Do you think they would, for one minute, permit their names to appear in connection with the offer of the West Riverside Estate, Inc., unless they knew the property would support the advertised claims? The fact they are willing to handle the property and allow themselves to be thus publicly connected with the enterprise is the best endorsement and the greatest compliment the West Riverside Estate will ever get. In addition, there are many others handling these groves of whom no mention is made today because we have not been authorized to use their names.

Look over the following list. You cannot help but find some one you know, or who you know by reputation, and in whose judgment you would rely. Go to that man's office and tell him that you want to know the truth about the groves.

Ask him if he really believes the property we are offering can be paid for out of its own earnings safely inside the purchase time. Ask him how long he thinks this 500 acres will last when the buying public really understands the offer. Ask him if he really believes that $2500 INVESTED IN THE WEST RIVERSIDE ESTATE, Inc., WILL GROW TO $15,000 IN EIGHT YEARS. Ask him to take you over the property at once and help you select all you can possibly afford to buy.

This is the first, and probably the last, opportunity you will ever have to purchase proven income property with an established earning capacity on such terms that the income itself can safely be depended on to pay for the property inside the purchase time.

A CALENDAR OF PIONEER PRINCES.

Names for California's Stately Hall of Fame.

II.—JOHN BIDWELL

Born August 5, 1819; Died April 4, 1900.

BY ROCKWELL D. HUNT.

JOHN BIDWELL, Californian, was one of nature's true noblemen. He was princely in his very democracy, hospitable even to his own hurt, youthful in alertness and mental vigor at eighty, possessing ever a rare combination of simple modesty and genuine courtliness.

At the age of nineteen John reached a decision that cost him a college education but made him a path-finder. He left Kingsville Academy with strong aspirations for the higher culture, but also with an intense longing for travel. After a brief teaching experience, with $75.00 in his pocket, he concluded to see something of the great western prairies before entering college. That was a momentous decision: it proved the commencement of a career almost unprecedented in character—romantic, thrilling, unique.

Born in Chautauqua county, New York, of an ancestry of New England farmers, his parents removed to Ashtabula county, Ohio, when John was a lad of ten. His early education, which was far superior to the average of the time, was richly supplemented by his earnest application and by the life habit of turning circumstance and experience into educative forces. Throughout his long life he evinced the liveliest interest in all educational matters.

For well-nigh three score years was John Bidwell a resident of California. Long before the "Days of Gold," years even before Fremont's first expedition to the Pacific Coast, young Bidwell, with a party of thirty from the Bartleson train, after a thrillingly interesting trip of six months, had reached California in early November, 1841. The story of this first immigrant train across the great plains and through the heart of the Sierra Nevada, will long remain a California classic.

General Bidwell, becoming prominent almost at once in this new country, witnessed the transformations of every stage in California's development, standing almost unique as the living embodiment of each of the several distinct regimes or "ages" of our great Pacific Commonwealth, himself rendering distinguished service in every phase.

For many months he was in the employ of Captain John A. Sutter at New Helvetia. As an adopted son of Mexico, he early acquired facility in the Spanish language and did much official translating. He surveyed many extensive land grants, this early experience serving him well in the chief pastime of his later life—the building of good roads. He was conspicuous in the Micheltorena War, of 1844-45; it was he that drew up the concise document which Lieutenant Gillespie accepted as the constitution of the Bear Flag Republic; he later received from Commodore Stockton the commission of Quartermaster, with rank of Major. In 1849 he was selected as a member of California's first Constitutional Convention, although unable to serve.

Although manifesting genuine interest in the affairs of the day, rejoicing at the tokens of national and local prosperity, yet deeply solicitous for the common weal, we deem it not strange that the mind of Bidwell loved best to dwell upon the stirring themes of early days. And for one of the present generation to sit and listen while he discoursed in his deliberate, inimitable way upon the old Californian regime was like listening to a veritable voice out of the past: other days were given a voice, history became audible.

The retentiveness of Bidwell's mind even to the end was wonderful. At eighty he readily recalled the names not only of nearly all the earliest Americans and other foreigners in California, giving accurately in each case their respective locations: he could readily name and exactly locate every county in the State. His versatility was not less wonderful. Each passing year dropped into his mind an invisible resource and into his heart a mellowing richness which combined with generous native endowment in the perfection of a character at once lofty, heroic, gentle, noble. The petals of the tiniest flower and the huge geological formations alike elicited his warm admiration. He mastered the scientific nomenclature of the very numerous flora of Rancho Chico with its twenty-five thousand acres, and in his travels he was quick to note any new plant. He had stored his mind with a wealth of the poetry of nature and of the Psalms of David; and the quotation of apt verses was with him and his charming wife a favorite pastime. How beautiful to find here and there a rare man that does not live by bread alone!

John Bidwell was also at eighty a teachable student of science. The only book he had brought with him across the plains in '41—no wonder he prized it highly!—was Burritt's Geography of the Heavens. The pleasures of the intellect were to him an indispensible element of life.

For many years Mr. Bidwell was our greatest agriculturist. With true public spirit he consistently sought to advance the agricultural interests of the Commonwealth. As chief patron of the State Fairs at Sacramento the wide range of his exhibits from Rancho Chico constituted a farmers' university. In 1878 his wheat at the Paris International Exposition was pronounced the best in the world.

Bidwell was a great politician, though not highly successful if judged strictly by the majority vote. His political career is long and full of interest. As State Senator in the First California Legislature, he rendered invaluable aid in State building. In 1860, having refused to vote for Fremont in 1856, he went as a delegate to the famous Charleston Convention where, of all the Pacific Coast delegation, he alone stood loyal to the Union in that hour of crisis. In 1863 he received from Governor Stanford the command of the Fifth Brigade, California Militia. In 1864 he was a delegate in the Republican Convention that renominated Abraham Lincoln, and later in the same year was elected to Congress where he served as chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture. He was nominated for Governor by the Non-Partisan, Anti-Monopoly Party in 1875, but failed of election. In 1890 he was regular Prohibition nominee for Governor, and two years later he received the support of the same party for the Presidency of the United States.

He professed himself to have been an "incorrigible" Democrat till the Civil War broke out, then for about fifteen years an "incorrigible" Republican, and from 1876 an avowed Prohibitionist. Widely known as a "teetotaler" from very early days, so firm were his principles of temperance that on being convinced of the harmfulness of wine drinking he uprooted in 1867 all his wine-bearing vines, planting raisin and table varieties of grapes in their place.

The benefactions of John Bidwell were numerous and worthy. Churches of different denominations were given building sites; the city of Chico was given its lovely plaza; eight beautifully located acres were given at a site for the Normal School of Northern California; an extensive tract was given for a United States Forestry station;—these and similar responses to the call to philanthropy were but normal expressions of John Bidwell's generous spirit, a spirit that was genuinely shared and is still graciously continued by his worthy companion, Mrs. Annie Bidwell.

As a Christian the "Father of Chico" was large-hearted and broad-minded; modest and unassuming; benevolent and broadly humanitarian. He believed profoundly in the rulings of an all-wise Providence in the affairs of men, and with simple faith recognized the hand of a merciful Father in his own life.

Here was indeed a commanding personality. Standing full six feet in height, he possessed a powerful frame and remarkable endurance. When in reminiscent mood during later life, his face became suffused with an intensity of emotion that gave access to his very soul; while his patriarchal beard, only partly whitened with age, imparted added authority to his deliberate speech. Take him all in all,—his splendid physique, his seasoned knowledge and experience of the American frontier, alert mind, expansive vision, his affluence and abounding hospitality, his unswerving devotion to high political and moral principle, his unassuming Christian character,—take him all in all, adventurer, agriculturist, politician, philanthropist, nature-lover, gentle, imperious man, I do not hesitate to designate John Bidwell prince among the aristocracy of California pioneers.

Why the Wind Waits.

The author, Clifton Johnson, tells of a curious superstition of Montreal, which explains why the wind is always blowing at the point where St. Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet, close by the towering cathedral. The situation is naturally breezy, like that of our Flatiron building in New York. But the people of Montreal have a miraculous explanation of the phenomenon that is more interesting than any scientific demonstration. "It seems that one day while the church was in progress of building, the Wind and the Devil were walking down Notre Dame street; and the Devil after regarding with a frown of disapproval the graceful outlines of the new edifice rising before him, exclaimed:

"'What is this? I never saw it before?'

"'Very likely not,' responded the Wind, 'and I dare you to go in there.'

"'You dare me to do that, do you?' cried the Devil with a sneer. 'Well, I will go in, if you will promise to wait here until I come out.'

"'Agreed,' said the Wind.

"So his Satanic Majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind is still waiting for him at the corner."[Book Herald.

CUT OUT POLKA DOTS.

Lightning's Strange Freak in Making Over a Dress and Taking Off Woman's Garters.

Mrs. H. E. Gingerich, of East Altoona, Pa., was the victim of one of the queerest freaks lightning ever played recently.

Her wash was hanging on a wire stretched between a pear tree and the house. Seeing a storm coming, she hurried out to take down the clothes. While she was thus engaged there was a blinding flash, and she was knocked down. The bolt had struck the pear tree and ran along the wire into her body. Her dress was polka-dotted with holes the size of a penny, the holes looking as if they had been cut, the edges not being singed. Immediately under each of these perforations, which were numerous, a blister the size of the hole was raised on the flesh, as if she had been scalded.

The woman's garters were cleanly cut in two, and the eyelets of her shoes were made red hot, and burned her severely, she suffers terribly from the shock.

Egyptians Suffered From Blindness.

Those who are acquainted with "Diodorus Siculus," or those who have not forgotten their "Herodotus," says The London Globe, will need no reminder that both these observant writers were impressed by the defective eyesight of the Egyptians. It was due to this cecity among the Crusaders in later times, that St. Louis, profanely known as Louis IX, founded in Paris the "Quinze-Vingts," the asylum for the blind. Later still we find that the soldiers of Napoleon, when in Egypt, suffered from blindness. Up to 1880 about 95 per cent. of the people suffered from ophthalmia of some description during some period of their life, and at least 3 per cent. were blind. There are many contributory causes for this state of things—flies and popular prejudice being important factors. However, things are changing. Ophthalmia is not prevalent among the British soldiers. Skillful treatment and popular education in the wide sense of the word are overcoming the maladies noted by the Sicilian and him of Halicarnassus.

Breaking the News.

The eminent poet and student of Tyrolese peasant life Peter Rosegger gives an interesting instance of the manner in which bad news is broken by the villagers of his country. It recalls the famous ballad of the knight whose page took the news of the warrior's death to the lady and began by telling her that her little dog had been injured.

After a recent heavy rainstorm a Tyrolese peasant came into the village inn and joined a lad of 18, who had been drinking beer and smoking a pipe, and was just "going back to the haying," now that the rain had ceased.

"Sit still awhile," said the newcomer; "you can afford it." After standing at the table for some minutes he went on: "Well, my dear Mat, you've grown a rich man within the last half hour."

And Mat, remembering the fearful thunder clap of half an hour ago, turned white as a sheet. The peasant then explained that his father, two sisters, and a brother, who had taken shelter from the rain under an old fir tree, had all been killed by the lightning striking the tree—[Westminster Gazette.

It Was Not His Fault.

Clement J. Driscoll, New York's commissioner of weights and measures, advocates the sale of bread strictly by weight.

"Some bakers oppose this idea," he said the other day. "They prove that it is better for the poor to trust to the baker's generosity than to pin him down as butchers and grocers are pinned down now.

"Well, it seems to me that these bakers are as illogical and absurd as the beggar who wore a placard saying, 'I have only six months to live.' He was a robust beggar, but the placard touched all hearts, and through its agency he must have made $6 or $7 a day.

"A Philadelphian who had helped the beggar liberally in Philadelphia in 1905 came across the fellow, wearing the same placard, in Los Angeles in 1909.

"'Why, you ought to be ashamed of yourself,' the Philadelphian cried. 'Only six months to live, forsooth! You were saying that five years ago.'

"'Well,' said the beggar, 'it ain't my fault, is it, if the doctors make mistakes?'"—[Detroit Free Press.

The Cat Came Back.

One would think that during its proverbial nine lives the ordinary cat would have many hairbreadths escapes, but it falls to the lot of few to have such a miraculous escape out of the "jaws" of death as a cat had up in the Highlands the other day.

Puss belonged to a gamekeeper in Rosshire and one fine morning its master was dismayed to see an eagle swoop down upon it, seize it and carry it to its eyrie far up on the cliffs. Lately he had seen lambs and rabbits taken the same way and naturally he feared that his pet was gone forever to become food for the eaglets.

But lo! Late that very afternoon the cottage door was gently pushed open and in walked the cat. The eagle, being unacquainted with natural history, had treated him as he had the lambs and the rabbits, by carrying him off by the nape of the neck. He had dropped him in among his brood and immediately flown off in search of other prey.

Doubtless the visitor, left to himself, had cautionsly taken stock of his surroundings and after recovery from the shock of the apparent overgenerosity of his captor, had made tracks for home.—Edinburg Dispatch.

The Blower Quit.

An organist, who on the eve of a festival was taken suddenly ill secured a deputy to take his place, says the St. James Budget. The deputy was a gentleman who played a very full organ, playing full chords wher his principal played only single notes, and consequently using a much larger quantity of wind.

When about three parts through with the "Hallelujah Chorus" the wind suddenly gave out. Going round to the back of the organ to ascertain the reason, the deputy found the blower in the act of puting on his coat preparatory to going home.

"What do you mean by such behavior?" the deputy angrily expostulated.

"Look 'ere, sir," the blower returned, with warmth, "if you think I don't know 'ow many puffs it takes to blow the "Allelujah Chorus' you make a big mistake."—[The Pathfinder.

Too Much Magic.

The charge sheet of an eastern police court contains many curious items.

One Hashim Shah was charged with posing as a sorcerer, with powers to convert government currency notes into double their face value by a certain process of alchemy. A certain Kutchi was prevailed upon to make an experiment and brought notes of the value of 110 rupees. These, together with certain herbs, were placed in a glass bottle in his presence by the accused and left to ferment for twenty-four hours, the owner being requested to call on the morrow.

He did so, when it was ascertained that, owing to the disproportionate use of the magical ingredients, the notes were non est, having fermented too much. The sorcerer and his accomplices were discharged, there being insufficient evidence.—Bombay Gazette.

To Identify a Drowned Man.

A woman entered the Fourth District police station a few days ago and asked Sergeant Sinking to have the river near her home dragged.

"My husband has been threatening for some time to drown himself," she explained, "and he's been missing now for two days."

"Anything peculiar about him by which he may he recognized?" asked the officer, preparing to fill out a description blank.

For several minutes the woman seemed to be searching her memory. Suddenly her face brightened.

"Why, yes, sir; he's deaf."—[Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

How Perfume Is Weighed.

It was the Italian physician Salvioni who devised a microbalance of such extreme delicacy that it clearly demonstrated the loss of weight of musk by volitilization. Thus the invisible perfume floating off in the air is indirectly weighed.

The essential part of the apparatus is a very thin thread of glass, fixed at one end and extended horizontally. The microscopic objects to be weighed are placed upon the glass thread near its free end, and the amount of flexture produced is observed with a microscope magnifying 100 diameters.

A mote weighing one-thousandth of a milligramme is said perceptibly to bend the thread.—[New York Herald.

ASTIR. By John Adams Thayer. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)

BEHOLD, dear reader, the glorious and Brobdingnagian figure of one John Adams Thayer! Never heard of him? Incredible! Can it be that you are ignorant of the comings and goings of the advertising solicitor of the Ladies Hum Journal? And when you see the sign, "Butterwick Patterns", do you not associate it with the name of Thayer?

For the benefit of those people who for long years have lived in ignorance of so great a person as himself, Thayer has issued a book, setting forth all the exciting and epoch making events of his life. It is a stirring and romantic chronicle.

Thayer started out in life to earn money. Throughtout his youth he earned money; and he ended his illustrious public career by earning money. In the progress of his life's journey we are told of his acumen, his managerial ability, his judgment, his honesty, his shrewd business methods, his prudence, and for all these things he has a profound respect and admiration for himself.

Thayer began life as a typesetter and became a union printer, but he tells us that he was far too ambitious and energetic to waste his splendid abilities on a routine occupation. He became a traveling salesman and later rose to the dazzling heights of type expert on the Corset Cover Journal, but he had visions even beyond this dizzy pinnacle, and in time he became advertising manager. Being refused $5,000 salary, Thayer haughtily withdrew from the Curtis periodical, only to associate himself with Mr. Munsey, but Mr. Munsey got sick of him and fired him, an action which resulted in Thayer's affiliation with the advertising department of the Delineator. He tells proudly of how he refused certain objectionable advertisements in this fashion periodical and of the noble principles which actuated him to such a chaste proceeding. No longer could ladies dressed only in lace trousers adorn the page of this domestic monthly. Who done it? John!

It was Thayer who discovered Tom Lawson and hired this frenetic Bostonian to write his frenzied articles. Thayer also inaugurated "Ridgway's Weekly" which lost about a third of a million in nineteen weeks.

Thayer did other tremendous and exciting things, such as paying off his help on Saturday night and buying stock in the magazines for which he worked. No doubt a man of Thayer's genious and colossal intelligence also donned pajamas before going to bed and bathed of a Saturday night, or shaved every morning before going to work.

But these important and exciting details he has chosen for some mysterious reason to omit.

LITERARY SACRILEGE.

"NEITHER DO I" is an amateurish and jejune attempt to improve on the biblical legend dealing with Jesus, Mary Magdalen, Mary of Bethany and Lazarus. The book is purported to be founded on a legend now extant which somewhat alters the accepted chacter of Mary Magdalene.

As to the moral merits or demerits of the book, I must confess to an inability of judgment; but that it is literary sacrilege, I most emphatically pronounce. It is impossible to conceive of a person whose taste is such that it would lead to an attempt to improve on the Scriptures. Persons who are not willing to accept the marvelously beautiful literary productions in the Bible as they are in the King James version, are quite beyond the consideration of educated people. They are one with the lovers of rag-time and the cafeteria fiends. Beside the writings in the Bible, the work of the greatest writers in English become puny. The English language is the grandest of human inventions, and never has it been arranged to such powerful and splendid advantage as in the biblical text. If you have any doubt as to the ability of those ancient and unknown writers to tell a story, read first what you consider the greatest story in English outside the Scriptures; then turn to the romance of Ruth and Naomi, or to the story of Queen Vashti and Esther, or to the account of the revolt of Absalom against Solomon. Compared to the stories of these ancient Hebrews, all other efforts are halting and inadequate.

And here come blithly into the literary arena one Elizabeth Adamson Redford who, with a blunt and bloodless pen, endeavors to improve on those mighty writings.

It is to weep.

THE YOUTHFUL HEART.

FIRST LOVE. By Marie Van Vorst. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis. (Price $1.50.)

"FIRST LOVE," by that feminine master of drivel, Marie Van Vorst, is an anaemic attempt to set forth that inevitable emotion which smites the budding heart of the anthropophagus male—the calf love for an older woman. All energetic youths pass through this stage, just as they all at one time guzzle beer, read Byron, believe in socialism and wish to be hailed as a good fellow well met. These things are as inevitable with the adolescent as measles, whooping cough and mumps. Puppy love is nothing to get weepy and sentimental over nor to do any tall talking about. But Marie Van Vorst has taken it seriously and sappily.

The amorous party of the first part is a conventional and callow young man; and the party of the second part is a noble widow from whose cheeks, we are told, the bloom has not yet departed and from whose heart the spirit of youth has not yet passed away. But when John devotedly prostrates himself before her, she looks not kindly upon his suit, although she loves him. Instead she sends him away. But for the woes on both sides there is a balm of Gilead. In the one case he is named Nicholas Pryane, a gentleman for whom Mrs. Bathurst has always felt a "quiet affection;" on the other hand, the sorrows of John find surcease in Milly Haven, a sweet female whom he had met at college.

"THE O'FLYNN."

THE O'FLYNN. By Justin Huntly McCarthy. Harper & Bros., New York. (Price $1.50.)

MR. O'FLYNN is worth more than a passing notice. He is a delightful, sentimental and romantic Irishman, full of the spirit of adventure, with morals resembling those of a horse thief and the courage of a knight de Vermandois. He cares for nothing, and is willing to undertake anything which presents itself. He is a sublimated type of the soldier of fortune who looks upon all things includ-

LITERARY SACRILEGE.

"NEITHER DO I" is an amateurish and jejune attempt to improve on the biblical legend dealing with Jesus, Mary Magdalen, Mary of Bethany and Lazarus. The book is purported to be founded on a legend now extant which somewhat alters the accepted chacter of Mary Magdalene.

As to the moral merits or demerits of the book, I must confess to an inability of judgment; but that it is literary sacrilege, I most emphatically pronounce. It is impossible to conceive of a person whose taste is such that it would lead to an attempt to improve on the Scriptures. Persons who are not willing to accept the marvelously beautiful literary productions in the Bible as they are in the King James version, are quite beyond the consideration of educated people. They are one with the lovers of rag-time and the cafeteria fiends. Beside the writings in the Bible, the work of the greatest writers in English become puny. The English language is the grandest of human inventions, and never has it been arranged to such powerful and splendid advantage as in the biblical text. If you have any doubt as to the ability of those ancient and unknown writers to tell a story, read first what you consider the greatest story in English outside the Scriptures; then turn to the romance of Ruth and Naomi, or to the story of Queen Vashti and Esther, or to the account of the revolt of Absalom against Solomon. Compared to the stories of these ancient Hebrews, all other efforts are halting and inadequate.

And here come blithly into the literary arena one Elizabeth Adamson Redford who, with a blunt and bloodless pen, endeavors to improve on those mighty writings.

It is to weep.

THE YOUTHFUL HEART.

FIRST LOVE. By Marie Van Vorst. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis. (Price $1.50.)

"FIRST LOVE," by that feminine master of drivel, Marie Van Vorst, is an anaemic attempt to set forth that inevitable emotion which smites the budding heart of the anthropophagus male—the calf love for an older woman. All energetic youths pass through this stage, just as they all at one time guzzle beer, read Byron, believe in socialism and wish to be hailed as a good fellow well met. These things are as inevitable with the adolescent as measles, whooping cough and sties. Puppy love is nothing to get weepy and sentimental over nor to do any tall talking about. But Marie Van Vorst has taken it seriously and soppily.

The amorous party of the first part is a conventional and callow young man; and the party of the second part is a noble widow from whose cheeks, we are told, the bloom has not yet departed and from whose heart the spirit of youth has not yet passed away. But when John devotedly prostrates himself before her, she looks not kindly upon his suit, although she loves him. Instead she sends him away. But for the woes on both sides there is a balm of Gilead. In the one case he is named Nicholas Prynne, a gentleman for whom Mrs. Bathurst has always felt a "quiet affection;" on the other hand, the sorrows of John find surcease in Milly Haven, a sweet female whom he had met at college.

"THE O'FLYNN."

MR. O'FLYNN is worth more than a passing notice. He is a delightful, sentimental and romantic Irishman, full of the spirit of adventure, with morals resembling those of a horse thief and the courage of a Hugh de Vermandois. He cares for nothing and is willing to undertake anything which presents itself. He is a sublimated type of the soldier of fortune, who looks upon all things including death as a joke, and who can play the lover or the rakish wag with equal success. He is an elaborate prose edition of Barney McGee, and despite his adherence to conventional type, he is a gentleman with whom the sympathies of the reader ever go.

How he makes violent love to the Lady Benedetta under improper circumstances; how he squanders a borrowed fortune; how he indulges in what the Swan of Litchfield calls the "murderous punctilio of Luciferian honor;" how he gathers together a small company of black legs, swoops down on a castle and dissipates a conspiracy against King James; and how he brings about a successful culmination of his amours—these and other exciting things are related by Mr. McCarthy in a good, readable, pot-boiling manner.

UXOR MARITUSQUE.

THE WHEELS OF TIME. By Florence L. Barclay. Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., New York. (Price $1.)

IN "THE WHEELS OF TIME" we encounter sentimentality in a state of zymosis. That insane tragedy (known to fictioneers far and near) of the divided interests of husband and wife, is set forth in this chap-book, analyzed and readjusted.

Dr. Brent has bread and cultured interests. "Flowers," the wife, (Oh, these delicious lady authors!) is undeveloped and with narrow interests. Result: domestic tragedy. In an absurb and unconvincing manner, Mrs. Barclay describes the readjustment of conditions and the wakening of "Flower" to an interest in and an appreciation of her husband's work.

A RURAL EDEN.

THE MEDDLINGS OF EVE. By William J. Hopkins. Houghton-Mifflin Co., Boston (Price $1.20.)

AN UTTERLY inane piece of night-cap fiction is to be found in William J. Hopkins's chronicle entitled "The Meddlings of Eve." I believe the cultured architects of criticism will pounce upon this literary anesthetic and write it down as "wholesome" and "delightful. But I am not cultured, and refuse to go the way of my optimistic brothers in trade.

The story tells of a retired teacher, who, having married money, settles on a farm. Here Adam leads the simple life, wields the dung fork, hoes corn, churns, massacres potato bugs, and performs other indolent and uninteresting bucolicisms.

Adam's and Eve's chief form of diversion in their Eden is pottering around with other people's love affairs.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

As Doubleday, Page & Company have now moved to their new home, "The Country Life Press," at Garden City, New York, all communications should hereafter be sent to this address.

A. Radsliffe Dugmore, F. R. G. S., author of "Camera Adventure in the African Wilds," has recently returned from a very successful adventure in Canada.

John Steventon, the author of the recently published book, "The Hermit of Capri," who is in real life Judge Tarkington, father of Booth Tarkington, was married this month to Miss Linda H. Schultz, a director in the public schools of Indianapolis, his home city. The author and jurist is in his seventy-ninth year. An extended honeymoon trip took the couple as far as Maine and New York.

Ian Hay, whose recent success in this country as the author of "The Right Stuff" has been so pronounced, has a new book, "A Man's Man," published this week by Houghton-Mifflin Co. "Ian Hay," by the way, is the nom-de-plume of Mr. I. H. Beith, who is a master in Fettes College, Edinburgh, and a member of a well-known Scottish family.

There seems to be some possibility that Maurice Mæterlinck will come to America as the guest of the New Thetter. Mæterlinck's latest drama, "Mary Magdalene," has just appeared in an English version.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, whose book entitled "The Suffragette" will be issued this autumn, is the daughter of Mrs. Pankhurst, the recognized leader of the equal suffrage movement in England, and the founder of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," has as usual, been in Europe for her summer vacation. She went to Austria, the last country, perhaps, to which the travelled American usually goes. She found it interesting and pleasant, and no doubt she will have seen some color and lights in it for the next story from her pen.

Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, author of "Molly Make-Believe," has twice won the Collier thousand-dollar prize, with "The Sick-a-bed Lady" and "The Very Tired Girl."

Albert Bigelow Paine has resumed preparations for Mark Twain's biography since the publication of his own book of travel, "The Ship-Dwellers," a couple of months ago. Mr. Paine, who makes occasional trip from Stormfield, the Twain place at Renning, Ct., to New York, is on of the few authors who has been also a publisher and on these trips he helps in the planning of the Twain biography as a publishing enterprise.

FALL BOOK NOTES.

Mrs. Browning's 'Sonnets from the Portuguese," is once more to be published, but this time with lyric interludes by Mrs. Browning and Robert Browning's poems to his wife the arrangement being such as to present the whole lyric love story of the Brownings. Arthur Guiterman is the editor of this edition, to be issued on handmade paper by Paul Elder and Company.

A. Maurice Low has delivered to his publishers, Houghton, Mifflin Co., the manuscript of the second volume of his interesting and valuable work, "The American People: A Study in National Psychology," and has gone abroad for a short holiday. The second volume of "The American People" will be one of the leading publications on the Houghton, Mifflin Co.'s list early nex year.

Coming this month among the Century Co.'s new books and altogether out of the ordinary is "The Boys' Book of Model Aeroplanes," written by Francis Arnold Collins for the rapidly increasing army of bright American lads, who are not only interested in airships and aeronautics, but are really doing their share in the development of the sport.

Of foremost interest among literary announcements of the fall season are the "Life and Letters of Edmund Clarence Stedman," by his granddaughter, Miss Laura Stedman, and the "Life and Letters of William Sharp" prepared by his wife.

Mr. Robert Hichens has been dramatizing his famous novel "The Garden of Allah," and the play is to be produced in New York this autumn. It is in three acts, the first of which shows the hotel at Beni-Mora, the second the Garden of Allah and the third several scenes in the desert.

The discovery among Lafcadio Hearn's papers of a translation of Flaubert's "The Temptation of St. Anthony" has been recently reported. The book is said to have engaged Hearn's attention for several years. It will be published before long, with an introduction by Miss Elizabeth Bisland, Hearn's biographer. Miss Bisland has also edited a further collection of Hearn's Japanese letters, which will be published this fall. These new letters contain Hearn's final and frankest expression of views in regard to Japan and are said to be marked by a note of disillusion.

Joke Wasn't on Him.

Several years ago Patrolman Grampke was detailed at a circus that was performing in Camp Washington. One of the features of the show was the falling into the ring of one of the actors, who pretended to be drunk. He would then pick himself up and finally would mount one of the most spirited horses in the ring. One by one he would then throw off his garments until he stood forth resplendent in pink tights.

The first night that Grampke was on duty the stunt was to be pulled off as usual, but no sooner had the apparently drunken one gotten into the ring than Grampke was in after him. He jerked the performer to his feet and hustled him outside, where he proceeded to administer a good beating. The other employes of the show rushed out and finally separated Grampke from his victim and explained that it was all a joke.

"A joke, is it?" said Grampke, as he looked at the disheveled man. "Well, it isn't on me."—[Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

SOLIDLY FOR WORLD'S FAIR.

CALIFORNIA CITIES SUPPORTING THE COAST FIGHT.

Demand for Postcards in Campaign Enormous and Orders Being Doubled—Roster Shows More Than One Hundred Municipalities Have Placed Themselves Upon the Roll.

The demand for post cards for use in the Panama-Pacific Exposition campaign is enormous. Three companies are printing them because one company could not fill the orders.

This indicates that California cities are solidly behind San Francisco in the splendid fight being made by that city to secure the endorsement of Congress for an exposition in 1915 that will astonsh the world. If the united efforts of an entire State will have any effect, the opening of the Panama Canal will be celebrated beside the Golden Gate, along the gateway to the Pacific.

The largest calls to date for post cards illustrate the interest the cities of California have in obtaining the Exposition for San Francisco. Los Angeles, which asked for 100,000, wires for another lot of 100,000. Other calls are:

Oakland, 100,000; Sacramento, 95,000; Pasadena, 50,000; San Jose, 50,000; Stockton, 30,000; Berkeley, 25,000; Santa Rosa, 20,000; Red Bluff, 30,000; Modesto, 15,000; Alameda, 15,000 Sebastopol, 10,000; Petaluma, 10,000; Palo Alto, 10,000; Willows, 10,000; Santa Cruz., 10,000.

Calls from business houses, hotels, big office buildings, and so forth range into the thouqsands each. One firm in San Francisco took 5000, and will have tables, pens and ink all ready, and ask every customer to write at least one card to some friend outside the State.

Over 100 California cities have placed themselves upon the roll of honor, and, in many cases, they represent smaller places. Red Bluff for instance, is working over an entire county, and has called to date for 30,000 post cards.

Following is a list of cities that have formed Post Card Week Committees: Alameda, Anaheim, Arroyo Grande, Azusa, Bakersfield, Berkeley, Boulder Creek, Bradley, Burlingame, Calistoga, Campbell, Chico, Chaular, Cloverdale, Colusa, Corona, Dunsmuir, Etna, Fresno, Fullerton, Gazelle, Gilroy, Gonzales, Hanford, Healdsburg, Hornbrook, Hollister, Kings City, Livermore, Los Angeles, Long Beach, Los Gatos, Madera, Martinez, Marysville, Mayfield, McCloud, Merced, Mill Valley, Modesto, Montague, Morgan Hill, Monterey, Monrovia, Mountain View, Niles, Ocean Park, Ontario, Orange, Orland, Oakland, Oroville, Pacific Grove, Palo Alto, Pasadena, Paso Robles, Petaluma, Point Richmond, Porterville, Pomona, Puente, Red Bluff, Redding, Redwood City, Riverside, Redlands, Redondo, Sacramento, Salinas, San Ardo, San Bernardino, San Rafael, San Jose, San Luis Obispo, San Mateo, San Miguel, San Pedro, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Santa Maria, Santa Rosa, Saucelito, Sebastopol, Suisun, Soledad, Sonoma, South San Francisco, Stockton, Sunnyvale, Turlock, Ukiah, Upland, Ventura, Visalia, Weed, Willows, Woodland, Watsonville, Yreka.

Phantoms of the Brain.

A morbid condition of the organs of sense or of the mind, aggravated by a morbid state of the organism, as under the influence of drink, opium or delirium, is sufficient to invest our mental conceptions with phantom shape. Our thoughts vary, according to the violence of our emotions, from faint mental pictures to vivid and almost corporal apparitions. The strength of these sensational influences is naturally proportionate to the susceptibility of the nervous organism.

A consideration of these facts in conjunction with the acknowledged neuropathic tendencies of genius seems to illumine many of the mysterious anecdotes with which the names of great men and women are associated. The hallucinations of Mohammed and of Joan of Arc, the appearance of his dying wife to Dr. Donne in Paris and Luthers discomfiture of the devil by summary contusion with a missile ink bottle, to mention but a few instances, prosaically resolve into cases of abnormal sensibility of the nervous system. Who would learn with surprise that Lucretius, Hawthorne or Emily Bronte saw ghosts? It should rather be an occasion for wonder that genius is ever free from the visitations of specters.—[London Outlook.

SHE SAYS:

One of the advantages of marrying a popular man is the joy of sending out invitations to the girls you are sure wanted to marry him.

A woman can excuse herself for flirting by telling herself that if the man wasn't being beguiled by her he would be the victim of some one much worse.

One of the tragedies in the life of a girl with straight hair is when she thinks the little curl she manufactured is holding its own and then finds that it has turned to a disconsolate wisp.

The man who discredits his wife's church-going by saying that she wants to show off her clothes is oftimes the one who goes only because she makes him—which isn't much better.

A man who is proud of his strong will usually has it—until he is tempted.

BURNING WORDS OF THE PRESS ON DYNAMITING OF "THE TIMES."

The Crime of the Century.

The whole nation stands appalled at the awful tragedy enacted in Los Angeles early last Saturday morning, when more than a score of human lives were hurled into eternity, nearly as many more maimed and injured and an enormous property loss entailed, by the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times building. The details of the horrifying disaster have been heralded to the world, and in the face of all the facts is borne out the general conclusion that the brutal slaughter was planned and executed by the hands of human fiends whose murderous instincts were untempered by even the minutest alloy of mercy. It must be admitted that the ruthless hand of the conscienceless dynamiter shows forth clearly in the damnable work of assassin and ruin, and if the fiend or fiends who perpetrated the crime can be loaded with the responsibility beyond a possible doubt, there is no punishment sufficiently severe to mete out adequate justice. Death at the end of a rope would be too much of a holiday. The bitter lesson of torture, by fire, long drawn out, would prove more fitting and more lasting as an example.

Priceless lives have been sacrificed to satisfy the villainous attributes of the lawless antagonists of law and order, who fight under cover, employing the most deadly and powerful forces of destruction, which calls for the firm resolve to cleanse and purge the industrial and civic world of the midnight brigand and bomb thrower, who gloats over his prey with fiendish enjoyment. The trail has been struck. Let justice prevail, and allow no guilty man to escape.—[Oxnard Review.

The Fruits of Hate.

In the heap of dead and mangled in the ruins of the Los Angeles Times building is a great question.

Why were these men killed? Why was war waged on them and their employment for fifteen years?

Was it a question of wages? The men received the best wages on the coast. Was it conditions? No other employment was so liberal.

What was it?

The greed of monopoly in labor—monopoly that dictates terms, yields fees, maintains leaders—makes one man the power over many, with authority to say to the many where, when and how they shall work.

It was the spirit of hate that begins in the false claim that enmity necessarily exists between labor and capital, requiring an armed defense on the part of labor.

No one man arranged the complicated machinery which fired the Los Angeles bombs. No one man planned or planted that widespread destruction. Big interests were back of the outrage. Big interests have schemed and fought for years to force a monopoly there.

He who preaches hostility between labor and capital preaches all that logically follows—and what happened at Los Angeles, and what has happened elsewhere a thousand times, logically follows.

Mr. Gompers and his associate leaders want workingmen's fees through monopoly—want monopoly that power and profit may come. They must take the responsibility for what their greed produces.—[Battle Creek Enquirer.

English Language Is Inadequate.

The frightful destruction of the Times building, involving the loss of half a million dollars, a score of human lives and imminent hazard to a great many more, has stirred the city of Los Angeles to the very depths with rage and horror. The excitement in Los Angeles is intense, and the indignation has risen into a furious flame. The discovery that other like crimes were planned for and the threats that have been made, have added fuel to the flame. Our whole state is deeply stirred, as indeed, is the whole country. People are shocked and horrified by the fact that crimes so gigantic and so infernal can be committed in our midst, and that we have among us miscreants who are equal to such deviltries. It is awful to reflect that you may pass a man on the street, and even talk with him, who has within him a demon ready for such work as this. The English language, rich as it is in objurgation, is unequal to the task of adequately characterizing such atrocities and the inhuman wretches who have it in them to commit them.

There were 120 innocent and unsuspecting human beings in that building at the time, and every one of them was put in imminent peril of death and a score were actually murdered. All this to wreak vengeance on one, or at most, two or three men. The fiendish spirit that concocted and executed this unspeakable horror is a mystery to a wholesome mind. Possibly Sioux savages in their worst days might have done it, but it is the appropriate work only of fiends from the pit. To say that it was all due to some unfortunate accident is to talk foolishly. Nobody in his senses believes that. Beyond all doubt it was a crime, a deliberate, calculated, malicious crime. And that it was the work of some wild lunatic or maniac is equally incredible. Nor was it done by one man, but by a confederacy of men, and not weak, passionate or drunken men, but cool, crafty, long-headed miscreants who knew well how to plot and plan, to wind about and cover up so that, so far, the keenest and most searching detectives have failed to ferret them out.—[San Jose Mercury.

Most Atrocious Outrage.

In the history of our country there has been no more atrocious and cowardly outrage committed than the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times. The evidence points to the use of hired assassins, and for this reason—because the secret is known to a number—there is the greater likelihood that the perpetrators will be brought to speedy justice. But it is the arch fiend, the "higher-up," the master mind, crazed with the diabolical teaching of anarchy, who is most wanted.—[Searchlight, (Nev.) Bulletin.

The Way Suspicion Points.

Colorado had her share of dynamiting then Idaho and now it has struck Southern California. It is a crime that is comparatively new in the United States. It is of the same nature as black hand of Italy, as the work of the highbinders of China. The work in Los Angeles reveals not only a conspiracy, but the assistance of some one skilled in mechanics and the nature of explosives. It ought to be possible to run down the local actors, even it is impossible to trace the business to the headquarters where it was planned.

The design was to exterminate a prominent newspaper and all connected therewith. Naturally suspicion will go toward those who felt that the newspaper was interfering with their plans. The crime shows that they are a class that shrink at no violence to forge out their designs and that they are utterly destitute of any human instincts, for the work they set in motion, they knew in advance would, if successful, result in the sacrifice of a great many lives of people who were never guilty of anything except by hard work to earn their bread. Not many Americans shrink from an open fight; all Americans recoil before assassination. We hope the Los Angeles assassins will be run down and brought to speedy justice.—[Salt Lake Tribune.

Result of Tirades.

The tragedy in The Times office is another example of the result of continuous tirades and exhortations of the irresponsible agitator, both in and out of the ranks of organized labor. Unbridled denunciation and abuse are the seeds from which grow the murderous desire in the brains of the uneducated and vicious. The assassination of President McKinley, the recent attempt on the life of Mayor Gaynor and the destruction of The Times property belong in the same catagory. That the perpetrators of this terrible deed will be run to earth is almost a certainty and an outraged public demands the severest punishment.—[Arizona Daily Star.

Sounded Arounded the World.

The explosion which wrecked the buildings of The Los Angeles Times and killed twenty-one persons engaged in legitimate employment has sounded around the world. To some it has been merely an awful horror, but to others it is a warning and the prophecy of the most bitter contest in industrial lines this nation has ever known. The war cry of The Los Angeles Times for twenty years has been "Industrial Freedom" and the wholesale murder and destruction of property is sufficient to make men who have given little attention to labor unions and labor struggles take notice. Of course, the union leaders disclaim any responsibility for the California murders. It is a queer thing, however, that dynamited bridges and dynamited buildings and dynamited men are always the ones where the non-union sentiment is found. It has come to be understood that the man who openly opposes the unions is in danger of life and property. Of course nine-tenths of the union men deplore these things and do not indorse violence of any kind. They are law abiding citizens. The leaders also refuse to be a party to violence. But they organize boycotts, call strikes, violate laws and let loose unmanageable forces which rush to the destruction of life and property and can not be controlled by law or by union.—[Independence, (Mo.) Examiner.

An Act of Criminal Frenzy.

The wrecking of the Los Angeles Times building was an act of criminal frenzy, which, in its utter disregard of all the obligations imposed by the laws of God and man and all the restraints imposed by humanity, seems to have been the act of a devil rather than that of a human being. There also seems to be no reasonable doubt that it is the direct outgrowth of industrial disturbances from which Los Angeles has been suffering during the past few months, and in which the trouble makers were men from San Francisco.—[Prescott, (Ariz.) Journal.

A Remarkable Coincidence.

The city of Los Angeles has offered a reward of $25,000 for the arrest of the dastardly criminals who blew up the Times building. If they are captured, it is a good guess that their identity and connections will constitute almost as much of a sensation as attended the crime.

The Unions are very prompt to deny responsibility for the Los Angeles crime. The deed could not be fastened to any union as an organization perhaps, but people will note and comment upon the fact that such outrages never happen except when there is a labor dispute. The coincidence is becoming most remarkable.—[Bisbee, (Ariz.) Review.

A Sickening Conclusion.

This Los Angeles horror reveals our American life in one of its most sinister and ominous aspects: for if we assume that the explosion resulted from the conscious act of malefactors, the sickening conclusion from experience is that nobody will ever suffer for the crime.

There is reason to hope that the Los Angeles case may supply an exception to the rule: for the effort to capture and punish the perpetrators of the crime will be prosecuted with unlimited funds and unwavering resolution. Organized labor has had no abler and more determined foe upon the globe than Gen. Otis, and nothing that money can supply or ingenuity can suggest will be spared to bring the guilty ones to justice. Until this form of anarchy can be stamped out from among us, a cruel doubt as to the efficacy of our civilization must linger in every candid mind.—[Indianapolis Star.

Cannot Be Disciplined.

Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, proprietor of the Los Angeles Times, is not the sort of man to be disciplined, and the destruction by dynamite of his five hundred thousand dollar newspaper plant will hardly serve to soften his attitude toward those whom he prefers to hold responsible for the outrage.—[Springfield (Ill.) News.

No Question of the Cause.

President James M. Lynch, of the International Typographical Union, is ill-advised in expressing the view in a telegram to a representative in Los Angeles that he is convinced the explosion was "caused by faulty gas mains and due entirely to unsanitary condition of The Times plant." There is clearly no question that the explosion was of dynamite and that the destruction of the half million dollar plant was a part of a plot which had for its other horrifying features the dynamiting of the homes of General Otis and of the Secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, an organization in sympathy with the policy of The Times in regard to labor unions.—[Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot.

Its Inception a Boycott.

Any individuals who advocate or attempt to incite boycotts are urged to go to the corner of First and Broadway and behold the terrible, blighting effects of boycott, and then conjure up a vision of the charred bodies that were removed from the debris after the horrible occurrence.

This, the most horrible attempt at destruction found inception in the boycott.—[California Tourist.

Done by Gompers' Followers.

In Los Angeles there are ruined homes and weeping mothers and children praying God for help, now the husband and father lies under those smoking ruins, a victim to the hate of members of the clan headed by Samuel Gompers, now under sentence to the penitentiary for his known acts of hate and violence, and yet this man comes to peaceful Battle Creek to deliver "a message."

If this was the only act of murder and maiming of peaceful Americans charged to the members of his association, it alone should be sufficient when the testimony convicted to eternally discredit him and his associates, but the record of murders and maimings, dynamiting and burning charged up to the members of the American Federation of Labor runs into thousands upon thousands, and all done from hate for those who prefer to work free from the fees, tyranny and oppression of him and his associates.

The Enquirer humbly expresses a belief in an all-wise and just God who looks on with an eye of sympathy and pity for the helpless mothers made widows and the little children made fatherless by the pistol, dynamite and club of the "violent men" of the old-fashioned striking unions, and expresses a hope that some time and somehow that God, the help and hope of the weak, may bring His laws to bear and demand justice for his children and punishment for their oppressors.

God help the mothers and children when he gets them under way.—[Battle Creek Enquirer.

Plotted Months Ago.

Each fresh development tends to show that the conspiracy to blow up The Times was plotted months ago and that it engaged the attention and activities of men in several cities, was abundantly financed and organized with close attention to detail. The conspirators had a special brand of high explosive manufactured for the occasion, and took many precautions to conceal the purpose for which it was to be used.—[Oakland (Cal.) Tribune.

A Fiendish Act.

Perhaps the most fiendish act recorded in the history of the Pacific Coast was the blowing up and destruction of The Los Angeles Times plant last Friday night.

Gen. Otis, the owner and editor in chief of The Times, lays the crime at the door of the Labor Union, whom he has been opposing for more than twenty years. As a matter of fact, with all his opposition to the unions, Gen. Otis deserved no such fate as this at the hands of any man, union or otherwise. Otis paid more wages in many cases than the union scale called for——but only to men who earned more. The man who didn't make good couldn't work for Otis. The fight that Otis had with the unions was based on the fact that he would not permit them to dictate to him how he should run his business.—[Kingsburg Recorder.

Crime Against Humanity.

The crime was not alone against General Otis, against the Times, nor against non-unionism, it was against all humanity, against peace, against the rule of law, and especially against the spirit of American liberty. No human law can provide an adequate penalty, even that of death being wholly insufficient.—[Stockton Independent.

An Astonishing Eagerness.

It is astonishing what an eagerness some people display to make it appear that the explosion in the Los Angeles Times office was an accident. Some of them would like to say that it was a visitation of God. Nevertheless all the circumstances indicate that it was the result of a diabolical plot planned with deliberation and executed with fiendish atrocity. It was the work of scoundrels possessing both intelligence and skill. That the plot failed in some of its details was due to one of those unaccountable mischances which almost seem like an interference of Providence. The intent was plainly to destroy the Times office and murder its venerable editor and chief proprietor at one fell stroke. The motive for the atrocity can only be conjectured, but people are not slow to put two and two together in searching for the reason why the horrible crime was committed.—[Oakland Tribune.

Odium on the Unions.

The actual perpetrators of this colossal crime may never be known, but until proven otherwise the people will hold responsible as its instigators the anarchistic spirits of the labor unions. On them will lie the odium until it is shifted by development of the facts.

The reason for this is obvious. For years The Times has been a relentless and implacable foe of unionism. It has almost single-handed and unaided kept Los Angeles an open-shop town. It has day by day denounced, often maligned, union laborites, heaped them with ridicule and contumely and successfully opposed an almost worldwide effort to unionize the city, an effort for the support of which the federated unions of the country are taxed.

This has sent to Los Angeles the extreme leaders in labor unionism, the actual anarchists, men who preach that the end justifies the means. They are participating in the strike now in progress and have been doing and saying such things as lead to anarchy and murder.—[Colton Chronicle.

A Distinguished Silence.

The editorial silence of all leading papers about the bay except one as to the Los Angeles dynamiting, is interesting when it is considered that a Los Angeles newspaper which had been friendly to organized labor through the strike troubles in that city has come out in a front page editorial demanding that the strikes that are under way be called off. Why should there be hesitancy in denouncing this mighty outrage, which is the most distinct challenge to organized society since the days of the French revolution?—[Alameda Argus.

Recognized His Wife.

An old farmer was skeptical as to whether people who were miles apart could really talk to each other over a telephone wire.

One day his wife went to make a visit to a distant friend who had a telephone in her house. During the afternoon the farmer visited a near neighbor who also boasted a house telephone, and who persuaded the farmer to call up is wife as a little surprise.

Following the instructions he put the receiver to his ear, and, after the usual preliminaries, he shouted:

"Hello, Jane!"

Just then a flash of lightning caused by the heat of the summer day struck the wire and he went sprawling to the floor.

He rose to his feet and, shaking his head knowingly, said: "It's wonderful; that was Jane, all right."—[Detroit News.

His Fault or Not.

Secretary Ballinger, in an address at Concord, N. H., said of a political opponent:

"He isn't half as well off as he thinks he is. He'll wake up with a start one of these days—like Mr. Fawcett.

"Mr. Fawcett, entertaining an unexpected guest at luncheon, said as they sat down to the table:

"'My dear sir, will you have some of the sliced bologna sausage, or—or——'

"His eye darted frantically all over the table, and he concluded.

"'Or not.'"—[Dallas News.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

PIERCE BUSY UPON ARRIVAL.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY AFTER OIL INFORMATION.

CALIFORNIA OIL FIELDS WILL BE INSPECTED.

GENERAL NEWS OF INTEREST FROM THE FIELDS.

Frank Pierce, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior, who has come to California to investigate the conditions surrounding the patenting of oil lands, spent yesterday in conference with the local Land Office officials, and talked with some of the prominent oil operators of the State.

Mr. Pierce arrived in Los Angeles sooner than expected and desires to talk with all the oil men available between now and Sunday. Tomorrow he will be waited upon by the directors of the California Oil Men's Association, who will represent practically all of the operators in the Kern county fields. After securing as much information as possible through his hearings in this city, it is Mr. Pierce's purpose to visit the oil fields.

E. W. Helm, chief of the sixth field Land Office, was in Bakersfield the other day arranging the itinerary of Pierce's trip through the northern fields. On his visit north the Assistant Secretary will be afforded every facility for gaining first hand information by the oil men.

As the special emissary of the Interior Department, Mr. Pierce's report on conditions affecting the oil industry of California, and his recommendations anent new legislation will no doubt be given due consideration. The oil operators are hoping that his visit may result in some changes in the methods recently followed by the Land Office regarding the patenting of oil lands.

Company Strikes Oil.

U. S. G. Todd, of the Southern Investment Company, controlling the Maricopa Oil Company, operating on a sixty-acre lease on the northeast corner of section 32, 12-23, Midway, reports that oil was struck in well No. 1, yesterday, at a depth of 1850 feet. It is the purpose to install a strainer and a good producer is expected.

Agency Meeting Posponed.

The meeting of the members of the Independent Oil Producers' agency, which was to have been held in Bakersfield Wednesday, to consider the agreement entered into by the Agency and the Associated Oil Company, was postponed for lack of a quorum. A special meeting will be called for a later date.

Mixup in the Names.

The statement that the Ojai Oil Company has recently levied an assessment has been interpreted by some to mean the Ojai Valley Petroleum Company of which W. L. Twining is secretary. The latter company has not levied an assessment.

H. C. PIERCE'S MISSION

CONFERS WITH OIL MEN.

The visit of Henry Clay Pierce of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to this city has been made the occasion of several pipe dreams, when pipe lines are more necessary to the industry at this time. Mr. Pierce, in his oil activities, has always been closely allied with the Standard Oil Company, which sometimes buys out its competitors, but never enters into partnership with them.

The Waters-Pierce Company is now engaged in refining oil in the Republic of Mexico, and Pierce is probably here to confer with E. L. Doheny, president of the Mexican Petroleum Company, which practically controls the oil production of Mexico, but if that is his mission he has not yet reduced it to words. However, as Mr. Pierce requires oil to operate his refineries it is very likely that he is trying to make a deal with the Mexican Petroleum Company for some of its output.

When asked yesterday morning if there was any truth in the report that he was figuring with Doheny and the officials of the Union Oil Company in the effort to form a refining pool in Mexico, Mr. Pierce entered a positive denial. He said he could not be held responsible for the publication of stories in the newspapers.

The Mysteries of the Egg.

An egg for one thing is a succession of bags, bagged up in one another, a series of envelopes enveloped in one another, bags and envelopes without joints, seams, or openings. Puzzles, ships built up and full-rigged in bottles, flies in amber, and simply simplicity itself as puzzles when it comes to how these bags wrap one another up, bag in bag. In a hen's egg there are eight or nine or ten of the sacks in sacks ensacked. Everybody thinks he knows what an egg is learn that nobody knows a tiny fraction of all the world of secrets in many languages, he only begins to learn that nobody knows of secrets and mysteries hidden in an egg. "As full of meat as an egg" is not the true comparison, but "as full of mystery as an egg" is nearer the truth. Eggs are the greatest puzzle in all nations.—[New York Press.

Lots of Trouble.

There are always two ways of telling the truth. The man who told the King that he would outlive all his subjects was a true courtier, and understood human nature far more than the man who was put to death for declaring to the same monarch that all his subjects would die before him. The gamekeeper in Francis Pigon's "Odds and Ends" also had the gift of presenting the pleasant side of a fact.

A certain noble lord was a very bad shot. One day, after a particularly discouraging exhibition of his bungling, he said to the keeper:

"Now, my man, tell me the truth. Did you ever seen any one who shot as badly as I do?"

"Oh, yes, my lord," returned the keeper. "I've seeen worse shots than your lordship. Your lordship misses the birds so clean."—[Youth'c Companion.

Best Job for Patience.

Sir Henry Hawkins was once presiding over a long, tedious and uninteresting trial, and was listening apparently with great attention to a very long-winded speech from a learned counsel. After a while he made a pencil memorandum, folded it and sent it by the usher to the Queen's counsel in question, who, unfolding the paper, found these words: "Patience competition. Gold medal, Sir Henry Hawkins. Honorable mention, Job."—[Exchange.

Where It Was Hot.

"'Ot!" exclaimed Private Atkins, who had just returned from India. "Surely you don't call this 'ot! Why, you oughter hev been with us in Hindia!

"Yes, I've heerd tell as it's a bit warmish out there," said the countryman.

"You bet it is," went on Atkins. "I 'member once when we was playing socker wiv the Buffs it was so 'ot that the 'eat hexpanded the wind inside of the ball to that extent that it rose up in the air like a hairyplane and sailed away. Lost three balls like that, we did, then we chucked the game. An' o' course, we ony played football in the winter season!"—[Ideas.

Birds of a Feather.

To Jacob Hope, Philadelphia's famous bird and animal expert, an odd adventure happened the other day.

Mr. Hope was strolling out Walnut street when a bird faker accosted him. The faker drew from his pocket the usual painted sparrow—a gorgeous thing of blues and golds and greens——and, evidently taking Mr. Hope for one of the millionaires of Rittenhouse square, he said:

"I jest nabbed this bird off that there walnut tree. Can't I sell her to ye cheap? Look at her! Ain't she a beauty? I never seen nothin' like her before. What kind of a bird is she, do ye know?"

"Young man," said Mr. Hope, "if it's true that birds of a feather flock together, then I should say that undoubtedly she is a jailbird.—[Philadelphia Record.

A Foul and Fiendish Crime.

Enough has been brought to light to convince the public that the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building and plant, and the snuffing out of twenty or more precious human lives in the explosion of Saturday morning, was the result of a foul plot and the deliberate work of human hands.

As such, it stands as one of the blackest crimes that has ever disgraced a boasted free country. Too fiendish in its conception and execution to belong to the record of man's inhumanity, it must go down in the annals of crime as proof that total depravity is not a thing impossible.

The proprietors of The Times and their staff of workers have risen nobly from the disaster and the Times owners are exhibiting marked generosity in dealing with the families of their stricken employees, and together with the employees who escaped, they have displayed splendid fortitude and ability to deal with a crisis that would test the strongest and bravest men. Within a few hours after the destruction of its plant, The Times appeared giving its own account of the disaster, and yesterday morning the paper was delivered to its subscribers at the usual hour—not the accustomed Sunday Times, but a still more remarkable production, when the circumstances of its production are considered.—[Pasadena News.

ANOTHER WIN FOR FREEDOM.

OPEN SHOP FURNITURE WORKERS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

WOMAN POLITICIAN STIRS THINGS UP FOR GRAFT.

LABORITES EVEN INVADE GRAVE YARDS AND FUNERALS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Another battle has been won in the great struggle for industrial freedom now being waged in San Francisco. The Furniture Dealers' Association, after repeated efforts to effect a settlement with the members of the Upholsterers' Union, who have been on strike since September [illegible] because their demands for a [illegible] per cent increase in wages and a reduction in working hours were denied, has reopened its shops here this week with men imported from the East.

The Furniture Dealers' Association was willing to refer the trouble to a board of arbitration, but the union men insisted that they had nothing to arbitrate. This left the Furniture Dealers' Association no alternative but to declare for the open-shop which is now successfully operated by all the large upholstering establishments in San Francisco, while the [illegible] upholsterers who were ordered out by their union have plenty of time to think and decide for themselves who are the real enemies of industrial freedom.

That the sentiment in favor of the open-shop is steadily growing in this city is evident from the fact that the [illegible] musicians who refused to pay the [illegible] initiation fee demanded by the Musicians' Union have more engagements than they can fill, while the members of the Union are grumbling about hard times and the scarcity of work.

For many years the Musicians' Union has had everything its own way. Realizing this, the union has carried on things in a high-handed method. Its prices have been increased until theatrical managers, in some cases, have been forced to close their theaters as they were compelled by the union to hire a given number of men, whether they were needed or not, and pay them a wage that left nothing for the managers to do but go out of business as they were operating at a loss.

With the advent of the new body of musicians who believe in the policy of "live and let live," things have taken on a brighter aspect and the general public is supporting these musicians who are fighting for industrial freedom.

Incredible as it may seem that any body of men should stoop so low as to attempt to deprive women of their means of livelihood, it is a fact, nevertheless. The enemies of industrial freedom, in this instance known as the culinary unions, are planning to force the women who are employed in the cafeterias of this city to join the union, or, failing to intimidate them, to put the cafeterias out of business, thus throwing the women, many of them widows with children to support, out of employment.

The cafeterias are all run on the open-shop policy. When they first began to do business here, the unions thought they would not become popular because of their open-shop policy, San Francisco being such a hotbed of unionism. Now that the unions have realized their mistake and see that the public is supporting these cafeterias, they have determined to put them out of business.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Another battle has been won in the great struggle for industrial freedom now being waged in San Francisco. The Furniture Dealers' Association, after repeated efforts to effect a settlement with the members of the Upholsterers' Union, who have been on strike since September 12 because their demands for a 40 per cent. increase in wages and a reduction in working hours were denied, has reopened its shops here this week with men imported from the East.

The Furniture Dealers' Association was willing to refer the trouble to a board of arbitration, but the union insisted that they had nothing to arbitrate. This left the Furniture Dealers' Association no alternative but to declare for the open-shop which is now successfully operated by all the large upholstering establishments in San Francisco, while the 200 upholsterers who were ordered out by their union have plenty of time to think and decide for themselves who are the real enemies of industrial freedom.

That the sentiment in favor of the open-shop is steadily growing in this city is evident from the fact that the musicians who refused to pay the initiation fee demanded by the Musicians' Union have more engagements than they can fill, while the members of the Union are grumbling about hard times and the scarcity of work.

For many years the Musicians' Union has had everything its own way. Realizing this, the union has acted on things in a high-handed manner. Its prices have been increased until theatrical managers, in some cases, have been forced to close their theaters as they were compelled by the union to hire a given number of men, whether they were needed or not, and pay them a wage that left nothing for the managers to do but go out of business as they were operating at a loss.

With the advent of the new body of musicians who believe in the policy of "live and let live," things have taken on a brighter aspect and the general public is supporting these musicians who are fighting for industrial freedom.

Incredible as it may seem that any body of men should stoop so low as to attempt to deprive women of their means of livelihood, it is a fact, nevertheless. The enemies of industrial freedom, in this instance known as the culinary unions, are planning to force the women who are employed in the cafeterias of this city to join the union, or, failing to intimidate them, to put the cafeterias out of business, thus throwing the women, many of them widows with children to support, out of employment.

The cafeterias are all run on the open-shop policy. When they first began to do business here, the unions thought they would not become popular because of their open-shop policy, San Francisco being such a hotbed of unionism. Now that the unions have realized their mistake and see that the public is supporting these cafeterias, they have determined to put them out of business.

Militant trade unionists, and they are all militant, have no respect for the living and even less regard for the dead. Sometime ago the union hackmen of this city boycotted undertaking firms that saw fit to use automobiles for no other reason than that they saw in this innovation the threatened extermination of their jobs and so endeavored to stop the wheels of progress. They interrupted funerals and tore the drivers of hacks from their seats, leaving the mourners to get to the cemetery with their dead the best way that they could.

Of course, the public would not long stand for such tactics and they were forced to desist.

Then the union grave diggers went on strike for more wages and brought on an embarrassing situation.

Now the Cemetery Employes' Union is fighting the carpenters on the ground that a carpenter who is doing some work in one of the cemeteries should join the Cemetery Employes' Union. The carpenter is already a member of Carpenters' Union No. 22 and has no desire to pay initiation fees, dues and assessments to two organizations for the privilege of working at a job that is at the best not very desirable, therefore he has refused to join the Cemetery Employes' Union and the latter organization threatens to "tie up" work in the cemetery unless the carpenter is forced to take out a working card in the Cemetery Employes' Union.

Often have we heard people remark that after death they would not be troubled with the unionites, but in view of the foregoing it would seem that even death does not insure protection.

San Francisco is to have a woman factory inspector. Nothing wrong about that. Only union women will be considered for the position. Something wrong about that. In fact, if the public only knew how the plot to create the position of woman factory inspector originated, they would say that there was something radically wrong about the whole business.

A politician's wife wanted some pin money. She decided that a woman factory inspector was needed in San Francisco and that she was the woman to fill the bill. She addressed meetings of labor unions and told them of conditions in factories here which were described as "intolerable." The organizations addressed by this woman endorsed the woman factory inspector proposition unanimously. So did the [illegible] and the women's clubs. Then some one investigated and found out that conditions in factories of this city were better than in most cities of its size. Some one else discovered that the "ardent worker in the cause of humanity" was out for graft.

By this time the matter had been brought to the attention of the supervisors and our union Mayor, all of whom approved of the scheme and created the position of woman factory inspector at a salary of $115 a month. Now there is a scramble among the union women for the job. The politician's wife who hatched the plot is out of the race, however, as she went in too strong on the stories about "awful conditions." Some union woman will get the job and the tax payers will come through with her salary of $115 per month.

BUREAU OF ECONOMY.

President and Cabinet To Establish a Supervision of Government Expenditures.

[From the New York Tribune.]—The establishment of a special bureau of economy and the appointment of Dr. Frederick A. Cleveland, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research of New York, as its head, was the outcome of last week's meeting of President Taft and the members of his Cabinet.

Secretary Norton has been delegated to select four or five business experts to form an advisory and supervisory board to conduce a thorough investigation into the business methods of the government and to make recommendations of their findings to Dr. Cleveland, who will report to the President. This step was taken by President Taft in the furtherance of his plan to promote greater efficiency and economy in the government service.

The board of experts will work independently of the respective department commissions, each of which will consist of three men. A careful and far-reaching investigation will be conducted into every bureau of the government; a better method of making appropriations for the government will be devised; the cost of all articles used by the government and the most economical way of purchasing these supplies will be found, and a general reorganization of every bureau and department of the government will be made, dismissing all incompetent and lazy employees. There will be no wholesale discharge of aged clerks. Those who have grown old in the government service will be taken care of, but the clerks who do not measure up to requirements will be dropped. President Taft is satisfied that the work of these commissions will result in the placing of the government on a more economical and efficient basis and result in the saving of millions of dollars.

The selection of Dr. Cleveland to head the special bureau was made after consulting more than fifty firms of experts. Dr. Cleveland's splendid work in the investigation and reorganization of the life insurance companies appealed to the President, as well as his work as a member of Mayor McClellan's advisory commission of finance and taxation, of Controller Metz's New York committee on revision of accounts and methods, and of Controller Pendergast's committee on office organization and work.

HUMAN SIDE OF SHEEP RAISING.

An Industry That Requires Much Skill, Though the Herdsmen Must Lead Lonely Lives.

[Specially Contributed to The Times.]

It is generally supposed that sheep herding requires little intelligence and that its requirements are chiefly to follow the flock and protect it from marauding animals. The accomplishments of a good herder are by no means to be despised. He must know the ways of his charges and how to care for them, for the sheep, although a hardy animal, is not always a healthy one. It will subsist on meager forage and little water, but it is more susceptible to pests, diseases and inclemency of weather than any other range animal. The herder must know when it is time to corral the flock for dipping to avoid ticks and scab, and he must so utilize the forage at his command as to secure the best returns without keeping his charges too long from water. Sheep will exist without water for a week, but such privation tells on the wool yield. Cold rains and sleet are the bane of sheep. In freezing storms, unless shelter can be provided quickly, the heavy fleeces become saturated and the animals perish from exposure.

Some time during the summer months the flocks are corraled and sheared. Of a very different type from the herder is the professional sheep shearer. He is usually of the rough, care-free type of western laborer, good natured or quarrelsome as befits his mood, who makes his money quickly and spends it easily. He goes from one section to another, working his way northward as the season advances. He seldom works by the day, preferring "piece work," and his earnings range from $5 per day upward. His skill is marvelous. To see him slip his long shears deftly under a sheep's coat and in a few seconds turn off the entire fleece in one piece without so much as "pinching blood" on the animal's body, cannot fail to arouse one's wonder and admiration.

Those who entertain idealistic conceptions of ranch life would do well to avoid the average sheep ranch. Ordinarily, it is not a place where the ranchman's beautiful daughter entertains her city friends as she so frequently does in books of western fiction. There are many handsome ranch houses set in beautiful grounds scattered about the southwest, but most of the men who deal in sheep on a large scale live in the nearby towns where their families may have the benefits of schools and social life.

The ordinary sheep ranch consists of "two corrals and a 'dobe,'" set by an unfenced stage road, with possibly a cotton-wood tree and a windmill to mark its location from a distance. Its interior arrangement is a kitchen and a bunkroom. A decrepit cook stove occupies one corner of the former, a table, a few chairs and some graniteware dishes completing its furnishings. The bunkroom is a jumble of blankets—usually on the floor. On occasion, when the ranchman himself visits these quarters, he discreetly takes his blankets to the open beneath the cottonwood, but Mexican ranch hands usually prefer to sleep indoors, even in hot weather. Ordinarily the place is not graced by the presence of a woman. A Chinese cook may be employed, but oftener the hands "batch it."

Although in many sections the large ranches have given way to homesteads and irrigation projects, "sheep barons" are still numerous. Most of the great cattle ranches have been absorbed by the flood of immigration into the southwest during the last decade, but the area generally termed the "sheep country" is for the most part yet intact, and its vast ranges still controlled by a comparatively few men. In New Mexico the McIntosh and Luna flocks and in Arizona those of Babbitts and Pitts are typical examples. It is said that an actual count of the flocks of these owners never has been accomplished. In the parlance of the plains, "they don't know how many sheep they do own." For general purposes sheep are seldom counted separately, but are "close bunched" and the number estimated by the area of ground covered.

A favorite "plot" of western story writers is the "nester" or homesteader, who is persecuted by neighboring ranch "barons" until he relinquishes his home and leaves the range to his assailants, or perchance stands his ground and suffers a mysterious disappearance or is hung from a cottonwood tree. No doubt instances of this kind have occurred, but it is a safe assertion that they were very few and far between. One who has an acquaintance among the large ranchmen of today will have a hard time conceiving them engaged in driving homeless families into the desert.

One is more inclined to credit the story told of a ranchman now living who for many years had thrived as a sheep raiser with an unmolested range. After a year of plentiful rains, dry farming was proposed in his vicinity, with the result that his usual range was reduced over half by homesteaders' claims. For two years the ranchman cursed his unwelcome neighbors with all the expressiveness of his lurid vocabulary. The third season brought a drought, bankrupting many of the dry farmers. The ranchman assured those who held on that they too were doomed to failure, but his words were not heeded and a number of families suffered actual privation. One day it was learned that the ranchman had bought out a general store in a nearby town and was crediting the dry farmers on his books. His only comment was that "somebody had to keep the damn nesters from starving."

Of late years the feuds and sheep wars which were a constant menace to the industry in the early days in the southwest have practically disappeared. The old contention of the cattle men that sheep ruined the ranges for other stock by eating the forage into the ground has been amicably settled in most localities by arbitration. In sections where the ranges are sufficient to support cattle, the sheep men have generally agreed to keep out, at least during the dry season of the year, the sheep men being apportioned ranges which are too meager for cattle to thrive, but which are amply sufficient for sheep.

These tentative agreements are now generally well defined, so that different portions of the same county are oftentimes designated as "cattle country" or "sheep country." In Arizona the great ranges between Flagstaff and St. Johns are generally utilized for sheep in the summer. During the winter months the flocks are moved southward toward Phoenix, often traveling 200 miles or more. This gives the northern ranges a "rest" as well as providing the flocks with a warmer winter climate in the lower altitude. In the early summer the flocks are headed northward for the long return march.

It is a natural supposition that the sheep business should be a permanent and dependable one, but among sheep men themselves it is regarded as more or less of a "gamble." Three contingencies—drought, disease, and low markets—are the elements of chance which render the revenue uncertain. In the southwest profits from sheep are realized on wool rather than mutton. Many newcomers in the sheep country are surprised to learn that the excellent "lamb chops" they secure from local dealers oftentimes emanate from the festive kid which thrives on the succulent leaves of the scrub oak in the mountains, its meat being regarded by many as much more palatable than that of the dry-fed sheep. The sheep man is thus largely dependent on the wool market for his profits and range conditions for his gross output. During the last two years many sheep men in the territories have been driven out of business by drought who for several years previous had been realizing large profits. The sheep man accepts these things stoically, and waits for better days.

A large share of the wool output of the southwest is handled through the local wholesale dealers. When a traveling salesman applies for a position with a jobbing house in this section the first question put to him is likely to be, "What do you know about wool?" If he can establish a reputation as an accurate judge and a successful buyer of wool his position at a large salary is assured. Like tobacco, wool is a difficult commodity to judge accurately. A real wool expert is a rare individual, and greatly respected among sheep men, especially those favored ones who have acquired the ability to unearth dirty fleeces and surreptitious deposits of sand and pebbles in the most prepossessing bales.

Among the largest contributors to the wool output of the southwest are the Indian tribes of northern Arizona and New Mexico. The reservation of the Navajo tribe, utilized almost entirely for sheep grazing, is an empire in itself. From the time the traveler crosses Canon Diablo, a short distance east of Flagstaff, Arizona, until he reaches the town of Grants, New Mexico, a ride of eight hours by train, he is skirting the southern border of the Navajo country. This extends northward to the Colorado and Utah border, and embraces an area equal to that of several eastern states.

Along the border and at a few points inside the reservation are numerous trading posts supported entirely by Indian patronage. In most cases the Indians dispose of their wool crop by contract a year in advance, receiving such supplies as they may need from time to time and usually seeing little actual cash.

Among the traders the Navajos are known as "sporty Indians." A Pueblo Indian who is so fortunate as to realize a surplus at the annual settlement with his trader may be expected to invest in a farm wagon, or even household furniture. But a Navajo with fifty dollars to his credit at the end of the year will in all probability devote the entire sum to a long-coveted silver-mounted bridle. He has no use for wagons or furniture, as he has no permanent residence, but follows his flocks from one range to another, living in a pole hogan, which together with his other household chattels, he drags at the end of a lariat hitched to his saddle.

Some years ago the government sent a consignment of farm wagons to its Navajo wards. Travelers in the interior of the reservation today may see the running gears of these vehicles bleaching in the sun unused. The wagon boxes, however, the Indians utilized. Scattered across the plains, turned on their sides with the open tops to the south, these boxes have served for years as an excelent protection from storms for the tribesmen in their winter pilgrimages.

Dealers in Navajo blankets have learned that a prosperous season with a heavy yield of wool often means a curtailment of the blanket supply. When wool is scarce the squaws will weave the supply into blankets which bring a good price, but when the yield is heavy this is not necesary in order to supply the family needs and the raw wool is turned over to the trader.

What pay day is in a factory town, wool delivering time is in the sheep country, except that here the money flows in but once a year. It is the season looked forward to by every one from the wholesale dealer in New York to the humble herder in the hills.

All over the sheep country business is done on a credit basis, the merchant carrying the ranchman on his books for a year, and the wholesaler often granting similar terms to the merchant. Many dealers secure their accounts by contracting for the wool, so that the ranchman often sees little real cash.

Late in the summer buyers from the leading trade centers flock into the sheep country. If the market is strong and prices satisfactory, the railroads are besieged for cars and the crop moves eastward in a steady stream, as all interested are anxious to turn the year's output into cash.

If the market is off, the ranchman stores his wool and waits for a rise in prices. When this occurs it invariably precipitates a local "tight money" market. The banks, unable to call in their loans find themselves handicapped in handling new business. The ranchman, the dealer, and the local wholesaler can offer nothing more negotiable than promissory notes. No one can command cash, and business drags.

One day the wires flash a new quotation, and the stagnation vanishes. Day and night the wagon trains grind across the plains to the railway sidings. A white flood pours eastward and a stream of gold flows back.

Then are the gala days in the sheep country. Every one has money. Barbecues and town fairs celebrate the prosperous year. About this time the far-sighted circus man has timed his arrival. Street carnivals flourish and "bailes" abound. Everybody pays his debts and enjoys such indiscretions as may be accorded one to whom a full purse is an annual novelty.

In the literature of the West the cow man has always predominated, with the prospector a close rival. Around a cowboy and the gold miner fiction has woven an air or romance, but the sheep man has gone his way unsung.

Some day perhaps some epic poet will catch the spirit of the sheep country and weave the pastoral beauty and grim horror of its desert wastes, its luring riches and its sorbid lives, into a living song. The sheep man is not without a strain of romance. He is guiding a great industry, playing a big game for big stakes, in the silent places, far from the eyes of civilization.

WASHINGTON DRIFT.

President Taft's Retrenchments.

President Taft has devoted considerable thought and time to economy in the executive departments at Washington. The subject is dry and tiresome. Money must be saved by careful attention to detail by retrenchments that are likely to be called "cheeseparing," by the unpleasant process of abolishing easy berths and dismissing unnecessary servants. And when the results are made known the savings often appear ludicrously small because the amount saved is usually put into comparison with the total cost of conducting the whole government.

Yet Mr. Taft and his subordinates have kept at this necessary, if disagreeable work, with results that are beginning to show. In the bureau of engraving and printing last year 11 per cent more work was done than in the previous twelvemonth and for $172,000 less. Of this sum $90,000 was saved by reducing the size of internal revenue stamps. The new methods Mr. Hitchcock has introduced in the postoffice department promise to make that enterprise self-sustaining. This will be done by attention to smal details as well as by vigilant scrutiny of large items.

Mr. Taft promised economy, and is making good his promise. It is a homely, prosaic affair to be sure, but it will effect the pocketbook nerve of every voter. It should be a matter of interest, even to the most violent and heated insurgents.—New York Sun.

Where Do the Pennies Go?

Although the Philadelphia mint coined 144,000,000 pennies last year, and many other millions in years before, the mystery of where the little coppers go is still unsolved, and Director of the Mint George E. Roberts estimates the big plant will make another hundred million this year.

Pennies, more than any other sort of coin, disappear from circulation mysteriously. The Government does not mind coining them, for it yields a fine profit. A pound of copper costing now about 13 cents will make $1 in pennies.

Tariff Average Falls.

The operations of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law for one year show that the average ad valorem rate of duty paid on imports of all classes was 1.66 per cent. lower than under the Dingley law, which was in force for the previous year. The comparison was made by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor for the years ended June 30, 1909, and 1910.

The recent revision of the tariff has been the subject of so much dissension in political circles that these figures are expected to attract wide attention. The comparison deals with the 11 great groups of imports—lumber, sugar, fruits, and nuts, liquors, chemicals, silk manufactures, cotton manufactures, iron and steel, tobacco, wool and manufactures, and fibres and manufactures—which aggregate about two-thirds of the total dutiable imports into the United States.

It is demonstrated by the comparison that more than $100,000,000 worth of goods were imported in 1910 under the new law in excess of the total in 1909, under the Dingley law; that the revenues in the last year exceeded those of 1909 by about $30,000,000, and that the average ad valorem rate of duty paid was only 41.49 as compared with 43.15 under the old law.

Some Real Economy.

The policy of economy, which is the watchword at the Treasury Department, is reflected in the annual report of the director of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Director J. E. Ralph shows that the Bureau has done 11 per cent. more work on about $172,000 less than it did the year before. More than $90,000 has been saved by reducing the size of the internal revenue stamps for cigars.

All bank notes, revenue stamps and postage stamps are printed at the Bureau in sheets containing from four to 100. The year's work is computed by sheets instead of individual pieces. There were 252,710,664 sheets printed and engraved during the year. It cost $4,975,365.87 to run the big plant.

An Unusual Claimant.

Up in Minnesota Mr. Olsen had a cow killed by a railroad train. In due season the claim agent for the railroad called.

"We understand, of course, that the deceased was a very docile and valuable animal," said the claim agent in his moost persuasive claim-agentlemanly manner, "and we sympathize with you and your family in your loss. But, Mr. Olsen, you must remember this: Your cow had no business being upon our tracks. Those tracks are our private property, and when she invaded them she became a trespasser. Technically speaking, you, as her owner, became a trespasser also. But we have no desire to carry the issue into court and possibly give you trouble. Now, then what would you regard as a fair settlement beween you and the railroad company."

"Vall," said Mr. Olsen, slowly, "Ay bane poor Swede farmer, but Ay give you two dollars."—[Everbody's.

An Improved Bustle.

A new bustle patented in Kansas, has just come into use, with blowoff and safety valve, says the Troy Chief. When the wearer sits down the wind escapes up the spine, loosens the corset strings and blows her bangs into the fashionable position, and when she stands up the action tightens and expands her bustle, whistles to her dog, and sticks a pin into her drowsy es-

Warned the Prince.

In many ways England is quite as real a democracy as the United States. A story about the young Prince Edward, told in the Atlanta Constitution, illustrates well this point. He was sent to school at Osborne. He had just arrived and was wandering about the grounds, when he was accosted by another small boy, who had already been a term at Osborne.

"Hello!" said the other boy, who was the son of a captain in the navy. "You're a new boy. What is your name?"

"Edward," the little Prince replied.

"Edward what, stupid?" said the other boy. "You must have another name."

"Edward of Wales," said the Prince.

"Oh, so you're that chap," was his comment, as he walked away. "I hope you won't put on too much side."—[Youth's Companion.

An Eccentric Definition.

Eminent lawyers are frequently amazingly ignorant on all subjects other than law. A good story is told of a judge who once interrupted a well-known patent counsel: "I am sorry to stop you; but while I understand the term 'eccentric' when applied to persons, I must confess that I am quite at a loss to appreciate its meaning when applied to things." The learned counsel looked a little puzzled for a moment, and then amid considerable merriment evoked by his reply, said: "An eccentric, my Lord, is a circle whose center is not in the center." And a precious good rough-and-ready definition too.—[Law Notes.

Gold Soup.

Sheriff William Harrigan drifted into "Jake the Barber's" for lunch yesterday, says The Newark Star, and surprised the husky German proprietor when he called for a plate of gold soup.

"Don't know the meaning, Sheriff," said Jake.

"Well, then, it's time for you to get out of the business, Jake," was the Sheriff's response.

"Can't help it, Sheriff; it ain't on my bill of fare."

"Come here, Jake, and I'll tell you. It's soup with fourteen carrots in it."

So don't be surprised if it is on the menu card daily.

A Prank of the Wind.

Dawdle (at Atlantic City)—Do you believe in that old saying that "like seeks like?"

Mawdle—Sure! Saw a demonstration of it only this morning.

Dawdle—Where?

Mawdle—On the beach. A hatless young woman was standing near me when a puff of wind came along and nearly all her beautiful hair joined it! —[Newark Star.

The Little Things.

My dear, the little things I did for you
  Today have brought me comfort, one by one,
As through the purple dark a shaft of sun
  Strikes far at dawn, and changes dusk to blue;
The little things it cost me naught to do
  Remembering how slow life's sands may run,
  Today a web of purest gold have spun
Across the gulf that lies between us two.

Oh, dead and dear, the many little things!
  The loving words I did not fail to say,
The kiss at parting, the caressing touch—
What shriven peace to me the memory brings!
  And weeping at your open grave today,
No single pang because I did too much.
—Harper's Bazaar.

THE LONELY ROAD.

Love came to her door one day,
  And knocked with his eager hands;
But she left the portal barred,
  Nor heeded his sweet commands.
For she was raptured with Art;
  And Fame was a hoped-for guest,
And she knew if Love but entered the door
  She must listen to his behest;
And life was long, and some later day
She might welcome Love if he came her way.

She stood at her door one day,
  Wistful, with empty hands,
Watching to see if Love came by
  With his laughing sweet commands.
But the valley road was lone,
  And the white road over the hill;
No hand to plead on the panel door,
  No light foot on the sill;
"Come back, O Love, come back this way,
For life is now a speeding day!"
—[Emma A. Lent, in Zion's Herald.

No More.

We used to smile at pictures gay
That showed the farmer as "a jay,"
Who chewed a straw and said "By gum!"
And thought that he was going some
If he should spend a silver dime
When up to town to have a time.
That was the way we talked of yore.
We do not talk so any more.
Your uncle swees around today,
The owner of a load of hay,
And live stock, too, and corn and things,
Enough to ransom petty kings.
His bank account is something great,
Besides his bonds and real estate.
And so his pardon we implore.
We'll never josh him any more.

NEAR LOS ANGELES.

GARDEN GROVE RAPIDLY BECOMING ONE OF LEADING POULTRY CENTERS.

Many Young Citrus Orchards Being Laid Out This Year---Walnut Crop Source of Large Income to the Growers---District Near Los Angeles Offers Opportunities to People of Limited Means.

Specially Contributed.

GARDEN GROVE.

THERE are thousands of people all over our country who are realizing a complete solution for the great industrial problems of the age. This solution is voiced in the cry, "Back to the Farm."

It is human nature to be independent, self-supporting and manager of one's own affairs. Modern society, however, compels us in business to come in contact with the outside world and we are thus in a measure all mutually dependent upon one another. To be successful we must first fully realize this fact and then select that business for which we are suited.

There is no occupation for which such a large percentage of Americans are suited as farming. The American farmer is a free and independent business man. He is as a rule a healthy, happy and contented individual and there is no man doing more for humanity. The farmer's life is ever an inspiration to the hard toiling city man cramped over his desk breathing the stuffy air of a small office. There are hundreds of such desk slaves of the city craving an opportunity for a free and independent occupation, but their business allows them no time to investigate where such an opportunity can be found. Many of these city men feel that they have not sufficient capital to make a start. They have heard of the high price of improved land and they believe it takes a small fortune to lay out an undeveloped farm. Perhaps a small amount of savings may have been collected, but the man cannot find a place to make a start on his small capital.

It is to this kind of settler that Garden Grove and its surrounding country offers an unrestricted field. Here is a community which has just started upon a pronounced career of development. The soil is fertile, the water abundant, the climate mild, the railroad service splendid, the people intelligent and congenial, and greatest of all the price of the land is low. There is some soil in this district which is as good as the highest priced land in California and which can now be had at a nominal price. Here is a section which offers to the new settler shares of its capital stock at a ground floor price.

POULTRY.

The Garden Grove district is a general farming district which is now producing nearly every kind of product; but as in every other similar location there are some industries which are destined to lead the others and it seems that poultry is rapidly taking the lead here. This location offers every natural advantage for poultry raising which could be asked for, and that the industry is well past the experimental stage in the district is clearly demonstrated by the fact that there are several large ranches doing a thriving business.

O. S. Hickey has an eighty acre ranch about two and a half miles southwest of Garden Grove on which he is raising about 3000 hens and several hundred ducks, turkeys and geese. He stated that thus far he has not been able to raise his own grain but has had to buy it in Los Angeles and pay for shipping it to his ranch. Under these conditions he said that it cost him about $1.20 a year per hen for feeding and that the average hen netted him about $1.00 to $1.25 annual profit. His plant when fully equipped will have cost him $24,000 and he stated that any farmer with ordinary intelligence and the equipment which he is introducing should realize at least $5,000 a year income on the eighty acres.

Mr. Hickey advises newcomers to purchase not more than ten acres to start in with and to raise nothing but chickens. He says that the egg supply of Southern California is far below the demand and there is room for hundreds in the business. He stated that the Los Angeles dealers are handling on an average of $500,000.00 worth of eggs a month, but owing to the constant increase of the population this amount must be doubled in the course of the next few years. "I advise the exclusive raising of chickens in this business," said Mr. Hickey, "on account of the fact that there have been times when the duck and geese businesses have been overdone, but the chicken business has never yet equaled the demand."

The stranger could gather a wealth of information relative to local conditions by paying a visit to this ranch and the owner will make all welcome.

THE TOWN.

The town of Garden Grove is not a large municipality by any means and as yet is unincorporated, which re- never yet equaled the demand."

It is situated in the northern part of Orange county twenty-nine miles southeast of Los Angeles and about five miles northwest of Santa Ana. It is reached by the Santa Ana branch of the Pacific Electric railroad and the round trip fare from Los Angeles is 85 cents. The electric road furnishes a fast and convenient passenger service and also handles nearly all the freight and express shipments of the community.

The town is supplied with a number of stores, all of which carry good stocks and are well patronized by the local people. These stores include four groceries, two restaurants, a livery stable, a garage, two blacksmiths, one bakery, a drug store, a meat market, a jeweler, a shoemaker, a harness maker and bicycle repair shop, one lumber, lime and cement dealer, one planing mill, a bank, a plumber, two barbers, two poultry and feed supply stores, two general merchandise stores, four real estate offices, a hotel and an enterprising newspaper.

The aggregate population of the community is about 2,000. There is an electric street lighting system in the town, the current for which is supplied by the Southern California Edison company. This company also furnishes lighting current to the residences at the rate of 10 cents per kilowatt and electric power can be had at a very low rate. Two local water plants supply the houses with pure fresh water at the rate of $1.00 per month. It is the intention of these companies to make vast and immediate improvements on their systems. Large mains will be soon laid in the streets and fire hydrants will be placed in the streets.

The Home and Sunset telephones are established at Garden Grove. Communication without extra toll may be had with Santa Ana, Orange, Westminster, Smeltzer and Winterberg. Connections are made with Los Angeles at the rate of 75 cents for three minutes.

Besides the Home and Sunset companies a local company has lines connecting Garden Grove with Westminster, Smeltzer and Winterberg.

The Pacific electric has constructed a pretty $3000 depot to facilitate the transaction of its business in the district. Several employees of the company are kept on duty at this station at all times and persons buying commutation books and other tickets may obtain them here without having to leave the town. There are about 100 cars of produce shipped from this station every month.

The Bank of Garden Grove was organized Nov. 22, 1909 as a State bank with a capital of $25,000. It is located in its own brick building at the corner of Ocean and Euclid avenues, the two main streets of the town. Since its organization its business has been far in excess of what its directors had anticipated. In the near future a safe deposit box department will be installed. The present vaults and safes are thoroughly protected against robbery and fire. The bank loans are made mostly to the local ranchers and are spent on local property improvements. The directors are all well-known business men of the community.

Real estate exchanges are continually going on and there are several considerate and painstaking gentlemen in the town who are engaged in this business.

Unimproved land by the acre can be had at from $200 to $500 while improved land varies from $400 to $1000 an acre. Business lots can be had from $250 to $850 and residence lots bring a price of from $200 to $500 each.

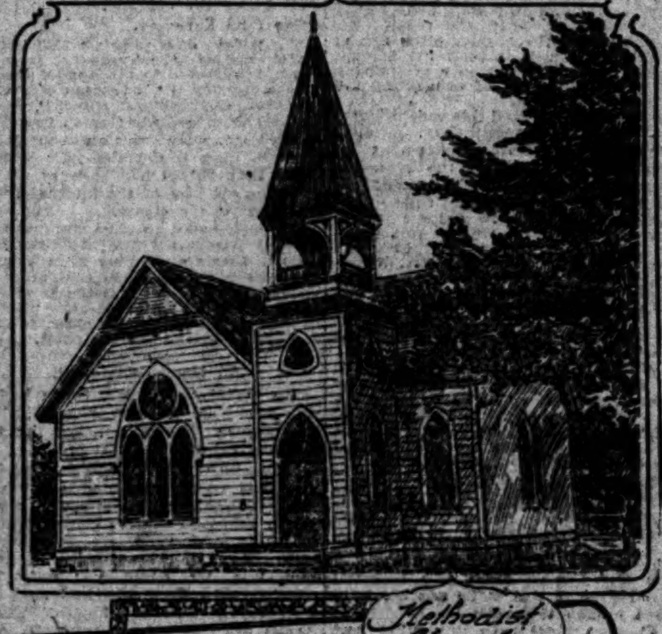
SCHOOLS AND SOCIETY.

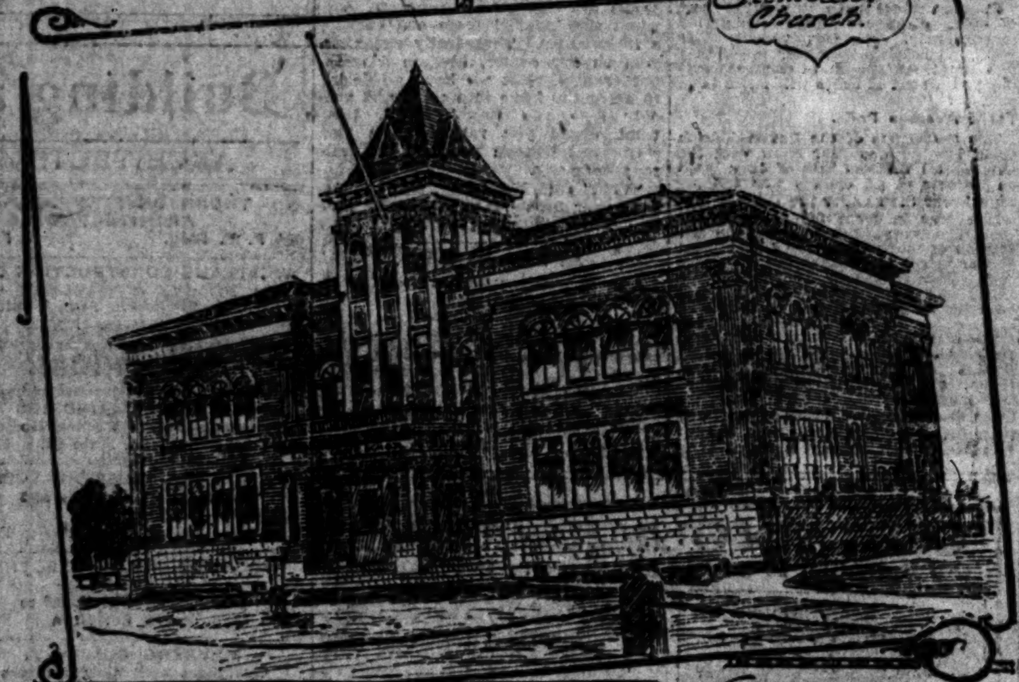
This district is well supplied with good schooling facilities. There are several school buildings scattered in populous places throughout the country. The Garden Grove grammar school is the chief among these and is well attended by a large flock of happy country lads and lasses.

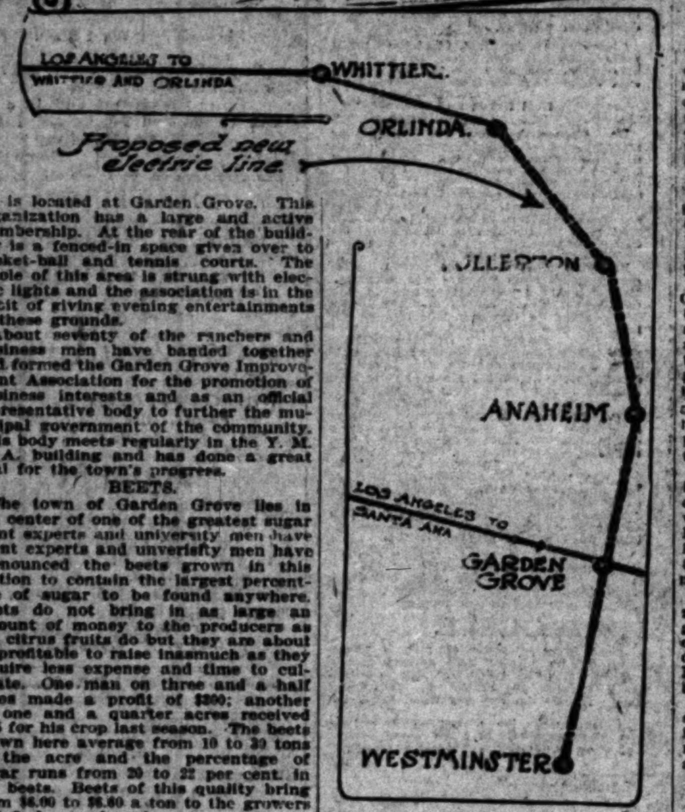
There are four different church buildings in the Garden Grove district, all of which have large congregations and are self-supporting in every way. In connection with several of these are different social and religious organizations which tend to bring the people closer together in a friendly spirit. Nearly every inhabitant is a church member.

The first county Y. M. C. A. building ever constructed this side of the Rockies is located at Garden Grove. This organization has a large and active membership. At the rear of the building is a fenced-in space given over to basket-ball and tennis courts. The whole of this area is strung with electric lights and the association is in the habit of giving evening entertainments in these grounds.

About seventy of the ranchers and business men have banded together and formed the Garden Grove Improvement Association for the promotion of business interests and as an official representative body to further the municipal government of the community. This body meets regularly in the Y. M. C. A. building and has done a great deal for the town's progress.







Garden Grove

A thriving suburb of Los Angeles.

BEETS.

The town of Garden Grove lies in the center of one of the greatest sugar ment experts and university men have ment experts and unverisfty men have pronounced the beets grown in this section to contain the largest percentage of sugar to be found anywhere. Beets do not bring in as large an amount of money to the producers as the citrus fruits do but they are about as profitable to raise inasmuch as they require less expense and time to cultivate. One man on three and a half acres made a profit of $300; another on one and a quarter acres received $135 for his crop last season. The beets grown here average from 10 to 30 tons to the acre and the percentage of sugar runs from 20 to 22 per cent. in the beets. Beets of this quality bring from $6.00 to $6.60 a ton to the growers and find a ready sale.

The beet farmers market their crop as a rule to the large beet sugar factories, of which there are several in this part of the State. The Southern Pacific and the Pacific Electric handle the shipping and the beets of the district are shipped as far north as Oxnard. A large quantity goes to the American beet sugar factory at Chino. A new factory is now being built at Anaheim and when this is completed it will offer a market for a great many more beets than are at present raised in this vicinity.

CITRUS FRUITS AND WALNUTS.

Most of the lands of Southern California, suitable for the growing of citrus fruits or walnuts, command a big price but in this district good citrus or walnut lands can be had at the same price as a common utility farm.

Valencia oranges do well in the soil found here and many young groves are being set out. In the course of the next five years or so this district will rival the Whittier district in its production of oranges. The Valencia orange has made many California farmers rich men but it will not grow everywhere. That it will grow in this district is an established fact. There are a few trees of this fruit which have grown as long as twenty years in this country, showing that its cultivation is not an experiment. The navel orange grows just as well as the Valencia.

The soft-shell English walnuts are grown to perfection in many locations here, and many of the newcomers in the vicinity are laying out large groves of these trees.

Garden Grove is the home of the budded walnut. This feat was first successfully accomplished here by a local nurseryman. The budded walnut and the grafted walnut are two entirely separate and distinct trees. The grafting of the tree is not a difficult thing to do but the budding requires a certain process which is kept a close secret by the originator. The budded tree has many points of superiority over any other walnut and its crop brings nearly a third higher price in the market.

E. G. Ware has a forty-acre ranch one half mile to the north of Garden Grove and on one five-acre piece of his land he has planted out the budded walnut. These trees are only five years old and nearly every one of them had at least 50 pounds of nuts. Mr. Ware has also some fine Navel and Valencia oranges from which he realizes an average profit of about $200 an acre per year.

Large quantities of vegetables are shipped from Garden Grove every season. Potatoes, beans, corn, cabbage, tomatoes chiles and cucumbers are the principal products under this head. Berries, grain, alfalfa and deciduous fruits are also profitably raised.

The cultivation of the chile pepper has proven exceptionally profitable. One man has raised on an average of eleven tons to the acre for which he has received $22 a ton. This product is shipped to Los Angeles by electric car and is used in pickling.

Hog and cattle raising in the country southwest of Garden Grove are becoming prominent industries. Cattle can be kept cheaply as the supply of grain and hay is plentiful and can be obtained from the immediate locality without having to ship it in.

Another new and profitable industry is the growing of eucalyptus for lumber, oil, piling and fire wood. It is estimated by the man in this business that between 20 and 40 carloads of eucalyptus piling will be shipped from Garden Grove this season. Now that so much eucaliptus is being used for hardwood flooring in the place of oak there is every indication that much of the timber will be planted in this part of the State. The city of Los Angeles is a great market for hardwood flooring and needs a nearby district where lumber can be obtained cheaply and upon short notice. This district is well adapted for the cultivaton of these trees.

WESTMINISTER.

About four and a half miles southwest of Garden Grove is the little settlement of Westminister. This is the center of a great artesian well and celery district. From 1500 to 2700 carloads of celery are shipped annually from this center. Surrounding Westminister are large areas of peat land which is unsurpassed in fertility and for the growing of the celery. From Westminister it is estimated that 5000 cars of produce are shipped each year and more might be shipped if the country was given better railroad facilities. An electric line connecting with Garden Grove is badly needed.

In the Westminister vicinity the prices of real estate are about the same as those of Garden Grove although there are a few places where unimproved lands may be had as low as $15 per acre.

At Westminister is the home of the California Seed Growers company. This company has a plant of eighty-five acres and its business is to raise seed and onion sets for market. There are thirty-five people employed by the company. This is the only institution in the State doing a wholesale business in onion sets. The company supplies nearly every seed dealer in the State and has a large eastern and southern state trade.

G. H. Murdock, the manager, stated that the company plants 3500 pounds of onion seed a year, from which a harvest of 200 tons of onion sets is reaped. Large quantities of tomatoes are grown for their seed and after the seed is extracted the waste product of the tomato is sold for the making of catsup.

Mr. Murdock said that he would recommend other people to go into the garden seed business here. The supply of flower and vegetable seed is not to date keeping pace with the demand. Here is a good opening for a profitable business.

Westminster has an improvement association which is doing everything in its power to further civic improvements. Several fraternal orders are also represented.

PROPOSED RAILROAD.

The one great improvement which the people are all anxious to get is an electric railroad to run directly through the country and at right angles to the existing roads. It has been suggested that if the Pacific Electric would carry its extension of the Whittier and La Habra line which now terminates at Olinda and bring it on to Fullerton, thnce from Fullerton to Anaheim, Gardeen Grove and Westminster, a convenient mode of travel would be established. This proposed road should also prove profitable to the railroad company as it would tap a district with an aggregate population of 20,000 people who up to the present time have never had a convenience of this nature. The passenger service itself ought to interest the Pacific Electric, but the untold quantities of freight which the district would ship by this route would pay the company handsomely.

OPPORTUNITIES.

The town of Gardn Grove is in need of a dry goods store, a boot and shoe store and a dentist. A paint shop is also desired and any of these business enterprises would be well patronized by the community and should prove a profitable undertaking for a newcomer.

The business men state that a person could make 10 per cent. on his capital by building houses for rent. Houses for rent are needed immediately. Three persons in the town, at the time this article was compiled, had letters in their possession from eastern friends and relatives asking them to secure cottages and bungalows to rent. There is not a house to rent in the district and until some provision in this direction is made a large and certain increase in the town's population will be stunted. Houses costing from $1000 to $1200 and renting from $10 to $20 are suggested and eight or ten of these would find immediate tenants.

It has also been suggested by several that a cannery for the pickling and canning of chile peppers, tomatoes, cucumbers, etc., would save the local farmers freighting their products to Los Angeles and pay the investors good interest on their capital.

The following ranchers and business men of Garden Grove and Westminster will be glad to give further information to any stranger upon the opportunities offered by their district: S. S. Jackson, Geo. GIRL SPITS OUT ROCKS.

Flinty Particles Ejected from Young Woman's Mouth that Puzzle the Doctors.

[From the Chicago Inter Ocean] Five weeks ago the ten-year-old daughter of Will Green, a respected colored man of Winston-Salem, N. C., was attacked with expectoration of rocks which came from her teeth. Upon examination it was found that on both sides of the jaw her teeth were badly decayed and that small rock formations were ejected from these cavities. The girl's parents became alarmed, and physicians were consulted, but they could give no explanation of the phenomenon.

The girl was taken to the office of a dentist, and while seated in the operating chair he began to emit these rocks, some of them about the size of a small pea, and, though the mouth was washed and thoroughly scrutinized and the child's hands held in her lap, these rocks continued to appear.

More than a dozen of these flinty substances were emitted in a couple of days. The child has little pain, and both physicians and dentists are much puzzled by the case. Several of the stones have been sent to the State chemist for analysis. The constitution of the particles is entirely different from the bone of the teeth, so that it cannot be surmised that it is the breaking off of particles of decayed teeth.

Desertion Sure Enough.

"I don't very well see," said the lawyer, "how you can sue your husband for a divorce on the score of desertion when on your own account he has been living quietly at home all the time."

"You don't, eh?" retorted the indignant would-be plaintiff. "Well, if it isn't desertion for a man to take a taxicab to the club, and deny that he is related to her, just because his wife has been arrested on the dock for smuggling, I don't know what desertion is!"—[Philadelphia Record.

Aimed at Open Shop.

All this activity for destruction was directed solely against the advocates of the open shop, leading to the inevitable conclusion that the work was instigated by those favorable to the closed shop. While fair-minded people would like to believe that the dastardly deed was the act of individuals unauthorized by any organization, it will be hard for the general public to free the unions from the blame in the face of their past record of plotting and deeds of violence. They have at least fostered the spirit of anarchy which led to the overt act, just as the unwarranted abuse of three presidents of the United States resulted in their assassination by irresponsible individuals.—[Orange Post.

VERMONT SQUARE ON CROSS-TOWN CAR LINE

Property owners living on Alvarado, Hoover and Jefferson streets have petitioned the City Council not to permit a car line to be built on their respective streets.

There is sure to be a cross-town electric street railway built in the south part of the city.

Vernon avenue is the logical street for a cross-town railway and the residents of Vernon avenue want it there. This line must be built, because it will tap all of the north and south street railway lines and furnish transportation direct to Agricultural Park and the new $630,000.00 Manual Arts High School.

COLORADO RIVER LANDS
Cotton Rancho
$40 Per Acre and up, Including Water Stock
Located Opposite City of Needles, California
470 FEET ABOVE SEA LEVEL
The COTTON RANCHO borders along the Colorado River for more than twenty-five miles and represents the best opportunity for increased land values and home settlement now offered the Los Angeles public.
WATER STOCK INCLUDED
The Rancho has an unlimited and unfailing water supply. Early water filings on the Colorado River and a splendid irrigation system insures this for all time to come. YOU HAVE NO WATER TO DEVELOP AT COTTON RANCHO — it is there ready to be turned on the land without regard to quantity for use in irrigation.
GOOD DOMESTIC WATER
Water for domestic purposes may be easily obtained at about 25 feet.
SOIL FERTILE AND INEXHAUSTIBLE
The tract contains 34,000 acres of rich River Silt, washed down from the canyons of the Colorado through countless centuries. It is irrigated by the water of the River which produced it and its soil cannot be exhausted because the Colorado River water carries with it a fertilizing strength, according to Prof. Forbes of the Arizona Experimental Station, equal to $8.50 per acre of commercial fertilizer, per annum.
THE FIRST UNIT OF THIS TRACT
Is now ready for settlement. The present low prices will only be maintained until this unit is sold, therefore, it is very materially to your advantage to select your land at an early date.
FARMING CONDITIONS IDEAL
Every natural condition essential to agricultural success is present at COTTON RANCHO and the close proximity to the City of Needles and the present and proposed railroad transportation makes this land offer more to the agriculturist on account of easy access to markets for his products, than any other land for sale to-day.
COME IN AND SEE US
We are fully prepared to give you every detail of this proposition and cheerfully answer all questions pertaining to the land not mentioned in this advertisement. We know you will be satisfied after making a trip and seeing this property. If you cannot call personally, write us and we will send you a large illustrated pamphlet by return mail.

POPE DRIVER TALKS RACY

Bert Dingley Returns with the Real Vanderbilt Story

Vivid Description of Fearful Accidents and Deaths

Fast Four-Cylinder Racing Machine Makes Great Run

BY BERT DINGLEY

The Vanderbilt cup race is the greatest automobile contest ever held. This race was the third time that I have driven in the big event. The first race in which I figured was in 1905, and I won the elimination trials for America with a Pope-Toledo. In the big contest I ran into a tree and the car was wrecked.

The following year I was mechanician for Lyttle, who drove a Pope-Toledo, and we failed to finish. Three years later I was entered with a Chalmers-Detroit, but in the practice the day before met with an accident at the same spot where Harold Stone and the Columbia went over the bridge. This is one of the most dangerous turns, as it is made at a bridge.

To tell the truth, it was hard for me to drive the turn as fast as I desired. I came at it at fearful speed and took the curve at seventy-five miles an hour. The Chalmers turned completely over twice as the car left the course. I was thrown 100 feet, and when picked up was unconscious. They took me to the hospital, and, of course, I was out of the Vanderbilt race for that year.

It was my good fortune to drive a Pope-Hartford racer this year. My friend, Bill Ruess, was most anxious for me to figure in the Vanderbilt cup contest. My car was a stock Pope-Hartford racer, one of the prettiest cars on the road, strictly stock, the same machine that is being sold this year. When I saw the racer I was thoroughly satisfied, as the car looks the part. It proved its speed the first day I tried it over the Vanderbilt run, at an average of seventy miles an hour.

You ask me why I did not win. I fully expected to take first honors in the race this year. The car showed its class. It was not necessary to raise the hood for a second during the trials. My Pope seemed certain to take first place, and there was only one machine in the race which I thought had a chance against me. The Marquette Buick I figured might beat us.

LOCAL LADS

Of course the Los Angeles drivers pulled for each other, but, when it came to the start it was a case of every driver for himself. My team mate was Jack Fleming. He started in seventeenth position and I was in twenty-second place. I saw the cars fly away from the starter, but felt the Pope had its chance, and I was cooler than I had ever been before in any race.

From the start to the sixth lap the Pope-Hartford did all that I expected of it. The engine was perfect. The car held the road like the wonderful racer she is, and I felt confident of winning the Vanderbilt cup race. I could almost feel the cup in my grasp, and the car continued to show her class until at the finish of the sixth lap I was ahead of the Alco, the winner. We passed Grant on the back stretch with the Pope, making eighty-five miles an hour. This looked particularly good to me.

My car continued to make good, and in the seventh lap I was in third place, with Fleming just behind me. We were in line for first and second honors with only the two Marquette Buicks ahead of us. It is hard to say just how I felt. It was simply the fulfillment of all my hopes, and I was satisfied and never felt better in any contest in spite of the fact that I had seen the hole in the bridge boards through which the Columbia and Stone had plunged.

In the ninth lap, while still in third place, we had our first mishap. The right rear tire blew out. It took us just one minute to make the change. On the next turn we had another blowout, and then I began to get disgusted. We lost more than a minute, but the car was as good as ever, and I hoped to make up for lost time. I was disappointed because the blowouts continued, and in all I think we changed over a dozen tires.

HARD JOB

It is impossible for any driver to win the Vanderbilt cup race and change as many tires as we did. The delay was too costly, and the Pope was out of the race when we had a blowout in the twentieth lap. Of course, we kept on going. The car was fast and as good as ever, and I determined to make a showing. We finished in tenth place. My team mate, Fleming, finished sixth.

Taking everything into consideration, I am perfectly satisfied with the showing the car made. I have no excuses to make. The Vanderbilt is the greatest automobile contest ever held in the east. It is a dangerous race for the drivers, as the course is rough and the turns are many. There are twenty-five curves, and three of these are right-angle turns.

It was not until we had finished the race that I knew anybody was killed. I saw three cars piled together on the Massapequa turn. I knew then that some driver or mechanician had been hurt. These were the Lancia, Abbott-Detroit and the Simplex. About three miles further around was another car, a red racer, on its side against a telegraph pole.

Take it from me, the Santa Monica race record this year will be higher than the Vanderbilt. In my opinion the Pope will win, and I believe we will make at least seventy miles an hour. I know the atuomobile dealers here were watching Hanshue and myself in the Vanderbilt race. They will have a better chance to see us go out at Santa Monica, and if anybody asks you, the Pope will beat the Apperson and every other car in the race.

One thing I hope. I want those in charge at Santa Monica to guard the course as well as it was guarded last year. We must look out for accidents. The road should be carefully patroled. We will not have anything happen like the slaughter at the Vanderbilt contest.

GRANT AND ALCO HONORED

Winner of Vanderbilt Contest Is Tendered Dinner in New York and His Helpers Are Liberally Praised.

Harry Grant, twice winner of the Vanderbilt cup with the same Alco car, returned to his home in Boston when he learned the Grand Prize race had been called off. He was the guest of honor at a dinner tendered by the American Locomotive company before his departure from New York. At the dinner Grant and his mechanician, Lee, with other helpers, were presented with fat checks for their work in the big event.

With his characteristic generosity, Grant asked that the men who had helped him be honored. He wanted full credit given his mechanician and the two men who had helped make the lightning change of tires and who had been referred to as "dirty mechanics." These two are Robert Cleland of the Michelin Tire company and George Babcock.

The dinner to Grant was at the Engineers' club, and when called upon to speak the winner modestly told the story of the giant negro who had proved his mascot in two races. The black man blessed the car at the beginning of each contest. He left a rabbit's foot on the hood this year, and Grant carried it during the contest.

There is a possibility that Grant and his Alco will go at once to Atlanta to take part in the Grand Prize race there. Grant desires to rest, but his work in the Vanderbilt has placed him in the van of racing drivers, and he may be induced to take part in the Savannah battle this year.

HIGHER CLASS FOR THE FORD

STEARNS RETURNS FROM LONG STAY AT EASTERN FACTORIES

THOUSANDS OF MEN EMPLOYED AT PLANT WHERE LOW-PRICED CAR IS MADE—BUSINESS CONDITIONS ARE BETTER THAN EVER, ACCORDING TO STANDARD MOTOR CAR MANAGER.

Roger Stearns, manager for the Standard Motor Car company, returned from the east on Friday morning after an absence of two months. He has entirely recovered from a severe illness and comes back to Los Angeles to take part in what promises to be the greatest year in the history of the automobile industry. He says the Ford cars are to be better than ever this season, and states that the demand for them is greater than ever.

Through the east business conditions are in excellent shape, says Stearns. He was three weeks in Detroit, at the Ford factory; a week in Moline, Ill., at the Velie factory, and four days at the Frayer-Miller plant in Springfield, O. The Kelly Motor Truck company, which manufactures the Frayer-Miller truck, is to change the name, according to Stearns.

After spending more than a month among the leading factories, Stearns says the 1911 product is to be the greatest ever. He is pleased wtih the Ford cars, and says the Velie 1911 machines are stylish and handsome, and is planning to handle a large number of the new Frayer-Miller trucks. It is necessary for Stearns to go back east again in January to visit the Madison Square Garden automobile show.

"There is more doing at the Ford plant than ever before," said Stearns yesterday. "About 4000 men are employed building cars. On October 3 there were 2900 additional men put to work. The output for the coming season is to be 35,000 cars. The factory is shipping forty cars a day, and in the rush of the season will ship 275 cars a day.

"Every part of the Ford car is built at the factory. Five new buildings are in course of construction at the great works. The old plant is doing a bigger business than ever, and these improvements are necessary. The new Ford is to be a classier car than the factory has ever turned out.

"At the Velie factory 600 men are employed, and a new motor plant is being erected there. The output for 1911 is to be larger than any previous year, and the cars look better than ever. About 400 men were working at the Frayer-Miller concern, and these trucks are to be more powerful, more roomy and better than ever.

"We are bringing a Ford and a Velie racer here. These cars are to be entered in the Phoenix race. I expect to drive the Ford and C. Stickney, the factory race driver, is to handle the Velie. Take it from me, these cars are certain to be heard from this year."

E. M. F. Tugging a Huge Locomotive.

Hauling a locomotive along the Santa Fe tracks is one of the stunts which Harry Lord, of the Lord Motor Car company, has pulled off successfully. Before a large crowd on Thursday the E. M. F. man surprised several score of spectators by dragging 110 tons of steel over the ties with his E. M. F. touring car, a stock machine received from the factory the day previous.

Engineer J. C. Love of the Santa Fe, who drives the big passenger mogul that hauls a fast train out of the railroad yards about twice a week, enjoyed the unique demonstration. He helped make traction for the E. M. F. by standing on the footboard and as the wheels took hold, and his engine began to move, he rejoiced with the other heavyweights in the tonneau.

Planned by Harry Lord, who has driven the E. M. F. cars over more miles of highway this year than any other autoist in Southern California, the demonstration made a hit with Engineer Love who owns an E. M. F. It seemed almost impossible for any motor car to move a huge locomotive. Lord was satisfied the trick could be turned and voiced his sentiments in such a way that he was invited to try the tugging.

Many gathered to watch the stock E. M. F. drag the big engine. At least a score of those who saw the demonstration did not believe it could be done until the engine was moving along the rails. Lord would have been willing to haul the monster mass of steel all over the railroad yards. His car is in as good shape as ever and the undertaking did not strain the mechanism of the machine.

Barney Oldfield Undismayed by A. A. A. Suspension

Master of Monster Motor Refuses to Draw Color Line

Promises to Defeat Jack Johnson at Sheepshead Bay

BY BARNEY OLDFIELD

(By Direct Wire to The Times)

BOSTON (Mass.,) Oct. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] I have come to the parting of the ways with the body which has governed or rather misgoverned the sport of auto racing—the Automobile Association of America. I have stood for many holdups at the command of the three A's contest board and have paid into the strong box of that body over $6000 during the past year alone for sanctions.

For daring to assert my privilege and right to race against Jack Johnson at Sheepshead Bay track the contest board of the three A's announced that I was disqualified and suspended from participation in future sanctioned auto contests. Lese majesty was the awful charge made against my manager, Bill Pickens, in connection with the Johnson race, and Bill was also declared to be an outlaw. Now I am going to fight this organization to a finish.

I am truly glad the yoke has been thrown off, for it has chaffed me for a long time, and when I get through with the three A's they will admit that battles are seldom won with mimeographs, typewriters, rubber stamps and megaphones. I will match the resourcefulness of crafty Bill Pickens against the whole outfit and place a big bet on the results. I am going to race all over America too, I have over thirty tracks under contract. No more sanctioned races for me, and during the past season I have been the direct or indirect promoter of seventy-five per cent of the track races held in America.

AFTER JOHNSON

I decided to race against Jack Johnson only after I realized that Johnson himself and many sporting writers took seriously his claim to track driving ability. The negro hurled challenge after challenge at all auto drivers in America, and myself in particular. Many of the others came back and told how they would never race Johnson on account of his color and lack of racing experience.

The chairman of the contest board of the three A's rose in his majestic power and declared that Johnson would never be allowed to race on account of his color. Then followed other interviews from A. A. A. officials stating that Johnson was shooting at the moon and that Barney Oldfield would not be permitted to race him. That got me riled. I did not want to race Johnson, but I would not stand for anyone putting me in the white slave class.

Soon after the Johnson challenge began creating comment I realized I would have to race the negro, just as Jeffries had to fight him. Was I going to wait until he had a year or so to practice to get on to track driving or was I to race him and squelch him at my game forever? Next Thursday will tell the tale, and when I get through with Johnson he will be made such a monkey of that he will never bother about boasting of his prowess at the steering wheel.

FAST RACE

The race is to be the best two in three, five-mile heats. Johnson will drive a Chalmers racer and I will rely on my Knox six-cylinder. There will be only two heats, for I will want to hurry back to the city for a dinner engagement and can't waste any time. For my Los Angeles friends I will promise to bring a set of the motion picture films out for their entertainment. I am getting $7500, win, lose or draw, for my end, and on last Saturday I sold my interest in the moving pictures for $9000.

I am going to reach California the middle of November, and will establish a complete "outlaw" camp in Los Angeles for the winter. Bert Pickens will reach New York Saturday.

"I won the first round of my battle with the three A's Friday in a sanctioned meet here under the auspices of the Bay State Automobile association, the oldest club in the three A's, and with President Speare of the American Automobile association in the officials' stand. I broke De Palma's record for a mile on the track by four seconds, doing 50 seconds flat, timed by the Boston Chronological club.

"This is only the start of the battle and when we get through the three A's will remember Oldfield and Pickens almost as well as they remember the fellows that signed the Declaration of Independence here a long time ago."

The National league magnates pick Chicago to win the series, and the American league owners cannot see anything but Philadelphia. Funny, isn't it? Seems to depend upon which league you own stock in.

Motorcycle Police Stop Pretty Cartercar Chauffeuse

Takes Friction Drive Machine Out Jefferson Street

Morning Drive Ends in Sensation, and Young Girl Obeys

Miss Isabel Smith, a pretty 14-year-old school girl, was given the surprise of her life on Thursday, when ordered to stop by Motorcycle Policemen Coe and Gardner as she was driving her father's Carter car along West Jefferson street.

Though she was well within the speed limit with the friction driven machine the girl was obliged to halt on the instant.

There was a sensation as the motorcycles slid up at the side of the Carter car. The lively little chauffeuse was frightened and looked at Motorcycle Policeman Coe out of her large blue eyes. She was obliged to relinquish the wheel, though sorry to leave her place on the front seat. Miss Smith is an accomplished driver, but learned that she is too young to handle a car.

Warned that the law must not be broken by any driver who is less than 16 years old, the dainty maid gave up her ambition to take the car over the beach road to Santa Monica and then pilot it around the Santa Monica race course. The "speed cops" were so polite that it was impossible to be even angry with them, and Isabel must wait two years before she can try her skill at the wheel of any machine.

Though she explained the simplicity of operation of the friction-driven machine, though she demonstrated that it is possible for a mere girl to handle the car, as it does not require the strength of a trained athlete to shift the gears and release the clutch, and though she demonstrated her ability to drive slow or fast, it was not possible to let her continue as a chauffeuse, and for two years Miss Smith must be satisfied to ride with another driver in charge.

LEAVES WHEEL

When the young lady gave up the wheel her place was taken by Bert Davis, who had taught her to drive. He took the car out Jefferson and over the beach road to Santa Monica, crossing some of the worst bumps on the newly opened highway to the sea. The speed of the Cartercar was shown when the smooth road was reached and the car attained almost fifty miles an hour.

In the machine besides Miss Smith and Davis were the father of the young lady, Robert F. Smith, and her friend, Miss Mary Warren. The four enjoyed the ride while Isabel was at the wheel, and her skill as a driver had caused them to forget the wording of the law with regard to a young person.

When the popping motorcycles were heard the occupants of the car began to realize what was the matter, though the driver was unconscious of the pursuit until she heard the command to stop. Then she pressed out the clutch, threw on the brakes and made a sensational finish to the morning drive. This was enough to bring out the admiration of the men who have captured so many fast speedsters.

There was no need to arrest the young woman. A warning was sufficient. She promised to obey the laws and to heed the warning in the future. Miss Isabel will never appear on the streets again in charge of the car until she has passed her sixteenth year, and then she will show her friends how much she has learned in the interval. She has studied the mechanism of a motor car carefully and takes a particular interest in a friction-driven motor.

HANDBALL TOURNAMENT

Forty-nine L. A. A. C. Matches Scheduled and About a Third Have Been Played

The handball tournament being held by the Los Angeles Athletic club is one of the most successful the club has ever conducted; and includes forty-nine matches, sixteen of which have been played and the committee in charge of the tourney expects to have them all run off by the last of the month.

Only two men have met in the championship class, but they put up one of the most exciting matches of the tourney thus far, W. B. Whelan defeating J. R. Newmark by a score of 21-12, 21-10. The score, however, does not show how evenly the men were matched, as the loser played in bad luck throughout the set.

The most overwhelming defeat of the tournament was administered to J. Contellier by Cliff Reuman, the score being 21-0, 21-4. W. F. Henderson, secretary of the club, received almost as bad a drubbing at the hands of Paul Trantum, being outclassed and never having a chance to win the match. The score was 21-4, 21-5.

Charlie Eyton, the referee, has taken to handball as a pastime since the boxing game has been ruled out and defeated Joe Clark, 21-19, 21-16.

A large number of the club members are witnessing the matches.

MOTORDROME FOR BARNEY

SPEED KING IS TO COME HERE THIS OPENING MEET TO TAKE PART IN THE SENSATIONAL EVENTS PROMISED BY MANAGER WALTER HEMPEL.—RACE CARD LOOKS BETTER THAN EVER.

Barney Oldfield is to race at the Motordrome November 26 and 27. He signed a contract with Walter Hempel, the manager, a few days ago, and the speed king is to be the sensation at the opening of the saucer track. In a telegram to Hempel, Oldfield states that he will be here ready to drive as fast as ever.

The 200-horsepower Benz motor car is to be shipped in time for the Motordrome fall opening. Oldfield will also bring his six-cylinder Knox. Bill Pickens, his manager, is to leave for Los Angeles in a short time, and Ben Kerscher, the man who has traveled with Oldfield for several years, is also coming. Kerscher has a 100-horsepower Darracq, which he is sure to use on the board course.

Oldfield has swept the boards this season and has regained almost all of the records which he lost last year. New marks have been established by the peerless motor driver, who has announced his willingness to meet all comers again. His activities in New York and in the New England states brought him many honors and a number of important victories.

Other noted drivers are also to enter in the Motordrome events. Oldfield will not appear in the Santa Monica road race. He has no desire to drive in the big event, according to Hempel, and his first appearance is to be at the Motordrome, where thousands of people are expected.

The card of drivers for this meet looks particularly good. Hempel has worked hard to get several of the noted men on the boards. Al Livingston and possibly Jack Fleming and Bert Dingley with the Pope-Hartfords are to take part in the events. With the Warren-Detroit, the Columbia, the Ford and the Velie the races should be well worth watching, as the stock events are to have some fast entries.

George Braden, who has charge of the physical education at Occidental college, is going to make an attempt to introduce gym contests into the intercollegiate competition here in the south this winter. None of the colleges have ever competed for honors in this branch of athletics, but the fine classes of gymnasts who are constantly entering from the high schools make it very probable that the contests can be arranged.

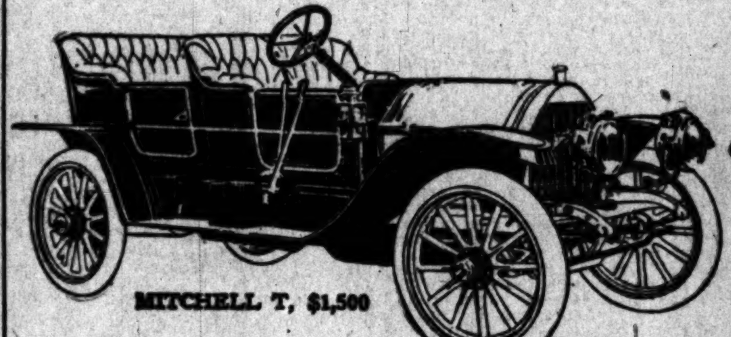
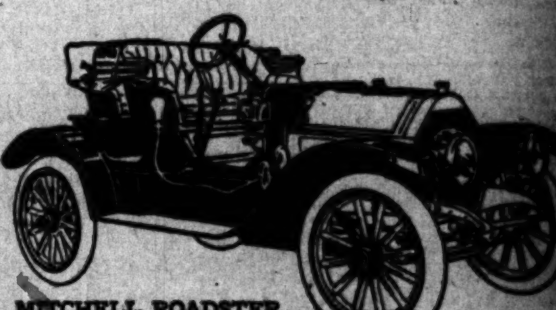
MITCHELL SIX, $2,250



MITCHELL T, $1,500



MITCHELL ROADSTER, $1,200

SIMPLE truth in an automobile advertisement is as rare as a day in June. Common sense is just as unusual.

In automobile advertising the whole list of English superlatives runs riot as a rule. They mean nothing to the average man. Glittering generalities are equally as tiresome. Absurd claims beget nausea.

Truth and common sense will always palliate these evils. We beg to submit them here, as follows:

The success of the Mitchell car has been made possible by the Company's attitude towards its patrons.

Nothing else in the world—no amount of clever advertising nor shrewd salesmanship could have accomplished so much for us in such a short time as seven years, as the Mitchell-Make-Good Policy for the owners of Mitchell cars.

Stripped of imagination and theory, egotism and prejudice, that is the simple fact.

Today the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Company is the soundest and most reliable automobile concern in the world. It has become so, not alone because it makes a good car, but because it has religiously stood behind every car it has made and allowed no man to suffer for something it has failed to do or has done incorrectly.

That Make-Good Policy is the grandest asset this Company could have possibly had. It's the biggest thing in the world.

In time, of course, the merits of the Mitchell car would have made it successful in the sure way that quality has. We have no moral right to discuss that now. Our real asset, the one that induced the people to buy the car in the first place, was and is the fact that the public knew and know we make right anything that goes wrong.

It hasn't been a half-hearted policy, a "sales promise" or an "advertising stunt." Ask any owner of a Mitchell car in any part of the civilized world and he will tell you that we have done our part to his entire satisfaction.

Every agent of the Mitchell-Lewis Company has been taught that a patrons acquaintance and claims do not cease with the payment of the purchase price. He has been innoculated with the Mitchell-Lewis belief in moral responsibility. He is not permitted to dodge the issue when it is raised and if he seeks to do so, he can't sell Mitchell cars.

Our agents are the same today as they were seven years ago. This policy has kept them. When Mitchell owners buy new cars they invariably buy Mitchells. This policy has kept them. They feel mighty secure with that bulwork to lean upon and we therefore have the happiest family of owners that the automobile industry has ever known.

With the factory and agents working hand in hand on such a basis as this, can't you see what a great cumulative force we have had, and can you wonder why the Mitchell has progressed steadily from one year to the other?

We are free to admit that the Mitchell policy has not put much of a burden upon us. We have had some little trouble here and there, for we all know that automobiles will go wrong at times no matter how splendidly they may be built. But in every solitary case we have made good whenever requested and no man that lives, who owns a Mitchell car, can truthfully say that we haven't stood behind him like the Rock of Gibraltar.

Establishment of the Mitchell Service Dept.

We are going even farther. We have recently established what will hereafter be known as the "Mitchell Service Department." It is a development of the Make-Good Policy. At its head we have placed one of the executive officers of our organization. Included within the scope of his work is the repairs department. It is his duty to keep an eye on all Mitchell cars no matter in what remote section of the universe they may be. It is his duty to keep Mitchell owners thoroughly contented. If anything goes wrong with your car come to this department and say in cold English, "This car has gone wrong. Now make it right." There will be no argument. There will be no evasion—no technical shirking of responsibility. We'll go the limit. We believe the Mitchell is now as perfect as skill can make it.

The Car For 1911

The cars for 1911 will be practically the same as they were in 1910. There will be some improvements and refinements. Besides they will be fully equipped with top, lamps, tools, horn, jack, magneto and larger tires than heretofore. We are putting more money into the cost of making the car and will therefore have to charge you more. We raise the prices but not the profit. As a matter of fact the profit is less at the raised prices than it was at the lesser prices. We are giving more for your money.

The Car You Ought to Have at the Price You Ought to Pay. Silent as the Foot of Time.

HUNT CLUB IS FORMED

Object to Exterminate Beasts of the Mountains

Lions, Cats and Coyotes Killing Much Legitimate Game

Organized Hunt to Be Formed All Through Year

The Southern California Hunt club has been organized for the purpose of exterminating mountain lions, wildcats, coyotes and other carniverous animals in order to preserve legitimate game and to indulge in such sport as may be derived from hunting the beasts.

W. Flanigan has been selected as president; J. G. Scott, vice president; Hubbs, secretary; Van M. Griffin, treasurer; directors, W. S. Lang, H. Hutchins, W. H. Leonard; judges for prizes, H. I. Pritchard, deputy fish and game commissioner; C. J. Parker, internal revenue collector, and Edwin L. Hedderly; trophy committee, A. [illegible], F. K. Jenks, A. E. Colburn.

President Flanigan is collecting data for the purpose of presenting it at a meeting of the club called for Thursday night at No. 401 Wright & Callender building, when a big hunt will be organized to extend throughout the mountain country from the Santa Monica mountains to San Jacinto.

Prizes are to be presented for feats of daring and for the best results in hunting the animals which are so destructive to deer, doves, quail, rabbits, etc. Deputy Pritchard of the state fish and game commission says that organization probably will donate at least one trophy and will promise every assistance.

KILL MUCH GAME

It is calculated that the wild animals named destroy more game the year around than do the hunters. Bounties are paid by the state and by some of the counties, and these, with the prizes to be given and the incentive of competition inspired by the Southern California Hunt club, are expected to induce many hunters to take the field against the wild beasts.

Lions, cats and coyotes are numerous throughout the mountains, although ordinary persons see very little of them. Experienced trailers, trappers and riflemen know how to get them, however, and with specially trained dogs the results should be plentiful.

According to Flanigan's estimate, there are at this time five times as many lions as there were five years ago, and cats and coyotes certainly show no signs of decrease.

"We hear every day," said Flanigan yesterday, "of the finding of bones and carcasses of deer, and the canyons are covered with quail feathers, the work of wild animals.

"Something must be done to conserve our game supply. We have the hunters pretty well in check, but we find that lions and wildcats make havoc among the deer and quail. They destroy more than all the hunters put together, and there should be some way to get rid of them. We believe that by organized hunts and a general campaign against them we can lessen their numbers materially, and so lessen their depredations.

GIVE BOUNTIES

"Bounties should be retained, and the authorities should do all in their power to encourage the destruction of the animals. Hunting lions, especially, requires great skill and patience and untiring energy. We believe that we will be able to get good sport out of our plan, and expect to keep up the hunt the year around. This will furnish us sport out of the regular hunting season.

"I estimate that every grown lion kills on the average five deer. The wildcats lay in wait for quail at watering places and kill off great numbers.

"I would suggest that a trophy be offered for the greatest number of lions killed in a given time and another for the largest. Other prizes may be offered as arranged."

W. S. Lang of Lang station has sentiments similar to those of Flanigan, and believes an organized hunt will kill many lions, cats and coyotes. Other hunters have found many carcasses of deer. Bill Ruess recently saw carcasses of five young deer in the Santa Monica mountains. Gene Livermore found two fawns killed by mountain lions within 200 yards of his house in the San Gabriel canyon. And so the story goes.

MAY THWART AUTO THIEVES

Invents Motor Car Brake Lock Which Works Under Severe Test and Prevents Car From Being Moved

Automobilists are interested in an invention which may thwart thieves who try to steal a motor car. Dr. F. S. Hardin, who drives a Regal car, has perfected a brake lock which mechanicians who have examined it say is thief-proof. This lock can be made to fit either a large or a small car, and has proved it will work under the most severe tests.

Placed on the brake ratchet this lock fits over the teeth, and when the brake handle is set the lock is snapped on. It is impossible to release the brake until the lock is removed. The man who handles the key is the only one who can release the set brake. Automobilists who have examined the novel invention believe it will solve many of their troubles. Owners of motor cars have been worried for some time because of the operations of automobile thieves.

The attention of Dr. Hardin, who has offices in the Pacific Electric building, was called to the need for a thief-proof device by the daring theft of a motor car in broad daylight. He decided that if it was possible to bind

The brake-lock can be attached in the fraction of a minute and be removed in a short space of time.

Dr. Hardin has tried his invention on his own car a number of times, and it has proved successful. It has shown that if a thief cranked a motor, threw in the clutch and tried to start a car that some part of the mechanism would be broken if the miscreant continued in his efforts to move the machine. In this way the thief might be caught, or at least he would be foiled in any attempt to steal the car. The invention is known as the Angeles brake-lock and it has been placed on the market.

DUCKS SCARCE ON THE PONDS

LIGHT SHOOTING FOR HUNTERS ON BIG PRESERVES

BIRDS STILL GOING FOR THE COLORADO DELTA COUNTRY WHERE THERE IS PLENTY OF FEED—NORTHERN MIGRANTS NOT IN GOOD CONDITION AND TABLE DAINTIES ARE LEAN.

Few limits have been taken by the duck hunters during the week. The shooting has been exceptionally light on all of the club preserves, the warm weather having scattered the birds, large numbers going south to the Imperial valley, where there is plenty of green feed.

The hunters are not expecting ducks to be here in much greater numbers until there is a storm in the north to drive them this way. The Wednesday guns on the Casadores grounds did not get enough ducks to pay them for going to the preserve; in no instance was anything like a limit bagged. The few birds that were killed were mostly teal with a few mallards.

Some of the sprigs that were in abundance the first of the season in the Newport district seem to have moved a few miles farther north. Those who got birds on the Creedmoor club, which is located near Westminster, killed more sprigs than any other variety. At the first of the season there was hardly a sprig seen in this vicinity.

The rain of the last few days is not likely to be of much service to the club hunters, as the ducks are enjoying the puddles in the country away from the sloughs.

The demand for game this season has been very light. Some of the local markets have even ordered that no more ducks be shipped to them. The birds are not in as good condition as they were last year. They seemingly have had little feed, as they are very lean and are smaller than usual.

A number of disappointed duck hunters of the last week have been out trying their luck at bagging shore birds, which seem to be about as scarce as the former game. None of them have ever approached the limit.

Better success has come to the shotgun enthusiasts who have been visiting the haunts of the quail. The birds are becoming accustomed to the noise that frightened them away at the first of the season and are again gettting quite bold.

ARRESTS FOR SPEEDING

The chief of police of Chicago has kept a record of the manner in which municipal judges of that city have disposed of cases brought against automobile speeders during the last three months. In June 312 arrests were made, the average speed being 24.77 miles an hour. Of the number arrested twenty-nine were discharged and the others were fined $1830, an average of $6.46 each. In July the number of those arrested dropped down to 282, and those discharged was raised to thirty-two, but the fines amounted to $1864, or an average of $7.45 each. A still greater decrease was noticeable in August, when 238 arrests were made and thirty were discharged without punishment. But the aggregate of the fines exceeded the other two months, amounting to $1917, an average of $9.21. Thus it will be seen that while the number of arrests has steadily decreased, the average of the fines has increased just as steadily.

FLANDERS FORECAST

IN MARCH, 1908, at the first meeting of the shareholders of the E. M. F. Company, General Manager Flanders, after describing the type of car the Company proposed to manufacture, said:

"Our strength is in quantity production. We have the talent, the capital, and we will have the factory facilities. We can manufacture more automobiles of a better quality at a lower cost than any other concern now in existence, I verily believe.

"Cars of the type I have described (E. M. F. "30" five-passenger touring car, fully equipped) now command prices ranging from $1,500, $1,600, $1,750 and $2,000. I believe these prices are too high—the value is not there. That is our opportunity.

"Manufacturing in large quantities, we can buy materials to the best advantage. Having the cash to pay and take our discounts, we can under-buy other makers. Most of them are merely assemblers paying intermediate profits to parts makers. We shall manufacture every part of our cars—cast our own cylinders, forge and stamp and heat-treat our own steel, make our own bodies and every other part. In this way we can reduce the cost of manufacturing so as to be able to sell a better car than those I have cited, for about $1,300.

"Then if, as I firmly believe, the quality of the car, backed by the reputation of our organization, will so appeal to buyers as to create its own market, the selling cost will be so low, we ought to be able to cut off another fifty dollars and place the car on the market at $1,250. If we can do that the demand will be greater than we can possibly supply.

"So much for the coming season. But we must build for the future. We here believe in the permanency of the automobile business—else we would be foolish to invest so heavily in permanent factories. We must begin now to plan for that future. E. M. F. "30" has been designed with that idea uppermost. We have embodied these features that will meet the needs of the greatest number and endure longest. From year to year we shall improve wherever possible, but make no radical changes. Whatever other models we may from time to time see fit to bring out, they will be merely to fill out the line. E. M. F. "30" shall remain our standard—our permanent model.

"The public has been saying prices of automobiles must come down. And while the public says many things without deep thought, and while this is said without a knowledge of the cost of making automobiles, the public is right, and eventually we hope to be able to realize that prophecy. But we shall not do it by making a cheap car in the sense that cheapness means poor quality. That would be fatal.

"Once we have built and paid for our factories and equipment, standardized our product and perfected it to the degree that will make few replacements necessary to keep our guarantee good; when we have developed a car that we can guarantee for a year absolutely; by that time our customers will be many and they will all, if properly treated, be our salesmen—then I believe we can produce this same car in its highly perfected state and sell it for NOT FAR ABOVE $1,000!"

REMEMBER THAT WAS IN 1908—March, to be exact. So the plan which we announce in this "ad" to place E. M. F. "30" in the hands of buyers, backed not alone by its reputation—there are over 18,000 in use today, and every owner boosting—but backed also by a full year's guarantee at $1,000, was laid with the very foundation of this company at its first meeting.

New Price of E. M. F. "30" equipped with Top, Glass Front, Speedometer, Tire Irons, Robe Rail and Foot Rest, $1270.00 f. o. b. Los Angeles.

PRICE OF FLANDERS "20"

1911 model is also adjusted to the new conditions. It is now $800 for the Roadster and Runabout types, four-passenger Suburban $825.00.

THINKS IT A SHAME

McCredie Stacks Up Against Graham and Long In Coast League Fight

The action of President Graham of the Coast league in taking three games away from Portland and giving them to Oakland has not left a very good taste in the mouths of the local fans, and a number of them think it is a scheme of Graham and Long to help Oakland win the pennant, inasmuch as the San Francisco team is out of the running. No hasty conclusions should be formed along these lines, for there is no evidence to show that the president and secretary of the league have any such idea in their heads.

As a matter of fact, such a scheme would not be necessary in the Coast league, where there is not such an engrossing interest in which team wins the pennant as there is in the big leagues, for there is no post-season on the coast. Each team makes just about so much money on the regular season, and Portland, which figures to win the pennant in a walk, will get nothing extra for winning it.

In any event the fight of McCredie against Graham and Long is on, and it will be interesting to see how they come out. Graham has called a special meeting for October 20 to consider any league crookedness, but the chances are that McCredie will not be there, and Hen Berry of Los Angeles will be absent, for he is en route to the east to see the championship games between Chicago and Philadelphia.

In essentials it measures up to every demand, in beauty of harmonious lines it sets fashion. It is the kind of a car most appreciated by all-knowing pioneers in motoring. In a word it is "one of the THREE BEST motor cars built."

The motor is "T-head" type, with cylinders cast in pairs of 4 7-8 bore by 5 1-2-inch stroke. The ignition is the Bosch DOUBLE system with two sources of current and two schemes of distribution.

Motor lubrication is by the maintenance of a powerful stream of oil forced by pump upon all engaging surfaces. There is a sight indicator located upon the dash.

The clutch is of the cone type with protruding shoes to first engage the load.

The transmission is of the selective-sliding gear type mounted in "Hess-Bright" ball bearings.

The front axle is "I" beam section forged without welds and the rear axle is full floating type without transverse strains.

The wheels are 36 inches in diameter and the wheel base is 120 inches. The frame is dropped in the rear and narrowed in front.

The bodies are smart looking, commodious and comfortable. All are vestibuled. The open bodies include a four passenger close coupled roadster, a six passenger roadster and a seven passenger touring car. Coach vehicles include limousines, landaulets, and inside operated coupes.

The standard colors are: Open bodies Columbia blue, green, blue and gray, green and gray, Wedgewood green, and coach vehicles, rich shades of Columbia blue, green and maroon.

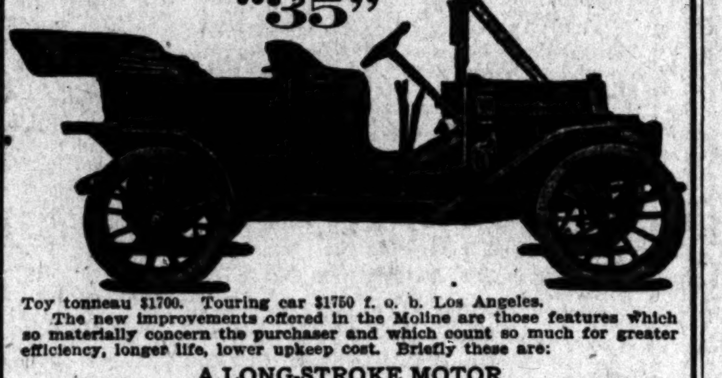
Moline
"35"



Toy tonneau $1700. Touring car $1750 f. o. b. Los Angeles.

The new improvements offered in the Moline are those features which so materially concern the purchaser and which count so much for greater efficiency, longer life, lower upkeep cost. Briefly these are:

A LONG-STROKE MOTOR

having a 4-inch bore and 6-inch stroke. This alone puts this year's model in a class all its own. THIS LONG STROKE MOTOR is a feature not found in cars selling at the MOLINE'S modest price.

LARGER TIRES, 36x3½. LONGER WHEEL BASE.
NEW DROP FRAME. MORE SPEED.
LONGER SPRINGS. MORE STYLE.
MORE POWER. DOUBLE INDEPENDENT IGNITION SYSTEM.

A CAR OF PROVED WORTH

Certainly our splendid showing in the 1910 GLIDDEN TOUR, in which MOLINE "35" made the best record of any car entered, is ample proof of this fact.

GRAVES DIRT TRACK STAR

Crack Motorbike Rider Matched with Chas. Balke

One Hour Race Is to Be One of the Big Features

Raymond Seymour May Be Out as One of Contestants

M. J. Graves, the star of last Sunday's motorcycle race meet, is to race again this afternoon at Ascot park. Graves is matched for a five-mile race against Charles Balke, who was also one of the successful riders of last week. The race is to be a three-heat five-mile event.

That Graves is not afraid to take chances was shown a week ago in his match race with Raymond Seymour, the first heat of which he rode in 4m. 25⅘s., and each time he took the south turn his rear wheel slid several inches across the track. It is expected that Balke will extend himself to the limit, as to defeat Graves would be the biggest thing that could happen to the youngster.

One of the most entertaining events on the card last week was the thirty-minute open race, which brought out a big bunch of starters. Jake de Rosier, who is promoting the meet, will put on another such race this afternoon, with the exception that the time will be extended to one hour.

Young Seymour, who put up a plucky race against Graves a week ago, and who was thrown from his machine in the thirty-minute race, receiving a badly bruised arm, is improving and will probably be in one or two of the events this afternoon. The meet is to start at 2 o'clock. The card today is to comprise the following events:

Eight miles, for stock machines, limited to machines between 30 and 35 inches displacement.

Ten-mile open handicap, limited to machines of 61 cubic inches displacement.

Novelty race.

Ten-mile handicap, limited to 40 cubic inches displacement.

One-hour open race.

ON BOARD TRACK

The Coliseum motorcycle race track is to be opened on October 30, according to Ernie Pye, the bicycle rider, who has obtained control of the track for the season.

Pye says that he has received sanction from the F. A. M. to hold races on the track for fifteen consecutive Sundays, beginning next Sunday.

Pye's sanction to hold meets will very likely interfere with the plans of Jake de Rosier, who is now holding Sunday races at Ascot park, which he proposes to continue for several weeks. De Rosier says he intends to quit riding altogether and to become a promoter, but says he will ride on the Coliseum track this fall if the management will allow no machines larger than six horsepower to compete. He claims that the slope of the track is not sufficient for machines of greater power and that it was due to this that he received his severe fall on the speedway last winter.

Pye says that he will have all the big motorcycle race riders in the country as entrants and that he will have Hubert Kettle, F. E. Whittler, M. J. Graves, Al Ward and J. A. McNeil entered in the first meet.

The Model of the Year 1911

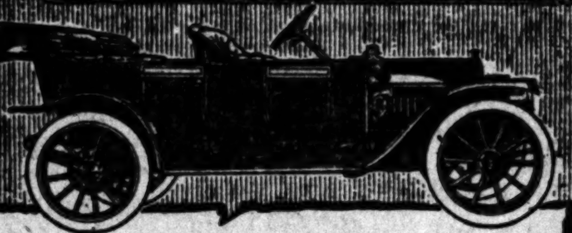
New Models Have Arrived

$1350.



Superior to Any Other Car at the Price, Because:

1. It has more style and more class than any car under $3,000, yet the 1911 EVERITT 30 is only $1,350.
2. This low price car can be obtained with a fore door body for only $50 extra.
3. It has genuine honey-comb radiator—most efficient cooling device and the highest in price—furnished on every 1911 EVERITT 30.
4. It combines the highest order of engineering design and mechanical workmanship, giving its owner a reliable and speedy car at the lowest possible price.

The Metzger Motor Car Company are the only manufacturers of moderate-price automobiles who did not have to carry over a single 1910 model.

The same quality of steel and the same quality of workmanship which made the 1910 Everitt 30 model stand out in competition with any American car up to $3,000 in price, are used in the 1911 Everitt 30.

The improvements in the 1911 Everitt 30 are refinements in the engineering and mechanical features along the lines heretofore found only in the most expensive cars.

None of these features appear in any other car sold at the price of the Everitt 30. Most of them are not found on $3,000 cars.

The Everitt 30 is not an assembled car; it is built from the raw materials in the Everitt 30 factory in Detroit, Michigan. This plant and the material on hand represent a cash investment of $1,375,000.

The men who own the factory have their personal fortunes invested in it, because they believe in the automobile industry, and know that on account of their long experience, they can make a better car at a lower price than anybody else in the automobile business.

The Everitt 30 factory will be in business as long as automobiles are in use, and no buyer of the Everitt 30 need ever be concerned about the renewal of any part.

The factory, as well as the factory distributors, who are stockholders in the Everitt 30 factory, stand back of every car sold.

For the season of 1911 the public will take only cars like the Everitt, which has demonstrated in actual usage on the road, perfection in all the fundamental features of service and endurance.

You are asked to buy the Everitt 30 because it is a sturdy efficient automobile, at a price which is fair to you, yet leaves a living profit for the makers.

In addition to the two models shown above, the 1911 Everitt 30 can be obtained as a 4 Passenger Demi Tonneau, 4 Passenger Fore Door Close Coupled Touring Car, 4 Passenger Inside Driven Coupe and Light Delivery Car.

How Goodyear Tires
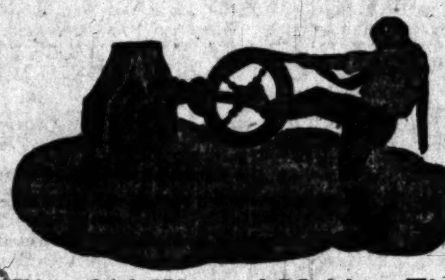
Are NOT Made



The Old Way of Making Tires

Heretofore tires have been made by hand labor, the workmen stretching ply after ply on an iron core and rolling down the fabric by hand. Uniform stretching was impossible. Skilled workmen did the best they could and performed wonders, but the perfect tire was yet to come.

Naturally a workman is stronger and faster in the morning than in the afternoon, so that the morning product was apt to be better than the afternoon's.

Next week we will tell you about the new way—the Goodyear way—of making tires. In the meantime we are selling the full line of Goodyear tires and accessories.

And don't forget that our day and night branch, the South End Auto Station, 3311-13 South Main street, will deliver Goodyear tires and accessories every day, Sundays and holidays included, up to 11 p. m. Home 25326; Sunset South 3263.

APPERSON'S FAST PAIR

Hanshue Coming from East with His Apperson Stable

Expects to Enter All Events on Coast Schedules

Shettler Confident His Crack Driver Is a Winner

Harris Hanshue, with two fast Apperson cars, is due to arrive in Los Angeles this week. He is bringing with him the best Apperson racing stable that ever was shipped to the Pacific coast. These two fast cars are to be seen in every big event scheduled for this winter. Hanshue regrets that he was unable to place in either the Vanderbilt or Fairmount Park races, but he showed his ability to cope with the fastest drivers who have appeared in any contests this year.

After twenty-nine minutes' delay in the Vanderbilt cup race Hanshue finished in sixteenth position. He averaged seventy miles an hour for several laps. He defeated the Marquette-Buick, the Benz and several other fast cars in a race in which all previous records were smashed by the Alco with Harry Grant at the wheel in one of the greatest Vanderbilt cup races ever held.

The two Apperson cars which Hanshue is bringing have proved themselves faster than any other racers of their make ever driven over a course. It is claimed that one of the machines made as high as ninety miles an hour on a straightaway course. This is fast enough to win the Santa Monica race. Shettler has entered this car in the main event at Santa Monica on Thanksgiving day, and if Hanshue wins he will retire from the racing game satisfied with his record.

TAKES THEM ALL

Leon T. Shettler, who owns the racer, entered the big Apperson in the Phoenix race, the Santa Monica contest and the Portola in San Francisco on Christmas day. This is to be the big event of the Bay city autoists, and Shettler is the first Los Angeles dealer to enter a car in the San Francisco run. He may send the two Appersons north.

Jimmy Ryall has offered to drive one of the Apperson cars in the coming race event. Ryall has gained a reputation which has placed him among the leading automobile race drivers in America. He has driven the Matheson in some notable victories, has figured in two Vanderbilt contests, in one of which his Matheson was the leading car until it was wrecked at a dangerous turn. Ryall has as much nerve as Hanshue and has shown he is willing to risk his neck in any race. He may be the team mate of Hanshue at Santa Monica, as Shettler is planning to enter at least two races at Santa Monica.

The experience Hanshue has had in the east has taught him many things. He won the Santa Monica road race last year and smashed all world's records. It was his ambition to drive in a Vanderbilt race, and he got his wish this year. After driving one lap carburetor trouble caused him to stop for one minute less than half an hour. This did not keep Hanshue from driving his best for the remainder of the race, and though the Apperson was far behind, the car was a sensation as he flew along at almost eighty miles an hour.

The Los Angeles man has shown that he is capable of driving with such men as Chevrolet, Grant, Aitkin, Burman and other noted drivers. He comes back to this city ready for a series of contests that should give him a chance to earn a greater reputation than he gained in 1909 by his creditable work. He will bring with him his mechanician, F. Ferguson, who is to be with him in the contest here.

"I have just as much faith in Harris Hanshue as I ever had," said L. T. Shettler yesterday. "His showing in the Vanderbilt cup race is a disappointment, but I know if it had not been for his trouble he would have done as well as he did at Santa Monica. The world's record is to be broken in the big event at Santa Monica. I would not be surprised if Han averaged seventy miles an hour. This will break all world's records, and the race is short enough for us to make a high average.

"The Phoenix race should be worth seeing. Han and the Apperson are entered in this event, and there is no reason why the Apperson should not win. Hanshue knows this course like a book, and he will have all the speed that is necessary for a smooth road, and power enough to pull his car through the deep sand."

KNOX MOVES TO NEW HOME

HANDSOME OLIVE STREET QUARTERS FOR DOERR-BROWN

MACHINES ARE ENTERED IN PHOENIX AND SANTA MONICA ROAD EVENTS AND ALREADY HAVE MADE EXCELLENT SHOWINGS.—BROWN BELIEVES HE HAS A WINNER IN SAND RACE.

Housed in a handsome new garage and salesroom the Doerr-Brown company is preparing for what promises to be its banner year. The agents for the Knox car are to enter the automobile races and the car is to be brought out in public as often as possible, Joe Nikrent has a six-cylinder Knox which is the counterpart of the machine which Barney Oldfield has driven to so many victories.

This car is the centerpiece of the large show room at the new home of the Knox on Olive and Twelfth streets. The show room is 40x40 feet; the garage is 50x55 feet, the workshop, which is fully equipped, is 35x55 feet. On the show room floor expensive tiling is to make the place attractive. Herbert Brown is in charge. The 1911 Knox cars are handsomer than ever.

In a trial on the Motordrome last week Nikrent drove his fast Knox a mile in 45 seconds. Another Knox has been entered in the Phoenix road race and is to be sent over the road to the Colorado river this week. The car is to be entered also in the Santa Monica road race and is good for about eighty miles an hour according to Nikrent.

The four-cylinder Knox which was used on the Phoenix trial trips is in excellent shape and is ready for the run over the sands to the Arizona city. The car stood the strenuous run well. It is to be overhauled before the final grind is started.

This car is the regular Knox demonstrator. Brown used the machine for months on the city streets. One of the most remarkable showings of the year was the five mile trial of the big Knox at Santa Ana. The five mile run was made in 4 minutes 58 seconds. This is remarkable considering the condition of the track.

Driven Hard, Driven Fast, Driven Continuously and Driven by Friction

That is the story of

Petrel '30'

Its power plant is big, strong, splendid. Its construction, from head-light to tail-light, is unsurpassable. But the principle on which Petrel supremacy hinges is the splendid Waite Friction Drive. That drive means 60 miles an hour if you want it—one mile an hour if you prefer. It means noiselessness, economy. It does not slip, chatter or jar. It is as near perfection as you can conceive. 750 miles on a gallon of oil 20 miles on a gallon of gas, and any speed on the high gear, are Petrel performances that are repeated hundreds of times in a season.

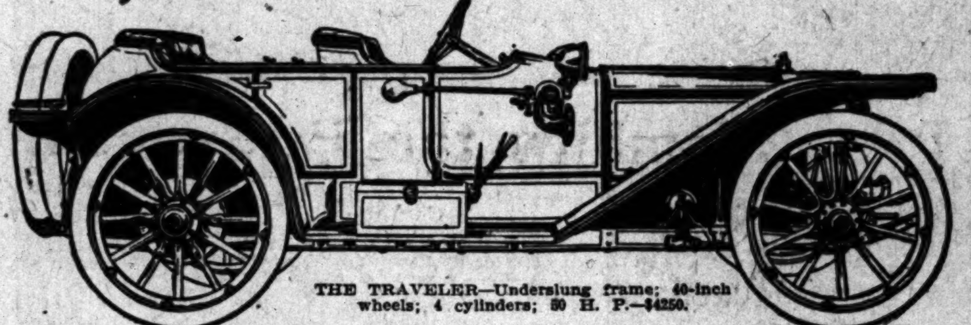
1911 MODELS READY FOR DELIVERY

NO GUESSWORK—A DEMONSTRATION COUNTS



THE TRAVELER—Underslung frame; 40-inch wheels; 4 cylinders; 50 H. P.—$4250.

THE AMERICAN—NO NOISE BUT THE WIND

A car of special class which superbly realizes the scientific principles underlying complete security with amazing speed.

THE AMERICAN'S underslung frame does away with those three menaces to the motorist's safety—side slip, rear lash and tendency to overturn in taking corners at fair speed.

A car of ordinary construction will inevitably overturn if tilted 43 degrees. The AMERICAN may safely be tilted 55 degrees.

A moment's reflection will show that the underslung frame is the only form of construction that actually allows a straight-line drive.

There are nine AMERICAN models for 1911. You can't feel satisfied until you have investigated them.

LARGE LIST OF ENTRIES

Plenty of Aeroplanes to Take Part in the Meet

Program of Seven Events for Saturday and Sunday

Trophies for Flights and Time Passed in the Air

Seventeen machines, some finished and some only partially completed, are to be exhibited or flown at the novice meet of the Aero Club of California next Saturday and Sunday at the Los Angeles motordrome at Del Rey.

Six of these at least are expected to fly, while others may be successful. Not all the aeroplanes are equipped with engines, but the chasses are to be exhibited, while those with engines are to try for the cups and prizes.

To date four cups have been offered, with others in prospect. They include trophies for greatest distance single flight, longest time for single flight, highest flight and best circular flight. The club is arranging to give a number of cups for meritorious devices and performances, such as best towing flight, best automatic stability device and similar features.

The entries are to be classified at a meeting of the directors Tuesday night at the club house, 107 North Spring street, when the aviators are to be required to specify the events in which they are to take part.

When the Price Tumbles the Prospective Buyer Should "Tumble"

Quality and Performance, in an automobile, are worth a Price.

When the Price tumbles, it behooves the prospective purchaser to "tumble" to the situation. Quality and Performance must control the Price.

Wherever Performance is lacking the Price is lower; the value maintains the same ratio.

"The value of a motor car is the quality of service it renders."

"Wherever there is a mediocre car whose price has been too high, the price will be brought down by the natural law of averages. It will lack everything it lacked before; it will still be a cheap car."

FLOATING BOAT HOUSE PLANNED

LOS ANGELES MOTOR BOAT CLUB TO HOLD RECEPTION

EXPECTS TO SHOW MEMBERS OF OTHER ORGANIZATIONS THE TIME OF THEIR LIVES—TO FURTHER THE PLANS OF THE CITY HARBOR AT SAN PEDRO AND TO FURNISH PORT.

The Los Angeles Motor Boat club has completed plans for building a floating boat house which the members expect to have constructed before December 1 at which time they are arranging for a big celebration for its dedication.

The club has been handicapped on its trips up and down the coast by having no place to moor its boats at the ports where the craft have made entry. At some of the places damage has been done to them because of this inconvenience. The new boat house will obviate this difficulty, besides making the trips much more pleasant by carrying the extra equipment of the fleet.

The boat to be built is to be temporary, however, as the club intends to build a much larger one later to cost $15,000 or $20,000 which shall have elegant appointments. The present boat is to be about forty feet long by fifty wide and will be fitted with lockers that will accommodate all of the members of the club. It will be constructed of as light material as possible to insure sufficient strength, that it may be towed easily by the small power boats of the club.

Vice president of the club, Capt. E. J. Louis, naval attache to the governor of California, says that no pains will be spared in making preparation for a big time at the dedication of the boat house and that the club is going to show the other motor boat organizations of the coast the time of their lives. The clubs of San Diego, Santa Barbara and San Francisco are to be guests at the christening and Louis says that the local club is going to prove to its visitors that it is the real power boat club of the coast.

On October 23 the club is to hold its next outing when about eighteen of its boats are to cross the channel to Catalina and return the same day.

At a recent meeting of the organization twenty-five candidates were admitted, completing the charter membership of fifty. A committee has been appointed to frame new bylaws so that the membership may be increased as there are a number of boat owners that wish to join.

The roster of the club comprises a number of influential names. One of the purposes of the club is to further the interests of the city harbor at San Pedro.

Don't Buy a Discount—
Buy a Motor Car

If there ever was a time to buy a car with a reputation, now is the time.

There is a big difference between a cut price and a bargain.

There is also a difference between price cutting and low prices. The price of an inferior article is always a high price, no matter how much you may cut it.

An unknown broker might advertise cut prices on a diamond. But that wouldn't be a bargain. It would be a chance. If Tiffany advertised cut prices on a diamond, that would be a bargain. Because if Tiffany said it was a diamond it would be a diamond. But Tiffany is not going to advertise diamonds at cut prices. First, because diamonds are diamonds. Second, because Tiffany is Tiffany.

A diamond is a bargain at its list price at any time. So is a good motor car. A poor one is dear at any price.

• • •

When you buy a car you forget the price almost as soon as you sign the check. The car you cannot forget. You use that.

If it is a good car it serves you faithfully and proves worth everything you paid for it. If it is not a good car it causes you trouble and will not be worth even a small part of what you paid for it.

Buy a car at a discount and the probabilities are you will pay two or three times the sum you "saved" to get the service the price of the car should have included.

Why should a car that has been painstakingly made and honestly priced be sold at a discount?

A cut price car either was not worth in the beginning all that was asked for it, or else it has depreciated in value as compared with other cars selling at the same list price.

Unless a car is a drug on the market it will sell without discounts. If it was a car of unusual value at the list price it wouldn't be a drug on the market.

• • •

There are a great many people in the world who spend a great deal of time trying to get something for nothing. Everyone of them fails—always has and always will.

You cannot get a good automobile and the service that a good automobile should give without paying a fair price—a price which recompenses the manufacturer for designing and building the car and the dealer for his service in selling it to you and in taking care of you afterward.

You pay for just what you get and you get just what you pay for, and nothing more.

• • •

Chalmers cars have never been high priced cars. We did our price cutting three years ago when we put out the first real automobile that ever was sold for as low a price as $1500.

We have always put unusual value into our cars at the prices. They are worth all that we ask for them.

Judged by common motor car standards, they are worth much more than we ask for them. Ask the owners. Ask engineers—men who know. Ask people in the trade.

• • •

Now if you could get a Chalmers car below list price it would be a bargain. You know that it would be. You would snap it up. Why? Simply because a Chalmers car has the reputation of being a high grade car.

You know the record of this car's performance. You know that it won the title of "Champion car." You know that it won the 1910 Glidden Tour. You know that it has made good in the hands of thousands of owners. You know there is practically no second hand trade in Chalmers cars—that you can always get a good price for a Chalmers. You know that a Chalmers is a real asset—an investment, not only for one year, but for many years.

You know that it has beauty and fine finish, that it will endure; that it will be consistent; that it is painstakingly built and honestly priced. In fact, you know its reputation, and knowing that, you know that a Chalmers car at a discount would be a great bargain.

• • •

But you know, too, that you could not get a Chalmers car at a discount. And the reason why you can't is that it has this reputation. It earned its reputation by being so good—so desirable. You can't get a Chalmers at a discount because our policy is one price to all. One trouble with buying discounts is that you never know whether your price is as low as some other buyers'.

Chalmers cars have proved that nowhere else can you get so much value—price considered—as you get in the Chalmers. Because Chalmers cars are built on a quality rather than a quantity basis. Because they are manufactured on a small margin of profit. Because they are built to give the service that a buyer wants when he gets a car. A discount will never make up for the absence of that service.

More than ever before this is the time to buy a car with a reputation—a car whose quality will endure long after price is forgotten.

The 1911 models are now on exhibition at our local show rooms. We shall be pleased to give a demonstration at your convenience. Deliveries are made according to schedule.

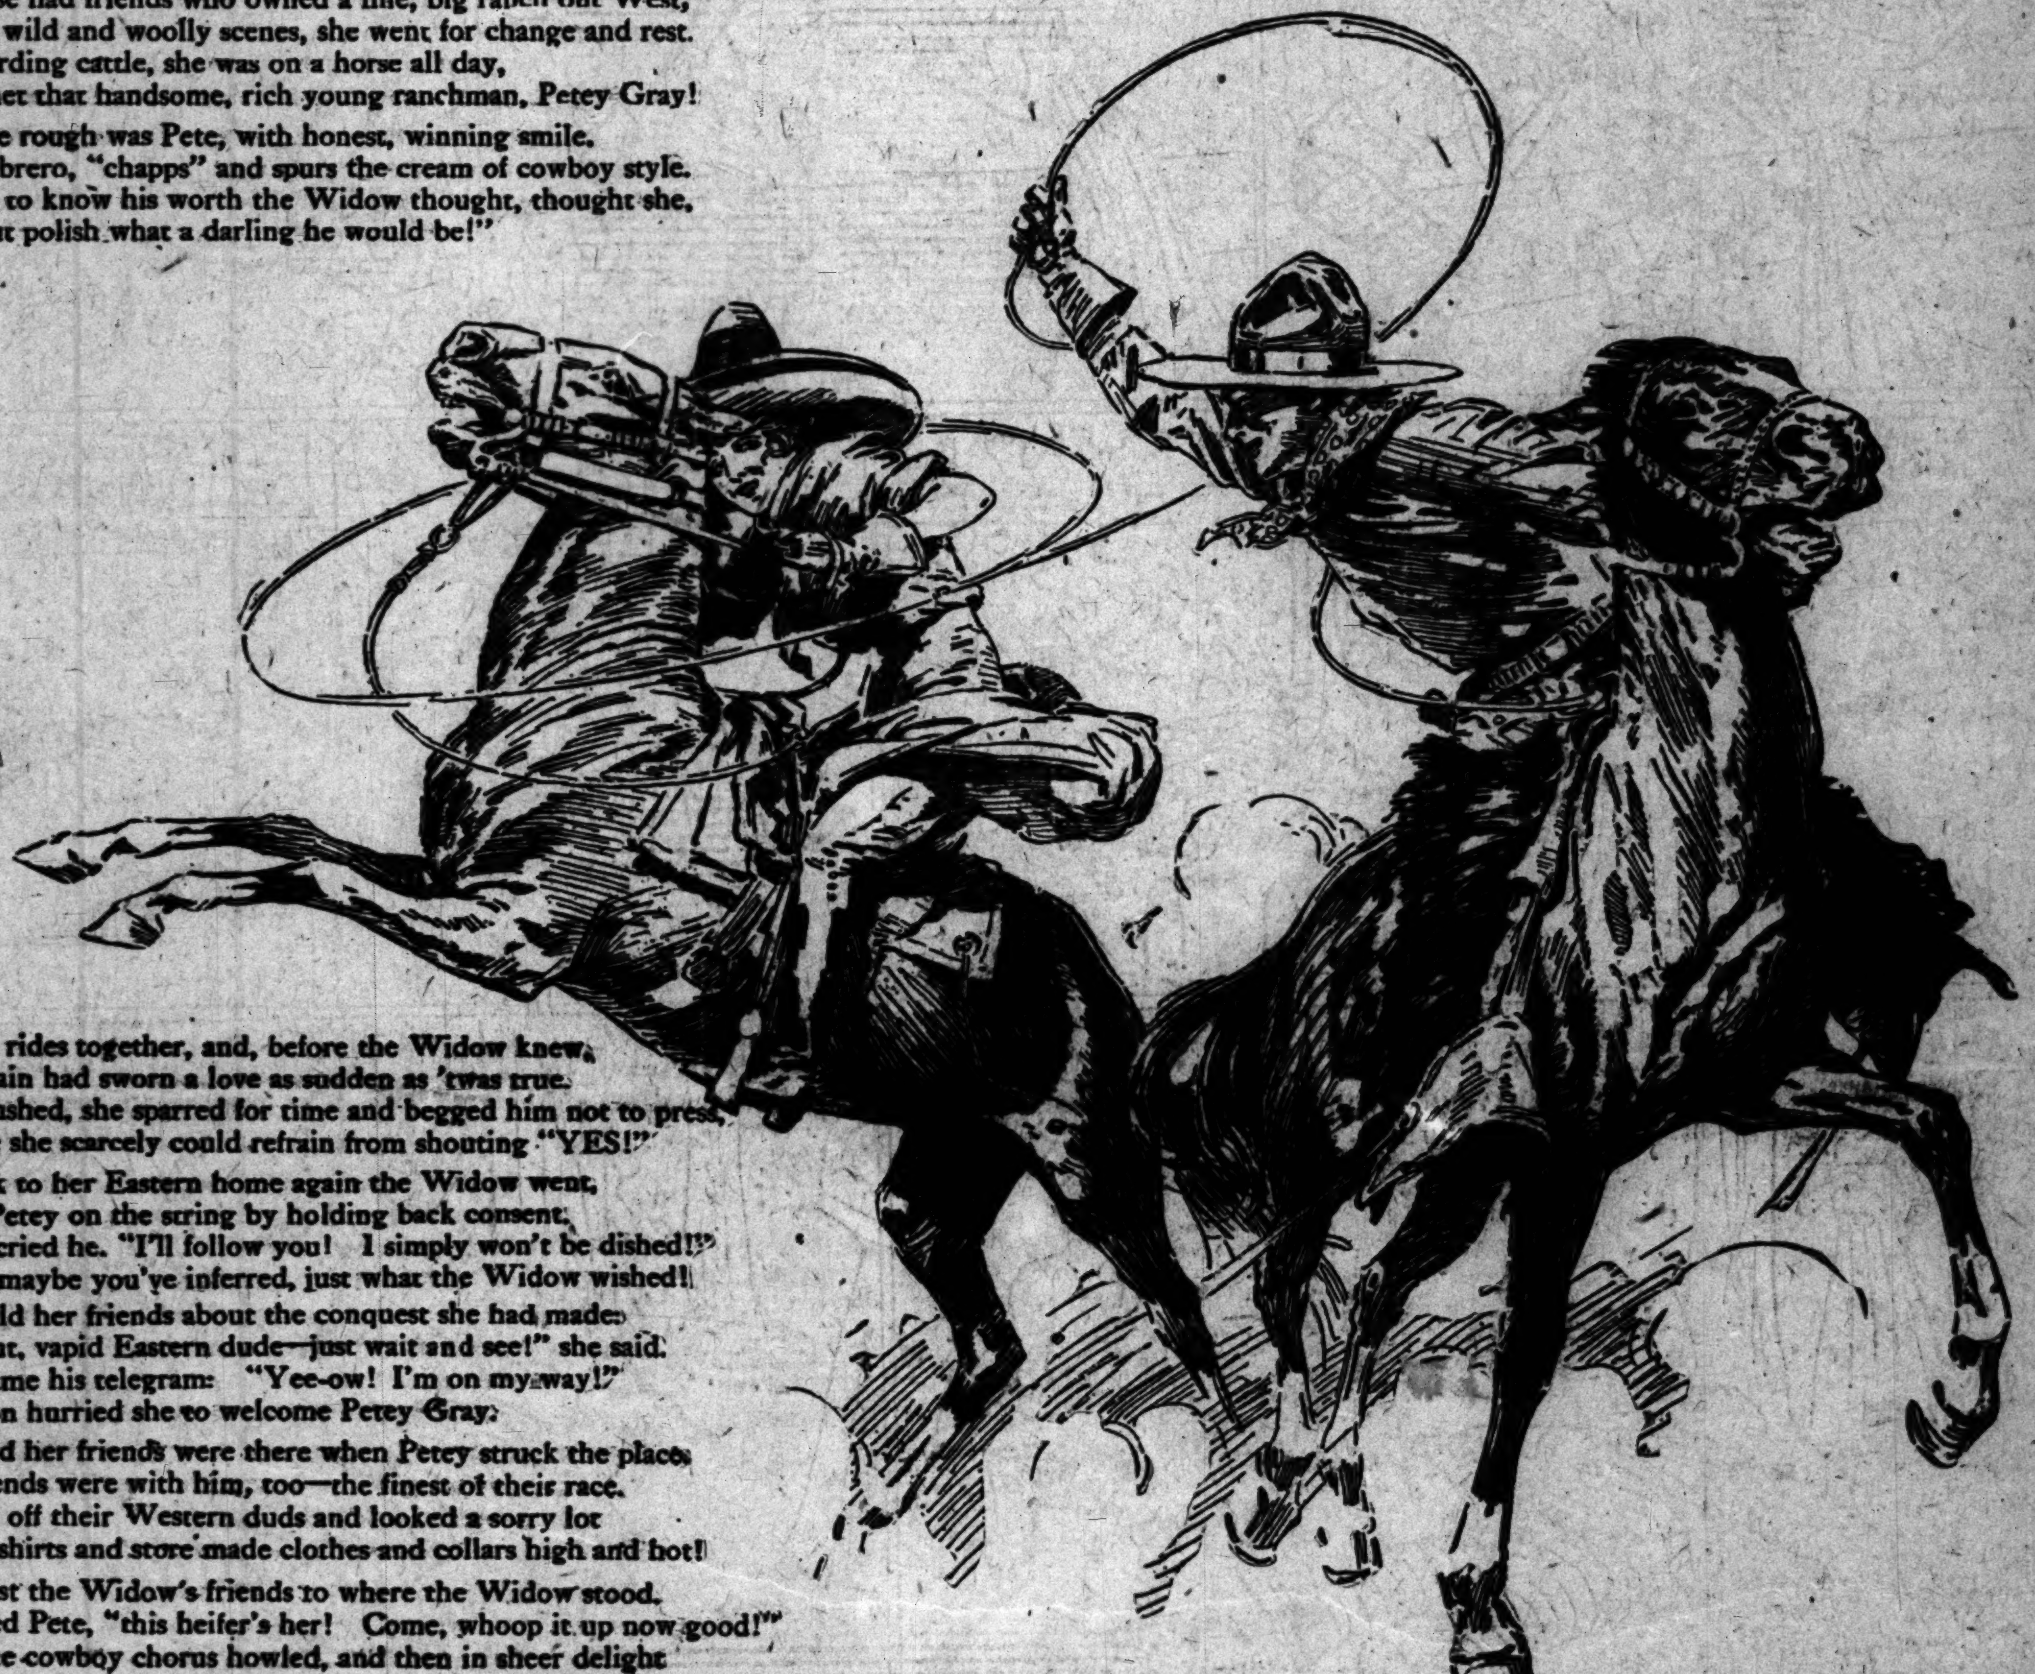
THE WIDOW WISE

Verses by Paul West • Drawings by W. H. Loomis

1.—The Widow Wise had friends who owned a fine, big ranch out West,
And there, 'mid wild and woolly scenes, she went for change and rest.
She played at herding cattle, she was on a horse all day,
And there she met that handsome, rich young ranchman, Petey Gray!

2.—A diamond in the rough was Pete, with honest, winning smile.
With broad sombrero, "chapps" and spurs the cream of cowboy style.
And as she grew to know his worth the Widow thought, thought she,
"If Petey had but polish what a darling he would be!"



3.—They took long rides together, and, before the Widow knew,
Her cowboy swain had sworn a love as sudden as 'twas true.
The Widow blushed, she sparred for time and begged him not to press,
But all the time she scarcely could refrain from shouting "YES!"

4.—Next week back to her Eastern home again the Widow went,
Still dangling Petey on the string by holding back consent.
"Whoop-ee!" cried he. "I'll follow you! I simply won't be dished!"
Which was, as maybe you've inferred, just what the Widow wished!

5.—At home she told her friends about the conquest she had made:
"No washed out, vapid Eastern dude—just wait and see!" she said.
At last there came his telegram: "Yee-ow! I'm on my way!"
So to the station hurried she to welcome Petey Gray.

6.—The Widow and her friends were there when Petey struck the place;
Six cowboy friends were with him, too—the finest of their race.
But they'd cast off their Western duds and looked a sorry lot
In hard boiled shirts and store made clothes and collars high and hot!

7.—They darted past the Widow's friends to where the Widow stood.
"Boys," shouted Pete, "this heifer's her! Come, whoop it up now good!"
"Yee-yow!" the cowboy chorus howled, and then in sheer delight
They drew their guns and banged away at everything in sight!

8.—Her friends all fled. The Widow shrieked and cried to Petey, "Go!"
"Why, what's the row?" he faltered. "Ain't ye glad to see me? No?"
She looked him over tearfully, then closed her burning eyes.
"I SHOULD HAVE LEFT YOU IN YOUR FRAME!" exclaimed the Widow Wise.

IN THE time of "roses and raptures"—though it is more likely to be chrysanthemums and raptures in October—the little bride is apt to consider clothes of secondary importance, even though she does not believe in "just brushing her hair and putting on a clean shirtwaist to be married in," as one girl expressed it. However, what woman, even at so exciting a time, could resist a trousseau of the sort shown here?

First and most important, there is the wedding dress: a white soft satin, made with a cut tunic and a draped corsage, the draping being of chiffon and the tunic edging and bodice trimming of tiny white rubber beads sewed on net. Allover Irish crochet forms the square yoke with its high collar, and there is a further subyoke of white silk net over chiffon. The oversleeves are short and bead edged, with long Irish crochet undersleeves. The veil, of brussels lace, is formed into a Marguerite de Valois cap by the half-wreath of orange blossoms.

For the festivities she is sure to be asked to grace there is for the bride a lovely evening gown of tulle over old rose satin, the tulle itself being flowered in soft shades of old rose, gray and gobelin blue. This tulle tunic, edged with bands of blue satin, is caught by a plastron above the gathered band of the underskirt. The bodice is also draped, with steel lace edging at the decollete neck; the tunic, too, is beaded with steel.

The plastron effect on the draped skirt is shown again in the lavender silk henrietta for afternoon wear. This time the embroidery on the peplum is the so-called "wood" embroidery, consisting of self-colored wooden beads and soutache braid. There is a shallow yoke of lavender silk net, with cuffs of the same ending the shirred chiffon undersleeves. The shoulder caps and the short oversleeves of henrietta are braided with soutache.

For her going-away gown the bride wants something very pretty indeed; and nothing could better suit her purpose than this ecru suit of serge de soie, with its soutache braiding and its gilt buttons. The skirt is made with a false tunic, cut obliquely across the front. The coat is semi-fitting and hip length, with Louis XV sleeves, ending in lace cuff ruffles and a middy collar. In front the coat is apparently caught at the waist by a braided plastron. The bodice is simply made, with a deep yoke of run net and a high, folded girdle of the serge de soie. The hat is of velvet in a darker brown, with a Pocahontas circlet of soft tail feathers and a puffed velvet crown above.

The white louisine silk negligee with the Chinese embroidery scattered over it is really charming. It is simply cut, depending for its beauty upon the material and the embroidery. The short sleeves are lace edged, and there is lace also at neck and waist. The skirt ends in two soft tucks, and the negligee is fastened by a bow and streamers of white satin ribbon.

Black and white shepherd's plaid, with a piping of green, forms the natty little morning frock. The rounded yoke and the elbow-length undersleeves are of allover lace. The skirt, which is caught at either side by an oblong plastron, opens down the back, the front opening effect being a false one. The dots are embroidered in green silk; the strapped buttons are of the same color. The dots are continued on the side of the lace undersleeves.

Finally, for a rainy day the bride will want a tan raglan raincoat, straight from London. This one is lined with plaid, and is equipped with various inner and outer pockets, all useful to the umbrella-holder. The coat collar is of tan velvet, but the cuffs are rubber.

Here, with the exception of hats and lingerie, is a complete trousseau of which any bride might be proud. And, of course, any one of these gowns can be utilized by the lady already married or the maiden who is not going to be married—not yet.

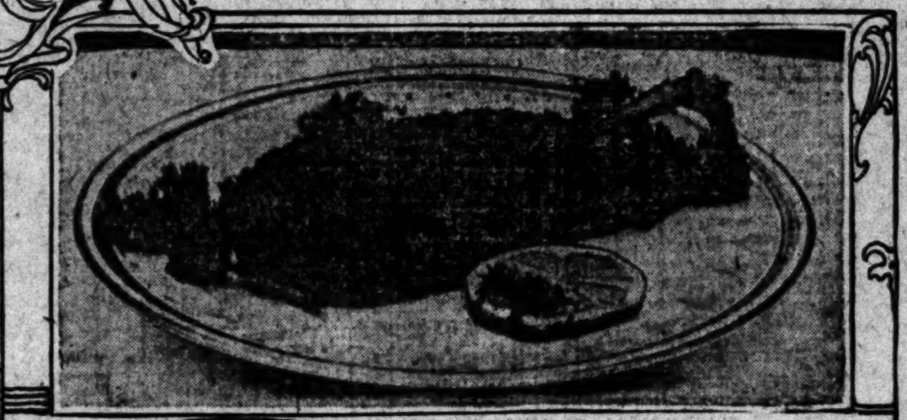
THE OCTOBER HOUSE WEDDING

Orange Frappe' in Long Stemmed Glasses

Grape Fruit Salad



A Lobster Cutlet

The Clam Cocktail

THE bride whose means are so limited that she cannot put her decorations into the hands of a professional florist has the happy knowledge that if the flowers are arranged and the wedding breakfast prepared by her friends, the touch of love is in everything. This knowledge must compensate for the thought that one cannot give decorator and caterer carte blanche, and thus roll the burden of responsibility from one's own shoulders upon those of the hirelings. But, if one could do this, one could not secure the individual touch, the dainty token here and there that shows that the work has been a labor of love.

For the October wedding the chrysanthemum is the ideal floral decoration. If one chooses the yellow-and-white variety, the color-scheme may be carried out in all the preparations. A screen of palms and other potted plants may be arranged from greens hired for the occasion. In front of the screen the bridal pair will stand. Above them from the ceiling should hang a wedding bell of white chrysanthemums, the clapper consisting of a huge yellow blossom. The wire frame for this bell can be bought, and the wires should be wound with strips of dark green muslin upon which can be stitched or pinned the white floral covering. About the room set bowls and vases of the golden and white blossoms. The aisle improvised up the center of the room will be of lengths of white and of yellow satin ribbon, intertwined. Twist the balustrades with smilax, and in this stick yellow and white chrysanthemums at intervals of six or eight inches. The ushers may each wear a single white chrysanthemum in his buttonhole, while the bridesmaids carry large bouquets of the yellow Japanese variety tied with white ribbons. Even at a chrysanthemum wedding the prettiest flowers for the bride to carry are white roses or lilies-of-the-valley—if these can be procured at this time of year.

If there are to be present only the members of the two families, or about a dozen people, it is pleasant to seat all at one table for the wedding breakfast. This table may be spread with a white damask cloth, on the center of which rests a bowl of gold and white chrysanthemums. Single blossoms may be laid here and there upon the table. It is a pretty idea to have small boxes containing pieces of the wedding cake arranged about the base of the bowl of flowers. These boxes should be white, with the initials of the bride and groom stamped on them in gilt. Each box is tied with yellow ribbon, and these ribbons are stretched to the plates of the various guests. When the breakfast is over each person pulls out the ribbon that lies at her place and thus draws out her box of wedding cake as a souvenir of the occasion. For the chrysanthemum wedding a good breakfast menu would be:

Clam Cocktails.
Cream of Lettuce Soup.
Timbales of Salmon.
Broiled Chicken; French Fried Sweet Potatoes.
Grapefruit Salad; Crackers.
Orange Frappe.
Gold and Silver Cakes.
Coffee.

The clam cocktails should be served in small glasses buried halfway to their tops in crushed ice mounted on plates. The soup will, of course, be poured into bouillon cups; the chicken may be carved outside and passed by the waitress; the salad arranged on the various plates and set in front of the guests. Serve the frappe in long-stemmed glasses. The cakes should be on the table during the entire meal and passed with the frappe. The coffee in small cups can be taken at the table or in the drawing room after the repast, as preferred.

Another pretty scheme for the October wedding is a decoration consisting entirely of autumn leaves. These can be had in great numbers and are most effective. At one home wedding the walls of the room in which the ceremony was performed were lined with branches of gorgeous foliage. Great clumps of sumac filled jars and vases. One corner of the square room was banked with hemlock boughs and scarlet branches, and formed a beautiful background for the bride in her white robes. A canopy of foliage had been built to extend above the heads of the bridal group. The flowers carried by the maid of honor—the only attendant—were deep crimson carnations. The bride's bouquet was of white carnations and white roses. The round, polished table was bare and had as a centerpiece a circular design of autumn leaves. These, with their crimsons and yellows, were very effective against the dark, shining wood. In the center of the design was a bowl containing clusters of sumac berries with an outer circle of dark green leaves. Under the various dishes on the table there were, instead of doilies, autumn leaves arranged in round mats. The bride's cake stood at one end of the table and was cut by the bride herself. The menu was:

Cantaloupe.
Bouillon.
Lobster Cutlet.
Chops; Green Peas.
Tomato Salad with Mayonnaise Dressing.
Wafers.
Maple Parfait; Cake.
Coffee.

Clam Cocktails

Choose the small clams, put them into a small chilled bowl and pour over them a sauce made of a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, 1½ tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup, a tablespoonful of vinegar, 2 teaspoonfuls of horseradish, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, a quarter teaspoonful of salt and tabasco sauce to taste. Stir well before pouring over the clams. Get very cold before putting into the glasses. This sauce should be enough for two dozen small clams.

Timbales of Salmon

Flake canned or cold-boiled salmon into tiny bits with a silver fork, removing all bones and bits of skin. Rub the yolks of four hard-boiled eggs to a paste and stir them into the minced fish. Mince the whites of the eggs as fine as possible, stir them into the salmon mixture, season with salt, white pepper and lemon juice; add a dash of cayenne pepper and beat the mixture into the well-beaten yolks of three eggs and the whites of four eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Pour into buttered "nappies" or timbale cases; set these in an outer pan of boiling water and bake for about twenty-five minutes. Turn out upon a hot platter, pour about the timbales a white sauce into which chopped parsley has been stirred and send to the table.

Lobster Cutlets

Mince cold-boiled lobster very fine; season with salt and cayenne pepper. There should be at least a pint of the lobster for eight persons. Cook together two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour, and when they are blended pour upon them a scant pint of rich milk. Stir to a smooth white sauce; take from the fire, pour the sauce, beating steadily, upon the well-whipped yolks of two eggs, then stir in the lobster mixture. When cold form into cutlets of the size and shape of a small French chop without the bone. Set in the ice chest until firm; roll in egg and cracker dust; set aside until the coating stiffens, then fry in deep fat. Stick a lobster claw where the bone would be in a French chop and serve, passing sliced lemon with the cutlets.

Grapefruit Salad

Peel the grapefruit and cut each lobe into three or four pieces. On each plate lay two leaves of crisp lettuce; place the bits of grapefruit upon this and put a great spoonful of mayonnaise over all. Have grapefruit and lettuce very cold.

Orange Frappe

Peel sweet oranges and chop the fruit very fine, removing all seeds and bits of membrane. Add sugar to taste, and to a pint of the orange juice and pulp add a half pint of cold water and the juice of two large lemons. If more sugar is needed, add it now. Turn into a freezer and grind until quite stiff, then pack down and leave to "ripen" for three or more hours before serving in glasses. Put a maraschino cherry on top of each glass of frappe.

Maple Parfait

Break maple sugar into bits, pour over it a little boiling water and melt to a thick syrup. Set aside to cool. Or, if you prefer, buy a heavy maple syrup. Beat a quart of stiff cream very thick and whip into it gradually a cup of the maple syrup. If not sweet enough add a little more of the syrup, taking care not to get the mixture too sweet. Turn into a freezer and grind until quite stiff. If you wish the parfait in a square brick or in a melon shape, pour it from the freezer into the mold, not allowing it to be exposed to the air long enough to melt the mixture. Fit a cover tightly on the mold, fasten strips of paraffine paper about the mold where the lid fits on, so that no salt water may get into the mold, pack down in the freezer, covering the mold with ice and salt, and leave for several hours before turning out upon a chilled platter.

Gold Cakes

Into a pound of powdered sugar work a cupful of butter, and when rubbed to a smooth and light cream add the yolks of five eggs, beaten very light, and a teacupful of milk. Beat in gradually three cups of flour sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add this slowly, as some flours thicken more than do others. When enough flour has been put in to make a rather stiff cake batter, thin it by adding the juice of a large orange and the peel, grated. Turn into small tins. Heart-shaped ones are pretty for this occasion. Bake to a golden brown. When cool dip each cake in a golden icing. To make this add to an ordinary boiled icing, heated in a double boiler, a teaspoonful of melted butter, a little orange juice and some orange or yellow vegetable coloring matter. Set the cakes aside to harden.

Silver Cakes

Work to a cream a half cup of butter and a cup of powdered sugar, and when smooth beat in the stiffly whipped whites of five eggs. Add two cups of flour sifted with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and, last of all, flavor with a little essence of bitter almond. Bake in heart-shaped tins. Make a boiled icing, flavor with the bitter almond essence and dip each of the cakes in this. When the yellow and white icings have hardened, arrange the little cakes in alternate layers on plates.

Wedding Cake

Rub to a soft and light cream a cup of butter and 1½ cups of powdered sugar. When light add six eggs, well beaten. Mix together a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, powdered, and ½ teaspoonful of ground cloves. Put together ¼ pound of shredded citron and ½ pound each of seeded and halved raisins and stemmed currants. Dredge all well with flour and add to the other ingredients, then stir in a pint of sifted flour and, last of all, a wineglassful of brandy. Bake in a tin with a funnel in the center. When cold cover with white icing.

FAMILY MEALS FOR A WEEK

SUNDAY

BREAKFAST

Cereal and apple sauce, chipped beef and poached eggs on toast, coffee.

LUNCHEON

DINNER

MONDAY

BREAKFAST

Iced melons, cereal drops, apple popovers, coffee.

LUNCHEON

DINNER

Cream of potato soup, croutons, [illegible] beef in cases, boiled beet greens with hard-boiled egg, bread, cakes and butter, currant jelly, vegetable salad with [illegible] cheese straws, coffee.

Recipes for the Foregoing Dishes

GERMAN KRAUT SALAD

Shred a cabbage until you have [illegible] Sprinkle liberally with salt, cover, [illegible] aside for two hours. Mix, then, with [illegible] spoonfuls of oil, 2 of vinegar and a [illegible] onion. Serve upon lettuce.

CURRIED SIRLOIN STEAK

Cut 2 pounds of sirloin steak [illegible] squares and roll each of them in [illegible]. Fry a minced onion in a tablespoonful of butter. When it is brown, put in the [illegible] cover with boiling water; season with salt and allow it to simmer for two [illegible]. When done, add a teaspoonful of curry powder and serve. Round steak is [illegible]lent for this dish.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE

Divide batter made by any trustworthy cake recipe into three parts, and [illegible] one-third stir ¼ cupful of melted chocolate before putting it into the [illegible] tins. Use this dark layer for the middle cake. Cover the top layer with white frosting.

CEREAL DROPS

Roll small balls of cereal (cooked and cold) in egg and cracker crumbs. Fry in deep fat. Serve with maple syrup.

APPLE POPOVERS

When your popovers are done, [illegible] the tops and fill the hollow [illegible] in the center with apple sauce. Replace the tops and send to table.

PINEAPPLE FLUFF

LEFT-OVERS

From the first day's breakfast save the cold cereal for the fried "drops" of the second day, apple sauce for the popovers and coffee for iced coffee.

From the first day's luncheon save the cold tomatoes and cheese for the spaghetti, the kraut salad to add to the vegetable salad, the wafers to toast for the next day's luncheon.

From dinner save the cold steak, it may be minced and served in the croustade cases, that may be made by hollowing rolls and drying the remaining [illegible]. Left-over cream potatoes will make the cream potato soup. Left-over beans and radishes, with the remnants of the kraut, will form the vegetable salad. The remaining pineapple will make the pineapple fluff.

Keep the useless halves to serve this in, first lining them with lettuce leaves.

JANE B. (La Grange, Ill.).

To do full justice to the menus and recipes above submitted, I have so [illegible] encroached upon the space usually appropriated to the "Family Meals for a Week" that I am forced to let the other five days go by unprovided for. I had a special object in letting this correspondent "have her say." I am [illegible] and then called to task for not supplying recipes for the various dishes named in the daily menus as prepared by me. The malcontents may compute from the specimen article herewith given how much room would be left for other matter were I to undertake to supply recipes for one-fifth of the articles included in the weekly menus. When practicable and expedient I refer to recipes published in that day's Exchange. When this cannot be done, readers must recollect that directions for the preparation of each dish may be found by reference to any really comprehensive cookbook such as should form part of the plenishing of every well-ordered kitchen.

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the Exchange, I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I want all my correspondents to have a showing in the Corner, and if my request in this respect is complied with, it will be possible to print many more letters.

Pickled Beets

THE request of a member for a recipe for cooking "sweet beets" has a most generous response. We have on hand already sixteen formulas for preparing the coveted delicacy. All agree in essential respects. Three-fourths of them say that the cooked vegetables should be served ice-cold. From a letter, in all points so charming that I am self-convicted of selfishness in keeping the major part of it for my own reading, I extract a recipe. The preamble runs thus:

"Bread (and cake) cast upon the waters, return after many days." Here is your own description and recipe for the famous "Lady Baltimore Cake," which you asked "some one" to return for the benefit of a correspondent. I cut it out and kept it. So, thanks to my acquisitiveness, I have the pleasure of returning it to you.

I inclose, likewise, a recipe for the "sweet beets" asked for in a later issue by a Chicago member. My father's mother, who was of German descent, always served them cold, and it may be that this is the recipe that "old lady" had who refused to tell the querist how the dish was prepared. The beet sugar sweetens them sufficiently. We call them "pickled beets."

Sweet Beets

Wash tender red beets thoroughly without peeling. Leave on an inch of stem. Put into cold water and boil hard until they are very tender. Peel, slice and set aside to cool. Strain the water in which they were boiled (very little will be left). Add to this a tablespoonful of vinegar, a pinch of salt and pepper to taste. Heat this sauce in order to blend it, and pour while it is hot upon the sliced beets. This draws the beet sugar fluid from the beets and makes a sweet sauce. Keep upon ice and serve very cold.

M. D. (Louisville, Ky.).

Another member sends in a recipe for

Baked Beets

Wash the beets and put into a pan with a little water, as if you were to cook meat. As the water cooks away, add more from the teakettle. Set the pan in a moderate oven and bake slowly for three hours, covered. When the beets are done and soft, peel, and dress to taste. Serve hot.

D. P. (Appleton, Wis.).

Two Recipes

I send a couple of recipes which are greatly liked in our family. After giving these I shall ask a question.

Egg Cutlets

Four hard-boiled eggs; 1 tablespoonful, each, of butter and of chopped parsley; 2 tablespoonfuls of flour; 1 level teaspoonful of salt; ½ cupful of milk; paprika and white pepper to taste. Melt the butter without browning and stir in the flour until you have a smooth "roux," then put in the milk and seasoning. Mix with this the hard-boiled eggs, chopped rather coarsely, and the parsley. Spread upon platters an inch deep, and leave to stiffen for some hours. Form into cutlets; dip into raw egg, then into fine crumbs; set upon ice for an hour and fry in deep fat.

Lemon Cream

Three-quarters of a cup of sugar; 4 eggs; juice of 2 big lemons and the grated rind of half a lemon.

Separate the whites from the yolks and set on ice. Beat the yolks smooth and stir in the sugar and lemon juice and grated rind. Put over the fire in a double boiler and cook to the consistency of thick cream. Half an hour should do this. Have the whites beaten to a standing froth in a bowl; pour in the "cream" as soon as it cools to lukewarmth, and beat! beat! BEAT! adding little by little until all is in. The success of the process depends upon the steady, persistent, long beating. If whipped but slightly the mixture will separate. Put into chilled glasses and set in ice until you are ready to serve.

Now for my question! How may green chili peppers be cooked so that the skin will be tender when done?

We raise them in our garden, and are fond of them in the winter, cooked with cheese. We pay 10 cents for a small can of them at the grocer's. I have tried simmering them and putting into my fireless cooker for hours, but the skins remain tough.

May small tin cans be used successfully in the home? Pint jars are too large for my family.

ELLEN B. P. (San Bernardino, Cal.).

Have you tried scalding the peppers and then throwing them into cold water to loosen the skins? Tomatoes, both green and ripe, may be skinned easily in this way. Perhaps some one else who raises chilis may tell of a better way.

Why not substitute jelly glasses with tight metal tops for the tin cans? Pouring paraffine upon the contents will exclude the air.

Hot Tamales

Can you give me a recipe for making hot tamales? And won't you, some time, give a talk for busy workers—those who are not concerned in the vexed servant question? Tell us in it of some good things that may be cooked quickly, or that will cook themselves while one is pruning trees, or chasing chickens away from the garden.

Here is my recipe for

Southern Puffs

One heaping cupful of flour, yolk of 1 egg, sweet milk for batter that is not too stiff, 2 heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, white of 1 egg, beaten stiff and folded into the batter at the last.

Be sure to put in the baking powder in the order given here.

This quantity makes twelve muffin rings full.

A READER (Los Angeles, Cal.).

Hot Tamales

Boil a fowl very tender and strip the meat from the bones while it is hot. Chop very fine. Mix with this a soft dough of Indian meal stirred up well with boiling water from the kettle and seasoned with garlic that has been scalded, then minced fine, and with cayenne pepper. You will require about a cupful of meal. Make rolls of the minced chicken when it is seasoned and encase this in the meal paste. Envelop these in the inner husks of green Indian corn from which the stalks have been trimmed, leaving the shape of the ear intact. Bind with soft cotton string, which must be clipped carefully when the tamales are served. Boil in hot water into which you have put a red pepper. Cook for twenty minutes.

This is the simplest form of the tamale. If you wish a more elaborate dish, you may add to the chicken a cupful of seeded and chopped raisins and half a cupful of minced olives. Mix this with the meal paste, with the addition of two hard-boiled eggs minced very fine.

Serve in the corn husks.

Your suggestion of the quick cookery is worthy of consideration. In the fullness of time we shall have it. Meanwhile, get all the good you can out of your fireless cooker. That will do the work while you look after farm and dairy.

Household Chemistry

Please explain to me why you always have soda in a recipe that calls for sour milk or for buttermilk, and leave it out of formulas for cake and breads where sweet milk is used.

I have noticed this without knowing "the reason why." Why isn't baking powder just as good for sour-milk biscuits, etc., as for those made with sweet?

YOUNG HOUSEWIFE WHO IS NOT YET A HOUSEMOTHER (Buffalo, N. Y.).

Yet who might have learned at school that a combination of the acid in the milk and the alkali of the soda produces effervescence which fills the cells of batter or dough with "air bubbles." These are what make breads and cakes "light." Baking powders contain both alkalies and acids. They do not act until they are wet. Then begins effervescence. Sweet milk lacks the acid that would excite the alkali. Never be afraid to ask questions when you are honestly ignorant. That is the surest way to cure that ignorance. I dare venture the assertion that hundreds of housemothers have combined soda or saleratus with sour milk all their lives, and always used one of them in molasses gingerbread without ever thinking of "the reason why."

Raised Corn Bread

One more letter anent the sweet and wholesome beet is all we have room for today.

A southern way of serving the beets warm as a vegetable is this: Dice the beets; salt and pepper to taste; stir together half a cupful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one and a half tablespoonfuls of butter. Bring to a boil and pour over the hot beets in the dish in which they are to be served. This is fine! It may be served as a hot salad. The hot vinegar must be used sparingly for the salad. If the beets are served cold, the liquid may be left in the crock for another time.

Raised Corn Bread

Soak a compressed yeast cake in a pint of warm water and add flour for a good batter, with a teaspoonful of salt. Leave it to rise all night. In the morning make a good cornmeal mush, seasoning with half a teaspoonful of salt. While it is hot, add half a cupful of light brown sugar and two-thirds of a cupful of cane molasses. Let it cool. Then stir into the mush the yeast-batter (or sponge). Knead into the mixture flour for a soft dough. You may use one-half spring wheat and one-half winter wheat. (Make the mush as stiff as can be stirred when you put in the meal.) Mold into loaves and put into pans. When light, bake an hour and a half.

N. B.—To mix and to bake this bread requires care and judgment, with the rare art of adapting old-time recipes to new-time provisions. To wit: spring wheat flour is now known as "pastry flour," and compressed yeast takes the place of the old homemade liquid yeast. I have seen my mother make raised corn bread by adding a cupful of liquid yeast at night to the mush left over from breakfast, adding sugar and molasses in the morning. At noon we had a fine loaf of corn pone. No better was ever eaten or baked.

E. C. McC. (Mount Pleasant, Ia.).

Reading the recipe brings into my mouth the rich, sweet mess of the raised corn pone of the olden time. I have not tasted one for forty years and more. I fancy that the new south knows little of the loaf thus concocted.

Smallpox Pittings

Seeing an inquiry respecting the removal of the "pits" left by chicken-pox or smallpox, I give a bit of information that may be of use. I pass it over just as it was given to me. I am always glad to help any one whom I can reach.

I know a woman who has a lovely, smooth complexion, who, when a girl, had that awful disease, smallpox. It left her face full of scars. Being very proud, she felt the disfigurement keenly. So she used common mutton tallow, scraping off shavings of it with thumbnail and filling up the "pits." She kept them filled all the time, and rubbed powder over them to conceal the scars. As a result, she has not a single pit left.

Of course, the young lady whose case is mentioned by you must exercise patience and perseverance to attain the desired result, but I believe this story to be true. My friend has certainly a perfect complexion now.

I trust this will be a benefit, if not a cure.

D. E. (Fairmount, W. Va.).

Mutton tallow was held to be a fine cosmetic in the old Virginia from which your state separated forty years ago. I wish those wise in such matters would tell us what they think of a process which kept the pores of the skin filled all the time with grease and starch. I should fancy that it would enlarge them and make the skin coarser of grain. I know that the habitual use of face powder has this effect.

The story is curious and interesting.

A Warning

"Mrs. A. M. F." (Farmington, Ia.) would learn of a remedy for goiter. Were I in her place I should not dare to tamper with iodine. The after-effects are sometimes very serious.

My husband, at 61 years of age, is badly crippled from the use of it years ago. He had erysipelas, and was advised to try iodine for it. The erysipelas was in his lower limbs. The remedy proved worse than the disease.

A. E. M. (Battle Creek, Mich.).

A timely warning! I have in hand at least a dozen "sure cures" for goiter, all of which are passed in to us with the very purest motive—namely, the desire to relieve the sufferings of a fellow-creature. Like our correspondent, I dare not tamper with powerful drugs. Nor do I conceive it to be my duty to put into communication with the goiter patient the eight persons who ask me to do this. Each is positive that he or she can help her by using what has been of great benefit to himself or herself, or to a friend or an acquaintance who had a goiter and got rid of it by the means the writer forthwith proceeds to describe. Many of these prescriptions contradict one another, perhaps because no two constitutions are precisely similar. What relieves one is harmful or useless to another.

Choke Cherry Wine

Will you kindly publish recipes for choke cherry and grape wine, and at your earliest convenience?

L. D. (Pompey's Pillar, Mont.).

The request for a recipe for choke cherry wine is referred. I never heard of it before. Here is a trustworthy formula for putting up at home

Grape Wine

Put the grapes, stems and all, into a wooden cask or a large stone jar after washing them free from dust, cobwebs, etc. Crush them to a pulp with a wooden mallet or pestle. Tie two thicknesses of cheesecloth over the mouth of the vessel and let it ferment for two weeks, or until the bubbles cease to rise. Strain then and squeeze hard. Turn the juice into a clean cask or a crock that has been scalded, rinsed and wiped clean and dry. Fit a cover over the vessel and set in the cellar for a month. Do not touch or jostle it all this time. Draw off, then carefully strain and bottle. Seal the bottles after corking tightly and lay in sand upon their sides. If you can get ground cork, it is even better for packing than sand.

Stir every morning while the grapes are fermenting.

Wax Caused Head Noises

May an outsider touch upon a subject broached recently in your Exchange?

A lady in Los Angeles, Cal., who suffered from "head noises," voices, flutterings, vibrations, etc., asked advice of you.

Years ago, I had a dear friend who was similarly afflicted. She finally consulted a physician and he told her at once what the cause of the trouble was. She was very indignant, but concluded to have her ears examined. The doctor removed a large quantity of wax which had hardened and caused the "vibrations." The noises ceased at once.

Mrs. R. N. (Brooklyn, N. Y.).

The first step in my case was to have the ears syringed to get rid of hardened wax. I fancy the experience is the same with a vast majority of my fellow-sufferers.

In the next paragraph of the foregoing letter I come upon a sentence I commend to the kindly souls who read this: "Like the poor lady who wrote to you of her love for books, I am a shut-in and feel the lack of reading-matter cruelly. I am very happy when a kind visitor leaves me a magazine, or I can see an issue of the paper containing Common Sense in the Home."

I need add nothing to the implied appeal except that the address of the interesting shut-in is in my address-book and at the service of those who would like to use it.

School for Dramatic Art

Having learned that you may be able to give me some information upon the subject, I write to ask that you will let me have the name of a good school of dramatic art in the United States.

JEAN N. (Martinsville, Ind.).

Write for full particulars to any school of this type in Chicago or New York. The address can be secured from a business directory.

For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

By ADELAIDE BYRD

A Gift Apron for a Bride

Designed by ETHEL E GATES

ARE you puzzling over a gift for the young woman who contemplates matrimony or who is already married but in the class of brides? Well, here is one that seems particularly appropriate as a handmade present. It is convincingly "personal" in its heart-shaped beauty, and, indeed, I feel no compunction in suggesting that you make one of these aprons for any friend to whom you wish to give handiwork and a little of your heart, also.

One-half of your work is before you. The pocket is on one side only, although you can give double the room if you wish by repeating it on the other side.

I advise fine handkerchief linen for the gift. It cannot be too good in quality for a gift of this kind, and as the material comes double width, there is very little required for the apron pockets and strings.

You will do well to use a soft mercerized cotton for working the flowers. Hemstitch for the stem, and even though the leaves are not suggested for this work, I think that half solid and half seed stitch—which, you know, is fine backstitching in parallel lines—is effective.

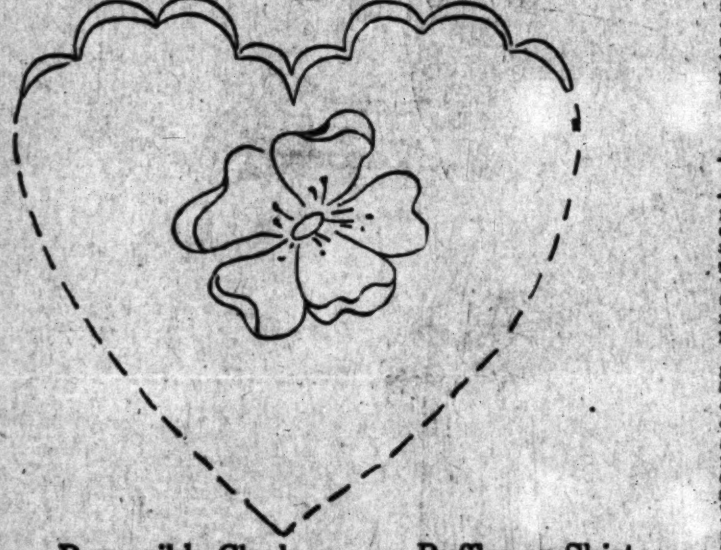
On fine linen the roses can be worked in outline on the plain petals, the turned-over edges being solid and giving a solid affect that is lovely on the linen. Work the oval centers solid, and use French knots at the end of the stamens.

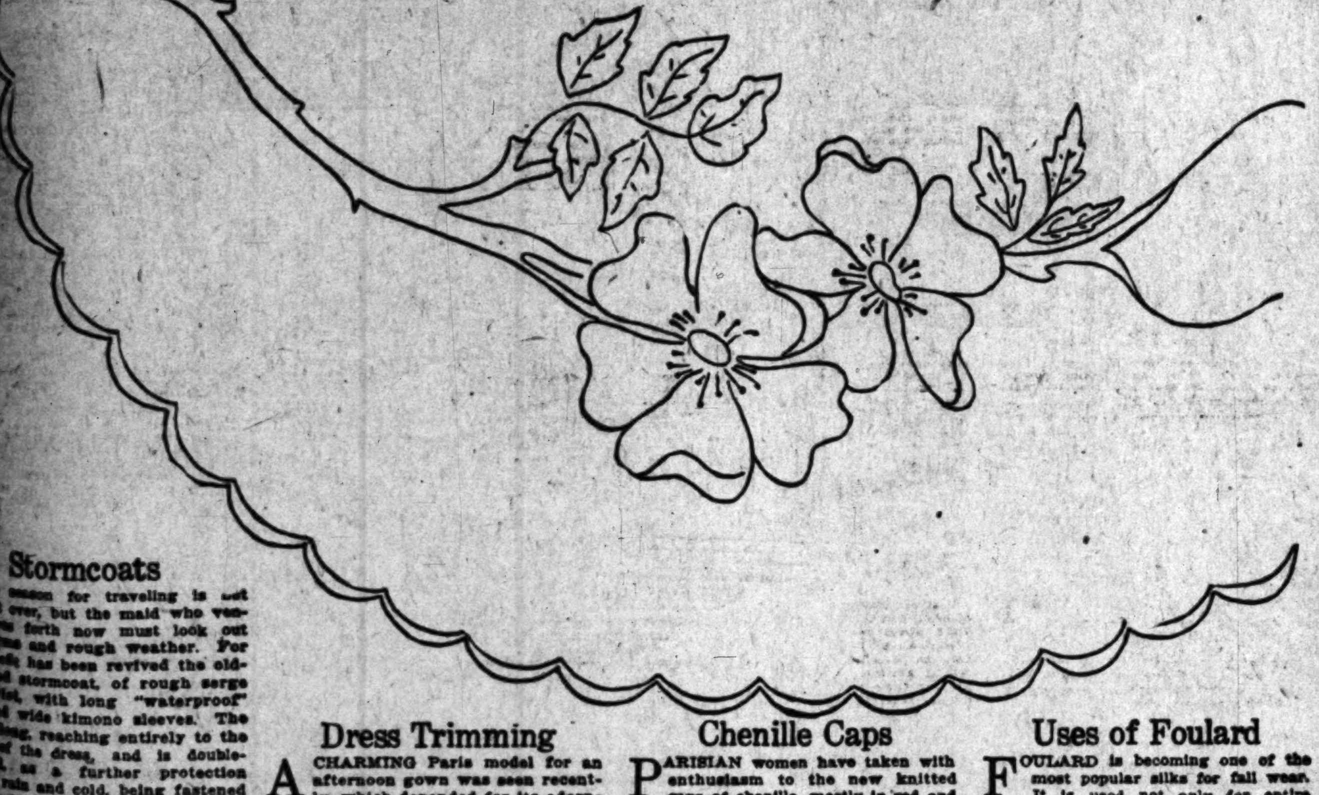
A padding of a chain-stitch before you buttonhole each scallop will give a fine, durable edge. Then you will work the pocket separately and, when finished, buttonhole on with fine stitches.

The strings can be of fine mull about three inches wide, or you might attach swiss beading through which white ribbon can be run, allowing enough at each end for ties.

Don't you think that your fortunate friend will appreciate the whole thing? For sewing, or for chafing-dish parties, or just for the pretty afternoon apron, this pattern, I think, is most attractive.

If you have the slightest doubt, try one on a friend.





One Half of Apron

For Hatpins

TO CARRY hatpins when traveling make a case the length of your longest pin and about 11½ inches wide of white or colored linen. Finish the side and one end with shallow buttonholing and bind the other end. Fold the material twice like an envelope and embroider the word "Hatpins" on the outer fold.

Inside the case have a piece of eiderdown about half an inch narrower than the linen and as much shorter as the length of the flap. Through this the pins are to be run. It can be lifted out so that the case can be washed.

The Skirt Strap

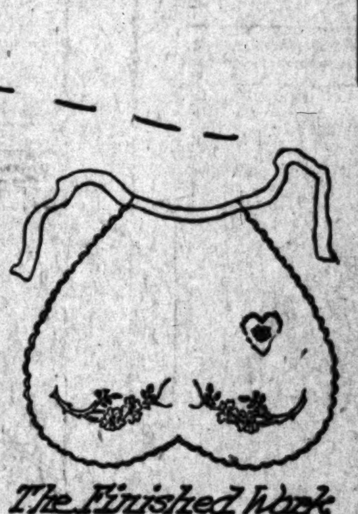
THE skirt strap, ambiguous as it sounds, is no relation to the shawl-strap! It is simply the little stitched strap of self-fabric that holds the pleats of the skirt in place. You will see it appearing on all the new models for heavy cloth skirts; for fashion has said, "Narrow!" and narrow it must be. There are usually two straps on each side of the skirt, almost meeting, and sewed on a little below the knees. Sometimes, when there is a pleated blouse (and it is a three-piece suit or a one-piece costume) the straps are repeated over the pleats or, again, on the sleeves.

Certainly they are a boon to the amateur dressmaker who finds trouble in keeping gores and pleats where they should be; they save labor afterward in cleaning and pressing, and they give a natty, tailored appearance to the smart cloth gown.

Sewing Chatelaine

THE lightest and most convenient of sewing cases is a chatelaine formed of a long, narrow ribbon matching the shade of the working dress and threaded through a chain of gilt or ivory rings. The ribbon is finished with clusters of narrower ribbon bows, from which hang scissors, thimble, pin and emery cushions, needlecase, piercer, loops of embroidery silk, etc.

It is a pretty gift from the embroiderer to the embroiderer. Think of it when Christmas rolls around, and make it then of cheerful red ribbon, with green-tinted ivory rings.



The Finished Work

Crepe for Dresses

COTTON crepe has been used for some time now for blouses. It washes so easily and requires no ironing, so that it is a joy to the economical and the cramped for time and space. Now it is being utilized for whole garments, too—petticoats, nightgowns, corset covers and one-piece frocks. In these last it really shows up very well, looking always fresh and wearable, and keeping clean a long while. It is seen not only in morning, but also in afternoon and semidress gowns and in all colors, though principally in white.

A cotton crepe kimono or nightgown can almost be rolled up to put in a pillbox, and with its advent the problem is solved of spending a week-end with only a small handbag. It cannot be mussed, and the coarse cotton lace with which it is usually trimmed is also impervious to hard treatment, and is, besides, very pretty and effective.

Laundering Frills

BEFORE putting in the laundry the one-side pleated frills and frilled collars which are so pretty and popular and yet so hard to "do up," run a row of basting stitches about an inch from the outer edge. That will hold the pleats in position while washing and will save time and trouble later in ironing. This is especially true if you are not the proud possessor of a patent pleating iron.

These frills, by the way, should, when possible, be made separate from the blouse and buttoned, hooked or pinned on, so that they do not have to go so often to the tub. They really do not get dirty so quickly as the more exposed parts of the blouse, and they are a great nuisance usually to wash and iron, even with the precaution mentioned. If you buy a ready-made blouse with frills stitched on, it is an easy matter to rip them off and supply buttons and buttonholes.

THE LINEN CHEST

IT IS a pretty German custom, the linen chest which a girl prepares for many years, perhaps, and which she takes with her into her own home when she is married. Nowadays so many of us live in flats and apartments that the mammoth proportions of the German chest are no longer necessary or desirable; but the idea itself is worth perpetuating. A word, then, to the American girl from her German sister on how to build up and what to put in the properly arranged linen chest.

First, there is household linen, of course; and it is understood that every article except the most humble will be embroidered. Not too elaborately, however: simply worked initials and perhaps a plainly embroidered border or edging are all that is required or that is really in good taste. Besides, the chest becomes a burden if too much time and work are put upon it. Moreover, the articles must be accumulated slowly—that is half the fun, and has the advantage likewise of keeping the chest from being too expensive a luxury.

Household linen, then, must be considered. This will include sheets, pillowcases, napkins, towels and either tablecloths or tray cloths, if you prefer a polished table. Follow the more ornamental articles: doilies, centerpieces, sideboard and bureau scarfs, various trifles for the bedroom and the worktable. Do not supply too many of these; your friends will usually see to it that you have a substantial linen shower if you turn their minds away from pots and kettles and toward towels and table napkins. Finally come the lowly and poor—really not linen at all, but admitted by courtesy—dishtowels, housecloths, aprons, dustcaps, etc.

I have not included the personal linen; but that makes a pretty addition, especially when you are going to a home so small that it is silly to get much household linen. There are all sorts of bits of lingerie, of course, that will come under this head; and here much more elaborate work is permitted. The finer the better, indeed; but still everything must be dainty rather than showy. Nightgowns, combination garments, petticoats, corset covers, chemises, all are included here.

In the long engagements common in America the linen chest will be finished in plenty of time if it is begun with the commencement of the betrothal. In Germany it is begun when the worker is still a little girl; but, then, in Germany every one expects to get married! Still, what if you are not married? You will probably have a home of your own some day, anyway, even if it be only a bachelor girl apartment, and you will want it prettily and neatly decked out.

Besides, this is a goal and an incentive to the assiduous embroiderer who loves fancy work and yet gets tired of having no end for its making but the waiting hands of others. Do some work for yourself in the long summer afternoons and the longer summer evenings and watch your linen chest grow.

The chest itself, by the way, is, conventionally speaking, a heavy thing of old carved oak, handed down from your great ancestor, Baron von Something-or-other. As a matter of fact, nowadays it is usually a cedar chest, and perhaps the prettiest part of the whole thing is the padding and lining you must give it. Pad with cotton batting and line with heavy silk in your favorite shade. Do not attempt to use any perfume or sachet, but leave intact the sweet fragrance of the cedar. Later you may use the chest for a shirtwaist box or it may still hold your linen.

Knit-In Beads

BE CAREFUL to use a needle fine enough to go through even the smallest of the various kinds of beads to be employed. Prepare a length of fine thread and pass both ends of the thread through the eye of the needle, thus forming a loop, through which hang the end of the wool selected for knitting.

Begin threading the beads according to the pattern. When they are all worked in, cast off on the first row after the last bead row. The number of beads in a row is often found to be one less than the number of stitches, the odd stitch being slipped without a bead at the beginning of the row for firmness and regularity.

To secure the beads, slip the first stitch; knit the rest plain, passing one bead up close to the needle at every stitch before the silk or wool is raised; second, slip one, knit without beads.

Embroidering on Lace

WE HAVE grown quite used to seeing allover embroidery worked over in part of the pattern in colored embroidery, but lace treated in the same way is somewhat new. Such laces as imitation cluny and Irish gain immeasurably in effectiveness and apparent value when a part of the motifs is worked over in loose silk stitches in some decided but rather dark color, to harmonize with the costume. Separate low lace collars lose all possibility of cheapness when adorned in this way. Simply three or four rows of motifs, perhaps each in one of the colors of peasant embroidery, dark red, green, blue and brown, on coffee or cream colored lace, make an improvement which is really wonderful. A few long-and-short stitches on wheels or diamonds or some other motif are all that is needed.

Sash for Slender Figure

THE slender woman, who cannot wear the too-narrow girdle, should try the sash with the "pump" or obi bow, worn in front, its folds arranged in perfectly flat loops and the whole of stiff, wide ribbon. The effect is most becoming and very easy to wear, besides being extremely fashionable.

Sofa Pillows

WHEN making up a pillow which you have embroidered, introduce a thick sheet of cotton wadding under the cover. Both the appearance and the "feel" of the cushion are improved by this treatment. The same thing applies, of course, to heavy pillows of all sorts, embroidered or otherwise.

Reversible Cloak

A USEFUL and attractive garment that can be made at home by any woman used to simple tailoring, is the reversible cloak, made semifitting, with kimono sleeves, and usually of broadcloth lined with soft satin. The broadcloth side is of some dark color or black, with plain light, or white revers of satin; and it is used for afternoon wear. The satin side is in some light evening shade, with satin revers in a slightly darker color, and makes a charming wrap for the theater, etc. It is not nearly so hard to make as it sounds, and is extremely economical, being really two garments in one.

Ruffles on Skirts

THE prevalence of the tunic and the overskirt has given rise to a modification of these in the shape of circular ruffles, extending from waist to ankles. This is quite in the old style of several years back, but somehow combines fluffiness with simplicity, and maintains the tight and narrow skirt announced for this fall and winter. Usually five ruffles are used on a skirt; sometimes these are plain, again they are edged or veiled with chiffon or tulle. This style is becoming to every one but the short, stout woman, who should beware of it.

A Bedroom Set in Mull and Ribbon

The Laundry Bag with its Deep Flounce

THE dainty bedroom set pictured here was made by a girl as a wedding gift and was so appreciated by the little bride that her friend has consented to tell other needleworkers about it.

There were a bureau scarf, a laundry bag and a big and little pincushion, all of figured mull combined with thread lace insertion and white ribbon, and they were just as dainty and cool looking as they could be, besides being easily washable and neither difficult nor expensive to make.

The laundry bag came first—quite a capacious one, with a deep flounce, extending three-quarters way down the bag, of mull with lace insertion and a quilled edging of ribbon. There was a drawing-string of ribbon, fastened at each side by a rosette of tiny ribbon bows, and inside, at the bottom, there was a deep muslin pocket for the holding of collars, handkerchiefs, etc., for the finer laundry to which she knew her friend sent the more delicate things.

Then came the bureau scarf, an oblong center of mull over yellow silk (the bride's favorite color), with an edging of insertion and ribbon and a straight mull ruffle edged in the same way. This was made to fit the bride's bureau, measurements having been taken first. Had there been an old-fashioned dressing table, she had intended to make tiny square scarfs in the same way for the candlestick brackets.

The large pincushion, which the bride was to use for colored-headed dress pins and collar pins, was square and flat, with a border and a square ruffle about two inches from the edge of the lace insertion and ribbon quilling.

The tiny diamond-shaped pincushion for invisible pins was more elaborate. It was of mull over yellow silk, with a wide border of the lace and ribbon, and a coquettish double bow of the ribbon at each corner. It was to rest on the bureau scarf and so was made to match it.

There might have been other pieces, too, and perhaps there will be when the bride's friend can spare time for their making. Pillow shams and bedspreads would make a gift in themselves, and there are handkerchief cases and whiskholders and glove boxes (consisting of cardboard boxes, covered over).

It is even possible to pad and cover shirtwaist boxes, or to make, with padding again, the convenient dress and coat hangers. Then there is the shirtwaist case, for fine blouses, of a doubled oblong of mull lined with silk and then with muslin and tied with ribbon. Enough things for many Christmases and birthdays!

Large Pincushion in Double Square — Smaller Pincushion With Ribbon Bows

Stormcoats

THE season for traveling is not yet over, but the maid who ventures forth now must look out for storms and rough weather. For her benefit has been revived the old-fashioned stormcoat, of rough serge or cheviot, with long "waterproof" cape and wide kimono sleeves. The coat is long, reaching entirely to the bottom of the dress, and is double-breasted, as a further protection against rain and cold, being fastened by a double row of big buttons. It has the advantage of being perfectly adaptable to home make, since it is simple in cut and plain in appearance. As an idea of the amount of material required, it may be said that 36 bust measure, an average size, requires about [illegible] yards of 54-inch material.

To Keep Needles

A SODA mint bottle, with a little screw top, makes an excellent holder for needles, to keep in the workbag. It is especially good for damp climates, as the needles will not rust. It can be made a thing of beauty by covering it with a bit of the material of which the bag is made, preferably silk, as this will work up easily; and a workbag given for a present is doubly acceptable if some such little thing as this is added to give a distinctive touch.

Dress Trimming

A CHARMING Paris model for an afternoon gown was seen recently, which depended for its adornment entirely upon a sort of fagoting of self-material. The gown was a light fawn-colored challis, and on tunic, underskirt and girdle and down the front of the blouse the material was slashed and reconnected by crossed intersections of the challis, rolled tight into tubular pieces and sewed to straight bands so as to give the appearance of fagoting or of catstitch.

The same effect has been seen in silk, and it is very pretty on a rather thick material, though not suited to fabrics very thin or delicate in appearance.

For Blunted Scissors

WHEN your scissors become blunted and require sharpening, take an ordinary knife, upon which place the scissors as if in the act of cutting. By drawing the steel along the blades in this manner several times, you will bring your scissors again into good condition.

Chenille Caps

PARISIAN women have taken with enthusiasm to the new knitted caps of chenille, mostly in red and other bright colors, very flat, and untrimmed. These are warm, light and pretty, and will be much worn this winter for skating, etc., and as traveling caps. The idea originated with a little girl who sold dolls' caps of this sort at the Paris races.

Wool Embroidery

WOOL embroidery is the latest trimming for afternoon gowns. Some of the combinations seen are blue wool on white gazon de soie, gray wool on gray tulle over satin of the same shade, and mauve wool on blue linen soie.

The wool used is the same kind that is employed for knitting or crocheting. On heavier materials it is used in various bright colors in an oriental effect, and is very striking.

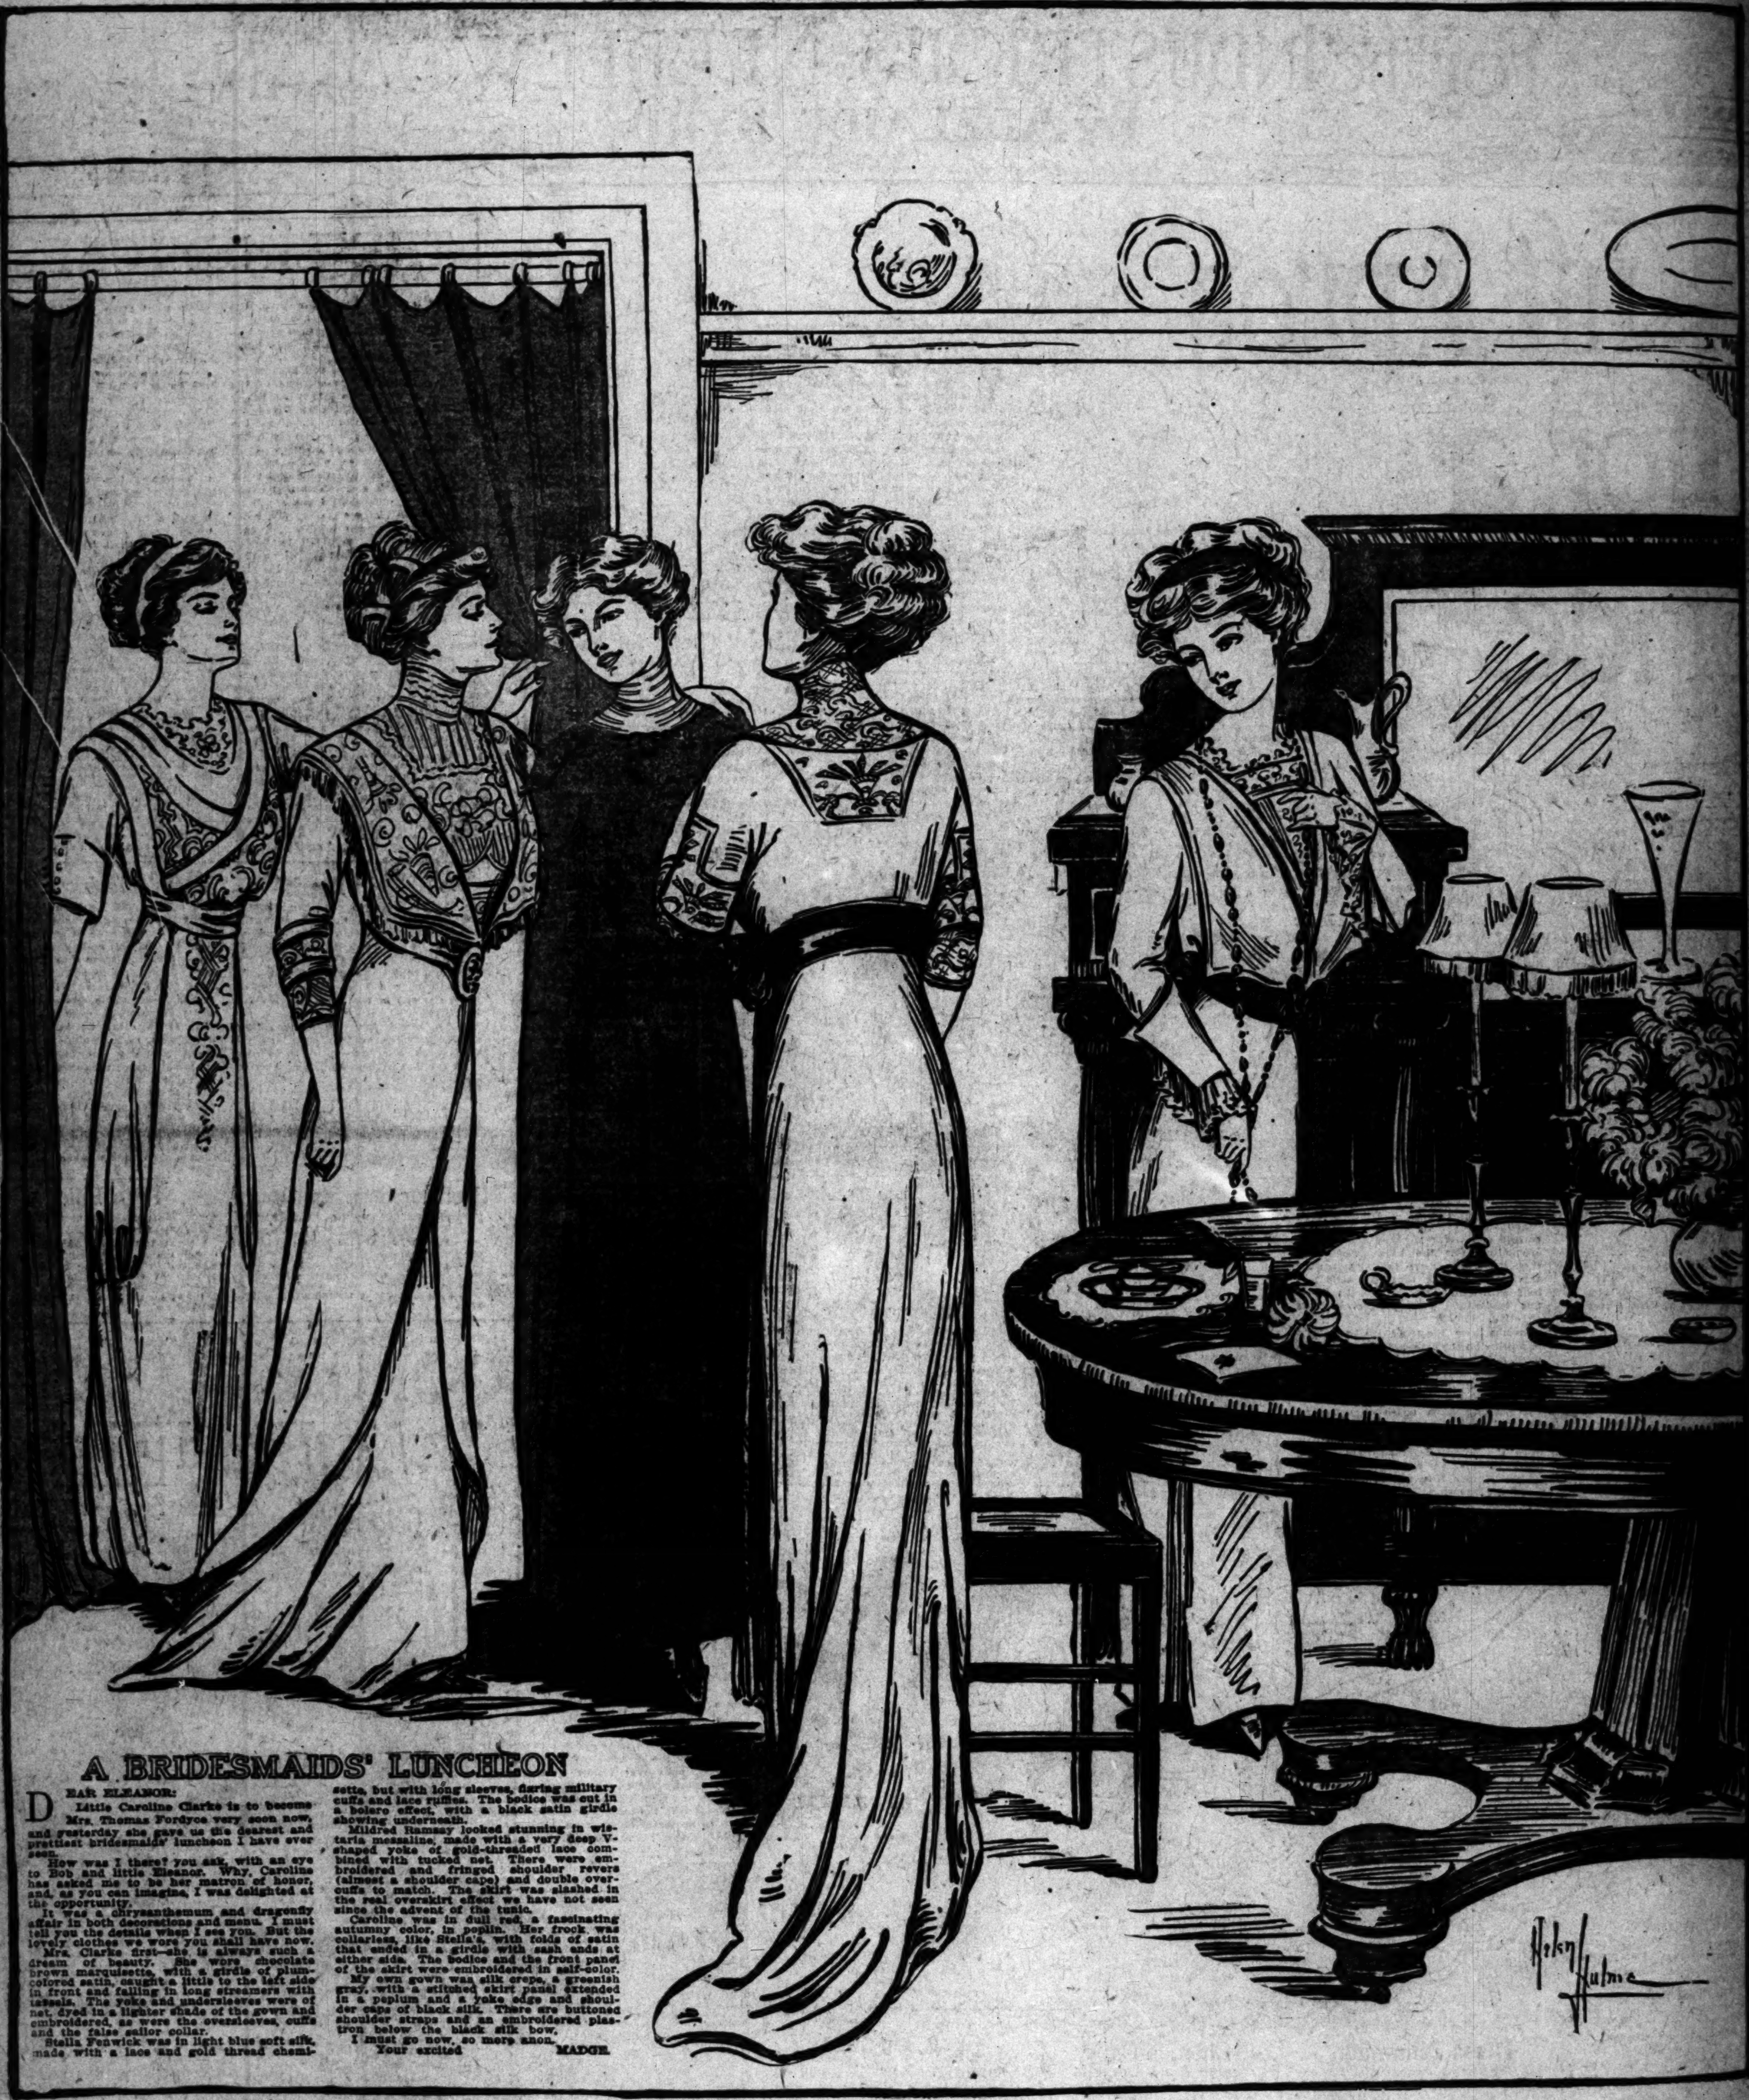
Uses of Foulard

FOULARD is becoming one of the most popular silks for fall wear. It is used not only for entire dresses and for trimmings, but also for lining loose coats, being especially favored with those of shantung and like materials. It is an excellent material to choose for a frock for week-end visits, as it packs well, and is easily shaken, after unfolding, into smoothness and freshness.

Plain foulard is supplemented for these purposes with the dotted and striped weaves and those printed in tiny flowers or in oriental designs. Altogether it is a wise choice for the woman who must be economical in dress.

Tea Gowns

A LOVELY little tea gown which contains an idea for the woman with a similar garment to make over is of pale turquoise satin, draped in empire style, and veiled with gray crepe de chine, hemmed with a finger's width of gray squirrel fur. The veiling is held in place over the underbody by a fleur-de-lis of seed pearls at the waist.



A BRIDESMAIDS' LUNCHEON

DEAR ELEANOR:

Little Caroline Clarke is to become Mrs. Thomas Fordyce very soon now, and yesterday she gave us the dearest and prettiest bridesmaids' luncheon I have ever seen.

How was I there? you ask, with an eye to Bob and little Eleanor. Why, Caroline has asked me to be her matron of honor, and, as you can imagine, I was delighted at the opportunity.

It was a chrysanthemum and dragonfly affair in both decorations and menu. I must tell you the details when I see you. But the lovely clothes we wore you shall have now.

Mrs. Clarke first—she is always such a dream of beauty. She wore chocolate brown marquisette, with a girdle of plum-colored satin, caught a little to the left side in front and falling in long streamers with tassels. The yoke and undersleeves were of net, dyed in a lighter shade of the gown and embroidered, as were the oversleeves, cuffs and the false sailor collar.

Stella Fenwick was in light blue soft silk, made with a lace and gold thread chemisette, but with long sleeves, flaring military cuffs and lace ruffles. The bodice was cut in a bolero effect, with a black satin girdle showing underneath.

Mildred Ramsay looked stunning in wistaria messaline, made with a very deep V-shaped yoke of gold-threaded lace combined with tucked net. There were embroidered and fringed shoulder revers (almost a shoulder cape) and double overcuffs to match. The skirt was slashed in the real overskirt effect we have not seen since the advent of the tunic.

Caroline was in dull red, a fascinating autumny color, in poplin. Her frock was collarless, like Stella's, with folds of satin that ended in a girdle with sash ends at either side. The bodice and the front panel of the skirt were embroidered in self-color.

My own gown was silk crepe, a greenish gray, with a stitched skirt panel extended in a peplum and a yoke edge and shoulder caps of black silk. There are buttoned shoulder straps and an embroidered plastron below the black silk bow.

I must go now, so more anon.

FAITH AND REASON.

a magazine of recent date there were almost in parallel columns two views diametrically opposite. One quoted the notable English H. G. Wells, and Father Hugh Benson to that we are on the eve of a great revival in and that it will take the form of absolute of the human mind to authority to be infallible in the tenets of religious belief. based on a book from the pen of Philip "The Churches and Modern Thought," in which contends that rationalism is growing and faith suffering a parallel decay.

cannot be quite correct at one and the Which is right? Probably neither. It is to recognize that there are two trends on side by side, one carrying many to ground in faith, the other carrying many state of mind in their doubts as to religion. It may appear to some at first sight as doubt" were a paradox, but this need There are many minds in a state of fluxion "unstable as water," a state which shifts toward faith or toward a more deter- that there is nothing spiritual in the that if there is the human mind is incapable ground of certainty so long as we are world where all our apparent sensa- the material. Prof. Goldwin Smith's this condition of fluxion to the moment in That of Prof. Darwin a long time arrived at the conclusion that no concep- spiritual is possible to us here, but that we until we reach the beyond to gain any hold things. There are multitudes of men, more to weigh such matters, who lean to one or the other of these conclusions, or lack of ability to conclude.

At this tme we shall confine our reflections to the view of Mr. Wells and of Father Benson. Robert Hugh Benson is the son of a former Anglican Archbishop of Canterbury who has found a way for "submission" to the other church whose head is the Pope, the Bishop of Rome. The Benson family is somewhat notable. Not only the father held the high place in the hierarchy of te communion to wich he belonged, but te son is a distinguished leader in the communion he has seen fit to join. Two brothers are as noted, A. C. Benson as an essayist of much grasp of many subjects wide in scope, and E. F. Benson has won an enviable place among modern novelists.

At the outset we may reasonably assume that Father Benson takes the view he is credited with in part at least, because it exactly fits his own case, and because he no doubt quite naturally is cast into the society of other "Anglicans" who have "submitted" to the more positive authority of the Latin branch of the church. But outside of this there is no doubt that there is a strong trend in the religious world away from the futile attempt of treating religions as a problem in mental science, to make theology square with syllogistic reasoning, and to appeal to the "Bible and the Bible alone" for authority in matters of faith. When the last word is said the "higher criticism" has shattered the old notion that the Scriptures are "verbally nspired" or inspired in any way so as to eliminate the human element with all the incompleteness of comprehension inherent in the human mind from the Book. Indeed, to the thoughtful scholar of this day as many obstacles stand in the way of submitting the mind absolutely to an infallible book as to an infallible person. The Latin church has as greatly modified the concetion in the mind of the common eople as to the infallibility of its head as the Protestant bodies have as to the infallible authority of the Scriptures. We are speaking of the notions held in these matters not by scholars, but by the average plain citizen. It is to the office of the Chief Pontif, and to the teachings of the church as a whole going back to the beginning, that the Latin church appeals when we get to the end, and it is to the scriptures as interpreted by the churches in the past as well as in the present that Protestants appeal in support of the tenets of their faith.

That in the religious world there has been a reconstruction of views of late is not to be denied. The Anglican communion has gone back a long way from the teachings of Cranmer and still farther from those who came later, and each step has brought that church nearer to the views disavowed by those who carried forward the great reformation in religions which resulted in the formation of so many sects. For some three-quarters of a century Anglicans have been getting farther away from the "XXXIX Articles," back to the views of the church prior to the Reformation. Many of the most notable leaders, teachers, thinkers, theologians of the Latin church have come from the Anglican who has "submitted." Cardinal Manning and Dr. Newman went over long ago, and Dr. Vaughn and many other noted priests have followed.

Those who can distinguish clearly between theology and religion are not at a loss to understand this. The former is an intellectual system of dogma, dealing with things far beyond the reach of human reason. These dogmas must be personal inspiration for each one, or on some authority. The human mind gropes after "truth" and will not be satisfied until rest is found in the conviction that absolute truth has been reached. Therefore some basis in unquestionable authority is sought by the mind that seeks to guide itself by religious faith.

The Founder of the Christian system saw this as clearly as any since His time has done. He tells His followers that they must become as childrtn to gain access to the society He was forming. As the little child accepts the word of the parents for what it hears, and without questioning acts upon that word, so the true Christian distrusts the testimony of all his senses and accepts the authority that in some way comes from on high. As well might the iguorant easant before science had charted the winds of heaven try to understand by syllogistic reasoning whence the wind comes and whither it blows as to find out the working of the religious sirit in the soul of man.

The Latin church is not the only one which has a Pope. Nearly all Christian bodies have a teacher whose word is more or less of law to all of that body. It may be a noted preacher of the time, or a noted writer of the past. The Anglican apeals to the "fathers" either of the early centuries or those of the Reformation. The Lutherans go still to the great German monk to support the tenets of their faith. It seems as if the human mind must seek for authority from which there will be no appeal. Even students in science have this weakness. The progress of learning was kept back for centuries because scholars appealed to Aristotle instead of as students going to nature, where he got all the knowledge he had. The claims of authority are much stronger in religious matters than in natural. The student has nature to interrogate; the disciple must rely on the master or walk in darkness.

Loow at the matter from whatever angle you may, it will appear that in matters of religious belief the mind must seek for authority and cannot rest until some basis is found which cannot be reason. So long as men live by creeds, authority must witness to the truth of the dogmas. Father Benson followed Manning, Newman and Vaughn to the church whose dogmas do not rest on syllogistic reasoning. Probably the elder Benson came to the Anglican church from some body whose basis of faith wes the infallible Book. So the trend has been, so it will be.

The Autumn of Life

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

For length of days, and long life, and peace.—Book of Prov. III.2.

Some lives are like the autumn leaves
That flutter softly to and fro
In every breeze that faintly grieves—
The leaves gleam richest as they go.
In one swift burst of regal hues
They blaze with crimson and with gold
And none of their perfection lose
When, withering, they drop their hold.

The leaves, at last, when all is done,
Show us anew the days of June—
The golden glory of the sun
And softened luster of the moon,
The red that riots in the dawn
Is mingled with the restful brown
That tints the leaves ere they have gone,
While they are slowly swaying down.

Some lives are like the autumn leaves:
The rose-hued memory of youth
In all their acts a pattern weaves
With the most precious gold of truth;
And they grow fair, and fairer still—
Like autumn leaves their beauty glows
With newer charm and grace, until
These lives are perfect at the close.

CABOOSE WITH A RECORD.

"The caboose with the 'farthest north' record," said H. H. Spaulding of Pittsburgh, "is now resting in dignified retirement at Shohola, Pa. It is one of the snow places of that community.

"When Peary was preparing his expedition of about twelve years ago he obtained from the Erie Railroad one of those dumpy little cabooses that manage to shelter in some marvelous manner a crew of five or six men. This was put on board the Windward, his vessel, as a temporary deckhouse. The people of Shohola know more about this expedition than they do about the one on which Peary found the pole. They will tell you that the dismantled car was used as a shelter by Peary and his companions during the winter night which they spent at Etah. So the car evidently holds the record for a journey to the northern latitudes."—[Washington Post.

THE AWAKENING.

I dreamed of her I once loved best,
Who once my being had possessed.
Whose hand I'd passionately pressed.
Once more I sought her out with zest.
"She'll joy to welcome me," I guessed.
And then, ah me!
That it should be,
With bitter pain
I guessed again.
I found a bird in last year's nest,
With plumage rare
Of yellow hair,
With her sweet golden head at rest
Upon the vest
He wore on his protruding chest!

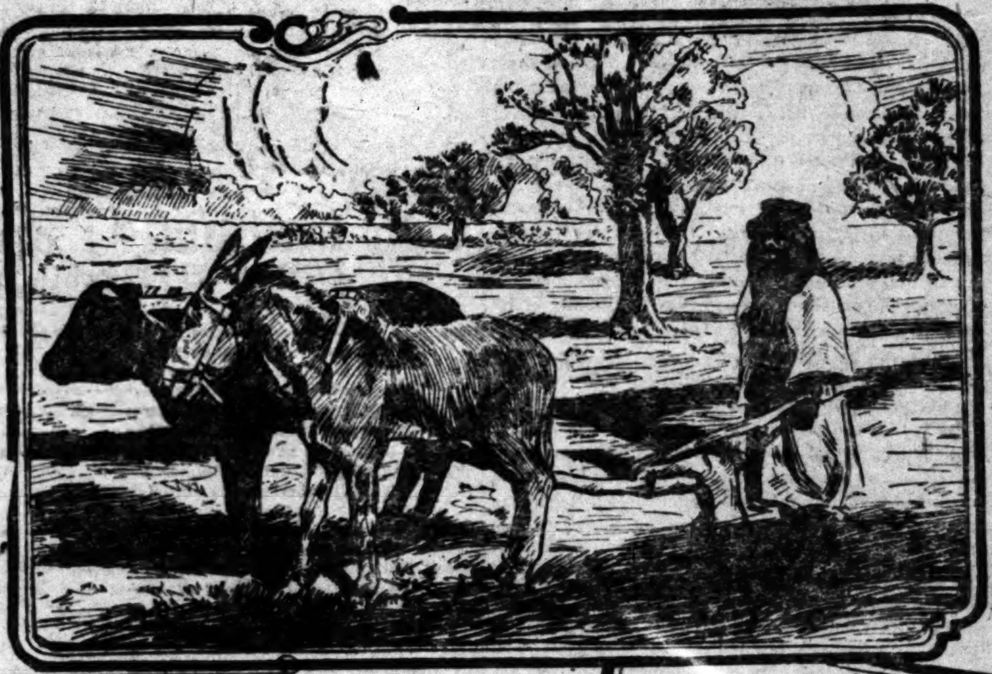
WONDERFUL EXCAVATIONS.

THE PALESTINE EXPLORATION FUND AND ITS WORK.

From Our Own Correspondent,

JERUSALEM,—Take a seat with me this bright Sunday morning in the railroad car which is just about leaving the seaport of Jaffa to go to Jerusalem. The distance by rail is fifty-four miles, and we shall make it in less than four hours. The road crosses the rich plains of Sharon, and then winds its way up the hills of Judea until it leaves us at the Holy City, about 2500 feet higher than where we now are.

The cars are comfortable, but we have had to fight with the tourists and pilgrims for our seats near the windows. A German and a Greek on the opposite side of the car are still quarreling for places, and their language is not that of brotherly love. The German has just called the Greek a swine, and the Greek has retaliated by saying that the German is of the canine persuasion. Now they are quiet, and we can enjoy the scenery as we go onward.



Native plowing with bullock and donkey

On the Plains of Sharon.

Leaving Jaffa, we ride for some miles by nothing but orchards. There are orange groves loaded with blossoms and fruit. There are orchards of olives, pomegranates and figs, and many gardens surrounded by cactus hedges twice as high as our heads. Leaving the orchards, we enter the rich plains upon which the Philistines lived. The soil is brown and so fat that you have only to tickle it with the plow and it laughs with the harvest.

Here is a green field of wheat. The stalks stand as thick as grass in the ground, and rise and fall with the winds from the sea. There a native is plowing with a bullock and donkey harnessed together. The low is the rude, old-fashioned one of the scriptures, and the dark-skinned farmer steadies it with one hand, while he carries a goad in the other. Farther on are camels dragging the plows. In places we see flocks of fat sheep, herded by boys, and now and then pass a village of white-walled houses with thick roofs of thatch on which the grass grows. Nearly every house has a roof of sod about a foot deep, and as we near the hills the towns on their sides rise up in green terraces.

The landscape here is far different from that of the United States. There are no houses nor barns standing alone in the fields. There are no outbuildings of any description, and no haystacks or strawstacks. The people live in villages and go out to work in the fields. The only fences are hedges of cactus, and the most of the holdings are not fenced at all.

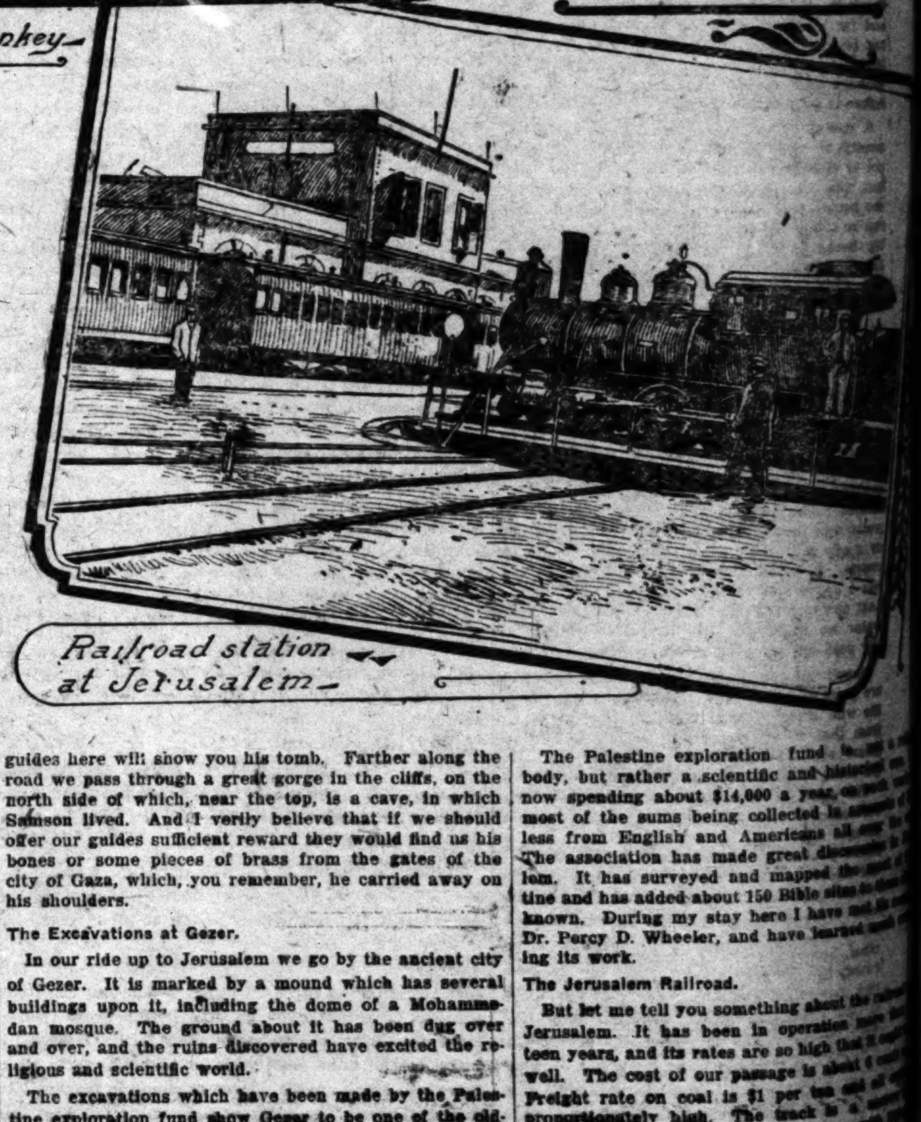
Climbing the Judean Mountains.

The land remains fertile clear to the mountains, a distance of perhaps twenty miles. In the foothills are patches of green, and higher on up fields cut here and there out of the rocks, which are built up to hold in the earth. I have never seen a country more rocky. The rough lands of the Blue Ride are Nile farms compared to the hills through which we go on our way to Jerusalem. In many places there is nothing but rocks, which are laid up in such ways as to make one think they were constructed by man. The limestone strata are piled stone upon stone, looking like mighty monuments rising on the hills. In some places whole mountains are steps, forming pyramids of white limestone, sparsely sprinkled with patches of grass and red poppies.

In the Footsteps of Samson.

The railway winds its way in and out. It crawls along the sides of the mountains with horseshoe curves here and there. The whole journey is over historic ground. Much of it is in the footsteps of Samson. We see the plains where he fought with the Philistines, slaying a thousand of them with the jawbone of an ass. We see the place where he tied the firebrands to the tails of 300 foxes and let them loose to burn up the harvest. A little farther on we enter the valley of Sorek, where the wicked Delilah cut off the hair of the strong man as he lay asleep in her lap, and away up on the side of the hill we can see the town of Zarah, where Samson was born. At the station of Deir Aban, where Samuel raised his Ebenezer, a crowd of children come to the trains with bouquets of wild flowers. The boys whine for baksheesh, and we wonder whether there may not be an infant Samson among them.

It was in Zorah that Samson was buried, and the guides here will show you his tomb. Farther along the road we pass through a great gorge in the cliffs, on the north side of which, near the top, is a cave, in which Samson lived. And I verily believe that if we should offer our guides sufficient reward they would find us his bones or some pieces of brass from the gates of the city of Gaza, which, you remember, he carried away on his shoulders.



Railroad station at Jerusalem

The Excavations at Gezer.

In our ride up to Jerusalem we go by the ancient city of Gezer. It is marked by a mound which has several buildings upon it, including the dome of a Mohammedan mosque. The ground about it has been dug over and over, and the ruins discovered have excited the religious and scientific world.

The excavations which have been made by the Palestine exploration fund show Gezer to be one of the oldest, if not the oldest, city of history. The road has no tunnels, and it winds its way in and out as it rises the hills. There are five stations between Jaffa and Jerusalem at which the trains stop, and fairly good depots at the terminal points.

The total cost of the railway was $2,000,000, or a little less than $40,000 per mile. The road was originated by an American, a civil engineer named Zimpel, who came to Palestine as a peddler of a patent medicine which h-callidcine which he called 'sunlight pills." He brought the railway scheme before the Sultan at Constantinople, but failed to get the concession to build it. After his death, the matter was takn up by the French, who put the road through and now own it.

This was the first railroad built in Syria, and it is the father of a railroad system which is now oening up a great part of the country. One section of the system is the line which runs from Damascus to Mecca, and connected with it are others which will eventually join the Holy Land to the valley of the Euphrates, as well as to Asia Minor and Turkey.

The Hills of Judea.

The trip from Jaffa to Jerusalem gives one a fair idea of the character of Palestine. The coastal plain is typical of the richest part of the country. Its soil is a chocolate brown, the grass is as green as that of Egypt, and there are great orchards of olives and fruits of all kinds. The roads are carpeted with big red poppies and wild flowers are everywhere.

Climbing the hills is like jumping from the Nile Valley into the desert. There is nothing but rocks with a sparse vegetation scattered here and there through them. The limestone crops out everywhere, and in places mountains of stones have been picked up in clearing the fields. Such fields are fenced with stone walls. There are also corrals for the sheep walled with stone.

A Treeless Land

There is absolutely no bushes or groves. Palestine is a treeless land. There are no forests of any description, and the only trees are fruit trees, with now and then a funereal cypress, perhaps, in a garden. Our consul, Mr. Wallace, tells me the country has two groves which the people call forests. One of these contains forty scrub oaks, and the ether is not quite so large. He says that a few years ago there was some brush on the hillside, out that the people have even dug up the roots and sold them for fuel.

Indeed, fuel is one of the most costly things in this country. It is so expensive that it is seldom used except for cooking, and that notwithstanding the climate is cold. Wood is so valuable that the older olive trees are being cut down, and it is feared that the groves will gradually disappear. These old trees are often of considerable thickness, but they are only twenty or thirty feet tall, and one will supply but a small amount of firewood. The olive tree is as hard as the apple tree, and far more knotty and gnarled. Its wood is heavy and is sold by the ton, the rice now being about $6 for 500 pounds. The wood is brought in on the backs of donkeys and camels and every stick has to pay a tax before it gets inside the gates of Jerusalem.

A common fuel here is charcoal, which is made mostly of olive wood. The chief manufactories of it are at Hebron, about twenty-three miles south of Jerusalem, near the cave in which Abraham, Isaac and Jacob are buried and where tradition says Adam died. Hebron is about 500 feet higner than Jerusalem, but it has big orchards of olives, almonds and apples, and the brush and the dead wood of these are used to make charcoal.

As to the use of coal itself, that is almost prohibitive on account of the high rates over the railroads. The same charge is made for carrying coal as for carrying oil, the rate being $4 per ton, or about 8 cents a ton per mile. Such coal as comes here is in the shape of briquettes. It sells for $15 a ton.

Another want from which the Holy Land suffers is water. The rainfall in the southern sections is something like six inches and upward a year, the amount gradually increasing as one goes northward toward Galilee. The country has always been one of pools and wells, and today every house in Jerusalem has its roofs so made that they drain into cisterns placed in the courts. In dry seasons water is sold, and the man who has a spare cistern gets a big prece for his surplus. Last summer the American consul received $30 for the water he sold, and the American colony outside the city paid $40 for a cistern half full.

Nearly all the wells of the olden times remain, and are pointed out by the dragomen. One can drink from the well where Christ mte the Samaritan woman, and from that at which Jacob met and kissed Rachael. There are many cisterns scattered over the country, the most of them shaped like great pears.

The pools of Solomon were connected by pipes with Jerusalem a few years ago, and for a time it was thought that they would supply the city with water. These pools are on the highlands, between Bethlehem and Hebron. They are cut out of the solid rock, and it is said that they originally held about 40,000,000 gallons. There are three fothem, ranging in height from [illegible] to 580 feet. They lie in terraces one above the other, being of varying widths. The depths are from twenty-five to fifty feet. If they were in good condition they could supply a vast deal of water; but as it is, the aqueducts which Solomon built to Jerusalem have gone to ruin, and there is now only a four-inch iron pipe running from them to this city. The pipe comes in near the Dung gate and goes from there to the Temple platform. I stumbled over it the other day. I am told the water is used almost altogether for the Mosque of Omar, although it is connected with the fountains of the city and is occasionally allowed to spurt free.

In addition to these pools there are many others in and about Jerusalem. The pool of Hezekiah is right in the heart of the city, not for from the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, and the pool of Siloam, where our Lord sent the blind man to wash, is in the valley of Jehosophat, outside the walls.

Just now the Holy Land is suffering from drought, and the peole are praying for rain. We have had one or two showers in the past few days, but more is needed or the crops will fail. The most of the inhabitants here are religious. They believe in prayer, and Mohammedans, Christians and Jews are now all holding services at which they ask the Lord to send water.

We had a slight rain yesterday, and more is expected. The people evidently think their prayers will be answered. As I walked through David street, I heard two Mohammedans talking. Their language was Arabic, but my dragoman told me that one had just said to the other:

"How good God is, after all. We have prayed for the rain and, lo, it has come."

When the first shower began to fall I was standing at the door of my hotel. A little girl passed. She had a platter of bread on her head and the rain was pouring down upon it. She was wet to the skin, but nevertheless she was singing. I asked my guide the words of her song. He relled: "She cries: 'Praise God for the rain! Praise God for the rain! Praise God for the ain!"

The little girl was perhaps 8 years of age.

Mother Hubbard Exp'ains

SHE TELLS AN INTERVIEWER WHY THE CUPBOARD WAS EMPTY.

By Irvin S. Cobb.

"AS a matter of fact," began Old Mother Hubbard, "the real circumstances in regard to the historic incident in which I figured so prominently have been so twisted about that I gladly welcome this opportunity to put myself right before the general public. It is true that I went to the cupboard, ostensibly to get my poor dog a bone, and it is likewise true that I found the cupboard empty and bare of everything except the echo. But the truth about that part of it is that I knew beforehand it would be empty. It did not come as any surprise to me. I was amply prepared.

"As a reasoning human being I had already learned that because of a combination of unexampled prosperity, a record-breaking crop production, and a beneficent tariff revision downward, the cost of living had advanced to a point where bones with meat on them were practically out of the reach of persons in moderate circumstances. Personally I was already taking steps to learn to eat hay. But the dog was but a poor dumb creature. You couldn't reason with him and read him the speeches that had been made by Senator Aldrich, Congressman Payne and others showing conclusively that in order to assure proper protection to our own struggling industries such as the shy and modest Beef Trust and diffident and retiring Flour Trust, we must accustom ourselves to going without regular food for a few years. So I gave him a practical demonstration of conditions by showing him that the cupboard was in the same state that he was in—to wit: hollow. It was on the very same evening that another notable incident of a similar nature occurred. I refer to the piper who had a cow and he had naught to give her; so he pulled out his pipes and played her a tune and bade the cow consider. I am sure you recall this case also—it attracted considerable attention at the time and has since? The piper's cow, like my dog, was merely experiencing a personal taste of the Increased Cost of Living.

"But," I said in some bewilderment, "I read about these things as a child in the works of the late Mrs. M. Goose—and I had supposed that they both happened a great many years ago."

"Not at all," Mother Hubbard corrected me," not at all. The verses which Mother Goose compiled were in the nature of prophecies—she looked into the future and saw what we would be coming to. I might state also that my dog, who had been a consistent old-line Republican all his life, has changed his politics and is now affiliated with the insurgent movement. His heart he says is still true to the old party, but his stomach is swaying him. He says likewise that he no longer has any considerable dread of the wolf being at the door. He says that if the wolf will only venture inside he'll welcome him very kindly and kill him and eat him. He says all the other dogs that he knows, that is to say all the under dogs, and all the poor ones—feel the same way about it that he does. He's out now organizing the Empty Cupboard Campaign Marching Club, and from what he tells me his organization expects to cast quite a vote at the approaching fall elections.

"And I'm seriously thinking of organizing a Ladies' Auxiliary to help the movement along," went on Mother Hubbard; "goodness knows I'm no Suffragettist—I could never join any cause that had the bad taste to pick out such frightfully unbecoming colors—colors so trying to the average complexion—and until they adopt some really fashionable tint I shall not enroll myself under their banner. But like most housewives I have had so much experience with this increased-cost-of-living proposition that it will require a very strong argument indeed from Congressman Payne to cure me of this constant gnawing sensation in my insides and this lack of any gnawing sensations for my teeth.

"I buy a chicken, that is to say, if I am feeling especially prodigal and expensive, I buy one. There are still supposed to be hens running about practically all over the face of this country, and there was a time when eggs were cheap enough to throw at bad actors and any agriculturist could afford to wear them soft-boiled, on his shirt or his chin. It was no uncommon thing to see a prodigal display of eggs on a set of chin whiskers. But such is not the case any more. I can't think of anybody, except possibly a very few of the very wealthiest families, who could afford such extravagance these times. Wearing diamonds to a breakfast and eggs away from it are both signs of extreme wealth.

"But, as I say, I buy a chicken. I pay a price that ought to get a very superior quality of emu or a nice plump golden-crested cassowary. And what do I get? A genuine antique of a hen, one of the old-fashioned highboy designs, with high polished knobs and the real Chippendale legs. The place for old furniture is the living-room, not the dining table, especially at that price.

"The family beefsteak has continued to shrink until before very long I'll be expecting to see the wage earner of modest income smearing the children's lips with a small lump of the almost invaluable tallow and letting them look at a picture of a fat steer in an agricultural journal. Soon people won't be going to Coney Island to eat frankfurters, but to look at one, and pay 10 cents to the man at the door for the privilege. If the loaf of commercial bread continues to shrink, the baker's man will be able to sell off his team and his wagon and make his delivery rounds with his wares in a pill box in his vest pocket. The magazines are full of instructions telling me how to make a beef stew, but nobody is furnishing me information explaining how I can get the ingredients for the same together without puttting a mortgage on my humble cot.

"I think this fad of Fletcherizing owes its popularity largely to the fact that nearly everybody only wanted an excuse to chew longer anyhow and make it go further. It can only be a matter of a short time until experts in economy will be writing articles for the Ladies' Home Journal telling how a family of seven can live for one week on only $275. Families with smaller incomes than that will have starved to death already, and there'll be no need to prescribe for them. And likewise if the beneficent Produce Trust continues to go on corralling articles of food and advancing the price of them a common turnip will get to be the rarest thing on earth. Future generations, having learned to live on soft coal and peptinized wood pulp, will go to the Metropolitan Museum and gaze in awe at a glass case labeled 'Very Rare Specimen—Became Extinct in the Early Part of the Twentieth Century.' The thing in the case will be a rutabaga stuffed and mounted. Happy will be the proud daughter of the patrician who can throw away her paltry string of pearls and in their stead wear around her white neck a priceless necklace of matched marrowfat peas. Tiffany's will sell Irish potatoes by the carat, and moderately wealthy persons will be able only to afford the eye out of one, set in platinum. Whole potatoes will be reserved for crown jewels and extraordinarily rich persons such as Carnegie, and the Seven Little Guggenheims. The steamship piers will be watched with extraordinary care to prevent the smuggling in from Europe of rump cuts and soda biscuits, and other rare articles of virtu. Lettuce won't be a salad any more; it will be a precious embroidery supplanting point lace. The memory of the First Father of His Country, J. Pierpont Morgan being the Second, will be preserved not by the Washington Monument, but by the last remaining wedge of Washington pie. From time to time, in periods of national stress, the United States Treasury will put out limited issues of 4 per cent. gold-bearing soup bones, while stock in a rib roast will be listed the same as copper mines. Annual dividends will be declared on Herkimer-county cheeses, and happy will be the proud possessor of a second mortgage on a pound of butter. There'll be a panic in Wall street when news comes that a calf in Texas has choked to death, and anybody owning a griddle cake will sew buttons on it and wear it as an evening vest. It will be infinitely too valuable for him to eat it, or commit any other act of criminal carelessness with it.

"At least that is the way it looks to me from the present indications. I don't see how people in my circumstances can afford to go on living, but on the other hand I don't see how they can afford to die, either, considering how the Coffin Trust has boosted up the price of all the things that once went with even the simple and most unostentatious of funerals, one where you didn't expect many of the neighbors to drop in. I had a sympathy once for the naked savages. I have only envy for them now when I contemplate the prospect of buying Emma a new pair of stockings or Little Johnny another pair of pants."

"Ahem," I ventured, "er—I notice that you haven't said anything anywhere in all your remarks, Mrs. Hubbard, touching on the advanced cost of dressing a woman properly."

"Why should I?" she answered, bridling up visibly; "it takes a good deal of money to dress a woman properly, and no husband who considers himself worthy of thename should object to seeing his wife suitably apparelled for any and all occasions even at the cost of some slight added drain upon his pocket-book. I speak now for my sex as a whole, and I know that I voice their sentiments."

"Yes," I said, "I've heard something of the sort myself at home occasionally. But there was a time," I protested, "when a woman could dress on a hundred dollars a year?"

"And she looked it," snapped Mother Hubbard. "I notice you were smoking when you came in here. May I ask if you have cut down on your cigars to meet the increased cost of living?"

Not desiring to bandy words with a woman, I arose and departed. Anyhow, no woman would understand even if you tried to show to her that you can't get a decent cigar for 10 cents any more.

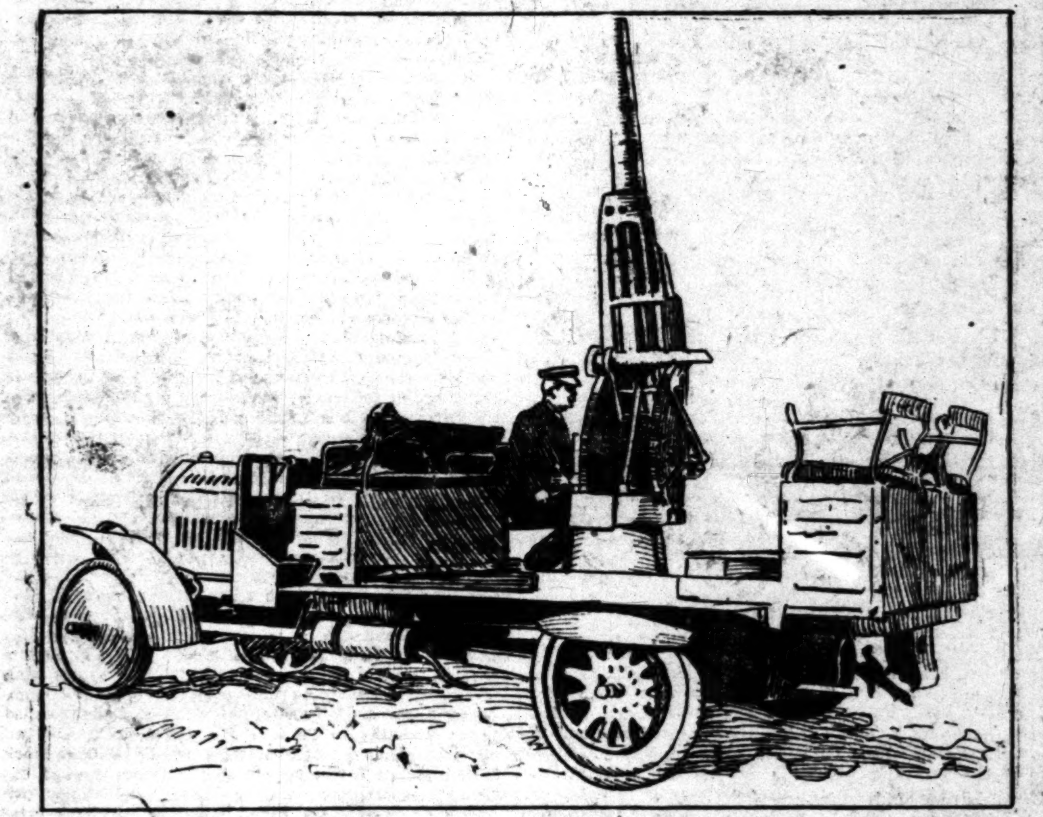
Aerial Militia.

ITS ORGANIZATION APPROVED BY CABINET OFFICERS.

By a Special Contributor.

WE WILL be the first nation to institute an aeronautical reserve auxiliary to its military defense, and we will owe this unique establishment to the efforts of a young millionaire, John Harry Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, the southern financier, who made millions by consolidating the street railway and lighting systems of New York City. Young Mr. Ryan's scheme to consolidate all of the available aeroplanes and airships of the country in a potential fleet, similar to the naval militia, and which will be given uniform schooling by the Army Signal Corps, has been approved by both the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy.

The organization of this great aerial fleet will cost the government nothing save the time of the instructing officers. The army and navy war colleges will draw plans of campaign and programmes of drill to be carried out at joint maneuvers between land and air forces of defense and offense. To obtain valuable suggestions as to how such maneuvers should be conducted, Maj. T. Bentley Mott, U.S.A., our military attache at Paris, has been instructed to proceed this autumn to the French maneuvers, and there study the world's first elaborate tests of the military possibilities of aeroplanes, eight of which will be in use, four on each side, drawn up for mock battle.



KRUPP'S NEW AEROPLANE GUN.

Ranks and Titles of Aerial Officers.

The officers of the new aerial militia will bear naval rather than military ranks and titles, despite the fact that the small aeronautical establishment of the regular service is officered by generals, colonels, majors and other men of army rank.

The commodore of the air fleet will be Mr. Ryan, and his chief of staff will be Clifford B. Harmon, our noted bird-man. Other prominent American aviators who have been prompt in enrolling themselves and who will receive commissions are Glenn H. Curtis, who recently made his famous flight down the Hudson, from Albany to New York; Walter R. Brookins, who lately broke the world's distance record at Asbury Park; Greely S. Curtiss, Charles F. Willard and Ralph Johnstone. The roll will ultimately include as active members practically all the other great aviators of our country such as Hamilton, who lately made the sensational flight from New York to Philadelphia and return; the Wrights, who have just designed a new biplane without front horizontal rudders, and our young millionaire aviators now making progress: J. Armstrong Drexel, who with his Bleriot made an altitude record abroad this summer, and Edwin Gould, who has just offered a prize of $15,000 for a heavier-than-air machine equipped with more than one motor and propeller. Young Gardiner Hubbard was one of the first young aviators of wealth to enroll with his new monoplane, built by McCurdy and Badwin at Baddeck, Canada.

That the new establishment will not be without funds is augured by such names as Herbert L. Satterlee, son-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan, and former assistant Secretary of the Navy; Cortland Field Bishop and Charles Herbert Allen, who are on the general board, and the following men of wealth, who are associate members; John Hays Hammond, Augustus Thomas, young Russell Alger and Allen A. Ryan, who will be manager of the international aviation meet to take place at Belmont Park in November.

Recruiting work is already in progress and headquarters have been established in the old Lenox mansion—Fifth avenue and Eighth street, New York, where R. P. Sinclair, secretary of the general board, is in charge. The dues have been fixed at $2 for active and $1 for associate members.

Function of New Fleet.

The air fleet's monoplanes and biplanes are intended chiefly for scouting, signaling, reconnoitering and service in conjunction with dirigible balloons, where exceedingly rapid movements are needed. They will be not only more difficult to hit than military balloons, but more difficult to destroy when hit, as they can be practically riddled with missiles without being disabled until struck in some vital part of the machinery, which in comparison to the wings and planes presents very small target surface. They can also breast high winds in which dirigible balloons will not attempt to fly.

The aeroplane fleet will be divided into squadrons, it is proposed, which will be divided among our chief harbors and dockyards, for history shows that all great naval battles of the past have been fought near such points. They will probably not be used either to drop bombs on fleets or fortifications, or to attack the aerial craft of an enemy, despite the fact that these two functions are the principal ones attributed to aerial warships of the future by fiction writers, among whom warfare in the air is now a favorite theme. Military men who have studied aeroplanes in action realize that it will always be suicidal for one such craft to attempt to ram another, while the bombardment of such a vehicle in flight will be as difficult a matter as gunning for birds on the wing with an unwieldy cannon.

Bomb-Dropping Impracticable.

As to the dropping of bombs from aeroplanes, the recent experiments of Curtiss along this line are regarded by military men as having been of a negative character. Curtiss marked out an area representing the deck of a battleship, and then attempted to drop imitation bombs within it. But our observers with the Russian fleet during its engagements with the Japanese can assure the commanders of our future aeronautical fleets that no bombs which an aeroplane could carry would do more than make a few harmless dents in a great man-of-war.

The Japanese, with their mortars, dropped upon the Russian ships armor-piercing shells weighing 500 pounds, or more than the total weight lifted by many of the biplanes and monoplanes now being entered in our aeronautical reserve. After going up into the air these tremendous bombs fell from a height of two miles, and even then, in the majority of cases, they did remarkably little damage, confined to the particular deck which was struck, except in a single case, where the havoc was vital.

The aiming of a bomb from a safe height in the air involves a calculation more complicated than any popular writer on the subject seems ever to have realized. In the first place different air strata and crosswise air currents are met every hundred feet or so, as is proved by the undulations of kite strings leading to considerable heights. In addition to being played upon by these irregular and constantly changing forces, the bomb dropped from an aeroplane will in its descent describe a curve depending on the exact velocity at which the aerial craft is going when the missile is thrown. Furthermore, altitude, velocity of the target, velocity of the falling bomb, wind velocity and direction of aeroplane—not in a single plane, as in the case of a ship, but in any of all possible directions—must all be taken into consideration.

Armored Autos to Shoot Aeros.

Armored automobiles for attacking airships are now being developed by the military powers, notably Germany, which has adopted a motor vehicle heavily armored and armed with high-angle guns for firing at balloons and aeroplanes. These little land monitors weigh four tons and attain a speed of forty miles on good roads, but our army officers do not think they would cut much figure over rough highways.

An American genius this summer turned out what is believed to be a better type of craft for the same purpose. This is Maj. Davidson of the Northwestern Military Academy, who has reconstructed two thirty-horse-power automobiles of 1910 pattern by mounting upon each a .30-caliber rapid-firing gun, giving 400 shots per minute and having a sighted range of 2000 yards. With this armament and an additional equipment of tents and blankets, strapped in the rear; clothing, cooking utensils, etc., strapped to the running board, and 5000 rounds of ammunition packed in compartments under the rear seat, these machines, a few weeks ago, made the complete run of the Glidden tour, from Cincinnati to Chicago, via Dallas, Tex.—a total distance of 2850 miles —without showing any undue wear and tear.

An airship field gun, which can be brought to bear in any lateral direction, and which can be elevated to an angle of 60 degrees, has been lately turned out by the Krupps. It throws a shell of 8.8 pounds. And another recent Krupp invention for use in such weapons is a flaring shell, designed to explode balloons by setting fire to their gas when striking them. Such inventions appear to be needed by nations wishing to protect themselves against war balloons, for experiments completed last month at Lydd show that the envelopes of such air craft may be almost riddled with bullets in the lower portions and yet be held in the air by the upward pressure of the gas.

Hard To Hit Aeroplanes.

But our aeroplane fleet will be much more difficult to hit than the dirigible balloons with which they will be operated, not only for the reasons above stated, but for additional ones not hitherto taken into consideration. M. Esnault-Pelterie, a French experimenter, on several occasions this summer stood behind his aeroplane while the propeller was going at full speed and tried to fire shots into the stern of the craft, but all of them were thrown aside by the column of air thrown back [illegible] by the rapidly-revolving blades. His experiments seem to indicate that aeroplane operators will be immune from a rear attack by rifle or machine gun fire.

Wireless Messages From Aeroplanes.

That aeroplanes can be used for sending wireless telegrams describing movements of the enemy observed from great heights was first demonstrated a few weeks ago by two Americans, H. M. Horton and James McCurdy. Mr. Horton attached to the steering wheel of Mr. McCurdy's aeroplane an ingenious sending apparatus connected with a minute battery in the waistcoat pocket of the aviator, and an "aerial" consisting of five feet of wire held straight by a lead weight. A nineteen-word message sent by McCurdy with this device was accurately received by Horton on the roof of the grandstand at the Sheepshead Bay race track.

Our army, although it set the pace for the world by its successful aeroplane tests, culminating in the purchase of its single Wright biplane for $30,000, is now far behind France in the matter of aeroplane equipment. France, which gave the world its first balloon, in 1783, and which eleven years later—during the battle of Fleurus—launched the world's first war balloon, now has a fleet of over a dozen military aeroplanes, including four new Wright biplanes, built this year, along with some Antoinette and Farman machines. France has also established in recent months a military aviation school, and a few weeks ago, when it announced that three additional lieutenants would be selected to take the course, applications came pouring in from 100 subalterns ambitious for the training. Indeed, our great sister republic across seas is aeroplane mad, and I note in a French journal just arrived by post that there are now distributed throughout France more than 500 aeroplanes, representing a total value of $2,500,000.

What Aeroplanes Now Cost.

The French are now paying $5000 apiece for Wright biplanes and $5000 for Farmans, while Bleriots, which were $2000 before their maker's success in crossing the Channel, immediately afterward jumped to $3000 and are now bringing $5000.

Our new aeronautical reserve will vastly stimulate aeroplane manufacture in America, as will also the organization of the new National Association for the Promotion of Aeronautics, which will co-operate with the National Guard of the different States, after the manner of the National Association for the Promotion of Rifle Practice. Very shortly aeroplane squadrons are expected to be a part of the establishment of each of the big militia organizations, and these when added to the craft of the aeronautical reserve will form a colossal fleet which when flying together above our joint maneuver grounds, will make the air look like blackbird emigration day at the end of autumn.

ASTRAKHAN LAMBS.

From Bokhara some million and a half astrakhan skins are sent each year to Europe and America. The lambs whose skins are known as astrakhan are specially bred for the purpose, and some flocks contain as many as 5000 heads. The skins are roughly dressed before being exported. Experiments have been made in the breeding of lambs for astrakhan in various parts of Asia and Europe, but it is claimed that Bokhara alone provides the best lambs for the purpose.—[Illustrated London News.

AN EXPANSIVE LITTLE WATER SNAKE.

Not every creature can swallow another bigger than itself, but there is a little water snake at the Aquarium that does this handily. This water snake is a foot and a half long and about as big around as a big lead pencil, say a scant five-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, but it will corner and capture a killiefish an inch and a half long and close to half an inch in diameter and gulp it down whole easily.—[New York Sun.

Some Curious Prisons.

CIRCUMSTANCES THAT MAY MAKE ONE VISIT THEM WHEN ABROAD.

By a Special Contributor.

IT isn't often that a traveler makes a point of getting in jail in every country he chances to visit, but somehow we've found that it really pays. Jail, prisons, you know, vary so greatly as one girdles the earth.

Now, for one, there was that jail at Monistir, away up in Northern Turkey. We were walking about the streets of that turbulent Macedonian province-capital when came the soldiers to take us there, willy-nilly. In Turkey you get into jail easier, perhaps, than in any other civilized nation.

When you prepare for a trip to the Ottoman Empire and apply for your passport at Washington there accompanies it a printed slip stating that to visit Turkey you need on this the vise of the Turkish consul. Then, when you reach the border, the Turks look for this, and only if it is there can you pass over the frontier.

Nor is it sufficient. For further travel you must secur from the police a teskeret, or internal passport. Where our American passport has, I think it is eleven points of identification, this Turkish one has twenty-two. When you secure it they ask your first stopping point in the empire and that is written on it. Otherwise railways, steamers and the like dare not sell you a ticket to the place. When you get there the train pulls into a latticed station and you can't pass through the bars without your teskeret being marked good to enter here. So they keep tab on every stranger. Police over there have the right to stop any person and demand to see his teskeret, and if it is not forthcoming off to gaol you go.

So in our hurry at sightseeing one morning we left the teskeret in the other coat in the hotel. The police stopped us—it wasn't at hand—and off to prison we marched.

A Turkish prison is an experience. You enter through the cellroom. As a matter of fact, there is just one high cell into which you are crowded with the dozen odd others. Some have been arrested for back taxes, some for murder, all form one cheerful company. The chamber is ill-lighted and full of the fumes of cigarettes which the men smoke the livelong day. Then by way of another door with heavy leather portieres swung in, one comes to the uniformed sub-chief of police at his desk. To one side is a divan, where there are trays of Turkish coffee for his guests. Here, every one being guilty until proven innocent, prisoners of native birth are remanded to the cells. With foreigners, however, care must be taken, and if one speak not the Turkish they set you in durance till they find some one speaking French. But meanwhile you get your peep into Turkish jails and their squalor.

Up in the interior, at Plevje, there is another interesting Turkish prison which is unique. It forms the fourth side of an open court, of which the pasha's palace is the opposite side, and so when the military band plays in the courtyard for his highness the prisoners get the benefit.

The prison is a ramshackle frame, the lower story comprising the one cellroom. In this, again, all prisoners are thrust together, and the windows are likewise the cell casements. Folk of the town take it as an act of religious devotion, frequently, to feed the prisoners dainties, and so one sees these lined up before the bars reaching the cakes through the grating as you might reach things to the apes at the zoo.

Passing the guards each side the door, one traverses an arcade, with doors admitting into offices at right and left, to a grating. This, in its turn, admits into an open court, where male prisoners lounge about, in ordinary clothing. Some few plants are set out on the earth floor, and innumerable dogs are here.

Again through another grating, against the door in the building surrounding this courtyard, and you come, at rear, into a second open plaza. Here is the woman's room, the floor of stone, on which—or else on straw mattresses—the women are seated. Some few have a low cot, with blankets upon it. Children play about beside captive mothers here, since frequently the father too, is in prison.

Mother and children, then, will squat about a basket of bread, wrapped up in shawls, the three of them. One corner of the narrow room has its wooden bed with blankets.

Prisoners, the trusty showing one about states, are fed three times a day. "There are fifty-seven prisoners, fifty-three criminals and four women," he puts it. Prisoners stay here two years, then, if found guilty, after a new trial, they are sent to Chihuahua, the district capital. By day the prisoners work about, rising at 5 in the morning. Between times they make little jugs to sell to visitors.

One gets a fifteen-year sentence for killing a man here. For executions, the condemned is shot; yonder fellow is awaiting such execution. By day, though, he too, is free to walk about in here. The men may not play games, but simply talk to one another. Cells themselves are perfectly bare, and from these one sees the guards on top of the walls, such as to prevent escape.

In among the open work gratings there are other cells still, so arranged as to open in the court and allow prisoners to mingle at will. The captives wear no uniform. Dinner time they gather over soup and beans and meat and a pair of biscuits. Knives are not permitted them inside here. A barber comes in from without and shaves all, each paying for himself the seven-cent fee as they all have a little money.

Passing a point where one is laundrying, you see the room in which drunks are put. This is just one great bare room. The open-air ararngement here, as elsewhere, is good; the jail is built but seven years now. Sundays and Tuesdays friends can come and bring things to prisoners. At the bars you may find a fat Mexican wife chatting to her husband, here for two years, when he will be tried for the third time before execution at the capital.

At Paris, Ky., there is again a contrast in jails. Take the road into town from the Blue Grass country, and, crossing the bridge, suddenly you'll come on what reminds you of the buildings in which dynamite is stored in Europe. Triangular the walls rise up, without a window or doorway. They are of heaviest masonry and this whitewashed over. They are set in the angle of the cross-road, and you wonder what explosives may be within.

Advance, however, so that you may reach the third side of the structure and a neat little frame house, in a garden next it, is indicated as jailer's home. It is pushed up close to the whitewashed brick, and through it you pass inside that wall. There, within, you find the gaol, set within this thirty-foot wall, which was put up seventy-five years ago. There is a bricked passage to the main building of stone. The windows, too, have these rock bars, set, perhaps, six inches apart, so that one could not get out. In this courtyard "trusties" play at cards. On the upper floor of the jail stone passages extend the length and off of these there run two aisles behind the gratings. Onto these passages open the cells. The larger per cent of those confined here are "in" for selling whisky without license. When there are hangings they are held right out in the courtyard without, but now there's been none in some twenty years. There is still a prisoner here who witnessed that last one, and he recounts with glee how tickets were required then to see it.

Uncle Sam, too, has some interesting prisons, notably the one at Alcatraz, off the bay, and reached by boat from San Francisco.

Alcatraz Island is patrolled by boats, with search light, through the night; the prison yard is a little Corsica on the top of the mountainous isle, but still there have been escapes from here. The commandant detailed one of the more interesting of these to us.

"It occurred about five years ago," he said, "and it had its foundation in the fact that through the headquarters of the department and through the garrison headquarters a prisoner can put in an application for leniency and be allowed to quit the island and leave his sentence not fully served out. This is especially true in case of good conduct and the like.

"What is more, there are certain prisoners who have charge of certain of the papers of the island, some of the captives being bright and, occasionally, even graduates of institutions of learning. These, therefore, are utilized as clerks here.

"Four of these and the head printer, likewise a prisoner, as a result, connived and printed a paper, such as is used by the officers in the city when putting in applications for leniency. To this they duplicated the signature of the commanding officer here at Alcatraz and faked up splendid reasons for clemency.

"Then they sent this blank, so filled in, by official mail to department headquarters, smuggling it into the open mail sack in the office. Thence it went to the department commander, who indorsed and signed the paper and approved the release urged so strongly. As a result these official papers came back to headquarters here, so ordered. There they were not detected, but sent on to the prison office, where the officer in charge released the prisoners and gave them the suit of clothing and the check which the law prescribes. They were then freed, although some of them still had three or four years to serve, and sent to Frisco.

"So soon as they got there the forger of the quartet put the signature of the quartermaster to four checks of $125 apiece and cashed these in the town, the checks stating for what they had been given—such as extra work and the like. These were marked 'extra duty pay,' and so well done that they got the money. With it three of the men escaped forthwith. The fourth spent part of his funds on liquor and was found drunk in the street, where he was then re-captured and in the interim a friendly question to the commandant as to why he had approved the release of these prisoners, who were among the worst, brought from him an emphatic denial that he had so done, and immediate investigation detected the fraud. The fourth man was returned here and is serving a new sentence for forgery."

Prisons are interesting as seen thus from without. Perhaps were one looking at them from within they might not have quite so great fascination.

SEVEN YEARS WITHOUT SLEEP.

Another case of that queer malady sleeplessness extending over several years without direct injury to health is exciting the interest of the medical profession of Budapest. Frau Bertha Hejemes, who is married and has a little girl of 10, has not slept for seven years.

She began her long vigil one night when a gypsy woman attempted to kidnap the child. Since then she has not been able to go to sleep; neither has she had any inclination to do so. She is in excellent health and has never had a day's illness, but as soon as she tries to lie down she is seized with a violent nervous agitation which compels her to sit up again.

The woman declares that she is quite content in her sleepless state, as with the whole twenty-four hours to hrself she is able to perform all her household duties as well as to do a good deal of reading. A curious fact is that since the begining of her insomnia she has developed a great taste and ability for study and has learned three languages.

Frau Hejemes is 38, and it was because of late she had been subject to irrepressible fits of yawning that she consulted a doctor about her sleepless state.—[New York Sun

CURIOUS RITES IN ORIENTAL AND OTHER COUNTRIES.

"THE DAY OF THE UNFORGOTTEN DEAD" is the tender, poetic name given by the Chinese to their All Saints' Day, when twice a year the male members of the family go to the cemeteries to sweep the tombs clean of dust and fallen leaves and to offer sacrifices, prayers, and libations, with a final flurry of snapping firecrackers to frighten away evil spirits.

A most curious tradition haunts the white-walled cemetery of Jiddah, the seaport of Mecca, where stands a tomb out of whose solid stone roof rises a growing palm, the last resting place of Eve, its doors thrown open all night every 3rd of June, the anniversary of the death of Abel, when the graveyard, wrapt in shadow and gloom, is pierced with cries of anguish, the sobs of the mother weeping for her children, the murdered younger son, and the murderer Cain, her first born.

According to the naive faith of the Hindu, the sacred city of Benares is 60,000 miles nearer heaven than any other spot on our sinful little sphere, and in affectionate solicitude for the soul about to depart on its journey for the spirit world the believer tenderly brings his dying relative to this auspicious starting point, but should signs of physical weakness and disease fail and the sick recover he can never leave the bank of the sacred river, but must abide there in a little house of waiting built for him until the final summons comes, even if years intervene.

Forty days before a Mohammedan is to die a leaf falls from the tree of life under the throne of God into the lap of Azraet, angel of death. Whether this appointed time of doom is kept a heavenly secret or not the Arabic traditions do not reveal, but according to an old legend of Saxony, in the beginning days when God walked on the earth every man knew when he was to die until a certain poor-spirited peasant took advantage of the knowledge of his approaching demise to slight his work, and mending his garden fence in careless fashion to last only as long as he did so angered his Creator that He declared: "Henceforth no man shall know the day or hour of his death."

In Roumania, a curious old funeral custom showed an amusing thoughtfulness for the very natural human vanity of the dead, two openings corresponding to ears being cut in the casket so that the corpse might have the pleasure of hearing the songs of mourning sung on either side of him as the coffin was borne to the grave.

The story of Abraham and Isaac, with slight changes in local coloring, reappears in the Mohammedan legend which accounts for the Feast of Sacrifices, the culminating ceremony of the pilgrimage to Mecca, when, in memory of the father's happy deliverance from slaying his son, all who can afford it make an offering of sheep and goats, the belief being that these animals will come back and help the souls of those who sacrificed them over the bridge that leads to Paradise.

In Macedonia, on the eighth and fortieth days after burial is a "feast of remembrance," when not only is the newly-made grave decorated but also is mass sung and offerings made in the near-by church. Throughout the year are feasts for the dead in general called Souls Sabbaths, while in February and May are two special "holidays of mourning," when relatives flock to the graves held dear to their hearts through the changing years, kneel and weep, and leave homely love tokens of sweetmeats, cakes, parboiled corn and little loaves of pure wheat bread.

In Switzerland on All Souls Day, every churchyard is crowded, and in like fashion on the day sacred to the dead in tender-hearted France, the cemeteries are sweet with flowers and the fragrance of the loving prayers of the mourners kneeling there—in one quaint corner of God's acre added to the gift of posies, offerings of milk poured into shallow cup-like receptacles hollowed out in the slabs laid on the tops of the graves for that purpose.

Impressively beautiful is the service held in honor of All Saints in a little town of Tuscany, where in the middle of the mass the priest turns from the sinister gloom of a mock coffin covered with a heavy black pall and hung banners of black bearing a mocking device of skull and cross-bones in glaring white, and leads his little flock out into the hopeful sunshine, each member of the congregation carrying flowers and a lighted candle to the Campo Santo, the holy field, all of the graves of which now receive the church's blessing.

Until prohibited in the fifteenth century, throughout Southern Italy, it was a universal custom at the autumntide festival of remembrance of the departed for every family to spread a table to regale the souls of its dead members, while in England a queer old habit that brings a smile to the modern's lips and a very shivery sensation to his spinal cord, was for the town crier, mournfully dressed in black, to parade the streets on All Souls' Day, ringing his bell, and "calling upon all good Christians" to pray for souls in purgatory.

CAMPANILE NEARING COMPLETION.

The new Campanile at Venice that is to replace the old one destroyed in 1902 is nearing completion and it is hoped that for Christmas next year the bells of St. Mark will peal again from its top and their echoes will sound over the lagoons. So far the new tower has reached a height of 195 feet and the building of the bell turret, which from the base to the cusp is 72 feet high, has jusa been started. The rebuilding of the Campanile began in 1904, since when a hundred men have worked for 1500 days and used 1,500,000 bricks.—[New York Sun.

Fables and Philosophy—By Frank L. Stanton.

The Tragedy of the Winning Man.

"WHEN they beat the old man for Congress," said the Town Enlightener, "he was mighty sore. He'd been there ten year an' better, an' hadn't saved nuthin' to speak of, havin' to 'stake' all his numerous constituents when they went to Washin'ton to git broke—boardin' 'em, lodgin' 'em, an' shippin' 'em home ag'in, faithful to his promise to stand by 'em till the trumpet blowed for jedgment, or the hottest place they'd heard of froze over.

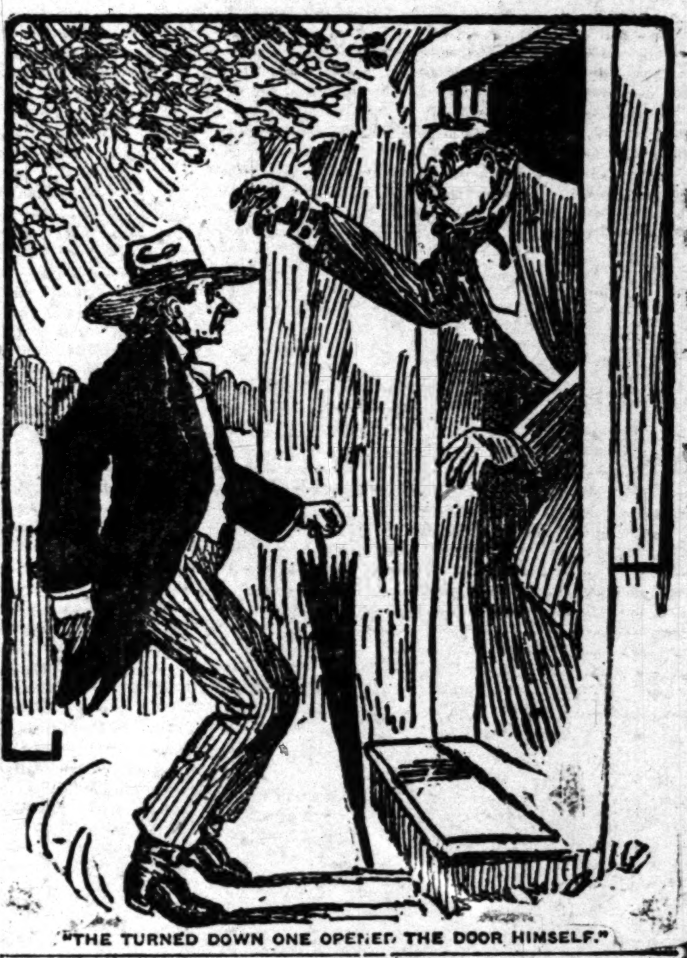
Why, six voters that beat the whole country figgerin' his majority on election day sat down on him for six months whilst waitin' on patents for cornshellers an' newfangled cotton pickin' machines, an' he bore it meeker'n Job bore his biles. Whole families would hold him up for tickets to the theaters, threatenin' a loss o' votes next time if the old man weakened; an' if they got sick on the visit they'd order doctors an' trained nurses an' tell 'em to send the bill to him, as cheerful as if he'd been a millionaire an' they'd had a preferred mortgage on him.

"So, as I said before, he didn't have a fair show at savin' enough out o' his salary to go as well groomed as the average Congressional hoss, an' the waiters at his hotel never did believe that he was a Congressman sure enough. An' after all he'd done for 'em, first an' last, to go an' turn him down was a little more'n he could stand for; it was as ungrateful as borrowin' a man's hoss, ridin' it to death, then telegraphin' him to come an' take it away an' makin' him pay for the telegram!

"Now, the feller that beat him was a chap he'd favored ever since he'd been in office. That's what cut him so; an' the chap himself sorter felt conscience struck when the full returns come in, 'An',' says he 'I'll go to where he's at an' make my apologies, an' tell him it was the only chance I had to pay him back what I owe him, an' p'r'aps git some wallible information out o' him as to how to conduct myself in the House o' my Peers.'

"So fur, so good; but wait till you hear what follers.

"He went to where the Defeated One was at an' ringed the bell—so timid that the old man thought it was a lady come to collect a contribution to a strawberry festival before he paid out his last cent for campaign expenses.



"THE TURNED DOWN ONE OPENED THE DOOR HIMSELF."

"The Turned-Down One opened the door himself, an' the look he give the Elected One didn't kill him outright—just paralyzed him partial, so that he was limp enough to be lifted up into the sittin'-room, which job was performed successful by the old man h'istin' him by the coat callar an' depositin' him somewhere 'twixt the floor an' the ceilin'. What that feller said to his late opponent was never full known; p'r'aps it wouldn't read well in the Congressional Record or the police reports; but it wasn't a long session—but livelier than the liveliest campaign ever dared to be!

"When it was over an' the Congressman-elect was hauled home the undertakers left their cards, the lawyers give notice that they was in the business of drawin' up last wills an' testaments, an' the parson said there was enough spiritual consolation left to fit the case.

"That elect-feller recovered slow, an' I reckon he'll do 'bout as well as the rest of 'em in Congress, as he wanders in his mind, finds it impossible to take a text an' stick to it, an' his general understandin' of the people's needs is mighty nigh gone. But he was fortunate in one respect—the beatin' he got left him as deaf as a post, an' he won't have to listen to the speeches of the other chaps!"

The "Dry" Major Moralizes.

"WE'RE all poor, weak human creatures," said the Major, "but I like folks better because they fall short of perfection. The man who says he's been married ten years and never had a cross word with his wife can't ride my mule to a country fair, and should be given unlimited cards to all the Ananias clubs in the country.

"I wouldn't let him carry my demijohn ten yards through dry territory—unless it happened to be empty.

"Give me an honest sinner who is willing to admit that he has fallen from grace—and may fall again—and I'll shake his hand like that of a brother. I couldn't live in the same house with a saint—always admiring his halo in a looking-glass and warning the waiter not to splash soup on his snowy robe.

"Saints are supposed to be finished material; sinners are the interesting propositions of the world. Now, I have fallen by the wayside in my day and time, and though I'm walking the straight road now there's no telling when I'll be down in the dust. In fact, at this particular moment I confess to a feeling of weakness—a need of other strength than mine to bear me up, and"——

"It's no use, Major," the landlord interrupted. "Your sermon is, as I may say, 'edifying,' but there isn't a gill of anything strong in the house, and the prohibition fellers are watching me so I couldn't slip it to you if I had it. To prove it, there's a feller in the next room who is serenely quaffing a mixture of red ink and vinegar, with a sprinkling of black pepper to give spice to it. So there's no living chance for you to have a backsliding experience in this community."

The Major looked grave. "Red ink and vinegar," he murmured. "What sort of results does it produce?"

"All sorts," replied the landlord. "Only this morning it made a man imagine he was a squirrel, and he climbed the tallest pine tree yonder."

"Climbing that lordly pine is great exercise," said the Major. "In view of the absence of the real beverage, lead me to the red ink, scorn not to show me the vinegar, and be liberal with the black pepper. It [illegible] contribute to the easing of a pain I have—a pain [illegible] this dry territory has given me.

"Anyway, swallowing ink seems more [illegible] than the use of gallons of it in the writing of [illegible] that die in an eight-hour day! Just mix the ink and vinegar and pause not until I say 'When'!"

A Lifetime of Adventure.

Col. C. J. Jones, "Buffalo Jones," is tall and [illegible] with a strong, rugged face and keen blue eyes. During his sixty-five years of life, he has roped and [illegible] often single-handed, every kind of wild animal of consequence to be found in our western country, and his experience with these has led him to believe implicitly that man is the master of all wild beasts.

He has climbed trees after mountain lions, and [illegible] a lasso over a branch has hauled grizzlies up into the air by one hind leg. And once he set out alone to journey over a country that no white man had [illegible] traveled before, to reach the land of the musk [illegible] the border of the Arctic Circle. The story is told of how he met a trapper on the way, and how these two in the face of the hostility of all the Indian tribes, the wolves, and the cold of the northern winter, eventually came to the musk ox and captured five calves. Then, deserted by their Indian guide, they started to return with their prizes, got lost in the wilderness, and fought the wolves till their cartridges ran out. And when at last they reached safety and fell asleep, exhausted, the Indians, obeying the laws of their religion stole upon them in the night and killed the calves.

But the success he had achieved with the mountain lions of the Southwest, the musk ox of the North and the grizzly bears of the Rockies was not enough. For twenty years it had been the one ambition of his life to take an outfit to British East Africa to try his hand with the more ferocious big game of that country. But in his western experience Col. Jones had learned something else besides the mastery of man over beast. Precisely how an American cowboy was going to hold a rhinoceros that weighed two tons and a half was purely a matter of speculation. Yet of one thing the colonel was certain—the experiment would result in a moving picture that would be well worth the taking.—[Guy H. Scull, in Everybody's.

PROTEST AGAINST PROFANITY.

Married by Telephone

THE MAGICAL RESTORATION THAT CAME TO MRS. TICKLEWIT.

By Captain Leslie T. Peacocke

IT was Mrs. Porter's idea, and her husband fairly jumped at it. He thoroughly enjoyed a practical joke, and here was one in making, with the promise of delightful developments. He heard the train whistle as he emerged from the best bedroom suite, on the decoration of which he had just passed approval, and chuckled to himself as he thought of the comedy about to be enacted there.

He had known Percy Ticklewit intimately for some years, and he could not understand any girl's refusing to acknowledge him as her husband; and as Mrs. Porter truly said, there were few prettier girls than Edith Bailey; surely there could be but one ending to this very practical joke, and that a happy one. His wife reminded him to urge Percy not to dally long in the smoking-room, so that the field might be clear for the reluctant bride.

Although they were both coming on the same train, Mrs. Porter had skillfully managed that Percy should arrive fully five minutes ahead, as their new big motor car would cover the two miles from the station in less than half the time employed by the pony carriage which she had advised Edith would be there to meet her.

He could not understand Edith's marrying a man she had never seen, nor why her father's old friend, Mr. [illegible], had made such a quixotic will. Of course he was Percy Ticklewit's uncle, and no doubt thought he was doing him an act of kindness in providing him with a fortune and charming bride by the one stroke, and possibly had the idea in his mind that they were admirably suited to each other, as in truth they were. The will stated that the terms were to be acceded to within two weeks, otherwise his fortune, probated at nearly a million dollars, was to be distributed among various charities. The two beneficiaries, who had never chanced to meet, were naturally indignant at being disposed of in this summary manner, but equally loth to lose so good a fortune. Some disparaging remarks about his peculiar name, on which point he was somewhat touchy, had reached Percy Ticklewit's ears, and he was equally vehement in his desire to ignore the existence of his fair traducer.

Under pressure of mutual friends they agreed to an unusual form of marriage, whereby they could obviate the breaking of their self-inflicted vows of never seeing or speaking to each other, and with the aid of two justices of the peace, a number of witnesses and the telephone connection between Buffalo and New York, were bound by marriage ties sufficiently legal to satisfy all parties concerned. They had agreed to an equal division of the fortune on the understanding that they were not to hamper each other in any way, and for the past six months had been in full enjoyment of it.

As his hostess had predicted, Percy was easily the first arrival, and Mr. Porter, having conducted him to the dressing-room and assisted him in unpacking his suit case, hurried him down to the billiard-room under the plea of a friendly game of pool and an appetizing cocktail before dressing for dinner. Percy found himself a poor match for his host, who was not hampered by the memory of a very recent and violent flirtation, the fair participant of which must evidently reside in the neighborhood, as the waiting pony carriage into which she embarked at the depot strongly indicated. A leading question on the subject was responsible for a choke on the part of George Porter, accompanied by a violent fit of coughing, closely bordering on convulsions, and of so consistent a nature that Percy refrained from pressing for information, anxious though he was. He had seldom enjoyed a train journey more, nor had the language of the eyes ever conveyed so much. The ties of matrimony had been momentarily forgotten, and had they chafed as is their wont, neither did his host's facetious allusions to his blessed state disturb his conscience or evoke a feeling of remorse for the technical disloyalty to his long-distance spouse. He had flirted with a Peach, and was ready and willing to repeat the offence at the first opportunity.

In the meantime the fair partner of his fortune had arrived and duly been conducted to the scene of action by her hostess, who by a running fire of conversation distracted her attention from the masculine necessities with which the dressing-room was littered, as accompanied by the butler bearing Edith's trunk, she manoeuvred her into the bedroom and with willing hands assisted her to unpack.

"Well, Edith," she ventured at last, "how does matrimony agree with you?"

The victim of that blessed state threw out her hands with a gesture of annoyance. "Oh, Mrs. Porter," she exclaimed, "please don't talk about it. You know I have never even seen the man."

"But have you no curiosity?" asked her hostess.

"Indeed I have not," she returned. "I hate his name even. Ticklewit! Imagine being called 'Mrs. Percy Ticklewit!' Why, it makes me feel creepy all over."

Mrs. Porter laughed. "You really ought to assume his name, though. You are his legal wife, you know."

Edith shuddered. "What!" she cried. "Mrs. Ticklewit! Never!" She stamped her foot in emphasis, and her hostess had momentary misgivings as to the outcome of approaching events.

"Why, Edith!" she argued, "he isn't at all bad-looking, and George and everybody think he is an awfully nice fellow."

"I don't care," retorted the bride. "We have agreed never to bother each other. I have my share of the money, and that is all I care about."

Mrs. Porter chose to regard this as final, and begging Edith to not be late for dinner, beat a hasty retreat, fearing the return of the other innocent victim.

She realized now that it would have to be a case of love at first sight or nothing, and felt more than sorry for having taken such drastic steps to unite the well-mated couple. She consoled herself, however, with the knowledge that her intentions were good, and a few minutes later was berating her protesting husband for propounding a scheme which had emanated from her own brain.

Edith, left to herself, was annoyed at the turn the conversation had taken, which had precluded her from instituting inquiries as to the identity of the blue-eyed stranger who had gazed at her so persistently in the train, and whose open admiration had been carried almost to the ridiculous in his frantic efforts to watch her movements at the depot, as his motor car whirled him down the road in a cloud of dust. She blushed as she thought of how recklessly she had waved her handkerchief at the disappearing machine, and of the wild, waving answer the action had evoked from its occupant, who, by standing on the seat and by sempahoric movements had emphasized the fact that her favor was duly appreciated. She sighed, and her brows puckered as she inadvertently caressed the third finger of her left hand, unrightfully guiltless of adornment, and selecting a becoming dinner dress from her well-stocked trunk, carried it to the bedroom, closed the door behind her, and proceeded to disrobe.

Consulting his watch as he re-entered the dressing-room, Percy discovered that time was of object, hastily emulated the example of his fair neighbor, and, divested of his coat and vest, was, with his back to the bedroom door, bending over his suit case in search of some article of adornment, when the unsuspecting Edith, in most charming dishabille, entered hurriedly and bumped into him. Rising and turning hastily he gave momentum to the impact, and uttering a scream she would have fallen had his arms not done their duty. To say that they were equally surprised is to put it mildly. Their exclamations: "Oh!" and "The devil!" were simultaneous, as one steady look at such close quarters convinced them instantaneously that recognition was mutual. Blushing furiously, Edith was the first to recover, and hastily disengaging herself, she sought refuge in the bedroom, the banging of whose door hid from Percy's eyes a picture the contemplation of which was all too brief. Quickly donning his coat, he awaited developments, and was soon rewarded, as with flashing eyes and the moral support of a bewitching tea gown, the lady indignantly demanded as to what she was indebted for this intrusion.

"Intrusion!" stammered Percy.

"Yes," she declared, with becoming hauteur. "What are you doing in my room?"

Percy swept a glance round the dressing-room, to which his scattered things lent an air of proprietorship. "Your room!" he retorted. "Why, George Porter gave it to me."

"Indeed!" cried Edith incredulously, unwilling to concede her rights. "Indeed!" she repeated. "Mrs. Porter put me in here herself."

Realizing the awkwardness of the situation and inwardly delighted at finding himself a member of a house party which promised such astonishing possibilities, Percy prepared to relinquish the field.

"They must have made some dreadful mistake," he said, making for the door. "We are evidently both guests here, so I hope this unusual sort of introduction won't make any difference?"

"Oh, no," she conceded sweetly. "It wasn't your fault, but you must please take your things out of my room."

Implicitly obedient, he feverishly repacked his suit case. "We shall meet at dinner, I hope, Miss—er—Miss——?" he ventured, bowing formally and seeking enlightenment.

"Miss Bailey," she replied with mendacious candour, her pseudo ties forgotten. "So, au revoir Mr.—er—Mr.——?"

"Ticklewit," he promptly returned, bowing, suit case in hand, as gracefully as before.

Had a bomb fallen through the roof the effect could not have been more effective. She grabbed his arm, her eyes bulging.

"What!" she cried. "Not Percy?"

"Yes," he returned, astonished. "Yes, I'm Percy Ticklewit."

Her arms relaxed, and the scream which preluded the swoon—rendered harmless by Percy's promptness in dropping the suit case and making a catch, which developed into a hug—pierced the room and exhausted itself on his manly shoulder.

Frightened, yet delighted, Percy gazed on his lovely burden—who, all unconsciously, was fanning an already ignited flame—and was rapt in contemplation of the fairest picture his wildest dreams had ever conjured, when a knock at the door recalled him to his senses.

"Hallo!" he called. "Who's there?"

Arrested by the tableau, as he entered to ascertain the cause of the scream, which had hurried him from the room of his startled wife, George Porter could hardly believe his eyes.

"Ha, ha, Percy," he chuckled, "I knew it would be love at first sight."

"The devil!" said Percy, still supporting his burden. Does your wife know?"

George laughed. "Of course," he replied. "We knew you were made for each other."

Percy gasped, as he gazed from his fair object to his obliging friend.

"Well, it's darned kind of you, old man," he allowed, "but what am I going to do with her?"

"Do with her?" said George, puzzled.

"Yes, you ass," returned Percy impatiently. "I can't hold her like this much longer."

George approached hurriedly. "Good heavens!" he ejaculated. "She's in a faint!"

"I should think she was," said Percy. "She has been like this for the last ten minutes."

George looked alarmed. "She was?" he cried. "Why, what have you been doing to her? Did you hit her?"

"Hit her!" repeated Percy, aghast. "Gracious, no! What made you think I'd do that? Who is she?"

"Your wife," said George, little recking the result of this sudden admission.

"What!" yelled Percy, dropping her, and only saving her ere she reached the floor, by a skillful tackle acquired on the Yale team.

"Why, didn't you know?" said George. "Here, I'll run for some smelling salts. It's up to you now, Percy. You'll have to make it up or fight it out."

This admonishing shot he delivered from the door, and clattered downstairs in search of the resuscitator.

"My wife!" gasped Percy, dazed. "My wife!" he repeated, gazing on her upturned face with satisfaction. "Well, I am quite within my rights, anyway."

Hastily glancing at the door, he kissed her, twice, and the effect was electrical. Opening her eyes, she gazed at him, round-eyed; then, her senses returning, she recovered her feet.

"Oh!" she murmured, her hands at her temples. "Where am I? What am I? Oh!" she cried, taxing her memory. "You are?"

"Your husband," he asserted, promptly coming to her rescue. "Your husband," he repeated.

The color mounted. "Are you Percy Ticklewit?" she asked slowly, as one dazed.

"You bet your life!" he cried, stretching his arms, now freed from their burden.

"My husband!" she murmured, blushing furiously and turning away in confusion.

"That is what I am, all right," asserted the six-months-married man, taking a step closer to her side. "Won't I do?" he murmured entreatingly.

"And you saw me in the train!" she faltered, her eyes still on the carpet.

"You bet I did!" he returned. "And I saw you wave your handkerchief."

"You should not have looked at me," she pouted, but the half-averted glance spoke volumes, and muttering something about cats looking at queens, he found himself in possession of one of her hands, making escape difficult.

"Please," he urged entreatingly, "please, don't you want to faint again, Edith?"

"What!" she muttered, turning frightened away.

"I say, won't you faint again? Wife!" he implored, seizing the other hand, and emboldened by her non-repulsion, gathering her into his arms.

"Ticklewit!" she murmured.

"Mrs. Ticklewit!" he replied, and his lips sought hers.

Now George Porter must be forgiven for his tactless opening of the door at such a crucial moment, as his intentions were really salutary, so being innately diplomatic, he softly repaired his want of acumen, and quietly creeping downstairs, deposited the smelling salts on his wife's dressing table, laconically remarking in answer to that lady's questioning countenance: "She's better."

ALBINO FISHES.

The Aquarium has now a remarkable collection of albino trout including, from the State fish hatchery at Bath, four albino lake trout, each twenty-one or twenty-two inches in length and weighing about three pounds, and from the State fish hatchery at Caledonia twenty-nine albino lake trout running about twelve inches in length and weighing a pound and a half each, and one albino brown trout of about fifteen inches in length and about two pounds in weight.

These albino trout, which are all of a clear cream white, including their fins, with no color about them except that of their characteristic bright ruby red eyes, are all remarkable, the larger ones notably so because of their size.

In its natural coloring the lake trout shows on its upper body white or grayish spots on a brown background. On these larger albino lake trout the spots can be discerned, looking as very faint spots of the same color but of a different weave would look in a woven fabric, but these spots show so faintly that they would never be noticed by one unfamiliar with this species and its markings. To the casual eye these fishes present bodies of solid unbroken white.

The lake trout is a handsome fish and these albino trout are perfect specimens without a blemish. They appear not as freaks, but simply as graceful and beautiful white fishes. To display them to greater advantage by contrast the larger albino lake trout are shown in a tank of brook trout, these a gift of the South Side Sportsman's Club of Long Island.—[New York Sun.

CATS DRIVE OFF SNAKES.

For many years I have been running a cattle station in Queensland, where snakes are tolerably numerous. At the head station we have always kept up a standing army of from fifteen to twenty cats, and have been practically free from the presence of snakes about the buildings and yards.

That this was owing to the presence of our cats I have no doubt whatever. They were always on the lookout, and I have often seen members of our feline bodyguard growling over dead or dying snakes and have more than once witnessed savage encounters between them and their victims. On the other hand, martyrs to their duty were from time to time found dead in the morning with all the evidence of a fight and their defeat in the shape of snakebite on their bodies.—[Spectator.

The Clutch of the Muddy.

A STORY OF LIFE AMONG THE MORMONS OF NEVADA.

By Mary Stewart Daggett.

THE "Jack Mormon" and a girl moved from shadow of cottonwoods. A Nevada night, crisp, starlit, drew them onward to the brink of the Big Muddy. The river plowed before them, slugged with sand riffles. Freshets, then receding waters made treacherous sinking shores. Each day some straying brute stood cast to the middle, until its owner drew it free with ropes and horses. Farmers of the little valley lived vigilantly in view of the river's peril. Lately, a herd of burros had starved, in the Muddy's clutch; the lone survivor—a desert baby—draining life from beneath a dead mother. Winter never passed without a tragic check to budding spring.

Jed Parker, the "Jack Mormon," pointed to a dark line below the cottonwoods. "The grip of the church is as cruel—as deceitful as that river!" he declared. "What chance has a man with thieving tithes of 10 per cent. on his crops? I'm sick being held down like a mule! This valley's no place for independent beings. I had the chance to sell out, and I sold; got my cash!"

"Oh Jed! be careful," the girl implored. "Somebody might hear you."

She peered from the shadow of fringing trees. When a twig beneath the man's foot snapped, she started. Parker hooked her close with an impatient arm.

"You are bound to be scared at every little sound—just as long as you stay here," he bitterly prophesied. "Remember the sand riffles that hold the cattle. You might sooner trust the river—than hypocrites!"

The girl's breath quickened. From the Mormon standpoint Parker blasphemed. "Look at the men who claim direct revelation," he went on. "Bosh! I've as good a chance for a tip from the Almighty as any of them."

He flung a stone into the water. A smothered, portentious splash answered through the night. The girl trembled, and again the "Jack Mormon's" arm hooked valiantly.

"I know I'm foolish," she faltered. "I just can't help being scared at every little sound. It seems as if father would come any minute. If he found us together—I believe he'd kill us both. He's been gone three weeks; mother's been expecting him these two days."

Zilla hid her face on Jed's shoulder. "Perhaps I won't see you—after tonight——" she choked. "You must promise never to come, when once you see a white string on the big cottonwood. Oh, do remember what I say. Never, never come if I give you the sign; if you do—father'll make me seal to Lemuel Long. He threatens all the time; calls me wicked, ungrateful, because I'm cold to a bishop's son."

"Bosh!" sneered Parker.

"But I can't resist much longer! I'll be 18 Saturday; father and the bishop are just waiting to pin me down. I'm sure I'll have to give in—there's no use hoping for anything else."

"Look here, Zilla!" Jed raged in hoarse whispers, "you're never going to seal to Lem Long. What if his father is a bishop? We'll do the old zebra out of his wits, and your dad too. Lem ain't smart enough to steal you without help. All you need is grit; grit to trust the right man. I tell you, little girl, we're going to shake the dust of this valley. Didn't you understand that I've got money? We'll clear out before your father comes; catch the train at Nimrod Junction for Los Angeles—get married on civilized soil.

"Mormonism is a lie! robbery! Besides, I'm tired having kid prospectors, and men from the outside world, hunt under my hat for horns! I've shed 'em—the horns. I'm goin' to be independent—spend my own money—do as I please. I'm done dealing with Saints of the Seventh Heaven."

Parker's broad shoulders lifted scornfully. He held the girl closer. His words fed her excited brain; then fear—the heritage of every Mormon woman—chilled her blood.

"Oh Jed," she choked, "I durst not come—I durst not come."

"But you shall!" His voice sharply echoed; struck terror to Zilla, struggling in his arms.

"Be careful! be careful!" she pleaded. Utterance failed as she pointed into semi-darkness, acutely listening to a fatal click. "Father's coming! Let me go! Let me go!"

Approaching hoofs struck unmistakable single foot. Starlit stillness was a sounding board for the faintest whisper. Down the road leading between small farms like a tragic string for twenty-eight miles, came Zane the Mormon. Zilla's heart thumped on the breast of her heterodox lover. He tried in vain to reassure her. She forced back his voice with her hand—terrified, trembling.

In a community of heavy, nerveless young women Zilla stood out alone. She was different from other maids of the rural, shut-in valley. The "Jack Mormon" had first marked the warm, rich, brownness of her skin, her eyes, her hair, only to curse his own bad standing with authorized saints. It was months before he found a way to the girl's acquaintance; then his bold but secret suit had began. He was ardently reckless and blind to inevitable Mormon power. During the last three weeks, the clump of cottonwoods had served the lovers well. Tonight in Jed's strong arms Zilla seemed as appealing as a baby burro, unsoiled by life; unconscious of the pack to come—the prospector's boot. Browned with sun and wind, both were children of nature, both soft-eyed and eager, ready to flee from danger.

"Let me go—let me go!" she begged piteously.

Parker wound her loosened braid of hair about their throats. "Be quiet," he commanded. "Your father's bringing some one home; there are two of them—the bishop! I know his voice. Wait till they drive to the barn."

He held her tight. "Have courage," he implored. "I'll find a way to keep you from Lem Long." Zilla wept hopelessly.

The two men were driving through the gate. Jed strained for clew to the bishop's visitation. No secret woke the stillness. Zane drove to the barn with matter-of-fact intent. When the hungry horse dashed for the stall, Zilla ran to the house. Instantly Parker flung away to the river's verge. He turned upstream. His curse broke with the water's swish; for he had missed his chance to fly with the girl. Somewhere, in the valley a Salt Lake freight called faintly through supernatural clearness; Jed remembered that passenger trains now stopped at Nimrod Junction, but twenty-five miles distant. Why had he waited to sell out, all too sure of worldly advantage? Now the bishop had come with Zane. The "Jack Mormon" knew what that meant. Zilla's last tearful promise sent him doggedly onward. After all he was young—strong! The river answered drunkenly. A choking stream warned as he stole into darkness. Zilla, too, heard the distant whistle, kneeling before her open window. The far-off cry seemed to dispel all hope. She scarcely slept, with dread of her approaching doom; of the bishop's untimely visit.

Dawn stealing into day, sharpening distant peaks and near mountains, nearer mountains, found her wide-eyed—hopeless. She looked out, then dressed at her mother's unnecessary call. When she slipped below to the kitchen, preparations for breakfast were begun. The daughter set out the table and dusted the sitting-room; before the second task was finished, she heard her father coming downstairs with his guest. Zane displayed no trepidation; his return to the "upper farm" was purely incidental. But the bishop's official greeting sent a duster flying from Zilla's agitated grasp.

"Daughter," he saluted, "Lemuel sends me in advance of the day; tomorrow he comes in person to make sure of valuable property." The girl's lashes fell. Large hands imprisoned her own; upon her forehead she received the Ecclesiastical Kiss of Peace. The the bishop's qualifying, long, shaven upper lip hung on her brow; his flowing beard swept downward—hid her burning eyes and tightening mouth. She fled to the kitchen. The woman bending above the stove looked up. Old at 40—smitten into unresisting treadmill—the mother read all, in her child's set face. She did not speak. Zane's woman had learned to keep silent.

In the valley of "The Big Muddy" it is not a wife's part to regulate her daughter's matrimonial chances. The head of a Mormon family is the husband and father—"a law unto himself." Zilla's mother no longer resisted the will of the man whom she had ignorantly espoused. Nineteen years back, a waitress at a Colorado "eating station," she had worn a bang of yellow hair and silver bangle bracelets, with hope of laying waste some masculine heart. One day, without understanding the fate enjoined by Mormon marriage, she had gone to Nevada with Zane. It was not until after the birth of Zilla that she realized the scope of her husband's religion. When he took another wife she saw life in a hard, new light; yet like other women of the faraway, shut-in religion, she gave up—ceased to feel. A second family—down the valley road—rivaled her own. She filed no complaint. When feeble laws of the State forbade polygamy, she did not exult that she was the authorized wife; cared less that Zane continued to make trips to his "lower farm." The woman's one emotional hour was dead. After the euphonious naming of her first-born brown-eyed little daughter there was nothing more in store for her.

Her baby's tiny hands, dainty feet and beatuful proportions held charm only through her own bitterness. Before the end of the year she had born a sickly boy. After, came a procession of sons, degenerating in direct ratio from the birth of Zilla. Zane's first and oldest wife drudged on. In the Valley of "The Big Muddy," the one-time belle of the "Colorado Eating-house" forgot that she had once been admired by reason of fine clothes, yellow bangs and silver bangles. Vanities no longer concerned the legal wife of a chosen saint.

Three weeks back, Zilla had covertly observed her mother at the wash tub. Bending double, to rub out soiled linen, left behind by the man, "gone down the road," the unresisting wife pursued her task. The daughter's young soul had revolted. The thought of her own impending doom sent her flying to the cottonwoods—to Jed, the "Jack Mormon" who defied the church—its bishop—all that polygamy meant. Until her father's sudden return Zilla had felt excited, sure that Parker would find a way to save her from Lemuel Long. Now all was changed.

She waited on the bishop, she slipped round the breakfast table, cowed and miserable. When the guest casually spread molasses down his sacred beard or stretched his shaven upper lip in a doughy smile, she felt the subjection of her early training. But she hated a flowing, untidy beard! The deep, long ridge in the holy upper lip suggested a heavy thumb print in an unbaked pie. She seemed dumb with fear and passion. The bishop's oily words sent her to the kitchen on slightest pretext. Her mother's buckwheat cakes were noted; and it was plain that Zane had returned to his upper farm with appetite. The girl passed the syrup can again and again. At intervals golden fluid dripped from the bishop's beard to the lapel of his much-soiled long coat. Zilla wondered vaguely if Lemuel took after his father in slovenly ways; then like a check to hopeless conjecture, her brother Bill, fifth in line—also distinguished by a bad hare lip—raised characteristic alarm. With graphic signs and sounds the boy made plain the jeopardy of the family cow. After early milking the animal had broken corral to stray at leisure past the cottonwood clump to the bank of the river. Hoof prints substantiated the fact. Zane lost no more time over breakfast. To Zilla's relief, the bishop wiped his mouth after a final buckwheat. The excited ened to the barn for ropes and a farm team; girl, too miserable to resist diversion, the men and an overflowing load of barefooted Signs pointed upstream. Zane lashed his

"Can't see how the brute broke corral— last I examined it," he declared with reins. "Don't seem as if I could ever go finding trouble when I got back. Look Ye hain't watching; sing out if ye sight her."

Suddenly hoofprints stopped. "There Bill raised outcry. A reddish dot moved up river in range!" Zane despaired; but at the Long's small eyes glistened. "You're not me?"

"Not any more."

He squeezed the small brown hand. "Will you Sunday? I'm all ready, and father's on hand job. What's the good of waiting?"

Zilla puckered her brow. "It isn't fair to me," demurred. "I have to do things. Besides, I'm ginning to feel different," she finished with eyes; then lifted a face, soft, appealing. better acquainted," she begged. "And oh, only 18 tomorrow."

Long's mouth watered. "What do you do?" he asked. Solicitude is not usual with suitors.

"Just wait a little." Her frankness was "I'd like to finish crocheting my blue cape and dress. Then, if we just kept company, 'round some—perhaps ride down to Nimrod and see the train come in. Now at last she was to see for herself.

Nimrod Junction was nearer than the important town at the foot of the valley. But twenty-five miles lay between Zilla and the railroad—leading——? She dared not answer the question.

Her present concern was to entertain Long, to keep the bishop's son in dull subjection. "Oh, Lem," she cried, "I can't believe it—that I'm really going to get sight of a locomotive—a train like I've seen in pictures. Think you we'll drive twenty-five miles by 7 o'clock?"

Long brought forth a timepiece. "It's ten minutes to 3," he answered. "We're sure to make Nimrod in four hours. This mare ain't a sleeper," he boasted. "I bought her after thorough trial. She goes right along without persuading. I ain't ever used the whip on her but once, then she 'most got away. Still, she's gentle, listens to the voice like a human being."

"She's a horse to be proud of," the girl answered. "I wish you'd let me drive—I just love to hold reins."

She felt his idle arms tighten about her waist. She shrank, then limbered. "I can't drive when you hold me so——"

Zilla urged the mare with gentle, flowing motion. "She goes splendid!" she cried in misleading joy.

"How did you learn to drive?" Long asked admiringly.

"Oh, I don't remember the time I didn't know about horses. Father let me hold the reins when I wasn't much over 3. I love animals! It breaks my heart to see them suffer." She looked sidewise into the man's small, faded eyes.

"Lem," she challenged, "you wouldn't let a cow die in the river—sink by inches—just because it was owned by a "Jack Mormon?'"

"You bet your life!" Long answered. "'Jack Mormon!' 'Rump Mormons!'" he cursed. "I'd see their cattle stick as soon as not. Fellows like Parker and his set ruin the faith—spread heresy right and left. Why, they're worse than Gentiles!"

Zilla flamed; then swallowed dryness, to laugh hysterically. "Do you know we forgot the dance at the schoolhouse? I never thought till now—how, perhaps, you might rather have gone to that?" She spoke considerately, and again the bishop's son believed in his lasting luck.

"I'm satisfied," he leered. "Coming home after dark'll do as well as hugging before folks. My wind ain't worth much at present; I'm not fit to whirl."

"Is your asthma worse?"

"I've just had a bad attack; didn't get over last week on account of it."

"I wondered why you didn't come," Zilla said evasively, with vivid thought of Jed Parker, of their trysts beneath the cottonwoods.

"I just hadn't enough wind for half a man," Long deplored. "My attacks seem to get meaner and harder. It's time I had a woman to look out for me."

She gazed down the road. "Have we gone five miles?" she gently ventured.

"The sign post over there says twenty miles to Nimrod," he answered. She gave up the lines.

"You drive; I want to look at everything. I can scarcely wait to see the train!" She threw her whole untried intellect into entertainment of the bishop's son.

Nothing escaped her. Another five miles slipped away. During the next hour a yellow stone house, a woman plodding in the road, a man turning earth in a field, a group of Mormon children, made topics for passing time. Suddenly the girl realized that the sun was going lower. She saw it dust hills and mountains with gold that fell into violet canyons. There was strange promise depicted in rich tones of evening; then lingering day expressed desolate fear as rosy tints died out in gray.

Long felt the change, and put on his overcoat. Zilla's cape dragged behind her. "I'm not a bit cold," she protested. "But I'd like to drive. You must be tired?"

The Mormon resigned the reins, pleased to renew a lover's claim. Zilla felt his grip tighten about her waist. She was strangely tolerant. Something flashed down her arms like an electric current; she realized new power. She was strong! strong! for the last mile of Nimrod. The mare ran evenly, lightly, surely. Practiced motion with the reins sent her forward, or restrained a too eager gait. Zilla read time by sense; knew that one moment too soon—one moment too late—might ruin all. She must hit the train exactly. Gradually the air about her, the sky above, sounds she had learned to interpret, all said plainly that the minute hand of Long's watch crept close to 7 o'clock. Fifteen minutes and the Salt Lake engine would flash upon the way station. A subtle calculation sent Zilla's cape flying into the road; then with vexed outcry she slowly reined the horse. The bishop's son got out of the buggy, turned backward—stooped for the wrap, sprang up, wildly faced for Nimrod. But the mare tore hopelessly beyond—crazed, goaded by the end of Zilla's parasol.

Unconscious of all but the girl's danger, Long ran manfully until his wind went short in a Mormon's curse. Down the road flew the mare. In dust the buggy became a speck. Zilla held the lines with all her strength. Her girlish voice coaxed, caressed, pleaded.

Gradually the fiery creature grew gentle; there was no need of goading. Zilla thrust the parasol behind her and sat firm. Nimrod Junction was almost at hand. She no longer trembled. The spirit which had made the mother belle of the "Eating-house" flamed within her daughter. Zilla was eager for all that might be waiting. Close in the valley she heard a whistle—a shrill screech. The demoniac cry almost stopped her breath, made nerves tingle. Her very soul leaped out to greet a thundering surprise, until terror stilled exultation, killed ignorant joy. The horse had struck double tracks—was dashing parallel with the roadbed, of an approaching train. To beat the course of a pounding monster was the girl's only hope. She dug the mare's live back; felt her plunge in the shafts, right herself f rothe awful race. Again the whistle! Shining steel on one side, barbed wire on the other, cut off escape. The great engine neared the curve. An instant delayed eternity. Closer came the warning. The helpless child felt the dread of terrible oncoming—something she could not even imagine. Panting steam gave out the breath of death!

Pounding, the monster tore behind; suddenly she sat crashed to the ground in Long's horseless buggy. A strong arm hooked tight, as she found her feet.

"You ain't hurt?" Jed Parker's voice rang triumphantly.

"Not a bit," Zilla answered through springing tears.

"Then you're just in time! That king-pin busted noble; give me your hand—we'll run for the train."

Dutchy and the Pig.

THE ADVENTURE OF TWO SOLDIERS IN HONDURAS.

By a Special Contributor

THE mining engineer threw a log on the camp fire and took his turn at yarn spinning.

"My story is about pork. Not the ordinary farm raised stock but the forest fed kind—meat that melts in your mouth and in which you can almost detect the flavor of the pecan nuts on which the animals feed. Dutchy—God bless him and may his girth never grow less—was my pardner while broke and roughing it in the tropics, and there he remains through some misunderstanding with a Texas sheriff. I left him on the dock at Puerto Cortez when I shipped North by working my passage.

"But to get at the pig. It was a blistering hot day in Honduras and, with scant water supply and no grub, we had crossed the great interior desert of the dinky Republic. The trail led us to the head of a ravine and here we found a treat for sore eyes and dry tongue in a patch of green grass and trees encircling a spring of ice cool water. A squad of Honduran soldiers was there taking noon-day siesta and we were hospitably invited to stop and partake of frijoles and tortillas. It was tempting to two poor bums with famished stomachs, but my pardner Dutchy was obdurate and would not linger. The Honduran uniform too closely resembled that of the Nicaraguan army to suit my fat friend.

"We had been fighting in the Nicaraguan revolution and our command had been whipped to a finish. In the retreat that followed, Dutchy, on account of his bulky strength, had been harnessed by El Capitano's orders to a field piece, in place of the mules that had been shot, and forced to haul it five miles, mostly up grade. Then to his great relief the enemy came within range and El Capitano vamoosed with his barefooted warriors—an example Dutchy and I were quick to follow, in a different direction, escaping with whole hides across the Honduras border. In hauling that muzzle loading cannon Dutchy sweated more than five pounds of greasy brine out of his 280-pound body and the experience strongly prejudiced him against military life. So we filled our canteen at the spring and bid the squad adios.

"Down the canyon we hiked, heading for a well-settled country to be seen in the distance—a beautiful vista of orange groves and meadow land, threaded by palm-lined roads and dotted over with pretty homes. To the left we could make out a river flowing through heavily timbered bottom land. Dutchy said the expanse made him think of a German dinner table 'mit all der trimmings.' We plodded our dusty way and nearing the lower exit a drove of pigs hove in sight. Ye gods! but they looked good. Sleek little fellows with shiny sides and in the first flush of pig youth. We could almost see the white meat through their hides. After six weeks bean diet topped off by two days hunger, fresh meat held wondrous charms. Without preliminaries we singled out the fattest of the bunch and tried to catch him, but it was no go as the shoat was a sprinter with foot-ball tactics. After fifteen minutes of such work we were hopelessly winded and the pig was only amused. Diplomacy was necessary for closer acquaintance. I suggested to Dutchy that on the strength of his personal appearance backed up by a few grunts he might claim relationship and thereby coax the pig within reach. Dutchy grunted all right but it was with disapproval of my opinion and did not influence the pig. Finally I stunned the animal with a well-directed rock. The next instant it seemed as though Halley's comet had struck the earth. It was Dutchy hurling himself on the pig and crushing out its young life with his knees. A hungry Dutchman is Johnny-on-the-spot when a meal is in sight.

"'Ach, but he iss fat,' said Dutchy, as he ran a pudgy finger along the ribs of the little porker. We gloated at prospect of a repast that was enjoyed later on the secluded bank of the Montagua River in the valley below, when our prey was cooked and finished at a meal that lasted well into the night. But we had trouble on our hands before eating pork.

"The pig was a good twenty-pounder, so we slung it on a stick between us and continued our journey. We hadn't gone far when an exclamation from my pardner brought us to a sudden stop.

"'Dunderwetter!' and he pointed down the road.

"There, approaching us, a quarter of a mile away, was a rancher—probably the owner of the pig. We were properly up against it, with no place to hide the loot in the bare canyon and retreat would throw us into the hands of the soldiers up the road. To be caught pig-stealing in Honduras meant penitentiary and it did not help matters to know that a pueblo was but a short distance ahead with a resident Alcalde who would make short shift of a couple of hoboes caught with the goods on.

"Every minute brought the rancher nearer and we were sweating blood. Where to secrete the pig was the burning question.

"I looked at Dutchy's wonderful waist line—at that vast beer vat now out of commission and it was exasperating to know that his corporosity had ample space inside to stow the pig, but without means of entry. The exterior offered no bettor encouragement as he was coatless and his pants were stretched tight over goodly proportions.

"Suddenly inspiration seized me when a turn of the road hid the enemy from sight.

"'Off with your pants, Dutchy,' I ordered.

"'Mein Gott, vat iss dot?'

"'Take 'em off,' I roared.

"Dutchy asked for explanations and wanted to argue. I tried to explain but it was no use. Dutchy's father was Dutch and his mother was Dutch, so Dutchy was a Dutchman, which is a Dutch reason for his being something of a sauerkrout when it came to absorbing a new idea.

"To help matters along I cut his single suspender with my jack-knife.

"'Take your pants off or it means jail for us,' I pleaded. He started to unbutton.

"'Perhaps they will put you back in the army,' I coaxed.

"'Gott in Himmel,' groaned Dutchy, and the pants came off instanter.

"To conceal piggy in the wide dimensions of the pants was the work of a minute, and this made a sack which Dutchy slung over his shoulder just as the rancher re-appeared.

"Dutchy was a sight to make Anthony Comstock throw a fit. His underclothing was more holey than righteous, and natural modesty made him blush at every rent in the garment. As for me I was in mortal fear that there might be a squeak left in the pig.

"'Buenos Dias, Senores,' and the affable Don saluted us as he came up. We were wishing him the same in our bum Spanish when his eyes lit on my pardner's lower extremities and he side-stepped.

"'Caramba!' he exclaimed, with a string of lingo I could not understand.

"I was trying to find Spanish words to explain that Dutchy was a devotee of Kneipp or some other faddist, when a look of compassion crept into the old gentleman's face and, putting a finger to his forehead, he queried:

"'Loco?'

"'Si, Senor, plumb bug-house,' I replied, and we resumed our hike."

THE REMARKABLE CASE OF WILLIAM KEMBLE.

Kemble had awakened, as it were, from sleep raised himself up, and caled for his messmates in particular, and those men who were not on duty, to attend to his words. He told them he had experienced death, but was allowed a short space of time to return, and give them as well as the officers some directions for their fuure conduct in life. In this situation I found him, surrounded by the crew, all mute with astonishment, and paying the most serious attention to every word that escaped from his lips. The oldest men were in tears, not a dry eye was to be seen, or a whiser heard; all was as solemn and as silent as the grave. His whole body was as cold as death could make it, there was no ulsation in the wrists, the temples or the chest perceptible, his voice was clear and powerful, his eyes uncommonly brilliant and animated. After a short and pertinent address to the medical gentlemen, he told me in a peremptory manner to bring Commodore Rodgers to him, as he had something to say to him, before he finally left us. The Commodore consented to go with me, when a scene was presented, truly novel and indescribable and calculated to fill with awe the stoutest heart. The sick bay (or berth) in which he lay, is entirely set apart to the use of those who are confined to their beds by illness. Supported by the surgeons, surrounded by his weeping and astonished comrades, a crowd of spectators, looking through the lattice work, which enclosed the room, a common japaned lamp, throwing out a sickly light, and a candle held opposite his face by an attendant, was the situation of things, when our worthy commander made his aearance; and well does he remember the effect produced by so uncommon a spectacle, especially when followed by the utterance of these words from the mouth of one long supposed to have been dead.

"Commodore Rodgers, I have sent for you, sir, being commissioned by a higher power to address you for a short time and to deliver the message entrusted to me, when I was permitted to revisit the earth. Once I trembled in your presence and was eager to obey your commands—but now, I am your superior, being no longer an inhabitant of the earth. I have seen the glories of the world of Spirits—I am not permitted to make known what I have beheld; indeed, were I not forbidden, language would be inadequate to the task; 'tis enough for you and the crew to know, that I have been sent back to earth, to re-animate for a few hours my lifeless body, commissioned by God, to perform the work I am now engaged in."—[Gaillard Hunt, from the MS. of William Turk, surgeon, in the Library of Congress, reprinted in Harper's Weekly.

BY RIGHT OF BIRTH.

Shadows there are, aye, shadows manifold;
  Shadows of life, of death to grieve the heart,
Grim shapes of want and care, of love grown cold,
  Of treachery that played a cruel part—
  All these are known unto each human heart;
They all return at times to sit beside
The heathstone, and with mocking smiles deride
Life's faith and hope, but they will quick depart,
  Not one can claim the right to hold a place
As household guest, save that dread shape that came
  One night and looked you boldly in the face,
And said: "I am thy self-committed shame!"

PLANS FOR NEW TRANSCONTINENTAL COMMERCIAL ROUTE.

By a Special Contributor.

SOUTH AMERICA is being rapidly Americanized. Dating from the Pan-American Conference just concluded at Buenos Ayres, the new era is opening in relation to the two great continents of the Western Hemisphere. Definite plans have been agreed upon to bring both shores of South America in direct, continuous communication with the United States. Through an international agreement, it is purposed to link together the great ports in a regular system of communication, forming an unbroken chain for commercial interchange from Portland, Me., southward around Cape Horn and northward to Seattle and intermediate Pacific Coast points. To create this new trade route, all governments concerned are to work in harmony, direct banking and cable service will be established, and a common system of weights and measures adopted to avoid all loss of time in handling freight, mail and passengers.

In this conference the United States has naturally been a predominant factor. Lewis Nixon of New York served as chairman of the Committee on Ocean Communication, which framed the most important recommendations. Henry White, former American Ambassador to Italy, also attended, while Europe was represented by such distinguished international figures as M. Clemenceau, the former French Premier, and S. Signor Enrico Ferri of the Italian Chamber of Deputies.

It is not generally realized that one fifteenth of the railroad milage of the world, or 40,000 miles, stretches across South America which places it fourth among the world's continents in railroad development. The dream, once so fantastic, of a continuous railroad from New York for instance, to Buenos Ayres is in a fair way to be realized. The longitudinal route from Panama to the Straits of Magellan has been half built in Chili and Peru and three-tenths of the distance to be traversed in Argentine. The first transcontinental railroad of South America is already revolutionizing her trade routes is 888 miles in length, and by piercing the Andes, connects Buenos Ayres on the east with Valparaiso on the west. The trip "around the Horn" between these two ports, takes ten or twelve days through the Straits of Magellan.

One of the most distinct recollections of the geographies of by-gone school days is a picture of the early Andean Railway, labeled "The highest in the world" which crawled across mountain peaks on attenuated trestles. The engineering difficulties of South American railway building in this region, have been almost unsurmountable. The trans-continental road climbs to an altitude of 10,000 feet, and at this altitude pierces the great backbone of the continent. The tunnel, 10,380 feet, or about two miles, in length, has been viewed from the mountains. Until April last, when the new transcontinental was opened, the journey was made over the Andes in a caravan, which wound its way laboriously over mountain trails, which were closed throughout the winter months. The trip overland was made by a large number of American tourists only last year who visited South American ports on the cruise of the "Bluecher" of the Hamburg-American Line. When this cruise is repeated this year, the tourists may make the journey across the continent in a luxuriously appointed railroad train in thirty hours. From the trains crossing the Andes at these astonishing altitudes may be enjoyed some of the finest mountain scenery in the world. The railroad, like many others in South America, was surveyed and built by American and English firms.

Buenos Ayres, with a population of 1,250,000, one of the most beautiful cities in the world, should be a close commercial neighbor. The weath of Argentine, in wheat and hides alone, rivaling, even surpassing that of the United States, finds its outlet in Europe. The southern continent is a wonderland for the tourist, and yet until last year's trip of the Bluecher no considerable group of American travelers had ever crossed the equator to the sister continent.

And now that the door is open for the great stream of globe-trotting Americans, South America is being re-discovered. With the energetic assistance of the Pan-American conference, the great tide of travel both for tourists and commerce will flow in increasing volume. Our sister republic of Brazil, larger even than our own, offers unprecedented opportunities, Rio de Janeiro is a revelation with its population of nearly 1,000,000 and its great wealth and luxury. The most beautiful harbor in the world is not the least of its attractions. Rio is a surprisingly perfect replica of Paris with its great boulevard and theaters surpassing any in the United States. Some $40,000,000 have been spent in beautifying its harbor in which today American merchant vessels are very rarely seen.

Statistics are likely to be stupid things, but a few figures will perhaps best serve to awaken the American reader to the possibilities of the South American cities for the commerce and the delights of travel. Twenty republics south of the United States sold the rest of the world last year products worth $2,127,301,000. This means $30 per capita and shows an increase of 128 per cent. in ten years. Such prosperity as may now be found along both coasts of the southern continent is absolutely without precedent in that part of the world.

One of the most important functions of the Pan-American Conference was to arrange the International Celebration of the opening of the Panama Canal. Very wisely the conference devoted its best efforts, the effects of the canal upon our trade routes and giving them direction. Every one of the South American republics will inevitably be brought closer to the Pacific and Atlantic markets of the United States. In some cases the routes may be shortened by several thousand miles. The Pan-American Congress predicts for these nations an increase in their per capita purchasing and buying capacity of more than double what it is to-day.

A BIRD'S HOTEL.

Arthur E. Dunning, one of the staff at the American Embassy at Berlin, has devoted his spare time since 1906 to building a wonderful bird house. The Hotel Canary, as he calls it, contains twenty-two rooms and has a window garden with a fountain, also two conservatories.

It is 75 inches long by 15 inches wide and including a tower is 51 inches high. All the rooms have the modern improvements, such as electric light and running water. They are equipped with automatic feeding dishes. In the winter garden are two elevators running to the second floor and with four sliding doors giving access to the surrounding rooms.

Batteries for the electric lights are in the machine room, which also contains the apparatus for running the elevators, a reservoir for water with a capacity of one gallon and a switchboard for the lights on the third floor. The tower room, which is not occupied by guests, is fitted with an electric chandelier and bell and is reached by means of a spiral staircase from the third story. It also contains the means of controlling the water in the reservoir.

At the back of the structure is the food supply bin, from which different mixtures of seeds are distributed to the fortunate inmates of this birds' hotel, while immediately to the right and left are the places into which the seed is poured for the rooms. It may be added that some of the rooms are provided with balconies and that the flags bear the initials H. C. The whole building is a marvel of ingenuity and constructive skill.—New York Sun.

HOW LITTLE CAROLYN FOUND THE WONDERFUL WOMAN.

By a Special Contributor.

"TRA-LA-LA, tra-la-la, tra-la-la!" sang Carolyn gently to a tune of her own, as she sprinkled the elephant ears. The water rushed through the slender black hose with delightful force, and on the big leaves sounded like a mighty storm. From 5 to 6 you could use the "city water" to irrigate. Until 6 everybody was watering his yard, and the water came in a feeble stream. But as people went n to their suppers the water came harder and harder.

"I bet I'm the only one now. How hard it squirts and splashes. I'm glad Dobsy's late with supper," said Carolyn to herself. She stepped back a little to keep from beating the leaves too hard, and forgot that she was hungry.

"There, old Ah-yah-she-ah," she said at length with a final flirt of the hose, "now you're most beautifully clean, and I'll sit on the steps and talk to you until Dobsy says the biscuits are ready." Carolyn turned off the water, laid the hose down carefully so there were no wiggles in it, and seated herself on the side of the steps nearest the large plant.

Carolyn had been always trying to have pets. There was the gray Malty kitten that the Banks boy had given her, but Dobsy made her give it back because she couldn't have a cat underfoot, and cats never ate anything but milk and meat, and were always miauwing, and some people said if they got in where little children were asleep they would suck their breath away. Then the pup—the dear lobsy fellow. He was part a real water spaniel, the grocery-delivery boy had said. But Mrs. Dobson had said pups were always chewing things. The little white rat—Carolyn had not minded so much about him, though he was soft and cunning and wiggled his nose so cute. The rabbit had wiggled its nose, too, and the guinea pig. Each one had been named "Jim." If Dobsy had known about the elephant she probably would have objected to him. Or, if Dobsy had known the botanical name of the big-leafed plant that grew n a sturdy clump where the front hydrant leaked, Carolyn would not have known that an elephant was there. To Dobsy the plant was "elephant ears" and to Carolyn it became elephant and ears. There was nothing to pet with your hands, but you could talk and talk to the ears. His name was not Jim, because t didn't seem right for an elephant. It was Ah-yah-she-ah, though why Carolyn did not know.

"I missed 'cover' and 'through' in my spelling today. I went after school to Madge's house to play. She didn't miss any, and when she said so, her mother was glad and kissed her. Yes, I believe you would be glad if I didn't miss any, Ah-yah-she-ah dear. I'll try tomorrow.

"Oh, there's the star.

"'Starlight, Starbright,
First star I've seen tonight,
I wish I may, I wish I might
Have the wish I wish tonight!'"

Carolyn buried her nose in the lap of the blue polka-dotted apron that was keeping her dress clean for school, and wished very hard. When she looked up again the Star was much brighter, and blinked at her encouragingly. "Oh, Star," said Carolyn, "do you mean I'm about to get it?"

Then she turned again to the elephant ears. "I don't like to keep any secrets from you, Ah-yah-she-ah. But you know it is, that if you tell any one what you wish for, then you don't get your wish. And this is my most wishiest wish.

"There's Dobsy saying the bsicuits are brown. I'd bring you a nice one, Ah-yah-she-ah, but I know you don't care much for biscuit.

"Good-night, Star.

"Good-night, Ah-yah-she-ah!"

. . . .

They had talked over old times, old friends, the happenings of the years since they had met—and were now silent. Arthur studied the graceful woman before him appreciatively but timidly. Behind her was a bank of trailing rose vine, and she faced the light that shone dimly out through the windows. She was less radiantly beautiful than at dinner, but more alluring, and more awe-inspiring.

"Mary," he said presently, "how strange it seems that you should have lived here alone all these years."

"Yes—no," she said smiling, and shivering slightly. "How old did you say the little girl—eight?"

"Yes, eight. But it does seem strange to me about you. Do you know, Mary—I always used to think you were the grandest girl I ever knew. But, that was just it. I had always known you, and somehow you never seemed to think of such a thing as my loving you. And then I went away that summer—and there was Marjorie and here I was, honestly, married before I knew I was even thinking about it. Now that my business is here, I should like to have a home again, Mary—no, for the first time. It could be a very beautiful home—and if I could have you there——

Mary straightened herself suddenly. "I was thinking about the little girl, Arthur. I didn't realize you were coming to that. No, years ago, I planted my favorite roses here, and began to leave men out of my plans, except as callers and friends. But the little girl—you haven't seen her often?"

"Yes—often——"

"Once or twice a month, you said."

"Yes." Arthur was goaded by the tones of her voice to try to explain something in which he had never before considered himself at fault. "See here, Mary. It's like this. I never did know children, or like 'em, or have anything to do with them, and there I was, just a young fellow, left with that baby. There wasn't even a grandmother to turn to. What could I do Mrs. Dobson had her from the first. She's a good woman, and I knew the youngster was all right. And I did go to see her, but, Mary, she's the queerest-looking, most serious piece—well, deuce take it, Mary, I didn't know how to get acquainted with her, and——"

"Did you take her dolls and story books?"

"Well, no. I gave Mrs. Dobson money to include the things like that. I knew she was being well fed and well cared for generally you know, and I didn't think about——"

"Arthur! Arthur!" cried Mary. "Think. Eight years—gone! Poor little girl!—give her to me, to dress, to pet, to make doll clothes for, to tell stories to——"

"You're—you're calling me a brute, over and over," said Arthur perplexedly. "It will be a wonderful thing for the little girl. When shall I bring her?"

The Star, which had traveled many miles, since Carolyn said "Good-night," to it, kept looking through the vines, and blinking and laughing to itself.

On Wednesday morning the postman brought Mrs. Dobson a letter from Carolyn's father. Since Dobsy had read and explained it to her, Carolyn had walked about with a queer feeling, as if her feet were touching nothing. It was not exhilaration—merely deprivation of foundation. And now Thursday was here and her father had come for her.

"He's a very large, nice-looking man," Carolyn was thinking vaguely and wishing, as she had so many times before, that she could be acquainted with him.

"There," said Dobsy, drawing the elastic of Carolyn's leghorn hat under her chin, and behind one ear, then the other. "Be a good girl."

Carolyn returned her kiss shyly, and then—because Dobsy had been good to her always, except abopt the kitten, and the pup, and the white rat, and the rabbit, and hte guinea pig and the baby goose, and because she had baked little brown biscuia, and had kept the lamp chimneys so shiny that they sent out most fascinating little wiggles of light—Carolyn threw her arms about Dobsy and hugged her quite tight.

"There, there," said Dobsy, sniffing, "you're mussing your best hat." Then she turned abruptly to Carolyn's father. "In the top tray to the right-hand side, the lady will find——"

Carolyn knew there was nothing interesting in the trunk, so she stepped out and left them talking—slipped out to the grass plot and stood beside Ah-yah-she-ah. She had given him a vigorous farewell bath last evening and had told him all about her going away.

"We shall miss each other, Ah-yah-she-ah," she said sadly, and stroked the big leaves. Then, thoughtfully, she broke one off.

Her fater came down the steps.

"Land sakes! child," exclaimed Mrs. Dobson from the porch, "if you want a posy, take a pink and a sprig of lemon verbena!"

"Thank you, Dobsy," said Carolyn gravely, "but I should like this best, if you please."

"Carolyn, the idea! You can't carry that great leaf on the train!" Her father's voice was sharp, and he looked very much annoyed. Carolyn went soberly to the clump and laid the leaf back carefully, where she had broken it off.

"She's that queer," said Mrs. Dobson in a half-whisper. "Now she's got some notion in that head o' hers, you can be sure. I've washed her and combed her and fed her, Mr. Fenton, but I couldn't answer her questions or talk to her or get acquainted with her, like. But if the lady don't want her after a while, I'd take her——"

Arthur shook her plump hand warmly.

The journey was made almost without words. Carolyn was all eyes. When, late in the afternoon, they reached the big city, and left the train, Mr. Fenton gave Carolyn into the keeping of a pink-cheeked girl, named Julia, in a black dress, who, he said would take her to Miss Mary since he must go at once to his office. Julia took her to an automobile. In it was a man named Harry. They got in and went gliding through the crowded streets. Finally they stopped at a house where there were many pink roses, and traily vines and everything was pretty. They went up the walk. The porch was very large, and on it were queer long chairs and cushions, and books, and a table with little cups. Then the door opened and a Wonderful Woman stood on the threshold. Her hair was black like shadows, and her eyes were blue like the sky when it is blue as can be, and her dress was soft and traily, and very light-blue like the sky when it is not nearly as blue as it can be. The Wonderful Woman bent over and kissed Carolyn, and her lips were gentle. Then Carolyn found herself inside the door, standing on a rug so soft that she could feel it through her shoes. Carolyn looked down at t, then back at the Wonderful Woman who stood before her. Back of the woman there were sprays of pink roses in something on something, and they smelled all through the room, like a garden.

"It seems very strange, very strange!" said Carolyn, round-eyd, in a small voice.

"Strange?" inquired the woman anxiously. "Shall you not like it? Tell me what seems strange, dear."

"It will take some words to say it," smiled Carolyn, with a tired little tug at the elastic which had been cutting her chin all the way. "Oh, yes, LIKE it!"

The Wonderful Woman knelt on the rug, and drawing the elastic gently from under the chin, took the Leghorn hat off. Then: "Tell me the words, dear," she said.

Carolyn smiled into the blue eyes. "I heard them talking, Mrs. Dobson and her married daughter, about stepmothers, one day. So I asked what was a stepmother. And Dobsy said that when your own mother died sometimes your father would bring another lady to be your mother, and then she was your stepmother.

"'But Dobsy,' said I, 'what does the step part mean?'

"Then she said I'd asked so many questions that day that she was very tired. But after I was in bed, I thought, and I knew. It was because she stepped in, you know, and took the place of your mother—but it seemed as if it would be a step-in-mother, to make it sound right. Then——" Carolyn hesitatel.

The Wonderful Lady sank down on the rug, drew Carolyn into her lap and kept her arm about her. "And then, dear?" she questioned.

"Then I wished very much for a step-in mother, because there was no one to talk to but Ah-yah-she-ah—so every night and every night and every night I said: 'Starlight, Starbright,' and wished hard for a step-in mother. But instead," laughed Carolyn, "here am I a step-in child. That is what seems strange. It seems turned around, sort of."

"A step-in child," repeated the Wonderful Woman slowly. Then she kissed Carolyn, a long wonderful kiss different from the one at first. "A dear little step-in child," she said.

"Yes, you are the mother, and I am the step-in child. Could I call you mother?"

"Dearest, I will be like your mother, but you are to call me just Mary."

"Mary," said Carolyn softly. "Mary, I like it—the little baby Jesus's mother's name." Mary caught her breath sharply—but the little step-in child was travel-soiled, and hungry, and tired.

. . . .

"Miss Mary is up with the little girl, sir," said Julia when she let Mr. Fenton in that evening. "You are to go up if you like. The second door on the south."

Then Julia went off to tell the cook and Harry what she thought about the situation.

The second door on the south was open. Arthur stood and stared. The step-in Child was in bed, but sitting up. Her hair was loose—a light fluff about her face. The Wonderful Woman sat in a low chair close to the bed.

"Yes," the Step-in Child was saying happily, "I told him everything and everything—about the kitten, and the pup, and all the other Jims—and about the picture in the book—and about most of the things I wished for on the 'First Star I've seen tonight'——"

Arthur stirred uneasily. Then they saw him.

"Father!" called Carolyn timidly.

Then, "Yes," said Mary, "come in, Arthur."

With a jealous something tugging at his heart, self-forgetful, Arthur came and knelt before the little white-gowned girl and gazed at her wonderingly, hungrily.

"Mary!" he said, turning toward her. "The hair, the—the——"

"Yes," laughed Mary. "I washed it and it is having a play for the first time in years. Dobsy kept it braided, but I shall have plenty of time to comb out tangles."

"The—the little white neck, and the—the arms."

"Yes, she has had them for eight years!"

"Don't!" begged Arthur.

Then Carolyn looked into her father's eyes, and felt acquainted. "Father," she said gently, "Father," and put her arms about his neck.

"Who was it, girlie? Who was it that you told the things to?" he said jealously, holding her close.

"Only Ah-yah-she-ah!"

"Ah-yah——"

"-she-ah! My elephant."

"An elephant?" And Arthur looked so amazed that Mary and Carolyn laughed merrily. "At Mrs. Dobson's?"

"Dobsy never saw any of him but his ears," laughed Carolyn. Then she prattled on about Ah-yah-she-ah and the many things she had told him. "Mary," she said at last, "it's so lovely to have stepped in. Mary, mayn't Father step in, too?"

"No, Mary, do YOU want him?" asked Carolyn wiselp. "For you see, Mary, you're the mother here, and it is we who are step-in-people—a step in child and a step-in faher——" her voice dragged off sleepily.

"Yes, I want him," said Mary softly.

"Goor," whispered Carolyn, well content. "I," sleepily, "I think it was the Star and the wishing, for it's just the same even if things are turned around. I wanted to see the Star tonight, and say 'Thank you.' But tomorrow night I may, Mary?"

"Yes."

"Yes."

Then Carolyn was asleep.

"Suppose, Mary," said Arthur gravely, "suppose we were to go and thank the Star."

"Let us go," answered Mary.

On the rose-covered porch he took her in his arms.

"I—I won't tell you," said Mary defiantly. "But if you can remember far enough back and aren't too stupid, you can guess. Come, let us thank the Star."

THREE FIFTH AVENUE DOGS.

A dog who carries his mistress's bag and one who carries his master's newspaper or cane have been familiar sights on Fifth avenue. A dog who crosses the crowded street walking close beside his mistress with his paw in her hand has not been seen often enough to cease to attract attention.

Mistress and dog regularly cross a crowded thoroughfare in this way, paw in hand, close together. People watch them as they stand together on the curb waiting for a chance to cross. With perfect unconcern they start forth side by side when the chance comes. When the opposite curb is reached the dog drops to a quadruped once more.—[New York Sun.

PATIENCE MEDAL.

Sir Henry Hawkins was once presiding over a long, tedious and uninteresting trial and was listening apparently with great attention to a very long-winded speech from a learned counsel.

After a while he made a pencil memorandum, folded it and sent it by the usher to the Queen's counsel in question, who, unfolding the paper, found these words: "Patience competition. Gold medal. Sir Henry Hawkins. Honorable mention, Job."—[Argument.

Didn't Recognize It.

IT was at a Lyceum rehearsal. A magnificent climax had been reached in the dialogue, and the moment arrived for the effective use of the usual thunder and lightning. The stage carpenter was given the order. The words were spoken, and instantly a noise, which resembled a succession of pistol shots, was heard off the wings. "Zounds, men," shouted Sir Henry Irving, rushing behind the scenes, "do you call that thunder? It's not a bit like it."

"Sorry, sir," was the carpenter's reply, "but the fact is I couldn't hear you because of the storm. That was real thunder, sir."—[Portland Spectator.

A man who had lost one arm in a thrashing machine was being tried on a little misdemeanor. His attorney, in order to manufacture sentiment, thought he would play him for an old soldier. When he got before the jury he said, among other things:

"And would ye convict, on such a charge, this old soldier who carries his right arm in an empty sleeve?"

This immediately amused everybody, and the more they thought of it the funnier it sounded.—[The Green Bag.

A friend who was present evinced a good deal of surprise at the selection and asked: "Has that man ever worked for you?"

"Then why did you choose the shorter man? The other had a much better face."

He Was Mad.

MY little nephew, 3 years of age, did something for which his father said he should apologize to his sister. This the child passionately refused to do.

After his father had commanded and pleaded and he still refused, his father spanked him. Still he would not apologize and was spanked the second time. Still he would not do as he was told.

His father said: "Howard, if you do not apologize to sister, papa will punish you again."

Then Howard said between sobs: "Well, papa, then on your account I'll do it, but I tell you I am mad."—[Delineator.

Young America.

ELIZABETH was sewing. She saw me making a buttonhole and wanted to make one, but I thought it little too hard for her; she said: "Why, Mamma, that isn't hard; you just make eye winkers all around that hole."

A little girl was walking quietly along the street with her mother when she espied a ferocious-looking but amiable bulldog approaching. With a little scream she clung to her mother, crying: "Oh, mother, quick, look at the dog with the tangled face."

Little Lizzie said to her teacher: "Have you got a little yelly hen?"

"No," replied the teacher, "I haven't any little yellow hen."

"Well," said Lizzie proudly, "my little yelly hen, like you hain't got, laid an egg this morning."

Little Violet was one day examining a beehive which was new to her. Being disturbed, the bees came out of their hives and one of them stung her. Tears came into her eyes, but she quickly dried them and cried triumphantly: "Now, I know who takes the needles out of mamma's cushion."

Little Mayme, aged 4, and her older sister were sitting near the window one day, when, suddenly, her sister dropped a button out the window, which an old hen swallowed at once. Then the silence was broken by little Mayme saying very earnestly: "Now there'll be a button in the egg!"

My little nephew listened open-mouthed to the description of a railroad accident in which a man was very seriously injured. When one of the family remarked: "I think he could get damages from the railroad," the little fellow was puzzled and broke out with: "But, father, hasn't he got damages enough now?"

Little Frankie was once sent out to make a new nest for a hen. Some time after the nest had been completed he came in and said a hen was about to lay. On being asked if she was in the nest that he had made he said: "No! mamma, I was on that one myself."

One summer evening a little girl, not quite 3 years old, was taking a walk with her father. They were passing a hedge, when the chirping of a cricket attracted her attention.

She held her finger up warningly, then turned to her father and said: "Papa, do you know what that is?"

He said: "No, what is it?" and that little girl replied: "Why it's a butterfly biting hisself."

Thinking something was really troubling the boy, she said: "Well, what is it?"

The House Beautiful—Its Flower Garden and Grounds.

BREEDING PLANTS.

SOME RESULTS OBSERVED FROM EXPERIMENTAL WORK.

By Ernest Braunton.

HIGH culture of plants causes them to vary in many ways, though the variance is slight. But any number of plants growing wild and looking hopelessly alike will, when planted in rich soil and given the best of care, show their individualism to a much greater degree. Because of this fact the plantsman, by selection, is enabled to separate forms quite distinct, and it often occurs that two plants showing like divergences from the normal type, when cross-pollenated will produce offspring still more marked in the peculiar way that caused the parents to be set aside as differing from type. By following this method of selection and breeding, we often get distinct forms of colors.

While this course may be pursued with species with considerable assurance of success, with mixed garden hybrids of very complicated parentage, color and form are not always transmitted to the offspring. The popular gladiolus America is a splendid "breeder," specially so as a seed parent and above the aveage in potency of pollen so far as the transmission of its form and vigor is concerned. Nevertheless, the color is a very weak one and is seldom, if ever, exactly reproduced in its offspring. The writer has crossed it, both as a seed parent and as a pollen parent, with a hundred other gladioli. In nearly or perhaps all cases some of the offspring has taken the precise color of the other parent, but in no case has an America been produced, though it has been potent to the extent of bringing all intermediate shades. Believing that the color was not well fixed, the writer crossed two Americas, to all apearances precisely alike in every respect. The resultant seed brought no true America among sixty bulbs grown The results were very satisfying nevertheless, for it brought superior colors and forms, one being a pure white America with but a trace of color in the throat. Others were of superior shades of pink. Many other obscure and unnamed parents, when so bred, produced some flowers apparently like the originals in every detail.

To return to the first selection of species for separation of forms, the writer has found that an excess of nitrogen is the chief factor in causing plants to depart from the normal, though others who have experimented more extensively may know of some disturbing agent of greater power. Breeding from species we may with some certainty foretell results after having once made use of the parent species to be used in our work, but with garden hybrids of unknown and mixed parents no such prophecies dare be ventured. Unless we have the exact genealogical record of our parent plants we cannot tell the relationship to any species whose blood has contributed to the material on hand. Even with such record, the complications might prove too great to be of practical use as a basis for determining what one may expect in the progeny. The writer's experience has been that colors cannot be foretold in any degree from breeding with mixed hybrids. Scores of cases might be cited of what has happened, but two will be sufficient. Two nearly white flowers, cross-pollenated, brought nearly all scarlets, and all were of some shade of red or pink; not a white among them. Two pinks, cross-pollenated, one a La France shade and the other of a deep Paul Neyron tint, brought every shade and color possible except white and pinks as light or lighter than the lightest-colored parent. Size of flower, height of plant, general vigor, shade of green in foliage, number of flowers open at once, distance apart if flowers on the stem and many other minor points showed just as great a range from parent types as did the colors. Therefore no rules may safely be laid down for guidance of the breeder in these details, though tarough experience one learns much which enables him to exercise partial control. Where the relationships are known the laws of Mendel may be followed with the utmost assurance as to results.

Dahlias Still Growing.

TWO weeks ago we took notice of some double dahlias more than eight feet high, a slendid growth. Single dahlias, more especially seedlings, will, under similar conditions, grow somewhat taller. Nevertheless it was quite a surprise to receive a photograph from Herbert Williams of the University district showing a single dahlia already eleven and a half feet high and still growing. This unusual growth has resulted from a seed sown in April last. Many other groups shown in the photograph exceed nine feet in height.

Viviparous Plants.

WE have many plants that in addition to propagation by seeds practically give birth to their young alive. The sisal hemp, quite common in Southern California and pictured on this page a few weeks ago, is a notable example of the more prolific. It is a species of agave, and differs but very little from our common century plants. The furcreas, nearly related plants, are also common with us. Another of this class is chlorophytum, better known by the old name of anthericum. Saxifrages or "Mother of Thousands" and at least a score of plants grown here correspond with the viviparous in animal life, while those grown from seeds may be said to be oviparous or from the egg.

The Life History of a Big Tree.

A CALIFORNIA writer in Harper's Weekly tells all about the life tragedies of one of our native sequoia gigantea, of fifteen feet diameter, as gained from a very critical examination of the lower part of the trunk. One cannot but wonder what people were in California 245 A.D., to set fire to the tree or surrounding country. The following fire records and apparent historical facts will prove of interest to all, but particularly so to one of speculative mind.

"This tree was fifteen feet in diameter at five feet from the ground, was 270 feet high, and its age was placed at 2171 years. When felled, it showed an enormous burn 30 feet high and occupying some 18 feet of the circumference. This was ascertained to have been due to a fire in 1797 A.D. For over 100 years the tree had been repairing this burn by ingrowths from the edges of the wound. When the tree was cut, the traces of three other fires were revealed.

"The history, in brief, is as follows: The tree began its existence during the second century B.C. During the first year of our era it was four feet in diameter at the base. When a little over 500 years old, about 245 A.D., there occurred a burning three feet wide. For about 1196 years no further injuries are recorded. In 1441 A.D., when the tree was 1712 years old, a second burn occurred, in two long grooves, one and two feet wide, respectively. In 1580 another fire resulted in a burn two feet wide, which took fifty-six years to heal; and next came the burn of 1797, since when the healing has reduced the scar to about fourteen feet in width. In each of the older burns there was a thin cavity occupied by charcoal, but above this layer the new tissue was sound and regular."

A Native Dahlia.

WE have a native bulbous-rooted plant growing along the coast between Los Angeles and San Diego that much resembles the dahlia. The flowers are single and in color a rich yellow, a color much striven for by breeders of dahlias. Its botanical relationship is quite close, for both belong to the order of composites and the two genera are not far removed in the order. Its scientific name, from the Greek, is a beautiful one of four syllables—leptosyne. Because it grows near the seashore, the botanist has named this species L. maritima. Hundreds of flowers of it were shown in our flower show a few years ago in the Morley Rink, since which time seeds and roots have been for sale in the local market.

The City Beautiful—Its Avenues, Streets, Parks and Lakes.

STREET TREES.

PEPPERS MOST BEAUTIFUL UNDER FAVORABLE CONDITIONS.

WE are nearing the season of tree planting, and already many questions are coming in regarding specific trees and streets. One man says that in his street there is a nine-foot park between curb and sidewalk, and nearly all on the street are wondering how they will care for it. Poor people! The writer would gladly sacrifice as many feet of the street he lives on for the privilege of gaining it in the parkway. In such a broad strip any tree may be grown. The party noted asks what tree should be used, and as the soil is loose gravel to an unknown depth and the conditions therefore unusual, the writer has no hesitancy in recommending the pepper tree. No other will do so well in such soil. With a wide parkway no danger to curbs or sidewalk exists, and even with a modest parkway the roots are bound to go down in such soil and show no buttresses on top.

One special mode of treatment in this particular case will permanently dispose of the root question. When it becomes necessary to prune the tops dig down about the trunk and cut the first root you come to, close to the main stem. In loose soil the roots will develop deeply, and next year, if thought necessary, other roots may be severed. The writer would much like to see one street in the city planted to pepper trees where conditions are very favorable and yet far from ideal for the average street tree. There the pepper will in time demonstrate its true value for shade and ornament. There is no question as to its being our most beautiful tree. It is rank folly to inveigh against the pepper for harboring the black or olive scale while near-by gardens contain oleanders, citrus trees, etc., that are much worse in this respect. A pepper tree in good health is not a favorite host plant for scale, and vigorous trees are always comparatively free. The harsher the conditions under which they grow the more will they be attacked by this parasitic pest. Under the hard conditions the pepper is made to bear, the sidewalk becomes permanently dirty, but not where the trees are in good health.

A tree of most unusual beauty and one well adapted to city life is the silver wattle from Australia, acacia dealbata. This tree has not the somber appearance of the black wattle, to which it is closely related, nor the stiff conventionality of the blackwood, which is planted much too freely. Its light grayish-green, almost silvery, foliage, gives it the popular name of silver wattle. It is rapid of growth, beautiful of outline, in leaf and flower, is capable of being pruned into any shape without injury and is capable of enduring great abuse and neglect. Not one whit less tough is the beautiful jacaranda from Brazil, nor is it less beautiful, for when in flower no tree of street or garden is more admired. It belongs to the bignonia or trumpet-flower family, and its flowers are, except in color, precisely like those of some of our tecomas. The color is of the best of blues, a color not found in either bignonias (of which we have but two species) or among the more numerous tecomas. We have jacarandas that have stood abuse and neglect on our streets for more than a score of years, yet will vie in attractiveness with any tree grown under like conditions except the peerless pepper.

Pepper Avenues.

AFTER twenty-three years' residence in Los Angeles, during which time he has visited every town and district in Southern California, the writer confesses to a liking for the pepper tree above that for any other tree we grow. The tree is so unconventional in growth, its individualism so marked, that scarcely two alike may be found on an avenue of them. This lack of formality, resulting in a graceful habit and form surpassed by no other tree, together with its rugged, venerable look when of age, makes a combination of attractions to which every nature-lover responds.

The foliage is the only one of all our trees that harbors no dust during summer, always presenting the brightest of greens when all other vegetation is dingy. The leaves are of unusual beauty, as delicately cut and as graceful as our choicest ferns, and when to all this is added the brilliance of a bounteous crop of scarlet berries, we have the one tree admired by all, both residents and visitors. No other tree will stand so much neglect and abuse, such poor soil or so much drought. During our series of dry years commencing nearly two decades ago, hills planted with peppers and several species of eucalypts came out of the ordeal with nothing but peppers, and not one died or even lost color. The free and judicious use of pepper trees has made Riverside the best planted city in the State, planting that calls forth admiration from all travelers, and at the present rate of propress she will, in a few years, be the best planted city in the United States.

A United States Park.

THE following communication regarding the use of Griffith Park for a congress of parks is from a resident of Long Beach. Our local park commission is invited (without any recommendation) to a perusal of the same:

"Nature's beauty spots should not be neglected, neither hidden, as now, for the want of accessibility. The writer wishes to express some ideas which he thinks original as to the improvement of the grandest-bb-of all parks, Griffith. Why have ideas and not express them? As these are slow coming they may be termed freighted, but this may give them a chance to take root; it is so hoped. Now to the point: Los Angeles, having societies of former residents of every State in the Union, who have numerous outings during the year, and no doubt would have many more if inducements were offered, why not consider granting each of these State societies a concession of five or ten acres each in this park for them to build a clubhouse and improve that plot in a manner typical to their State.

"Some States could be grouped, such as Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. Select a spot that would admit of an artificial lake to represent Lake Michigan with the States surrounding same. (The Owens River will supply ample water.) From this a river could be formed to represent the Mississippi, the States bordering the same have their plot and clubhouse on its banks. Minnesota could have a duplicate of beautiful Minnehaha Falls. Florida could find a frostless spot for its semi-tropic fruits and plants; Washington its pine trees and log buildings, Maine with its rocky coast and fisheres, etc. This park offers opportunities as no other spot on earth; mountains, plains and valleys from snow-topped mountains to orange groves; all within a few hours. Every State society should make a special aim to establish a permanent museum for which they no doubt could secure aid from their home State. Such privileges might also be extended to many foreign nations. Every visitor in Los Angeles would become interested, and it would soon make the park world-renowned. The first of all concessions should be that of a miniature railway; this would draw many to the park for the natural scenery and the grand ocean and mountain views. The city of course must also do its share, but this idea might prove a good starter; let us hope for the best."

Pasadena Flower Show.

THE Pasadena Gardeners' Association will hold their next semi-annual exhibition November 3-5, on the grounds of the Hotel Maryland. These shows have always been excellent ones in that they have brought out the best of flowers and plants to be found in Southern California, and only in the matter of patronage has there been anything lacking to make each and all a glorious success. Every one of these shows has been worthy of a fuller attendance. Every one of them has an educative value far beyond the price of admittance.

Planting Street Trees.

NOW that the rainy season approaches, all intending planters of street trees will be looking for stock, regardless of the fact that it will be too early to plant to advantage until after the new year is duly elected and installed. There is scarcely any season of the year that is especially good for planting above a considerable portion of the year. If watering is properly attended to, trees in cans or pots will do as well when planted out during the hottest weather. The writer has dug and balled eucalypts and acacias during the hottest weather for twenty years past and has found it the best of seasons. This year six-foot eucalypts were moved with twenty-pound balls, and not a leaf wilted.

The Ideal City.

LET us have a city without tenements, a city without a slum. Ruralize the city; urbanize the country. Improve methods of transportation, increase the number of factory centers, build industrial villages and garden villages, and this city will become known as the place where the workingman can live in the choicest surroundings, instead of in the usual squalid environment of the low-rent district.

The Los Angeles Housing Commission, ever since its formation, has furthered the idea of individual homes for even the very poor, this city being preeminently one of homes and having abundant room to spread over an extensive area. For this purpose, there are some things to be said in favor of small frame cottages. But to those having experience in this line, the objections to wooden structures for this class of tenant far outnumber the advantages. Wood is too absorbent and non-cleanable a material, as well as inflammable, and easily put out of repair, and has to be reconstructed in a few years, hence is ultimately the more expensive form of construction. It is hot in summer and cold in winter. The walls are a repository for dirt and germs, to say nothing of vermin with which they are often alive, making a standing disease-disseminator to the shifting population which usually inhabits them. It is only just to say of these people that they want to be clean if given half a chance, and they will, with a little education, be only too glad to avail themselves of conveniences, contrary to the general impression of them.

Let Us Reason---You and I

You devote more of your time to other things while I devote my time to the study of the eye, the examination for errors of refraction, manufacture of good lenses and the perfect fitting of frames.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

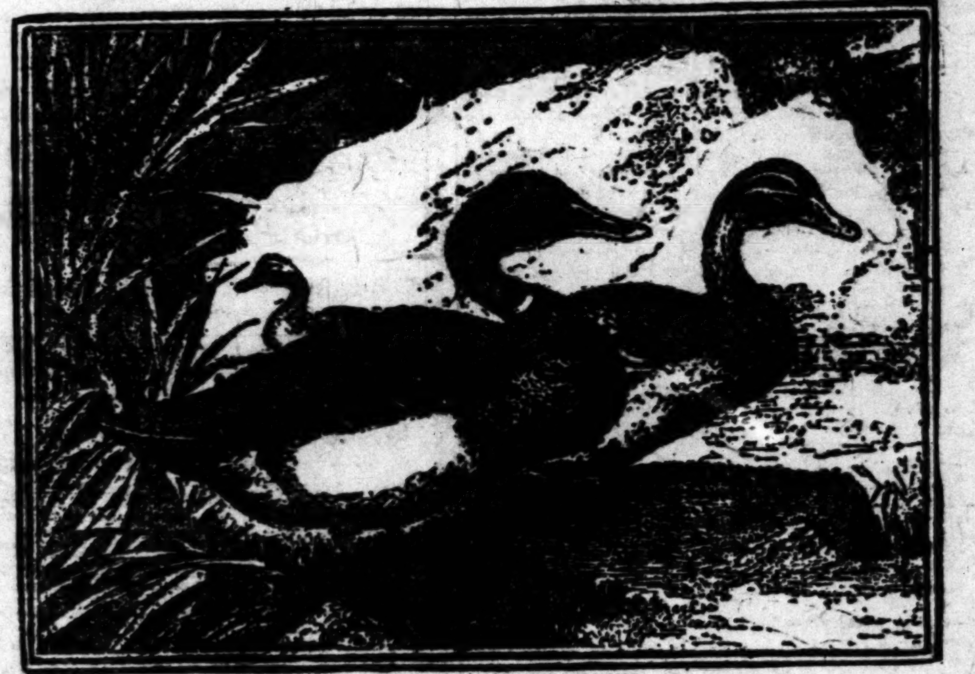
DUCKS AT STATE FAIR.

A CREDITABLE EXHIBITION OF THIS CLASS OF FOWLS.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experiences with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

THE poultry exhibit at the State Fair in Sacramento contained a splendid string of ducks, principally White Pekins, Indian Runners, Rouens and Buff Orpingtons. The first mentioned still maintains its supremacy among duck breeders in California, closely followed by the Indian Runners. In a country of little flowing water, it has often seemed to the writer that the parti-colored varieties have at least that virtue in their favor, as nothing gives one a greater shock of things out of place than a pure white plumage wallowing in the dry dirt of a California summer. Of the parti-colored group, the Rouens merit attention because among the largest of our domestic breeds. The head of the drake is a lustrous green; bill greenish yellow with a black bean at the end; neck color same as the head; color of back ashy gray; breast broad and deep, and of a purplish-brown color; ground color of wings grayish; feet orange. The duck is of a light brown color penciled with lighter brown; wing similar to the male; bill brownish orange.



PUR-BRED ROUEN DUCKS.

The Rouen is supposed to have Mallard ancestry, which it somewhat resembles in form and color. In habit it is less inclined to wander than other varieties; the females are good layers, and the young grow quite rapidly to a good size. A pair have frequently been known to weigh ten to twelve pounds when but ten weeks of age. In temperament they are quiet, docile and of easy management. Rouen—the name comes from the town of that name in France, where the breed is popular—should be more plentiful with us, especially in the northern counties where the land is better watered.

The Mystery and Mastery of Poultry Culture.

It is not generally known that the State University gives a short course in poultry culture each year at its experimental farms at Davis, situated but a short distance from Sacramento. This year the course opens October 3 and closes November 19, a sufficient length of time to afford a good working knowledge of artificial incubation and brooding, as well as of management and feeding. Persons electing the course will have sufficient opportunity to "pull off" a hatch, and care for the young until four weeks of age. In addition to practical work, there will be a course of lectures by experts covering the following topics:

1. The Establishment of a Poultry Plant. The consideration of locality, selection of land, method of operation, and economical construction.
2. Breeds and Breeding. The study of the different breeds, with special reference to California conditions.
3. Judging. A study of the standards of the different breeds and practical demonstrations and scoring.
4. Incubation and Brooding. The study of the principles involved in the problems presented.
5. Feeding. The scientific principles underlying the use of feeds and their practical application to the age, condition, and purpose for which the fowl is designed. The composition of foods and compounding rations.
6. General management. The study of all branches of the routine and special problems that aid in success.
7. Description of common diseases, their prevention and treatment; caponizing and other poultry surgery.

In the Beginning.

The man or woman with "chicken on the brain," but little or no practical knowledge of caretaking, is quite apt to meet with some difficulties due rather to a confused idea of the simple essentials, or else overzeal in providing for the comforts of the birds. It is our opinion that more chicks in the hands of beginners are killed from over-coddling than from neglect. Indeed, it is even debatable whether 25 per cent. of the day-old chicks sold in small lots ever live to be old enough to go to the pot, or to lay eggs. There is nothing intricate about the care of a few hens. Comfortable, clean and dry quarters, wholesome food, freedom from lice and mites, and the problem is solved. The trouble with beginners is an insane desire to "try" things. The result is that the birds are railroaded to the happy hunting grounds via the dope route. If in doubt, seek advice from an experienced breeder; if that is not practicable, consult some book that is recognized as authority.

A Sensitive Organ.

The liver in fowls is at best a sensitive organ, and for this reason all liver troubles are due chiefly to two things: overfeeding and too little exercise. In its more virulent stages the trouble finds expression in congestion of that organ, which soon reaches the stage when inflammation sets in. The presence of liver triubles is indicated by a dark purplish comb and face, generally ruffled appearance of plumage, and a brownish watery discharge. The Asiatic and and American breeds are more susceptible to enlarged liver than the more active Mediterranean breeds. Prevention in all cases is better than a cure. In the first place, make the birds work, and if inclined to be fat, cut down the ration until you have overcome that condition. Wheat, oats and bran, with possibly 5 per cent. of beef scraps, all fed very sparingly, will soon reduce the surplus fat. Two tablespoonfuls of sodium phosphate to every quart of water will tend to reduce an unhealthy and abnormal liver. After two weeks increase the rations to normal, and give plenty of green alfalfa.

A Popular Trio.

The Buff, Black and White Orpington fowl are certainly a popular trio of varieties both in England and America. Essentially an English bird occupying a foremost position in its class, it has also become popular in this country, and especially on this Coast. Orpingtons are rated as all-purpose birds, the hens laying a good number of good-sized slightly-tinted eggs, and furnishing a carcass that for size and flavor has much to commend it. In habit they much resemble our own Plymouth Rocks, though in frame, we think them slightly heavier. In breeding, the three sorts have become reasonably "fixed," hence come reasonably true to type and plumage. Our observation is that the Blacks are the easiest to handle in the breeding pen; the Buffs are possibly the most pleasing to the eye; they have a tendency, however, to breed high on the legs, many specimens possessing station much beyond what the standard calls for. The Whites have been boomed heavily of late years in the Mississippi Valley, where they are quite popular, though on this Coast their numbers are comparatively small. In economic values the three sorts are much alike.

MARVELOUS MICROBES.

During Lieut. Shackleton's south polar expedition the shallow lakes in the neighborhood of Mounts Erebus and Terror were found to possess an abundance of microscopic animals and plants which exhibit a wonderful power to withstand vicissitudes of temperature. The lakes in summer may attain a temperature grees Fahrenheit, while in winter they go degrees. The microscopic fauna survives to year frozen in the ice. Some of the deeper not thaw in ordinary summers, and yet in animals were found at the bottom under solid ice, and still alive. They must have in for years. Experiment showed that can endure, when dry, temperatures ranging the boiling point down to 108 degrees the sea animals close by, while performing all nary functions at a temperature several the freezing point, are killed if the temperature rises or falls one or two degrees.—[Exchange.

THE FORMER THINGS.

"There shall be no more night and no more sea"

And seen the slow sweep of the silver stars
Across the cold depths of the winter sky,
Or waited in the hush before the dawn;
To have been driven on the mighty wave
And dwelt within the curtains of the storm,
Or seen the tempest batter on the cliffs
Till it is broken to a murmuring peace
And all its surges softened into foam,—
Shall not the sons of men remember these,
Rejoicing they have known them, in the day
When sundering oceans and the pathless dark
Have passed away, and never can return?

"There shall be no more tears and no more pain"
—Yet to have known the patient hour of trust,
And seen the stars of faith and hope arise
Out of the blackness of a midnight grief,
Or grasped the robe of God within the dark;
To have been swept far from self's safe-laid
Into the heart of all the human storm
Of sorrow, and have shipwrecked brother to the
Or leaned the secret of accepted pain,
The fellowship of suffering and woe—
Shall not the souls of men remember these,
Rejoicing in ermembance, in the day
When sacrifice for others and for God
Has passed away, and never can return?

TRICKY "WIND WAGON."

When a wooden propeller was placed in the an Overland test car and pushed it by its own force a mile a minute in a race with Brookins Wright brothers' aeroplane, many persons wondered.

Greater cause for wonder is yet in store. Brown, vice-president of the company, proved a man of ideas and secretly took the wind wagon secluded country spot along the White River, at apolis, recently. He then placed it upon a small and fastened it securely. By means of wires to the steering wheel and then to the rudder enabled to take a unique "boat joy ride." To prise he could not "turn her on" full force.

A striking feature is that when the propeller revolving about 600 times a minute and the upstream with ease, the wooden barge sinks water's surface, and to persons on the bank gives the appearance of unning on the top of the This "Overland wind wagon cattamoran" every launch on the river.—[Chicago Record-Herald.

POINT OF THE ILLUSTRATION.

A Scottish parson remarkable for the simple his pulpit style was enlarging one Sunday upon "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish."

"Yes, my friends," urged he with solemn "unless ye repent ye shall as surely perish," ing his left forefinger on the wing of a bluebottle that had just alighted upon the reading desk the parson's right hand was uplifted, "just as as, my friends, I flatten this poor fly."

But before the threatened blow descended away, whereupon the minister further "improved occasion" with ready wit, exclaiming, "There's a for ye yet, my friends."—[London Scraps.

An Experiment in Seed Corn.

LAST year on the experimental acre of corn on The Breeze Farm it was found that considerable over 19 per cent. of the stalks were barren. These were cut out so that every ear was fertilized by the pollen from a fruitful stalk. This year the percentage of barren stalks from corn raised from seed from that field has been reduced more than half. That is there were less than half as many stalks which failed to make good ears.

This year the same plan is being followed, and next year there will be still less.

As another result of careful field selection of seed corn more than twice the number of stalks have two or more ears and the ears are larger. Next year the work of selection and planting will be given even greater care. This is a practical illustration of the work along this line that the Breeze has been urging upon our farmer.—[The Breeze.

Where Cloves Come from.

THE principal source of the world's clove supply is Zanzibar and the neighboring island of Pemba, East Africa. A ten-year-old plantation should produce twenty pounds of cloves to the tree. Trees of twenty years frequently produce upward of 100 pounds each. Besides the buds, the stems are gathered and form an article of commerce, commanding one-fifth the price of cloves and having about the same percentage of strength. To this is due the fact that ground cloves can be bought at a lower price than the whole cloves.—[California Cultivator.

Cementing Hollow Trees.

TREAT trees as well as we can, hollows will sometimes develop in them. Wounds go unnoticed for awhile, starting a hollow which keeps enlarging, and before we are aware of it a hole of some size presents itself to view. The old saying, "A stitch in time saves nine," applies here. A small hole developing this year will be a large one by the time another year is here, therefore, attention is profitably given to such things while they are small. Cementing of holes in trees is now quite common. On old estates, where trees have been showing holes in their trunks for years, they are now being cemented, both to add to the stability of the trunks and to arrest further decay. Huge trees, with holes in their trunks large enough for a man to stand upright in, are now filled with cement, and the cement painted the color of the bark. To prepare for closing up holes in trees the first thing is to scrape away all decayed wood to be found, cleaning out every particle of it, and if it can be done at a dry time, so that all exposed parts of the hole may dry out before cementing is done, so much the better. Every one familiar with trees knows that trees have an outer thickness of live bark, all inside of it being dead. When applying the cement be careful not to let it overlap this live bark. Let it stop at the junction of the dead and the live part, the object being for the live bark to overlap the cement, closing in on it from all sides, completely hiding it from view. This it cannot do so well if the cement overlaps it; besides this cases are known where the live bark had pressed the cement so hard as to crack it. Care must be had, too, that all crevices are closed with the cement, or water will enter in winter, freezing and soon cracking the cement. When well done a cemented tree looks all the better for it, further decay is prevented, and a new lease of life is started. All this leads to the thought that if trees were looked over often to discover the starting of decay, the further inroads of the trouble could be avoided by applying paint before it was too late. Often it is but a small cut-off broken limb that starts a hole bushels are needed to fill. All broken branches should be cut off clean, so as to permit of painting; especially is this true of large limbs. A scar that will not heal in two years should be painted, or a rot may commence which would do great damage in the course of time.—[Practical Farmer.

Great Potato Crops.

LEADING potato States are Maine and Michigan. The methods practised by the growers in the respective sections are quite different, according to Prof. Smith of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has lately been traveling among the farmers in both States, and the comparison seems to be in favor of Maine farmers who, he says, average about 250 bushels an acre against 100 bushels in Michigan. As the soil and climate are equally good in Michigan, he credits the difference to the more scientific practice of the Maine farmers, especially to their plan of not growing potatoes two years in succession on the same land, but following the potato crop with a year of grain and a year of clover, or some such succession, thus giving each potato crop a good clover sod to start on. Their methods of cultivating are considered more thorough; two-thirds of the harrowing and cultivating is done before the potatoes are planted. The potato tops are sprayed not only for bug killing, but to keep the vines green and prevent blight. This spraying for blight alone, Prof. Smith thinks, sometimes increases the crop as much as 100 bushels per acre, by reason of the extra three weeks' growth in August, which the sprayed vines secure in comparison with those that are killed by early blight. This lengthening of the season also improves the quality of the Maine potatoes so that, although the crop is nearly twice as large as that of Michigan per acre, the price per barrel is also higher in average years. The same cost which improves the quality also adds to the quantity. No doubt some of the Michigan potato farmers practice improved methods, but it is evident that the rank and file do not, else the yield per acre would be increased.—[American Cultivator.

Farming in California—The Land and Its Products.

CONDUCTED BY J. W. JEFFREY, STATE COMMISSIONER OF HORTICULTURE.

FIELD NOTES.

Protecting Trees.

THE Florida papers contain a great deal of advice about protecting the citrus trees from frost. Sorghum is used to shield the trunks, and in some orchards the earth is pulled up about the bole of the tree to the first branches so "there will be enough left to bud upon, in case of a freeze," as one writer has it. While California growers never lose their bearing trees even in the coldest situations, I am not sure that there is not a more insidious effect even if not so destructive. Some of us believe that the cold weather occurring since the late nineties may in some manner have caused the deterioration of our orchards in exposed localities, or at least become one of the causes thereof. We will try to determine this a little more closely at the Pomona meeting.

• • •

Frost Fighting.

THE agent for a patent heater said in my hearing recently that he had sold 20,000 burning pots for orchard heating by distillate slush. This incident is worth noticing in that it is evidence of a general interest toward the protection of fruit crops by systematic means. The idea seems to be prevailing that frost effects are not confined to the destruction of fruit, but that they follow the behavior of the trees for perhaps years. This is one of the points that will receive attention at the State Citrus Convention at Pomona on the 13th and 14th of September. If frosts or cold weather leaves permanent marks upon the physical condition of our citrus trees the question of frost protection becomes far greater than if just the saving of the crop of fruit were concerned.

Almond Tariff Decision.

LAST November the United States Circuit Court at New York made a decision upon the tariff schedule upon almonds that has done great injury to the almond industry of California. I am glad to report that a rehearing is being asked for by the assistant Attorney-General at New York. I have sent data to that official and so have several almond shippers and growers, from which some help is looked for in the rehearing that no doubt will be given.

All the tariff acts from 1890 to 1909 contain a provision for "clear almonds shelled." Prior to 1890 the word "clear" was not used in the statute, but for the last twenty years all shelled almonds have continued to be classified under the provision of "clear" almonds shelled. Just how this word came to be inserted no one appears to understand, but it has become a matter of great importance since the court's decision referred to.

Last November the Circuit Court held that the provision in paragraph 269 of the tariff act of 1897 for "clear" almonds shelled was meant to include only almond nuts that are practically free from shells and dirt. It was accordingly held by the court that almonds imported in bulk in bags and containing from 2 to 5 per cent. of dust and shells, such as Sicily, and Majorca almonds, could not be assessed as "clear" almonds at 6 cents per pound under paragraph 269 of the tariff act of 1897, but were dutiable under a provision for "nuts of all kinds, shelled and unshelled at 1 cent per pound under paragraph 272 of the same act.

Now one of the measures recently passed by Congress created the Court of Customs Appeals, and the government proposes to have the new court review the decision noted above. Comparatively few imported shelled almonds are free of small pieces of shells, dust and dirt, and the decision, if upheld, would mean a reduction of 5 cents a pound on the bulk of imported shelled almonds, of which there are about 8,000,000 pounds each year. This controversy emphasized the necessity of California fruit growers' having their representatives in the eastern trade centers, for but few if any almond growers knew about the decision referred to, although it was of paramount importance to their business.

Strange Evolutions.

THAT certain, possibly all, insects feeding upon a limited range of plants may modify their habits to the extent of damage to plants supposed to be immune has been verified to a horrible degree in the San Joaquin Valley. There, four large vineyards have been overrun by the mealy bug of the "long-tailed" species. I do not remember of seeing a damaging attack like this from the mealy bug, though it is frequently found in large numbers upon the grape. In these cases, however, the damage is overwhelming. One of the largest of these vineyards covers over ninety acres, of the Emperor variety. It is reported that the crop is a total loss. If this isn't a case of adaptation and consequent destruction that will make the entomologists take notice, I cannot refer to one that would.

How to fight the mealy bug successfully when it is entrenched under supporting posts, broad leaves and abundant fruit is a most puzzling question. I had a box of these grapes before me as samples of the whole lot recently and the grapes were covered with honey dew so thick and sticky that one could not handle the bunches. No spray seems effective, and fumigation is not conclusive. For this pest to distribute itself so thoroughly over a vineyard apparently all in one season is alarming. The bugs must have had a good hold last year unbeknowns to the owners who are enterprising if not observant men. Large colonies of the new lady bug will be placed in these vineyards in a few days, and we hope that this and other influences may reduce the peril.

• • •

Slovenly Distribution.

I HAVE a letter from S. R. C., of Los Angeles, whose complaint I publish for the good effect it may have. The letter reads:

"I have often seen it stated that all one need do to get the Year Book of the Department of Agriculture was to request it from the department. Recently I wrote for one, and was informed that I would have to pay $1 for the book, or get it free from my Congressman or Senator. I also failed to get a farmers' bulletin, being asked to pay for the same."

This complaint is only about half right. No one should have advised the writer to send to the department for a Year Book. Of the 500,000 copies printed, 470,000 are turned over to the members of Congress to be given out by them to their constituents. If the Congressman cannot supply the book provision is made for its purchase from the superintendent of documents. As to Farmers' Bulletins, they are free, and are not sold under any consideration. This class of bulletins must not be confused with the technical series for which a nominal charge is made in all cases. This charge just covers the cost of publication, averaging perhaps 10 cents apiece for some of the most useful literature ever published. Occasionally these bulletins run as high as $2, that being the price of a book giving a history of five great irrigation systems of this State, but the prices are advertised long in advance, and this plan is not subject to criticism.

But the methods of allotting and distributing that great annual called the Year Book are subject to the most grave objections. Unless the Congressmen representing purely city constituencies arrange to give the rural representatives their portion of the books, one can see what a great waste of money occurs, for the value of the Year Book is little to city people. And yet there seems to be no system about the distribution of this annual in the farming districts. I once found two sackfuls of the Year Book in a country barber shop, where they had remained for a month without one being taken. At that time, my office was attempting to place these publications where they were needed and had a list of about 200 farmers and fruit growers supplied. At another time dozens of these books were found in a lawyer's office, where no attempt was being made to distribute them. All this time, in both cases the real beneficiaries were clamoring for the Year Book with none to be found. I hope some system will get into this business after a while.

The Folly Thereof.

I CAME across a small importation of lemon trees recently, from a well-known Ohio nursery, and sold to Californians under a high-sounding name. I have never found these eastern lemon trees going to any one who knows anything about the citrus business. Yet how tempting the prospectus that promises lemons enough from one small tree to supply a large household. The recipient is handed a large one in such cases, for the trees bear very large fruits and utterly worthless. But the money is gone, and a space in the garden is incumbered with a tree of no value, and some good fruit tree or ornamental is displaced. We have enough worthless novelties of our own here in California without importing any.

• • •

New Cyanide Process.

WHAT a boon to fruit growers would be cheaper cyanide of potassium! It costs now about 30 cents a pound in carload lots if we include the sulphuric acid cost, transportation and wastage. This commodity is a necessity to every citrus fruit grower, and if a suitable quality, equal to that now sold, could be produced for 15 cents or thereabouts, it would cheapen fumigation nearly one-half and make the application of cyanide almost universal.

Potassium is the metallic base of alkali potash. It always occurs in combination with other substances, and hence is never free like iron or silver. Cyanide of potassium is crystalline solid—a combination of cyanogen of potassium. The former is composed of one atom of carbon combined with one atom of nitrogen, and thus two of the commonest elements are united to form almost the deadliest poison known. Potassium makes perhaps the best base upon which to produce the commercial cyanide, and hence any substance containing potash with alkali may be used in the manufacture of cyanide.

The new process consists of making cyanide from the dross or thick molasses left from manufacturing beet sugar. A German and Bohemian trust controls the manufacture from molasses in Europe, and there are now two factories in Germany and one in Bohemia engaged in the production of cyanide from this source. The molasses refuse is first treated to extract its alcohol. This leaves a gross residue resembling pine tar. The trust pays the sugar factories about 30 cents a hundred for this dross which is shipped in tanks to the cyanide factories. Here it is subjected to steam heat, and when thin enough it runs into tanks where it is cooked for several hours till the gas escapes in pipes. Later this gas is mixed with lye, after which the moisture is extracted by centrifugal force leaving cyanide which is pressed into cakes and is gold and silver mines of South Africa. Whether process will produce a cyanide fit for fumigation, not know, but the incident shows that a similar prise might be employed to dispose of the waste own sugar factories by turning a portion of it into nide. At any rate, these improved methods of cyanide ought to make the fumigating grade after a while, which would be an item of supreme portance to the citrus-fruit growers.

The Horse Did Not Know.

A MAN was recently arrested in Los Angeles, at the instance of the S. P. C. A., on a charge of cruety to a horse, because he treated it by Christian Science, and the horse died.

This reminds one of the story about the boy whose mother was a Christian Scientist. When a goat butted him and he cried he was told that as a Christian Science offspring he should not mind it, to which he replied: "Yes, mamma, but you see the goat don't know it."

Filth Diseases.

THE president o fthe Russian Board o. Health declares that the fight against cholera is absolutely hopeless unless St. Petersburg gets a modern drainage system, or a new source of water supply. Otherwise the epidemic is sure o return each spring with increased violence.

Exactly. Cholera, like smallpox and the pague and other diseases, is simply a filth disease, and the only means of getting rid of those diseases is cleanliness—inner and outed cleanliness. Consequently, all systems of quarantine are a lofoish waste of effort and money and an unnecessary annoyance. Neither cholera nor any other disease can be "caught" from anyone person. They are "caught" f rowntphltl172345MFCr W:3 son. They are "caught" from within, not from within, not from without, and mostly at the table. They become epidemic when conditions are favorable for their spread, affecting those whose blood is impure from wrong living—especially wrong eating.

Pie for the Political octors.

THE alifornia State Board of Health is to start a crusade for the purpose of destroying all the ground squirrels in theState. That will be a fine thing for the employes of the State Board of Heatlh, won't it? And they have to live, you know—or at least, they think they do.

Should that National Bureau of Health be established, we should see an immense increaes in this sort of thing. In fact, it would be likely to bankrupt the American people, while enriching an army of political doctors.

Following dispatch from Tulare county was recently published in The Times:

"Reports from the Federal Health Board, under whose authority was conducted the recent investigation with regard to the existence of plague among the ground squirrels in this and other sections of the Tulare county hills, have reported that not a single squirrel examined from Tulare county has shown any indication of being affected with the bubonic plague.

"During the past year several thousand of the rodents weretrapped and shot. They were carfully labeed to show th exact locality where they were sceured and were then sent to th authoritis in San Francisco for examination. Although no instances were found of th animals being afflicted with the plague, Dr. Rupert Blue will, nevertheless, incorporate in his report the recommendation that the government makean appropriation, the purpose of which will be the complete eradication of the pests from this State."

Of course taey will continue the work. Why should they not, so long as they can get a foolinsh public to put up the cost? In Riverside, and other counties, also, thousands of squirrels have been killed, withoht finding a single cause of plague. Some of them have been poisoned, and the bodies eaten by dogs, which having then developed what the sapint hath officials call "rabies," gave them another chance for a "touchdown" on the public.

There have been a few sporadic cases of plague in San Francsico, as ther are occasionally in many large seaport cities, but there is no more possibiity of the plague becoming epidemic on the windswept peninsula o. San Francisco than there is of bananas springing up on the sidewalks of Spring street.

• • •

A Converted "Regular."

THE editor of the Care of the Body recently had a call at The Times office from Dr. S. A. Richmond, formerly of San Antonio, Tex., where he ran a Naturopathic college. Dr. Richmond was formerly a member of the "regular" medical fraternity, and descended from a line of regular practitioners. However, after he had seen two members of his family sacrificed on the operating table, and had himself had a narrow escape in the Lane Hospital in San Francisco, where he was told that he had a cancer of the stomach and could not live more than a few weeks unless he submitted to an operation ($1000, please,) he determined to begin to study a little for himself, and so, like many others came around to the idea of aiding nature, instead of opposing her efforts to cure. He expects to settle in Los Angeles.

Dr. Richmond lays special emphasis on the importance of deep breathing from the diaphragm, which he believes comes nearer than any other one thing to being a "specific."

Anesthetics.

FOLLOWING is from the "Spectator," a Los Angeles weekly:

"What a pass the futility of medicine has reached is shown by the death of President Boynton of the California Club, while in the hands of some doctors who were to treat him for a sore tooth and administered an anaesthetic to him which killed him.

"We notice that the names of these physicians were not published in the accounts of the death in the daily press.

"An anaesthetic is always a dangerous resort, but its perils can be fairly well guarded against by a sharp watch on pulse and respiration, and administration by a competent expert.

"Still, for a minor matter like an infected tooth, physicians of repute in eastern and European cities would use local anaesthesia or, better still, the suggestive method of hypnosis, now practised in all of the highly rated hospitals elsewhere than in Los Angeles.

"Any layman who even glanced at Mr. Boynton's physique and the betrayal of super-nervous temperament it indicated, would have forbidden the use of combined chloroform and ether to him under any conditions."

To this it might be added that if the people knew how many deaths occur from the use of anesthetics they would be a little more careful about undergoing surgical operations. God only knows how many deaths occur from this cause—and the doctors won't tell. They call it "heart failure."

Surgical operations entail several dangers: First, the danger from anesthetics; second, the danger of death from mutilation; third, the ever-present danger that a person who is mutilated—some of whose organs have been removed—is never again thoroughly normal.

Care of the Body.

"CARE OF THE BODY BY RIGHT LIVING" is the title of a forty-page booklet by Charles H. Shepard, who nearly half a century ago opened the first Turkish bath in America in Brooklyn, N.Y. (Published by the author, No. 81 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, N.Y.) In this booklet Dr. Shepard gives most excellent advice, entirely in line with the teachings of the "Care of the Body" department, on cleanliness, sleep, pure air, exercise, food, fasting, etc.

Among other things he advocates the no-breakfast plan, thorough chewing of food, and fasting for the cure of disease. He shows the injuriousness of table salt and cane sugar. In regard to baths Dr. Shepard mentions that in ancient Rome the price of admission to the magnificent public baths was only half a cent.

The main objection to the Turkish bath is that in it one breathes the foul emanations from sick bodies. In this respect, and also because one perspires at a lower temperature, the electric-light bath is preferable.

Dr. Shepard makes one mistake when he recommends sleeping on the back. This is likely to lead to troubled dreams and other inconveniences. Man is the only animal that reclines on the back.

Milk and Ham.

FOLLOWING item was recently published in a Los Angeles paper:

"While eating a ham sandwich and drinking a glass of milk in a restaurant on Second street, early Thursday morning, W. J. Woolover, 27, a nurse, living at No. 410 West Second street, was stricken with serious pains in the stomach which were diagnosed as ptomaine poisoning when he as taken to the receiving hospital.

"Woolover was in company with a friend who also took a ham sandwich, but ordered coffee instead of milk. This man was not affected, and it has caused the surgeons to believe that the ptomaine germs were in the milk.

"Suffering agony, Woolover was put to bed, his case being considered very serious."

Well now, what do you think of a man—a nurse at that—who would eat such a horribly unhygienic combination as ham and milk? And of the sapient physician who would endeavor to discover where the poison lies?

Several thousand years ago, Moses forbade his people to "seethe the lamb in its mother's milk." In other words, not to eat milk and meat together, and today in a "Kosher" restaurant they will not serve you milk or butter with a meat meal.

Never eat meat and milk together. In fact, milk should never be eaten—it is a food, not a drink—and should never be taken with other foods. It is almost sure to induce digestive complications.

Beyond this, the milk of an animal is only a natural food for the young of that same animal, when taken directly from the nipple, without coming in contact with the air. The less milk you use the better—after you are weaned.

A Letter from the Soldier's Home.

WHEN a lot of old people are crowded together in an institution, without occupation, there is bound to be trouble. Querulousness, jealousy and dissatisfaction are sure to develop. This is specially so under our system of erroneous feeding—too much food and wrong food.

It is time that a complete change should be made in the method of feeding people in our public institutions. Immense benefit might be derived by the inmates of our prisons, reformatories, asylums and other institutions, if they were fed on a rational, non-stimulating dietary, composed largely of fruits and raw green stuff, abounding in the organic salts that feed the nerves, with occasional fasts. Insanity has been cured by the fasting cure. In the insane asylums at Highland and Stockton, hydropathy has been introduced. That is good, as far as it goes, but it is not enough. Diet is the main thing. As a man eateth, so is he.

Take, for instance, the Soldiers' Home in Los Angeles County, where there are over 3000 veterans, all old men, and many of them sick men. They are fed daily three meals of unwholesome food—yes unwholesome food. One of the menus was published here several years ago. They eat two or three times as much as they should, gobbling it down too fast, and there is a great lack of fresh fruits and green stuff, for which there is no excuse, as there is plenty of room in the spacious grounds to grow these foods. Consequently, it is not surprising that the Home is a hotbed of jealousy and discontent. Many of the complaints made are unfounded. Several times in this department complaints have been published, and in almost every case they have been followed by letters stating that the statements were false. It is about as satisfactory to have anything to do with a case of this kind as it would be to interfere with an Irishman who is beating his wife. Here are portions of a communication from an inmate of the Soldiers' Home that is moderate and sensible in tone:

"While discussing with friends the hygienic conditions of our wards at the Soldiers' Home, it was suggested that we write the facts, strictly, as they are, and send them to you, hoping that a certain class of members of the Home might be reached by an authoritative statement from you, provided you thought it would be beneficial, not only to the Home members, but also to many others who dwell in Los Angeles and other places, who are ignorant of the fatal effects of close rooms.

"A plain statement of facts—very plain—something you might secretly think of, as 'Plain Facts for Stupid People,' might be convincing and beneficial, if read from your department of The Times.

"It is not intended to reflect, in the slightest degree, on the efficacious management of the officers of the Home, for they manage well considering the status of many of the members. There is an element here of obstinate, and, of course, offensively ignorant men, whose only alertness is to find fault with things they do not

Dried Milk as a Food for Infants.—C. K. Millard (Brit. Med. Jour., 1910, i, 253) describes the preparation and use of dried milk and the results obtained from its use as an infants' food. Dried milk is prepared by feeding fresh milk in a continuous stream on to revolving cylinders heated by steam to about 250 deg. F., the moisture in the milk being instantly dispelled. A thin film of dry milk forms on the cylinder and is detached by knife-edges. It is subsequently passed through a sieve and is obtained as a coarse, granular, cream-colored powder practically sterile, which, in air-tight packages, will keep almost indefinitely. The relative proportions of the main constituents—proteids, fats, milk sugar, and salts—remain practically unchanged, but changes occur in the more complex albuminoids and enzymes, similar to those in boiled milk. The extremely short time during which the milk is subjected to the heat by the Just-Hatmaker process described above, may cause less change than occurs in boiling. When mixed with water, about 60 per cent. of the dried milk is soluble, the remainder is readily suspended. This dried milk has been used at an Infants' Milk Depot for eighteen months, for about two hundred infants. One advantage discovered was greater digestibility; many infants with whom liquid milk did not agree, thriving on the dried form, and retained it. This difference is accounted for by the character of the curd formed in the stomach which does not tend to form hard cheese-like masses. All infants not thriving on bottled milk were placed on the dried milk, with excellent results. After a period of ten months or longer careful records and investigations showed no scurvy or rickets resulting from its use and no bad after-effects have been discovered. The advantages of the dried milk appear to be: Ease of digestion, bacterial purity—freedom from tubercle bacilli and contamination by flies. Conservatility—no "souring" in hot weather. Convenience—a definite quantity being mixed with warm boiled water. Cheapness. The presumed destruction of the antiscorbutic properties of the milk is theoretical, but can be compensated for, if thought necessary, by administering fruit juice. Dried milk, being after all "only milk," is in an entirely different category from all patent foods prepared from cereals, and is superior to them.

The United States rights for the manufacture of dry milk, under the Just-Hatmaker process referred to above, are owned by the Dry Milk Company of New York; and the product is on sale at local drug stores under the name of Kindolac. It is the ideal Baby Food.

SAVING TIME

Is the same as saving money. In the matter of the eyesight this is strictly so. As soon as it is evident the eyesight is imperfect expert advice should be sought and the eyes put into the best possible condition. The longer the delay, the more the imperfection grows, and the greater will be the ultimate expense of whatever can be done to save the vision.

With the eyesight delays are dangerous. A pair of rightly-fitted lenses at the right time may prevent the development of cataracts and the loss of sight. In the scheme of creation it is intended that the eyes shall do service as long as the other parts of the body.

See me for all eye troubles. No extra charge for examination.

PROFESSIONAL SKILL

Is the important consideration in choosing your oculist. The plain glass used in a pair of lenses has about the same relative value as the wool used in making a fine tailored suit. The skill which fits these crude materials to perform their allotted functions is the element of greatest value. People who have tried the "cheap" ones appreciate this fact.

understand, and as their understanding is very limited, they find fault with about everything. . . .

"Our wards are about 60 feet long, 25 feet wide, and 14 feet high, with a hall connected by a wide, open passage. This hall is about 20 feet square and 14 feet high. In the large room, or ward, there are twenty-five beds; in the hall there are five beds, all occupied. There is a small ventilator near the top of the ward room and three insufficient ventilators near the floor—none in the hall. Little or no benefit is derived from these. Four of the windows are generally open, a little, at the top. These four windows have shields to prevent draft. The air space is about four inches across the windows, which are 3 feet, 6 inches wide. Sometimes two or three of the unshielded windows are dropped two or perhaps three inches, but not always. The writer, against continual opposition, kept his window raised six inches or a foot. He has taken cold but once, and that was due to foul air during a fitful sleep, when he became uncovered. He was fully awakened to find his lungs full of inhaled poison. He at once raised the window two feet to allow the cool air to blow upon him. He then covered up and went into a natural sleep in an invigorating draft, with good results. This is strictly in accord with a statement you recently made. In New Hampshire, where the mercury often drops to 20 degrees below zero, or more, the writer slept half his present age (70) with two windows open, summer and winter, without ever taking cold, even on occasions when the thermometer registered 38 degrees to 40 degrees below zero. It is simply a question of enough covering over and underneath.

"As you are well aware, the old and the young ex-soldiers eat a great deal too much food, generally speaking, and between gluttony, non-exercise and carbon-dioxide, the funeral escort is kept busy and the gun-carriage wheel tires are fast wearing out, carrying the remains of 'dead heroes' to their final resting place. Half the graves over the hill might be marked as reminder: 'He died of carbonic acid gas.'"

Another correspondent writing from the Soldiers' Home, states that the diet for tuberculosis patients in the Home is "rare beef steak, stew, white bread, oleomargerine, dried apples and mush, usually corn meal."

The editor of the Care of the Body once more suggests that these old men should be fed less and fed better food—plenty of fresh fruits and green stuff, that will cool their blood. Also, that they should be given opportunities to take a thorough flushing of the bowels by an enema twice a week. Then they would not be so cranky.

Mrs. Conable Weds Again.

EDWARD WALLACE CONABLE, editor, in the East and in Los Angeles, of a little monthly magazine, the Pathfinder, and author of several books, died early this year in Seattle, leaving behind a young widow, whom he had married several years ago in Los Angeles. Mr. Conable was a man of high and noble ideals, but somewhat visionary, like so many men of that type. Mrs. Conable fully sympathized with her late husband's ideas, and aided him in his work.

Mrs. Conable was recently remarried to a well-to-do oil operator named Wade, who has a home in Los Angeles. As in the case of her previous husband, he is many years her senior.

Another "Marvelous" Cure.

HERE is another report of a "marvelous" cure from St. Louis:

"After having lain for three days in a continuous spasm due to tetanus in an advanced stage, Gertrude Bodemer, a 10-year-old girl of this city, was cured by the use of an unusual amount of tetanus serum. Nine thousand units of the serum were injected into the child's system, in doses of 3000 units, the usual 'immunizing' dose being, it is said, 500 units. The doses were given within a period of sixty hours, and the girl is now pronounced out of danger."

Watch the after results of these "cures," of which we get a new one every few weeks.

An Ardent Old Lover.

WE talk about the ardor of youth, but this quality is sometimes found highly developed in old age. For instance, an old gentleman of Baltimore, 96 years of age, went on a recent Saturday to a suburb to secure a license to marry his inamorata, a maiden 55 years of age. In the rush he was given a gunner's license, by mistake. After arriving home and discovering his predicament, no trains being running, he walked ten miles back to secure the proper document, and then walked home, getting married that same night.

Let us hope that his bride will be good to him.

"Heart Failure."

AN Ocean Park correspondent asks why so many people die of "heart failure."

Dear correspondent, that is because the eminent physician who attends the case is either unable or unwilling to say what was the cause of death. The deceased may have died of alcoholism, or he may have died in consequence of an operation. In either case it would not be considered advisable to tell the truth. Therefore it is put down as "heart failure," which is an absurdity, for, of course, when a man dies, his heart fails to work.

Again, in many cases the physician does not know what the deceased died of unless he cuts him up. If doctors would take up the "diagnosing from the eye" they would be able to tell what is the matter with a person without cutting him to pieces.
